Ford Makes Appeal For Reducing Arms

News Briefs

Bread to Cost Cent More

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Weston Bakeries Ltd. says the price of bread will go up one cent a loaf Aug. 11 because of an increase in the cost of flour.

Israelis Cross Border

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed into Lebanon during the night and blew up a house during a search for suspected Arab guerrillas, the military command reported today. The spokesman said the troops encountered no resistance and suffered no casualties.

Hot at Sudbury

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) -- This city had its second hottest day ever Thursday as the temperature reached 10: degrees fahrenheit in mid afternoon. The all time peak of 106 was recorded July 13, 1936.

Airlift Said Planned

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The Johannesburg Star says Portugal will conduct a two month airlift starting Monday to evacuate 200,000 Portuguese from the war torn West African colony of Angola. There was no immediate confirmation by Portuguese officials.

Lake Cleanup Pleasing

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The International Joint Commission is happy with progress made so far by Canada and the United States in cleaning up the Great Lakes, the U.S. co chairman of the commission, Henry P. Smith, told a news conference at the end of a four day commission session.

Two Die in Crash

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Carl Hand, 62, and his wife Nancy, 57, of nearby Font Hill died Thursday when their single engine float aircraft crashed while attempting to take off near the rowing course of the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta as spectators watched in horror.

Fewer Jobless in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States unemployment rate declined to 8.4 per cent in July, the labor department reported today. There were indications the drop -- from 8.6 per cent in June — means the U.S. economy is improving faster than had been predicted by most economists.

HELSINKI (AP) — President Ford called today for arms reduction in Central Europe and a new agreement with the Soviet Union to put a lid on offensive nuclear weapons. "We owe it to our children," he said.

In a speech to the European security conference, Ford expressed no direct reservations about a controversial and non-binding code of conduct he and leaders of 34 other countries—including the Soviet Union—were to sign later today.

However, he said, "We will spare no effort to ease tensions and solve problems between us. But it is important that you recognize the deep devotion of the American people and their government to human rights and fundamental freedoms and thus to the pledges that this conference has made regarding the freer movement of people, ideas and information."

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, in addressing the conference Thursday, placed emphasis on a section of the agreement declaring that signers of the accord would not interfere in the internal affairs of other countries.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said he found Brezhnev's speech moderate and conciliatory and assumed the Soviet Union would live up to pledges in the document to protect and expand human rights and freedoms.

However, Kissinger acknowledged that Breshnev's phrasing was ambiguous.

Ford said "peace is not a piece of paper," and that the European security agreement represented "a challenge, not a conclusion."

While saying "the United States gladly subscribes to this document," Ford added:

"We owe it to our children, to the children of all continents, not to miss any opportunity, not to malinger for one minute, not to spare ourselves or allow others to shirk in the monumental task of building a better and a safer world.

"Detente is an evolutionary process, not a static condition. Detente must be a two-way street. Tensions cannot be eased by one side alone. Both sides must want detente and work to achieve it. Both sides must benefit from it."

Listing challenges to political leaders East and West, Ford said the "negotiations now under way in Vienna on mutual and balanced force reductions so far have not produced the results for which I had hoped."

"The United States stands ready to demonstrate flexibility in moving these negotiations forward, if others will do the same. An agreement that enhances mutual security is feasible—and essential."

The president said he and Brezhnev were "moving forward in our bilateral discussions here in Helsinki" in their search for "a new accord limiting strategic offensive weapons for the next 10 years."

Kissinger has said he hopes Ford and Brezhnev can clear up here some of the stumbling blocks to implementation of an arms-limitation treaty they outlined in broad terms when they last met in Vladivostok last November.

In reciting what he termed the challenges facing leaders of the Communist and non-Communist countries, Ford cited Berlin as "a test of detente and of the principles of this conference."

He said the terms of the security agreement "apply to Berlin as they do throughout Europe."

In a section addressed to U.S. allies, Ford said: "I assure you that my country will continue to be a concerned and reliable partner."

To countries of the East, Ford said the principles subscribed to by the 35 nations participating in the security conference "are not cliches or empty phrases" and would be taken seriously by the U.S., which will expect others to do likewise.

To all conference participants, Ford said his presence "symbolizes my country's vital interest in Europe's future."

"Our future is bound with yours. The United States therefore intends to participate fully in the affairs of Europe and in turning the results of this conference into a living reality."

Trudeau and Ford Chat Over Berries

HELSINKI (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and President Ford shared a bowl of strawberries and chatted about nuclear matters today during a break at the European summit.

The two leaders retired to a coffee table for about 15 minutes after Ford had delivered the United States speech at the conference.

Ford's speech had contained a passage about nuclear proliferation that followed almost the same route that Trudeau and British Prime Minister Wilson went in their speeches.

The president said:

"The world faces an unprecedented danger in the spread of nuclear weapons technology. The benefits of peaceful nuclear energy are becoming more and more important. We must find ways to spread these benefits while safeguarding the world against the menace of weapons proliferation."

Trudeau expressed concern for nuclear proliferation in his speech and dealt with the question again in a bilateral talk with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt on Thursday.

In the case of Schmidt, the prime minister had expressed particular concern over the use of recycling equipment.

Stelco Strike Is Averted

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A strike by 12,000 workers at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco) Hilton works was averted just hours before the midnight Thursday night deadline when workers voted 52.5 per cent in favor of a new three-year contract.

Meanhwhile, in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., picket lines formed shortly after midnight at the Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. plant, Canada's secondlargest steel producer after Stelco.

Drought Withers Potatoes

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A seven-week drought in most of Prince Edward Island has begun withering potato fields and there are predictions that the yield could drop as much as 25 per cent from 1974.

P.E.I. has had less than two-tenths of an inch of rain in the last 22 days of June and it was generally dry in July. If the drought continues, industry analysts predict losses could reach 40 per cent.

However, the P.E.I. potato marketing board says it hopes to stabilize the industry with enforced minimum sale prices for the crop that survives the drought.

"Beginning on Aug. 5, we will set a minimum price for all potatoes leaving the province and we're going to enforce it," potato board official Harold Cairns said Thursday.

"All potatoes leaving the province will need a transport permit and we won't issue one if we think the grower is trying to undercut the minimum," he said in an interview.

In 1974, the board had a "recommended" minimum sale price system, not an enforced one. This year they are using powers contained in a Potato Marketing Act passed in 1956 but never used.

In New Brunswick and Maine, two major competitors of P.E.I. growers, the situation is grim.

There, previous estimates that the crop could drop by as much as 20 per cent now are viewed as "optimistic".

Some Maine growers say the situation is worse than it has been in the last 20 years.

Africans Refuse Demand by Arabs

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — The 12th summit conference of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) ended today after Arab delegates failed to persuade the 46-country body to call for Israel's expulsion from the United Nations.

The Arabs failed to get the support they had hoped for in discussion of two resolutions on the Israeli question, one calling for outright expulsion from the UN and the other calling for suspension.

After almost 11 hours of sometimes acrimonious debate, all the Arabs obtained was approval of an amended resolution asking members to take "adequate measures in order to reinforce the pressure exerted on Israel at the United Nations, including the possibility of eventually depriving it of its membership."

The amended version was approved unanimously, but five countries lodged formal reservations about it.

Zaire said it was against either the original resolutions or the amended version. Ghana, Sierra Leone, Senegal and Liberia said they had no clear mandate from their heads of state, who were absent, to accept the amendment.

Portuguese Mission to Try To Bring Peace to Angola

LISBON (Reuter) — A Portuguese military mission left today for Angola in an attempt to avert civil war in that African territory, which is due to become independent in November.

The three-man mission consists of Gen. Carlos Fabiao, commander-in-chief of the army and a leading political moderate; Vice-Admiral Rosa Coutinho, a leftist who was high commissioner in Angola until January; and Maj. Jose Canto e Castra.

The mission left soon after President Francisco da Costa Gomes said he had formed a new government to replace that which fell two weeks ago when the Socialists and centre-left Popular Democrats walked out.

But he said the list of its members would not be released until Saturday when he returns from the European security conference in Helsinki.

The mission to Angola reflects the worry of the Portuguese military rulers that, with 24,000 troops and several hundred civilians still in the territory, civil war there could have a disastrous effect on the delicate domestic political situation and on the morale and discipline of the armed forces.

Observers here said the appointment of Coutinho to the mission apparently indicated an attempt to regain the confidence of the Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), which is fighting for supremacy with the Zaire-based National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA).

A recent clash between MPLA troops and Portuguese soldiers prompted MPLA leaders Agostinho Neto to demand that Portuguese troops leave the territory.

Coutinho was replaced as high commissioner in Angola because the FNLA and a third liberation movement, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), both protested that he favored the MPLA.

He has since confirmed this preference, and the presence of Fabiao in the mission was seen as providing political balance to Coutinho's views.

Fabiao said their task would be to discover the needs and problems of the. Portuguese armed forces there, but Coutinho said they also might have contacts with the liberation movements and probably would return home Monday.

Vanishes

Police Hunt Hoffa

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Police are searching for former Teamsters union President Jimmy Hoffa, who hasn't been seen since Wednesday when his car was abandoned in a parking lot.

Police said today they have no clues as to the whereabouts of Hoffa, 62, whose career has been dotted with incidents of violence.

Hoffa has been trying to regain leadership of the union, largest in the United States with 2.1 million members.

Lieut. Curt Grennier of the Bloomfield Township police said: "You always have to consider foul play considering Hoffa's background."

But Grennier said he had no reason to suspect foul play and speculation that Hoffa may have been kidnapped is "just that—speculation."

Hoffa's disappearance follows a series of violent incidents involving key figures at Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit, where Hoffa and his hand-picked successor, Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons, both began their road to power.

It was reported by Michigan's governor Thursday night that Hoffa had arranged to meet purported Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone Wednesday in a restaurant. Hoffa was seen outside the restaurant, but not since.

Giacalone, a longtime Hoffa friend, denied he had arranged to see Hoffa.

James Riddle Hoffa was last seen at 2 p.m. Wednesday outside the restaurant where his 1974 Pontiac was found, unlocked and untampered with.

The person Hoffa was to meet at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant didn't show up, and Hoffa called his wife.

"That's the last we've seen or heard of him," said Grennier.

His son, Detroit lawyer James P. Hoffa, filed a missing person report Thursday evening.

Hoffa had served 4½ years of a 13-year prison term for jury tampering and mail fraud when his sentence was commuted in 1971 by then-President Richard Nixon, who placed a restriction on the commutation by banning Hoffa from union activities until 1980.

Hoffa has been involved in a court battle to regain the right to participate in union politics ever since. His latest appeal is pending before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, which is expected to issue a decision this summer.

Last month, a car belonging to Local 299 vicepresident Richard Fitzsimmons was bomped in Detroit. Some observers blamed the bombing on a rift between pro-and anti-Hoffa forces in the Detroit local. Fitzsimmons is the son of Frank Fitzsimmons.

In the last several years, Local 299 President Dave Johnson has been beaten, his boat blown up and his office windows shattered by gunfire. He is a Hoffa partisan.

A Local 299 trustee lost the sight on one eye after he was fired on with a shotgun, a local organizer's home was firebombed and a barn on the farm of a local officer was burned.

Time to Go Home

For Gerald Veelo, the last half hour of his five-week visit to the Belleville area made the trip from his Dutch homeland all worthwhile. Mr. Veelo spent his holidays searching for a friend he met during the Second World War and whom he believed to be living in Belleville. In his trip's closing moments, he was contacted by his friend's family to be told Victor Mason is now living in Ireland. "It's a very happy day." Train conductor is Ross Aitcheson of Dundas.

Dutch Visitor Locates Wartime Friend Half Hour Before Leaving for Home

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

With only 30 minutes left before he had to board a train for his Dutch homeland, Gerald Veelo located a wartime friend for whom he had been searching the last five weeks.

The only hitch is that Victor Mason, the man Mr. Veelo met on furlough in Amsterdam, only came back to Canada for a short while after the war. He soon returned to England and for the past several years has lived in Dublin, Ireland.

The search which carried Mr. Veelo through every community bordering Lake Ontario, came to a close yesterday, in Belleville.

"All I knew of the man I met in Amsterdam was that his name was Vic, that he served with the Canadian Army Service Corps and that he invited me to visit him in Belleville after the war," said Mr. Veelo. Since he arrived in Canada, Mr. Veelo has contacted newspapers in each Lake Ontario community in search of Vic.

"There's no doubt about it," said Mr. Veelo, moments before boarding a train here to make his return trip to Toronto airport, then home. "His mother identified the photograph I have kept since the war as that of her son."

"It's a very happy day," he said. "I have succeeded."

"When I see him in Ireland, I'll recognize him at once," he said.

For the time being Mr. Veelo says he will return to his wife Petra in Amsterdam and reach his friend, Mr. Mason, by letter.

"It has been a terrific holiday ... but it is much better now that I have found him," he said.

"It is sad for me to leave Belleville," he said as he handed his ticket to a waiting Canadian National Railway conductor. "I have come to like Belleville very much."

Mrs. Leo Tapp, sister of Mr. Mason, said the visit by Mr. Veelo was "wonderful".

"It's too bad he's been here all the time and we didn't realize it," she said. "We only had half an hour to get acquainted before his train was scheduled to leave."

"There's no doubt in my mind that Mr. Veelo's friend is my brother," she said. "It's wonderful."

Armed Forces Issue Arms Range Warning

TRENTON — Enght unexploded 500-pound bombs, grenades and other explosie devices are somewhere in the hexagonal area west of Weller's Bay and encompassing Blad and Fox Islands and Bald Head, CFB Trenton personnel warn area residents.

The bombs say base spokesmen, are in what is called the Consecon Air Weapons Range, an air weapons range used by RCAF aircraft till 1952.

"If has been classed as a potential danger area by the national defence department.

Area residents are warned to stay clear of the area and if objects are found, residents are asked to call police.

Community Boards Run Social Services

VANCOUVER (CP) — People who want more say in how social services are handled in their neighborhood can express their views by running for one of Vancouver's new community resources boards.

"There has been a divorce between social services and the community in the past," said Mervyn Davis, manager of one of the boards. "The goal now is to enable people to feel they can affect the way things are done in terms of the long range."

Welfare aid, battered children, counselling, and neighborhood problems and projects will all come under Community Resources Board (CRB) auspices.

The boards have 10 to 15 unpaid members elected by the community in which they will work.

Public response generally has not been overwhelming, but encouragement for backers of the concept came with a crowded organizational meeting for the downtown area.

The CRBs are overseen by the Vancouver Resource Board (VRB), which ensures that statutory services are carried out according to government policy and employs the staff which carry out the policy. Only the area manager of each CRB is hired, and can be fired, by the CRB itself.

Alderman Harry Rankin, chairman of VRB, says provincial integration and rationalization of a mass of services to citizens has resulted in more humane and efficient delivery of services.

The success of the CRBs in decentralizing responsibility and bringing services closer to people depends largely, he said, on the kind of people elected.

"The boards have a great deal of power and they handle a lot of money. What they require is members who have a genuine concern for people in need, a sense of social consciousness, and who are really representative of their communities."

Mr. Davis said a CRB could go two ways.

"It can become just another local bureaucratic board trying to control everything and make it more difficult for people with ideas. . . .

"Or it can become a group of people who live in my neighborhood . . . people I go to, to get something done or do something for myself and others."

He said increased community involvement will make it harder for those responsible for delivery of welfare services to isolate themselves from the feelings of people in the neighborhood.

"We want to improve services for everybody—the welfare recipient, the taxpayer, the neighbor who needs a social worker, the resident with a good idea for the community that needs government funding to get going."

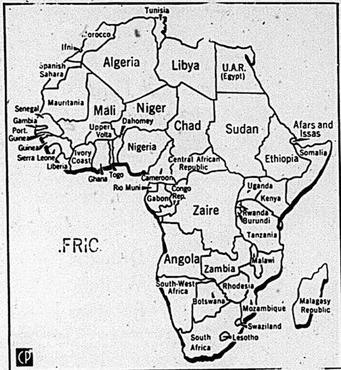
Removes 25-year-old Trees

Work crews at Belleville Collegiate Institute Thurs., removed several 25-yr.-old evergreen trees to make way for new shrubs and trees to be planted before September. A spokesman for the Hastings County Board of Education said the trees had grown wild and were unmanageable. Trimming had become almost impossible. Uprooting the trees and planting new ones will cost the board $800.



As more and more African nations gain their independence, the names are often changed. The renaming is usually inspired by the leaders whose aim is to instill patriotism among their people by erasing any traces of colonialism. Afars and Issas, formerly French Somaliland, is the latest African nation to change its name. But not all African nations are eager to change names. One such territory is South West Africa. When the United Nations declared South Africa's mandate over the territory ended, The UN named it Namibia. However the area is still governed by South Africa, which does not recognize the UN declaration, or the new name. (CP

Two Boats Collide

FRANKFORD — A Frankford man, Melvin Butland, suffered a broken arm Thursday in a boating accident on the Trenton canal near here.

Belleville OPP said the accident, involving two smallcraft, apparently collided with a second boat, driven by John Fraser, of Carrying Place.

The Fraser craft was northbound in the canal when it attempted to pass the second craft, police said. Belleville OPP are still investigating.

Illinois Takes Children Home

TORONTO (CP) — The government of Illinois has ordered the return of five emotionally disturbed children from child care homes in Toronto which have been operating without licences.

They had been placed by her department in Viking Houses, an Ontario chain of 25 group homes for emotionally disturbed and delinquent children operated by Marshall Homes Ltd.

Many Residents Aren't Aware of County Museums

PICTON — Who visits Prince Edward County's five museums during the summer months?

A random poll of Picton and Prince Edward residents indicates that the Prince Edward County Museum, Rose House, Wellington Museum, Ameliasburg Museum and Mariners' Park basically attract tourists. Of the six persons questioned none could name all of the county museums. None had visited more than three of them.

BEVERLEY SKIDMORE

Beverley Skidmore of Picton, co-owner of The County Book and Craft Shop says she is aware of three county museums and has visited them all recently.

She said she was impressed with the lay-out of each display and says the museums were well-managed.

"When I lived in Toronto I never went to the Casa Loma. I visited if after I had moved away," she says.

She feels as a tourists in another county she would probably spend more time touring the local museums.

GUY SARAULT

Picton ambulance driver Guy Sarault has toured the Prince Edward County Museum and was aware of the Rose House in North Marysburg.

Mr. Sarault says he has no plans to visit other county museums but expects if he were on vacation in another community he would include museums on his travel tour.

"You just take them (Prince Edward museums) for granted, "he says.

MRS. ANDREW MARTIN

A sales clerk with Scott's Gift Centre, Mrs. Andrew Martin has visited Wellington museum but none of the others in the county.

"If its there, you just don't bother. You seem to take it for granted," she suggests.

Mrs. Martin observes that when she lived in England she never saw the Queen or the changing of the guard but when she returned as a tourist she made it a point to see both.

"We are too apathetic here," she says.

BILL CLOSSON

Owner of Will's East End Dairy Store, Bill Closson of Rednersville has visited two Prince Edward museums" by accident."

While employed as a school bus driver he took student groups to Ameliasburg Museum and drove past Mariners' Park.

Mr. Clocson says he was "very impressed" by Ameliasburg Museum and has plans to take his children there soon.

I'm not a museum person but I would go now," he notes referring to the influence of his trip to Ameliasburg.

FRAN REVOY

An X-Ray technician exployed at Prince Edward County Memorial Fran Renoy says she has not visited any museums here and could not enumerate them.

Mrs. Renoy says she is interested in antiques and expects she would enjoy the displays but she has not taken the time to view them. She adds that if she were vacationing in another community with similar museums it is likely she would tour all of them.

DEBBIE VANHECKE

A Grade 12 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Debbie Vanhecke says she has never visited a county museum.

Miss Vanhecke notes that she and several friends planned to tour several of the museums this summer but summer jobs changed their schedules.

She adds that she is interested in the museums and intends to see them as soon as she can as others say they are "really good."

District at a Glance

Canoe Trip Planned

TRENTON — Sixteen children in the Trenton recreation department's sports program will be canoeing down the Trent Canal next week in a one-day outing from Frankford. The trip, the third in two years, is part of a summer program for children between ages 10 and 14. A department spokesman says it was run again this year because it was favorably received in 1974, its first year.

Study Meeting Topic

TRENTON — Town officials will be invited to an August 11 meeting at Murray Centennial Public School to expand on a brief Trenton submitted to the Northumberland County government restructuring study team.

The meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m., is one of two in the Trenton area during which political boundary changes in the county will be discussed.

Prior to the Aug. 11 meeting, study commissioner Donald King will attend an Aug. 7 meeting, one of seven county-wide in early August, at the Scotty Broughton Youth Centre on Dundas St. in Brighton. It begins at 8 p.m.

Repair Costs Up

The cost of car repairs has increased by 27 per cent in the past 18 months and by 13 per cent since January, says a study prepared for the Insurance Bureau of Canada and based on repair costs in the Toronto area.

Minister Ends Career

WELLINGTON — An open house will be held in Wellington Town Hall, Thursday, August 7 from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in honor of Reverend and Mrs. J. Shannon who are retiring from the ministry here.

All friends in the village and outlying communities are invited to attend.

Swimming

Swimming Course Popular

Picton — A total of 58 young persons have registered in the swimming program started at Smith's Bay this week by the Picton Recreation and Parks committee. The three-week program now beginning is the second held this summer.

Affiliated with the Red Cross the program is taught by Susan Payne and assistants Rick Dainard, Steven Murphy and Nancy McKinnon. The cost is 12 per child or $20. per family.

OPP Busy

During a recent week, officers of the Madoc Ontario Provincial Police, investigated nine accidents. Damages amounted to $62,630.00. There were three charges laid in connection with these collisions. Seven thefts were investigated.

Dairy Princess Named

Lennox and Addington Holstein Club joined with the County Milk Committee to hold a successful chicken barbecue and dairy princess competition at the farm of Clarence Baker and sons, RR 3 Napanee recently.

Five hundred chickens were prepared by the Napanee Lions Club.

Debbie Rogers was crowned County Dairy Princess for 1975-76. She will compete at this year's Canadian National Exhibition for the provincial Dairy Princess title as she was the 1974-75 County Dairy Princess.

Report Outlines Trenton Growth

TRENTON — Trenton wants its western boundary to cut deeply in to Murray township and encompass an additional 2,100 acres, 72 per cent of Trenton's existing size, a town brief to the Northumberland County government restructuring study team indicates.

New boundaries outlined in the brief would add all land south of Highway 401, east of Wooler Rd. and north of the Bay of Quinte to renton's existing 2,906 acres.

It supports its claim to the growth of Trenton's population and the need to house it, and the eventual scarcity of industrial land.

The brief, submitted to the land by siting the expected study team in mid-July, was drafted in response to a request for town plans for its future from study commissioner Donald King.

Brief suggestions fall in line with those offered in a discussion paper produced by the commissioner in May.

Trenton's brief, written by clerk Aubrey Sharp, argues for expansion into Murray based partly on a three-year-old study that projects an area population of over 31,000 by the year 2000.

Since Trenton has only development land available to handle 20,000 people (today it has 14,500), "a population of 11,232 could be scattered somewhere around the outskirts of Trenton," the brief states.

This should be frowned upon as poor planning. Instead, development represented by the population growth should be serviced, not by wells and septic tanks, but by town services.

In addition, says the brief, Trenton needs industrial land. Most of about 600 now designated industrial is in private hands and is being saved for eventual expansion. Trenton has only 33 acres immediately available.

Reaction to the brief, one of 40 submitted, is not forthcoming from the study team.

Restructuring study project co-ordinator Fred Hilling said this week it is too early to expect comments (recommendations for restructuring the county will be made in December this year.)

Mr. Hilling said other briefs, mostly from municipalities, indicate a feeling that Trenton should join the county — thereby losing its separated status. He did not say whether any of the briefs suggested Trenton expand its boundaries.

He said more briefs are in favor of the union than are opposed. In related documents — a survey of the county's 87 councillors — a slight majority (about 55 per cent) favored Trenton's admission to the county structure.

Upon briefs and various surveys, the study team will produce a preliminary report in late August outlining county-wide issues and restructuring alternatives for discussion.

Right Up There

More than 200 Trenton youngsters in five of the town's playgrounds are enjoying a six-week summer playground program. Corrine Chubb, 9, one of the enthusiastic participants, tries out her balancing skill on stilts at Dufferin Street Public School.

Six Youths Charged In Series of Thefts

TRENTON — Six local youths between the ages of 16 and 22 remain in Trenton police custod today after their arrest on charges of auto theft, and break, enter and theft.

Charged are Daniel Jolivet, 18, CFB Trenton; Roger Gillette, 22 RR 5 Trenton; Gary Johnston, 17, 25 Perry St., Brighton; George Phillips, 18, RR 7, Brighton; Anthony Revoy, 18, RR 1, Hampton and Robert Davis, 18, RR 1 Wooler.

Trenton police officers went to Montreal this week to return the latter four to Trenton after Montreal police arrested them in possession of a stolen vehicle.

The arrest followed auto thefts from B and A Motors on Dundas St. East, Lange and Fetter Motors Ltd., also on Dundas St. East, a dealership in Port Hope, and Davidson Pontiac Buick Ltd. on Elgin St.

The police spokesman said Belleville provincial police and CFB Trenton military police were also involved in the arrests of two of the youths.

Resident Marks 104th Birthday

Catherine Doupe, who has celebrated her 104th birthday, July 31st, 1975 is a resident of Hillcrest Nursing Home in Napanee Mrs. Doupe who taught school between Roblin and Croydon and worked for a number of years in the Robinson Department Store in Napanee, was born in Camden Township.

Township Moves Garbage Bins

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

DEMORESTVILLE — Waste disposal bins strategically located to serve all residents of Sophiasburg Township were moved Thursday to the township barns here to curb littering.

Sophiasburg reeve George Foster said the township road superintendent recommended the move to a central location because pick-ups were taking too long through misuse of the bins.

Township residents frequently filled the containers to overflowing and left the roadside scattered with papers, glass and nails.

It required a considerable length of time for township workmen to empty the disposal bins, then pick up trash scattered around them.

Also, the ministry of environment recently contacted township council by letter, pointing out that the roadsides were untidy because of trash dropped from the bins.

"There should be more supervision around the barns," said reeve Foster.

"I think council errored in placing bins in four locations instead of one in the first place," he added.

The waste disposal containers were placed at Doxsees, Woodville, emorestville and Mount Carmel about 18 months ago.

Reeve Foster observed such as homeowners in the Green Point area, will be forced to drive some distance to place their garbage in the bins at Demorestville.

He predicted that, in time, it may be necessary to fence an area at the township barns and hire an attendant to supervise waste disposal there.

"Last week the containers on Highway 49 were disgraceful," commented the reeve.

He said there was an accumulation of glass and nails that discouraged most persons from attempting to dump trash into the containers furthest off the road. Consequently, the box closest to the road many Sophiasburg residents, was overflowing.

Warren Allmand on Ottawa Hot Seat Over Death Penalty Debate

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Eight killers wait on death row in Canadian maximum security penitentiaries and Solicitor General Warren Allmand, who is determined to save them from execution, sits on a hot seat in Ottawa.

Allmand, who as cabinet minister and especially as Solicitor General responsible for leading the war on crime, is under oath to uphold the law.

The law says that unless the Cabinet uses its royal prerogative to commute death sentences, convicted killers of police and prison officers must die.

But Allmand, Canada's Number One lawman, and the cabinet minister designated to sign the death orders, has gone on the public record that he'd rather resign.

Prime Minister Trudeau, like Warren Allmand, with what the Solicitor General calls a gut revulsion to the death sentence, will be pushing Parliament next autumn for a new law abolishing capital punishment.

But they're not likely to get it before a Cabinet decision — to execute or not execute those eight killers waiting out the weeks on death row — must be taken.

In the currently hot and still rising temper of the country over the ever-climbing crime and murder rate, this time the Trudeau Cabinet might not care — or perhaps dare — to commute those death sentences.

Who knows, by then, there may be more than eight with a date with death.

Which is the basic reason why Warren Allmand may be wilting in the heat.

For if he won't sign the death orders, he'll have to resign, as he promised, or lose all credibility.

He seems to feel that it has become a case of Warren Allmand against the world.

His wife and children have been threatened with death, he says, and he has them under guard at home in Montreal.

His health is going to pieces. He's on pain-killers, muscle relaxers and sleeping pills, he says, and has been in and out of hospital with a deteriorating disc and agonizing bursitis.

Once a bouncy, vigorous, cheerful extrovert, in the closing weeks of the session he was in a slow and sleepy stumble from all that medication.

If he thinks it was a tough winter, spring and summer, he had better get set for an even tougher fall.

For then he must either bring in and try ramming through an increasingly reluctant Parliament his bill for total abolition of capital punishment — or face a storm of public protest that already threatens to become an overwhelming national uproar when he bids for commutation for two killers scheduled to die in Moncton for the murder of two police officers.

Meanwhile, the gale of public outrage rises and Warren Allmand is taking the physical emotional and psychological beating of his life.

In the closing weeks of the session he heard an angry Opposition calling for his resignation.

His mail was clogged with an average 600 to 700 letters a day, most opposing his abolitionist views.

As more and more violent crimes hit the nation's front pages, the tide of angry mail rises, swamping his office with protests against his defiance of the law.

Conservative Leader Stanfield, a mild, understanding and forgiving man if there ever was one in Parliament, says Warren Allmand is more than just defiant — he's "dishonest."

Dishonest because he has publicly peldged not to enforce the law on capital punishment that he himself pressured through Parliament three years ago.

What's Warren Allmand saying to all this?

For starters he says he detests "being accused," as he puts it, "of being a weak-kneed bleeding heart mealy-mouth mollycoddling murderers."

On that basis you'd think the public outrage was getting to him.

But no.

"As if it takes guts to go out and hang a guy," he says, "when you don't have to do the hanging, but just sign the form and go home and pretend you had nothing to do with it, leaving it to the hangman.

"I can't think that way."

Whose Fault Pollution?

It has been fashionable, if not convenient, to blame the pollution of our lakes and rivers on industries or even tourists and pleasure boaters.

But it would appear some Quinte area residents should literally clean up their own back yards before casting first stones.

A spokesman for the Lower Trent River Conservation Authority feels that overloading of individual cottage sewage disposal systems could be a cause for reported sightings of raw sewage in the Trent.

The Lower Trent Authority wants municipalities to require cottage owners to get health department approval for any building permits for which they apply.

Members of the Crowe Lake Property Owners Association are equally concerned about policing pollution.

They have petitioned the Hastings-Prince Edward Health Unit and a Kingston ministry of the environment representative to deal with the problem of illegal septic tanks in their scenic Marmora area neighborhood.

With stiff fines being handed out frequently to industries, who now must meet stringent government controls on air and water emissions, perhaps it is time for authorities at the local level to keep closer tabs on "the little guy" who may not be practicing what he preaches.

Starving See Food Wasted

Food wastage . . . pretty well everyone is aware that this is a fact — from the morsels that are left untouched or even thrown out by the kids in school, to the leftovers on adult plates.

This, while countless persons starve, in places of drought and crop failure and general economic deprivation.

Now from the Salinas Valley of California there is word of surplus vegetable crops being provided to needy citizens over 65 earning less than $2,500 a year.

An excellent idea, but it only came about after someone discovered that the vegetables hitherto were plowed back into the ground if found to be the wrong size, say too big, for packaging and distribution to supermarkets.

Incredible . . . but true.

Picton Parking Eased

If there is a problem that most communities have in common in their downtown cores it is parking — or rather — the lack of it.

The current situation in Belleville is nothing short of disastrous. Finding a Front St. parking spot on a Friday night can be like looking for that one piece of the jigsaw puzzle you swear the manufacturer forgot to put in the box.

Plans for a multi-level parking authority garage downtown are a blessing for businessmen who prefer to keep Belleville's downtown area a worthwhile place to shop.

It is with some interest, then, that we see the town of Picton donating the former site of an elementary school for free parking for the downtown shopper. Of course, town fathers feel the downtown parking situation is more critical in Picton, with no malls or plazas resting on the town's outskirts eager to grab up all customers fed up with fighting traffic.

So far, Picton Mayor Donald King sees only one potential problem cropping up at the new 71-car lot.

He hopes the merchants themselves will not fill up the lot designed to bring customers into their stores.

Nigerian Power Changes Hands Again

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the victor in the bloody civil war in Biafra six years ago, the teetotalling and corruption-free military president of Nigeria, was overthrown this week in yet another African military coup.

In his place rule other colonels and generals of Nigeria's spit-and-polish military elite, all of them like Gowon trained as young officers at Sandhurst Military Academy in the late 50s when Nigeria was still undet British rule.

The new chief of state and commander-in-chief of the armed forces, a Brig.-Gen. Muritala Rufai Mohammed like the deposed Gowon, is from northern Nigeria

But unlike Gen. Gowon, the slim aesthetic ruler just tossed out, who is also a Christian, the new Nigerian boss is a Moslem.

In terms of the regional racial and religious divisions of Africa's largest nation, this is important and may result in a tougher foreign policy direction for this country than in the past.

By this I mean Nigeria could ally herself more strongly with the already-powerful bloc of Arab countries, less so with the Commonwealth in which she is the most powerful African member.

In addition, Nigeria, like many Arab states, is a major oil producer, the world's sixth largest in effect, and already an active member of OPEC, Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Indeed it might have been a surfeit of riches from Nigeria's high-priced oil exports which helped overthrow the impressive Gowon, who only a few years ago not only won the civil war but healed up the wounds in record short time.

Gen Gowon also had spent lavishly in the public sector area building housing, schools and financing industry where due, as well as paying for the rebuilding of Biafran cities and villages

Either the fellow generals who overthrew him, felt he had over-spent now that OPEC countries are cutting back on oil production and royalties are reduced, or they wanted to have the say in continuing Gowon's building program.

All African states are rampant with corruption and payoffs, Gowon's personal honesty being unusual in the continent, one hopes that such basic motives of greed were not behind this bloodless coup.

The appearance of a devout Moslem as chief of state also has implications for Nigerian federalism which like ours, is based on division of powers among the dominant ethnic communities.

In fact the Nigerian constitution implemented at independence in 1960, was drawn up with substantial Canadian legal input and advice and is supposed to guarantee the rights within that constitution of the country's three main regions.

These are the Hausa north, Moslem, conservative and authoritarian, the west where the Yoruba tribe predominates, a black community with intellectual strengths and predominant in the public service and the entrepreneurial east, home of the Ibos (Biafrans) who are businessmen and industrialists.

An important coup in 1966 overthrew a basically Ibo government because it ignored the rights of the north. Since then northern officers have ruled and worked with a civil service made up of Yorubas.

The new Nigerian leader will have to maintain this balance to keep civil peace in his country. The Biafran interlude is still very fresh in all minds.

Many Senior Citizens Become Students

Montreal Star

With earlier retirement and the desire of many senior citizens to occupy themselves productively, a number have enrolled in university — not simply for evening extension courses, but for regular degree programs. In some instances they are making up for educational opportunities denied by circumstances in earlier life. In other cases they are taking graduate studies or pursuing interests in entirely new fields.

Although the number of such persons currently registered at universities remains relatively small, it is expected to increase. However, one handicap confronting many individuals in this age group is tuition fees. Their limited incomes often do not permit them the luxury of spending even $100 to $150 for a course.

Last September Memorial University of Newfoundland decided to help remedy this problem by granting free tuition to persons 65 and older. Recently it lowered the minimum age to 60. The program is available not only at campuses in St. John's and Corner Brook, but at 30 other centres across the province where off-campus courses are offered.

As M.O. Morgan, Memorial's president, explained: "More people are retiring at the age of 60, and we feel that the university can provide a rich and rewarding experience for this age group." It is an admirable concept that deserves emulation elsewhere.

Invitation Extended

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Former students, friends and associates of Dr. J. G. Demeza are planning a reception and dinner in his honor at the Pinewood Park Motor Inn at North Bay, Aug. 22, 6.30 p.m.

As superintendent of the Sir James Whitney School at Belleville, Dr. Demeza is as well known in your area as he is in his home town of North Bay, where he was principal of Tweedsmuir Public School for 12 years.

Therefore, through your "letters to the editor" we wish to extend a cordial invitation to friends and associates of Dr. Demeza in your area.

Anyone wishing to obtain tickets for Dr. Demeza night should write Mrs. Betty Lamorie, care of The North Bay Nugget, P.O. Box 570, North Bay. Tickets are $10 per person.

Hospital Gets Praise

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Recently it was necessary for me to spend a few days in our Belleville Hospital, and I feel I should not let an opportunity pass without a few words of praise for the very excellent institution provided for our community.

I live not far from the hospital but have been fortunate in not requiring to use its service until a short time ago and so, the development and improvement are truly amazing to one who has not had occasion to observe the different phases and areas which over the past few years have been planned and executed.

I have always been keenly interested in following the activities of City Council, Hospital Board, and other boards who spend so much time and thought on the city's development. At times it seemed that the sums required for improvement were exorbitant and, of course, with rising inflation in all areas, that was to be expected. I feel that the Mayor, City Council, Hospital Board and other boards have spent our taxes wisely and well.

We have a beautiful city and our hospital has done much to beautify that area in which it is located and is second to none.

Congratulations.

A GRATEFUL CITIZEN

A crowd of approximately 400 persons visited the Carmel public school grounds to observe the centennial program of the school. Former pupils and teachers from as far away as California and Texas made the trip back to Hastings for the celebration. Many people participated in the parade, held during 95 degree weather, which depicted life in the 1800's Early settlers came to the Carmel school section, which was then known as Reid's settlement, well before 1800 The present school, replacing one built much earlier, was constructed in 1855.

40 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 1, 1935

Loaded with 100 tons of soft coal for the Canada Fuels Company, the carrier Coalhaven entered port today and was grounded just off the wharf.

50 YEARS AGO

Another progressive step was taken between the cities of Kingston and Belleville when a motor bus service was inaugurated recently. The bus will carry 16 people comfortably or a maximum of twenty-five. One round trip a day will be made. The bus will stop anywhere along the route on signal to the driver. The fare is $1.75 one way or $3.00 return.

Government Not Practicing Spending Restraint

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service

The more you look at the spiralling spending of the federal government, the more you are reminded of the profligate sovereigns of 18th-century France and 17th-century England.

Thrift and restraint, the government obviously believes, are excellent atributes — for others.

"Even if we agree that government spending is an engine of inflation, I am not sure a recognition of the fact helps us to overcome inflation," says J. Douglas Gibson, the Toronto financial consultant who was a member of the royal commission on banking and finance in the mid-1960s.

"What we really find is that the government wants it that way and, after all, the government is sovereign."

Today's government must endure an annoyance that absolute monarchs were spared: the annual report of the auditor-general.

The current auditor-general of Canada, James MacDonell of Montreal, was appointed by the Trudeau government July 1, 1973. He succeeded Maxwell Henderson of Toronto, who had held the post since his appointment by the Diefenbaker government in 1960.

The auditor-general is responsible to the people of Canada, to report once a year on government financial practices — but not policies.

Both men have done their jobs faithfully, but with differences. Mr. Henderson used to complain bitterly of the lack of any effort to remedy situations that his report had drawn attention to.

Mr. Macdonell, on the other hand, has indicated his satisfaction with the follow-up that has taken place.

Typical of the examples of waste noted by Auditor-General Macdonell in his latest report is this:

A property owner near St. Eustache, Que., received the $10,000 Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant he had asked for, to improve his ski hill, even though the application had at first been rejected as being an improvement to privately owned property.

More than once, Maxwell Henderson was charged by the Trudeau government with improperly criticizing government policy, rather than its financial practices, in his annual report — a charge that can hardly be substantiated by an ordinary reading of Mr. Henderson's reports.

Since his retirement nearly two years ago, however, Mr. Henderson has indeed offered some criticism of policy — particularly the "preposterous" increase in parliamentarians' salaries and pensions this spring.

As Mr. Henderson tells it, the prospects for fiscal responsibility and an end to bureacratic waste are almost zero.

He recalls the early-1960s report of the Glassco royal commission on the operation of government service, which contained page after page of examples of waste and inefficiency in the bureaucracy.

Mr. Henderson reported to Parliament in 1965 and again in 1973 that a great many Glassco findings had been ignored — and they continued to be ignored after his reminders.

So, too, were his recommendations in 1968 and 1972 that the Trudeau government appoint another royal commission, similar in purpose to the Glassco commission, with the auditor-general as a member.

Instead, the government sought to limit and downgrade the work of the auditor-general's office.

"I never had the right to recruit my own staff," Mr. Henderson said recently.

"The government would produce people of a quality I couldn't possibly take on.

"They handicapped me by refusing to give me the people I could have found."

One outcome of Mr. Henderson's fairly noisy retirement from his post as auditor-general was the creation of an independent review committee (headed by J.R.M. Wilson, a Toronto chartered accountant) to recommend the role that the auditor-general's office should fill.

It issued its report about six weeks ago, after 18 months of study. Some of its recommendations have already been implemented by Auditor-General Macdonell.

Others require government action — and the government, of course, has said it will "study" them.

One of the key recommendations is that the auditor-general be designated as a separate employer, with full authority to hire and promote his own staff.

These and other recommendations would greatly strengthen the powers of the auditor-general in carrying out his responsibilities as the public's watchdog over government spending.

Uncovering the waste of taxpayers' money is one thing. Stopping it is another and much more difficult task.

Trying Their Best

During a recent casting session for the Bancroft Little Theatre Guild's production of Our Town by Thorton Wilder, Derek Ashton and Jo-Ann Woodcox read for parts. The play will be presented in October and includes 22 speaking parts.

Bancroft Theatre Guild Tackles Ambitious Play

By NAN WHITLAW

Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — A recently rejuvenated Bancroft Little Theatre Guild has chosen a major play for its fall performance.

The play, Our Town by Thornton Wilder was chosen by the guild because of the number of people needed in the cast.

"There are 22 speaking parts in the play," said director Jaci Winters, "and there are a number of different walk-on parts too for people of all ages."

Mrs. Winters and assistant director John Francis are enthusiastic about the October production.

"There are parts in the play for everyone," said Mr. Francis," There certainly are major acting roles but there are also the smaller parts for people who would just like to try their hand at acting."

Two castings nights have already been held by the directors and a third will be held within the next week.

Members of the public are being encouraged to come out and particiate in the production.

Play Relives First Night Of Shaw's Famous Work

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — The First Night of Pygmalion, a theatre documentary on the 1914 debut of George Bernard Shaw's play, opened the Courthouse season at the Shaw Festival Tuesday night.

Craggy-faced Gillie Fenwick played Shaw, and his wife, Moya, played Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who played Eliza Doolittle in the first production of Pygmalion in London. Gerald Parkes was Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, leading actor-manager of Her Majesty's, where he played Henry Higgins.

Author Richard Huggett, an English writer who recently completed The First Night of MacBeth, used letters, newspaper clippings and reviews and reminiscences in telling the story of how Pygmalion finally reached the English stage.

It includes many of the often-told stories about Shaw and his favorite leading lady, including her wish for a child that would have his brain and her looks, and his tart reply that the child might have his looks and her brain.

Another story is that Shaw sent a first-night ticket to Winston Churchill, asking him to bring a friend of the theatre, "if you have one."

Churchill wrote a note in response saying he could not come the first night but would come the second night, "if you have one."

The documentary revolves on he conflicting powerful personalities of Shaw, Mrs. Pat, and Tree, with narration and cameo roles played by Daphne Gibson and Kenneth Dight.

The production was directed for the 400-seat Courthouse Theatre, where the Shaw Festival began, by Tony Van Bridge, acting artistic director of the festival this year.

Herbert Whittaker, drama critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said: "The First Night of Pygmalion is a curious little side dish of an offering, properly at home in the Court House . . .

"It lacks affront and sparkle, but then how could it live up to our expectations of what transpires when a famously capricious actress collides with a great balloon of a Victorian threatre manager egged on by a wickedly opportunistic Irish admirer?"

Death Coped With

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Dr. R. W. Ramsay, a South African psychologist, runs an Amsterdam clinic for persons learning to cope with recent deaths of friends and relatives. Based on a new technique that grief is essential, he brings out vivid responses from patients. The treatment, known as "flooding," deliberately upsets a person by confrontation of intimate details of death until the person is adjusted to recent death.

Show Biz Shorts

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Cliff Edwards says he sings "hurtin' songs."

"If you've ever been lonely or lost your best friend," is the way Edwards explains what this music encompasses. But Edwards said he is not a typical hurtin' country and western singer.

"I haven't been in prison, I'm not a dope addict, and I'm not running around with women or booze."

But the 33-year-old Montreal native, whose wife Ann is expecting their third child, said he does know the hurtin' described in songs he sings He said the hurtin' goes with "the years it takes to make it."

Edwards has been making it in country and western, the music he described as "where my heart is," since 1972 when he left the Bells, a Canadian pop group.

It represents full cycle for the singer who started out in country and western as a 17-year-old with the Stratacats. Then he moved to rock 'n' roll sporting a monocle and a pinstriped suit with the Counts Four.

Hit singles recorded during his five-year stay with the Bells include Stay Awhile and Fly, Little White Dove , Fly.

Edwards, with wavy brown hair and a bushy moustache, does not exude a painful aura. But he said: "Hurtin' music is the most enjoyable thing I've been into for a while."

Other Canadian artists also do their share of hurtin'—singing trucker's prayers and "sagebrush Jesus" songs. These singers include Lynn Jones, Linda Brown, Dick Damron, Nancy Simmonds, and Canadian Zephyr, the winner of the Juno award as the most promising group of 1975.

DELHI, N.Y. (AP) — Rock-soul singer Wilson Pickett was given a conditional discharge Tuesday on a charge arising from a shooting incident last November.

Delaware County Judge Richard Farley ordered Pickett to pay a $77 fine to the court and $33.50 in restitution to Fred Temmings, the owner of the Temmings Motel in nearby Andes where the shooting occurred.

Pickett, 33, pleaded guilty last month to first-degree restless endangerment.

Prior to the shooting, Pickett was reported to have been in an argument with The Isley Brothers, a popular singing group, and two local residents. Troopers said a man fired a shot from a derringer into the motel room in which the Isley Brothers were staying. There were no injuries reported.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sidney Luft, former husband of the late Judy Garland, has been found in contempt of court and given a suspended sentence of five days in jail.

The civil contempt action against Luft was filed by Trophy Productions Inc. and its president, Barnett Glassman, and claimed Luft violated a court order barring him from interfering with the sale of 28 Garland television show tapes.

Luft was accused of calling potential buyers of the tapes and telling them Glassman was a "pirate," a "racketeer" and a "crook."

LONDON (AP) — British actress Charlotte Rampling won a libel case in the High Court on Wednesday and shared a victory with actors Richard Burton and James Coburn in another suit involving pay for the movie Jackpot.

Miss Rampling won the libel action against The Sun newspaper, which the court was told had implied the 29-year-old actress was promiscuous.

Her lawyers then hurried to another courtroom for a case in which Miss Rampling, Burton and Coburn claimed they were owed a total of $550,000 for their work in Jackpot.

Miss Rampling, who was not in court for either case, had claimed she was entitled to $200,000, while Burton claimed he was owed $100,000 and Coburn $250,000.

Judge John Wheeler ordered the compulsory acquisition of the assets of London Merchant Bank Irwin Trust Co. Ltd., which acted as agents in financing the film. The bank said it would appeal.

McEvoy – McMillan

Mr. Aand Mrs. Paul Gerrard McEvoy

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of the later afternoon wedding July 5 of Heather Joanne McMillan, daughter of Neil and Anna McMillan, and Paul Gerrard John McEvoy, son of Gerrard McEvoy, Plainfield and the late Loretta McEvoy.

Rev. A. Laurie Sutherland and Father George Mullin officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a princess line gown with wedding ring collar. Her mantilla veil was fingertip length. She carried orange tea roses with baby's breath and ivy.

Kathy Glass, maid of honor, wore a blue skirt and blouse ensemble and carried a large yellow mum.

Sharon Doran, Kingston, Peggy Bell of Carleton Place, were bridesmaids in pink ensembles. Tracey Raney, Kingston wore a blue ensemble and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Craig Chambers was ring bearer.

Philip Wall was groomsman, assisted by ushers Donald McMillan, the bride's brother, Peter Doran, Kingston.

A dinner and dance was held at the Parkdale Community Centre.

A wedding triv to the 1,0000 Island followed.

The couple resides in Willowdale.

Easton – Rutledge

Susan Anne Rutledge and Constable Philip Campbell Easton exchanged wedding vows recently at Eastminster United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rutledge; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cam Easton.

Rev. Clare Kellogg officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk sheer over taffeta gown with Venetian lace. A Juliet cap held her veil. She carried American Beauty roses with baby's breath.

Heather Rutledge, maid of honor, wore a blue gown and carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses and mums. Susan Easton, the groom's sister, wore a yellow gown and carried roses and mums. Heidi Easton, the groom's sister, wore a mint green gown and carried roses and mums. Karen Jones wore a shell pink gown and carried roses and mums.

Gord Kupsuyk, Burnaby, B.C., was best man assisted by ushers Chris Rutledge, the bride's brother, Ken Snowden and Ralph Vanderwoort.

ROLLINS REUNION

The Rollins reunion took place in Tweed Memorial Park July 27 with 285 family members in attendance.

A worship service, conducted by Bernard Hollinger, opened the morning activities. Boyd Moorcrcft sang "Amazing Grace" during the service, which commemorated the family's forefathers.

After a noon meal, Joe Rollins welcomed everyone to the business meeting, at which the minutes of the 1925 reunion were read. There was 35 persons present who had been at that occasion.

Baton twirling by Eileen, Peggy and Sharon McCormick, and a poem written by Betty Workman and read by Don Runnals, entertained the crowd. Prizes were given to several of the relatives in categories such as age, attendance, and marriage anniversaries, as well as those who travelled from the greatest distance — as far away as William Lake, B.C.

Ann Landers

Open Door Policy 'Beautiful', Foolish

time to time you have expressed the personal opinion that it is impolite and inconsiderate for people to drop in uninvited.

Please let me take this opportunity to tell all my friends that they have a standing invitation to my home anytime—day or night. If it happens to be mealtime, I can always throw on another hamburger or two and add some water to the soup. I consider an unexpected visit a compliment. And believe it or not, I'm not a lonesome old lady. I'm a 23-year-old male.

My friends also know they can borrow anything I have. It's theirs for the asking. I have yet to run into anyone who took advantage of me. If a friend gets into a jam and needs money, he (or she) knows that I would be more than happy to help out. They can pay me back whenever it is convenient. Maybe it will take a year or more—small amounts at a time. But I never turn down a friend and I've never been stuck.

What is life all about if a person can't extend a helping hand and keep his door and his heart open to those in need? Please sign me—Walk On In And Sit Right Down

Dear Mr. Great Heart: That was some letter. How come you didn't sign your name? How will people know WHERE to walk on in and sit right down? And at any hour of the day or night, yet.

You're a money lender, too? And you've never been stuck? Well, may it be ever thus, pal. I am not criticizing your philosophy. It's beautiful. But I'm not even going to tell anyone what state you live in.

Dear Ann Landers: Why can't people keep their big mouths shut? Our adopted daughter (age 11) came home crying yesterday. It seems our next-door neighbor told our little girl that she was adopted. I had not planned on telling Jill for another four or five years.

Now the child won't eat. She is moody—says we lied to her and now she wants to find her "real" mommy and daddy. We are heartsick—and all because this big-mouth neighbor opened her yap. Please print this letter for all who feel the need to involve themselves in other people's business.— S.L.P.

Dear S. L. P.: Put the blame where it belongs—on yourself and your husband. Adopted children should be told that they were "chosen" as soon as they are able to understand what the word means.

Had you done so, no bigmouth neighbor could have created this mess.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't think I've ever read about my problem in your column. It's actually a confession, prompted by the letter from the child who felt "left out" because her parents favored her older sister.

I am the guilty party—and my mother's parents were the victims. I liked my other set of grandparents better and was very outspoken about my preference—even through my teen years when I should have known better. I can remember now how I went out of my way to show favoritism to my younger set of grandparents. I can still see the hurt look on the faces of the two I ignored. I'll regret it to my dying day. Print this please so others may learn from it.—Regrets, Regrets

Dear R and R: Here it is and I hope your confession has made you feel better. Perhaps someone WILL learn from it.

Protection Wanted

DUBLIN (AP) — An Aer Lingus hostess making a trip from Dublin to New York was raped and has asked stewardesses to back her cause for more protection. She was raped by an armed man in a hotel room in New York. The hostesses' union, Workers' Union of Ireland, have not revised rules for more security, but spokesmen said they are considering giving more protection for stewardesses.

Where to find a 10¢ pay phone.

The cost of making a local call from some pay phones in Belleville, Picton, Trenton and surrounding areas is increasing to 20 cents. But there are still 10 cent pay phones around. And we'd like to tell you where you can find them.

The 10¢ Pay Phones
Generally, you'll find these phones on sidewalks, in railway and bus stations, hospitals, nursing homes, rooming houses and churches.

The 20¢ Pay Phone
Pay phones in most other locations, such as hotels, airports and restaurants will go up to 20 cents.

Pay Phone Emergency Calling
At the same time, a new service will be added to all outdoor pay phones. What this added service does is enable you to reach the Operator, Directory Assistance and Repair Service without depositing a coin.
From now on, when you're calling from a pay phone, look for the information card above the dial. It clearly tells you whether it's a 10 cent or 20 cent pay phone.

CP News Roundup

Microphone Like Head To Be Used

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC is preparing to produce radio programs with a new microphone shaped like a human head, says John Reeves, the producer in charge of the project.

Mr. Reeves says the microphone may revolutionize the recording industry and make costly quadraphonic systems obsolete because it reproduces all the sound characteristics of a live situation.

He says the kunstkopf, a German word meaning artificial head, developed in Berlin for research into human hearing, not only produces the right and left sensations of stereo but also front, back, up and down for an all-around effect.

It is made of hard rubber and has facial features, ears and ear canals. But instead of eardrums it has a pair of condenser microphones which feed the two sides of a stereo tape.

He says scientists have not figured out why it works.

The broadcasts recorded by the kunstkopf can be heard on mono or stereo radios but for the full effect the listener must wear earphones.

Mr. Reeves said the system works better than quadraphonic sound and for less money.

He said that if he is given the budget he may have the first kunstkopf broadcast on the air by November.

The program series will be called The Best Seat in the House.

Carpenters Settle

TORONTO (CP) — About 4,000 striking carpenters reached a tentative agreement with the Toronto Construction Association on Thursday as 4,000 construction laborers who had threatened to strike next Tuesday also reached a tentative settlement.

Fred Leach, secretary-treasurer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, said Thursday the union had won a wage increase of about $3 an hour for the carpenters, increasing their basic rate to $11.30 an hour.

Flour Price Up

TORONTO (CP) — Flour slated for delivery to bakeries will be increased 40-to-60 cents a hundredweight today, several of the big flour mills and bakeries said Thursday.

Join Union

TORONTO (CP) — The Communications Workers of Canada (CWC) announced Thursday a majority of Bell Canada's 11,500 craft and service employees in Ontario and Quebec have joined the CWC.

It said in a news release the drive to organize the employees began June 1 and many workers have since switched their allegiance from the Canadian Telephone Employees Association to the union.

Maharani Arrested

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Maharani of Jaipur, 56, once reputated to be one of the world's most beautiful women, has been arrested on charges of violating India's foreign exchange and smuggling laws, the government said Thursday. The arrest came after tax investigators discovered more than $17 million worth of gold and jewels in her palaces in Jaipur.

Kidnapped Twice

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Guerrillas kidnapped a British executive Thursday for the second time in two years after wounding his chauffeur and two bodyguards, police said. The same man, identified by police as Charles Agnew Lockwood, was kidnappel June 6, 1973 and freed after payment of a multi-million-dollar ransom.

Viger Crushed

ST. NAZAIRE, Que. (CP) — Michel Viger, 37, who spent four years in prison for hiding the FLQ kidnappers of Pierre Laporte, was crushed to death by the tractor he was driving at a nearby farm, police said. Viger had purchased two farms with his brother Jean near this community 50 miles east of Montreal, and was haying Tuesday when the accident occurred. In November, 1970, he hid Paul Rose, Jacques Rose and Francis Simard. He was later convicted as an accomplice after the fact in the kidnapping and was given an eight-year sentence.

Price Guaranteed

OTTAWA (CP) — Sheep have been added to the government's list of products protected against marketing and price slumps by the Agricultural Stabilization Act, the agriculture department announced Thursday.

It guarantees farmers will receive a minimum of at least $47.50 for each 100 pounds of live good-quality lamb.

Term Reduced

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Court of Appeal on Thursday reduced to two years a five-year prison term imposed on Edmund Littler, 66, former president of Walter M. Lowney Co., who was convicted in 1972 on charges of fraud involving $1.07 million, in consideration of his age and the fact the money was repaid with accrued interest. Littler was convicted of defrauding three companies in September, 1968, by inducing them to sell him Lowney shares for $32.50 each. He resold the shares to Standard Brands Ltd. for $68.22 each.

Leukemia Treated

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A hope for curing leukemia and possibly other forms of cancer by giving patients normally fatal doses of radiation was revealed Thursday by researchers at the University of California medical centre. Dr. Robert Gale, assistant professor of medicine, said that 11 of 12 patients treated with both massive radiation and chemotherapy drugs now are free of leukemia.

Starlings Routed

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Herb Epp says three recent shoots by the Waterloo Rod and Gun Club successfully rid a local neighborhood of thousands of starlings roosting in trees. However, a club spokesman said the killing of about 250 starlings made a mere dent in the flock although the birds were driven away.

Aid Promised

OTTAWA (CP) — The government apparently has promised to "receive favorably" proposals that it give more direct aid to Greek refugees on the strife-torn island of Cyprus.

However, this was the only positive note that emerged Thursday from a meeting of External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen and five Montreal-based spokesmen for the Greek-Canadian community.

Mr. MacEachen said Canada now provides about $300,000 annually to the 225,000 persons who have been in refugee camps on Cyprus ever since Turkey invaded the northern half of the island last year.

Oil Spills

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP) — Police say about 50 gallons of crude oil were pumped into Penetanguishene harbor on Georgian Bay Wednesday fdom a ship that was cleaning out bilge water. Police said the bilge pump was apparently attached to a tank containing bunker oil. About 60 pleasure boats were coated with oil, but no damage estimate was available.

Barriers Likely to Be Ended In Canada-U.S. Meat Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — A truce seems to be developing in the so-called beef war between the United States and Canada with apparent agreement by both sides to start dismantling some of the barriers to inter-country agricultural trade.

High-level U.S. sources said in a series of interviews Thursday that authorities here have agreed to remove quotas limiting the import of Canadian cattle, hogs and pork in return for a lifting of Canadian barriers against U.S. cattle imports.

The new accord, these sources said, needs only the formal approval of President Ford to begin taking effect. They said the Canadians are agreeable to the arrangement, although Canadian embassy officials here made no comment.

It was not entirely clear whether the quotas are to be dropped entirely at once or to be removed in stages. Most of the Canadian quotas are routinely scheduled to expire in mid-August. The general expectation here has been that they will be renewed rather than phased out.

Quotas on Canadian beef and veal will remain until at least the end of this year, sources added, mainly because of difficulties related to a U.S. regulation governing the amounts of foreign meats which can be sold on the American market.

Under this system, the U.S. each year negotiates voluntary restraint agreements with major meat suppliers in order to hold imports to a fixed ceiling. If Canadian meats now were suddenly allowed into the market, officials say, it would disrupt these arrangements.

The sources said they were reasonably confident, however, that the restrictions on meat imports from Canada may start to be phased out in 1976.

But they expressed extreme dissatisfaction with tough Canadian quotas imposed on U.S. egg imports which took effect July 3. At least one high-ranking official said there was mounting pressure on the U.S. administration to take some form of retaliatory action against the egg barriers.

The situation surrounding cattle and meat sales has been a source of dispute between Canada and the U.S. for several years but it became acute in April, 1974, when Canada banned imports of American beef fattened with the chemical diethylstilbestrol (DES), a synthetic growth hormone that some experts believe may cause cancer.

After a series of negotiations, trade resumed later in the year unded an agreement on ways of certifying freedom from contamination.

But Canada then imposed world quotas on beef and cattle imports to protect its producers from the effects of an international surplus and after this and other actions Washington followed suit with quotas on Canadian cattle, swine, beef and pork.

A somewhat improved international market outlook and the likelihood of better prices for producers, sources say, made it easier to agree on the new package.

Tax Rebate Forms Ready on Sept. 2

OTTAWA (CP) — Forms for claiming rebates on the 10-cent a gallon federal excise tax on gasoline will be available in post offices across the country Sept. 2, the post office announced Thursday.

The special excise tax on gasoline for personal use was proposed in the June 23 budget, and became law Wednesday after being hotly debated by the opposition in Parliament.

A full refund of the special tax will be available for gasoline used for farming, fishing, construction, mining and most commercial transportation.

The refund forms will be distributed through the post offices on a "once-only" basis, after which replacement forms will be issued by the customs and excise division of the national revenue depadtment.

A revenue official said Thursday a special research group is studying alternatives under which farmers and other bulk purchasers might be totally exempted from the tax. The results of this study will be made known during the first week of September, he said.

The official said such an exemption could be put into effect by a cabinet order, but that any such order likely would not be retroactive.

This means that, initially at least, all commercial users including farmers will have to pick up rebate forms from the post office and send them to the revenue department to get the excise tax refund.

No Convictions After 755 Wiretaps

OTTAWA (CP) — Six provinces—Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, authorized 267 wiretaps in the last six months of 1974, Jusitce Minister Otto Lang reported Thursday.

Mr. Lang also reported that a total of 508 authorized federal wiretaps were made, almost 300 of them for drug offences. He said 379 residential and 99 commercial locations were tapped and that court action was subsequently taken against 90 persons.

"Some 3 persons not identified in the authorizations were proceeded against, in many cases for offences that were not specified in the authorizations," a news release from Mr. Lang's office said.

No convictions had resulted in any of the cases by last Dec. 31 and only Ontario and British Columbia reported cases pending.

Quang Is Given Time To Arrange Departure

OTTAWA (CP) — The immigration department has given Dang Van Quang, the controversial former South Vietnamese general, a few more days to arrange his voluntary departure from Canada, a department spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said Quang was interviewed by the department's chief enforcement officer in Montreal on Wednesday the United States. The application for permission to enter the United State. The application is currently under study by U.S. authorities.

If no response comes by early next week, "we would have to consider what direct intervention we would have to take," the spokesman said.

The former general was admitted on a ministerial permit in May and was ordered deported in July after checks on allegations that he had been involved in narcotics traffic and corrupt activities in South Vietnam.

The spokesman said the only countries Quang can be deported to are the United States, the country from which he arrived, and South Vietnam, where he is a citizen.

Quang currently is in Montreal with his wife, two daughters and a son. The deportation order applies only to Quang himself.

Hydro Rate Said Too High

TORONTO (CP) — W. Kenneth Yoss, chairman of the Association of Major Power Consumers in Ontario (AMPCO), says that Ontario Hydro's reduced rate increase proposals announced Thursday are still too high.

"No citizen in Ontario, private or corporate, can afford annual power rate increases in the 15-to-3-per-cent range," he said.

Robert Taylor, Hydro chairman, announced at an Ontario Energy Board hearing Thursday that the utility has reduced its wholesale rate increase proposals to 25.1 per cent for municipal utilities and 24.9 per cent for industrial customers from 29.7 per cent and 29.9 per cent respectively.

Mr. Voss said:

"Other alternatives must be examined to further relieve the burden of hydro's proposed increases."

He said the reduction, although not substantial, "clearly demonstrates that there are alternatives."

AMPCO is an association of more than 4 major Ontario power consumers. Mr. Voss, also vicepresident of the Ontario Paper Co. Ltd., St. Catharincs, said AMPCO uses more power than the city of Toronto.

Construction Continues Despite Three Strikes

KINCARDINE, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for Ontario Hydro said 2 workers involved in the construction of three heavy water plants at the nearby Bruce nuclear power development plant did not show up for work Thursday.

Don White, a Hydro public relations officer, said the men are involved in three separate disputes with subcontractors but he would not comment on the reasons for the apparent strike.

There was no indication when the workers would return.

Work on the site where about 2,000 workers are employed was not disrupted.

Kincardine is 45 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Skeeters Bring Plea To 'Fog'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The provincial government's Clean Environment Commission ended its open hearings Thursday into proposals to resume fogging of residential areas against mosquitos.

During the four days of hearings, city officials, led by Mayor Stephen Juba, cited numerous complaints from residents enraged by this summer's invasion of mosquitos and pleaded for permission to resume the fogging of residential areas.

Individuals also made presentations to the commission.

"Life in our neighborhood is unbearable," Linda McMillan told the commission. "The children cannot even play on the doorstep without being bitten."

Mrs. McMillan said she was aware of the controversy over the long-term effects of insecticides, but added that the discomfort of mosquito bites "is not worth the lesser risk."

On the other hand, Mrs. Thomas Sobey said her potentially-fatal allergic reaction to insecticides forces her to leave home if fogging goes on even a mile away.

Winnipeg has not fogged residential areas for mosquitos since 1971. Fogging in recent pears has been limited to recreational areas of the city.

In 1973, an attempt was made to resume residential fogging, but the commission's approval did not come until late August when the problem of mosquitos was just about over for the year.

There is no indication when the commission will announce its decision this year.

While the effects of insecticides on people and the environment in general formed part of the testimony given to the commission this week, anothed pressing question to be answered is the effects of fogging on mosquitos.

In earlier testimony, Dr. W. George Bowan of the provincial government said he hasn't seen any evidence that fogging for adult mosquitos—rather than spraying mosquito larvae—is effective.

"Before the introduction of a toxic supstance into the environment can be justified, it's up to you to produce evidence of the benefit," he told the city delegation.

Millhaven Prisoners Want Union

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoneds at the maximum-security Millhaven penitentiary remained in their cells Thursday in support of demands by British Columbia prisoners for a union, penitentiary officials said.

The Millhaven prisoners are also asking for the right to organize a prisoners' union here, officials said.

The prisoners were locked in their cells at their request Thursday morning, said John A. Dowsett, prison director. They are refusing to leave the cells to work at routine food-serving and housekeeping chores, he said.

Mr. Dowsett said he expects the men will leave their cells for meals during the "sit-in," which the prisoners say will continue until Aug. 11. They have scheduled a one-day hunger strike for the final day of the protest, he said.

Prisoners who do not want to participate in the protest action will be allowed to leave their cells, he said.

There are 291 men in the penitentiary, 140 below its maximum capacity.

Little Break Seen For Ontario Tenants

OTTAWA (CP) — Tenants won't get much of a break from Ontario's proposed rent review boards, the Canadian Council on Social Development said in a news release Thursday.

"A landlord who gouges tenants is unlikely to be embarrassed by having the practice aired publicly and experience with similar boards in other provinces indicates the potential for publicity is seldom realized."

The council said the boards do not meet the need for rent reform because:

—They are powerless to force a landlord to lower unjustly high rents.

—They will not allow low-income tenants to escape poverty because the review board still allows landlords to raise rents with each increase in a tenant's income.

—They do not allow tenants in buildings with less than six units the protection of one-year leases which cannot be terminated without just cause.

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine announied Wednesday the government's intention to set up the review boards, which will operate in all cities with a vacancy of 2.5 per cent or less, and will have a combined $2-million budget.

Among municipalities that might qualify are Toronto, Thunder Bay, Sudbury, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Dump Truck Operators Protest at Queen's Park

TORONTO (CP) — Independent dump-truck operators returned to Queen's Park Thursday to protest what they said was stalling on the part of the government to bring in controls for their industry.

About 3 truckers from Hamilton, Sarnia and Metropolitan Toronto parked their vehicles alongside Queen's Park, blocking one lane of traffic.

Similar demonstrations during the last year sparked a provincial inquiry into the industry this spring resulting in recommendations, some of which Transportation Minister John Rhodes said would be implemented soon.

The truckers said they did not agree with all the findings of the report but had hoped for action on major issues of licensing and rates.

TRENTON, ONT.

Age Raised for Moped Drivers

Douglas Crosbie said today city police were told by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications late Thursday that some amendments to the Highway Traffic Act regarding motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds) now are in force.

He said the new legislation "now makes it illegal for anyone under 16 years of age to operate a moped on Ontario highways" and "also makes it illegal for anyone to carry a passenger on a moped."

Moped are also defined — one must not weigh more than 120 lbs., must not have a piston displacement of more than 50 cubic centimeters and must not have a hand or foot operated clutch or gearbox driven by the motor and transferring power to the wheel.

In addition, a moped must have pedals which are operable to propel it at all times and must not be able to travel faster than 30 m.p.h. on level ground within a distance of one mile from a standing start.

Hot Spell to Continue Into Middle of Week

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

For those of you who think it's too hot — the weatherman says don't complain. Less than four months ago Hastings County was being pelted by 40 m.p.h. winds that dumped an average of 14 inches of snow across the county.

If you don't find that consoling the weatherman refuses to call the current warm spell a heat wave.

CFB Trenton meteorologist Don Rehberg said with temperatures hovering around the 30 it's not quite fair to call it a heat wave. However, he did admit that the relative humidity has pushed the humidex to the 38 Celsius mark which by anybody's standards is hot.

The humidex reading combines the high temperature with the humidity, much like the chill factor in winter which combines the low temperature with the wind velocity.

If you're still not satisfied and you're looking for relief it won't come until next Tuesday and even then temperatures are expected to drop only slightly with a big drop in humidity. Thunder showers are also expected for Monday and Tuesday.

The high Thursday was 30 degrees with a high of 32 forecasted for today. This morning the relative humidity registered 90 per cent but Mr. Rehberg said this figure drops to about 60 per cent during the day.

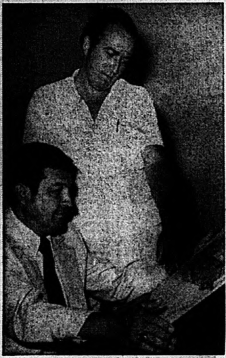
Mr. Rehberg also said the temperatures this week have not set any records. The highest temperature ever recorded for July 31 was 34 in 1932. It is unlikely that today's temperature or weekend temperatures will set new records he said.

"It's been an ideal summer," said Mr. Rehberg, who also added that he realized not everyone enjoys the hightemperatures. Nightfall temperatures have not been much lower than daytime temperatures.

The month of July wasn't quite as dry as everyone may believe. Mr. Rehberg said the precipitation for July was 2.01 inches. Average rainfall for this month is 2.69 inches. He had no forecasts for August.

The city's pumphouse reports water levels are adequate and there are no restrictions on watering lawns.

City swimming pools report an above average number of swimmers using the facilities.



New Plaza Planned

Henry Vermette of Royal Trust and Lloyd White go over the artist's concept of a shopping plaza they are proposing for construction at the intersection of Moira St. West and Coleman St. The small plaza is designed for neighborhood convenience and will feature a small grocery and milk store.

Kathis Remanded

A 38-year-old Belleville businessman had a charge of possession of stolen goods discharged at preliminary hearing in provincial court Thursday.

Mark Kathis of 35 Smith Cr., owner of Mark's Fish House at 352 Front St., elected trial by judge before Judge J.L. Clendenning on the charge laid by city police.

Kathis faces two other charges — one for keeping for sale obscene pictorial publication laid by city police and another for possession of goods unlawfully imported into Canada laid by the RCMP.

Kathis was remanded to Aug. 18 on the city police charge at which time a trial date will be set. The second charge was set over to September.

The three charge followed a combined RCMP and city police raid on two Front St. locations April 10 which uncovered 300 magazines, 70 films, two aluminum boats and a camper trailer.

RCMP have said the magazine films and goods were found hidden in a burned-out building across from the Park Theatre and a warehouse at 63 South Front St.

Whitley Says Bridge Top Quinte Priority

Trenton businessman Douglas Whitley, who joins Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey as one of only two declared contestants for the August 11 Quinte riding Conservative nomination contest, says "a new Bay bridge is the biggest priority in Quinte riding", adding "It should be built on the existing site."

Mr. Whitley told representatives of the news media Thursday other planks on his platform include:

—a new bridge in Trenton to replace the existing trouble-plagued swing structure;

— full employment

— second stage sewage disposal at Trenton, Belleville, and CFB Trenton;

— mandatory use of seat belts in the province and lowering of highway speed limits to 55 miles per hour.

Married with two children, Mr. Whitley was a member of the Trenton Board of Education for 10 years, past president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, the Ontario Provincial Committee of the Air Cadet League, and the Hastings County General Insurance Agents' Association, and a former director of the Trenton Rotary Club.

He is a member of the Health Disciplines Board of Ontario and the Trenton and Suburban Roads Commission, president of the federal Prince Edward-Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, and secretary of the provincial Quinte Riding P.C. Association.

"I've been involved with every election campaign there has been in this area since 1945," Mr. Whitley said. "I'm a proven quantity, as far as being a Tory goes."

The Quinte Conservatives will stage their Aug. 11 nomination meeting at Trenton High School to replace retiring MPP Dr. Richard Potter.

Bird Migration Begins

The fall shorebird migration season at Presqu'ile Provincial Park near Brighton has begun and will build up until mid September, when they will all be on their way to their winter homes.

District naturalist J.M. Immersel reports one Stilted Sandpiper was seen among eight Dowitchers on July 14. "This shorebird is not considered a common transient through our area, and has not been seen since," he said.

Other species sighted so far, in varying numbers, are: Lesser and Greater Yellowlegs, Semi-Palmated Sandpipers, Caspian Terns, Ruddy Turnstones, Semi-Palmated Plover.

Golden and Black Bellied Plovers will be migrating through the park in the next two weeks, if they are on schedule. Mr. Immerseel said.

The greatest number of shorebirds will be migrating through the park from September 1 to 10 and the best sighting area is off Owen Point adjacent to the Presqu'ile Islands. "Some rare migrants such as the Marbled Godwit seen last year may be sighted," the naturalist said.

SIMHI On Tight Budget

Money is a problem for most summer recreation programs but the Summer Involvement with Mentally Handicapped Individuals (SIMHI) has been the recipient of generous donations of time and money from the Belleville Recreation department, said a staff member.

The SIMHI program, meant to be an extension of school familiarity for those children attending the William R. Kirk School, has been invited by the recreation department's handicapped adult program at the school to use any extra seats available when they go on day-trips.

Last week a group of 12 children travelled with the older group for a day-trip to the Toronto Zoo with the bus fees and admission charges all paid by the senior group with funds raised during a carwash sponsored by the members.

Driver Charged

A 27-year-old Belleville woman has been charged with following too close in connection with a traffic accident in the city early today.

City police have identified the woman as Catharine Black of 57 Cannifton Rd.

Police said the accident involved a rear-end collision at the corner of East Dundas St. and MacDonald Ave. when one of the two eastbound vehicles stopped for a traffic light.

The other car was driven by Donald J. Himmelman, 42, of 27 Melrose Cr. His passenger, Barbara Eisenhaver (age unavailable) of Kitchener, complained of pain but did not require hospital treatment.

Total property damage in the 12:45 a.m. mishap did not exceed $500.

Growth Chamber Speeds Plant Production

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — Eighteen months ago Maureen Hawthorne disliked plants. Since then she has grown over 15,000 of them. Her secret? It's a plant growth chamber not to be confused with a sophisticated greenhouse.

By name it sounds like the title of a science fiction movie but in reality it's a climate controlled room that contains 104 fluorescent lamps and no windows. Daytime temperature is between 21 and 24, while night temperature is between 18 and 21.

Mrs. Hawthorne, with the help of her husband, Ross, built the plant growth chamber last year in the woodshed of their 131-year-old farmhouse on Baptist Church Rd., about three miles south of here off Highway 14. The room, which has been well insulated, contains 3,200 cubic feet of space and is capable of producing 15,000 plants a year.

"The room has the growth potential 16 times that of an ordinary greenhouse," explained Mrs. Hawthorne, who also added that the chamber costs $20 a month to operate and that's in the winter months.

The Hawthornes are growing the plants for commercial purposes and next year expect to open a nursery. They currently welcome visitors to their farm seven days a week.

Mr. Hawthorne, who writes a garden column for The Intelligencer, said the growth chamber is an efficient means of plant production.

"Everything from the soil, temperature, humidity, light and moisture is controlled in the chamber — ideal growing conditions can be achieved," said Mr. Hawthorne.

Mr. Hawthorne estimated that a 10 by 12 foot room could be equipped as a plant growth chamber for about $1,000.

"This is quite inexpensive compared to constructing a greenhouse," said Mr. Hawthorne.

Robert Cooney, a camper at the YMCA day camp, tries to wash away some of the intense heat by taking a dip in the river Thursday. Robert, and 34 other Belleville children, are taking part in the weekly camp held at Vanderwater Conservation area.

Five Million Eggs a Year Handled by Grading Stations

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Is it possible to look at more than five million eggs a year and still like omelettes?

Yes, says Allyn Finkle, owner and operator of the Egg Grading Station on Pinnacle St. which operation handles 9,000-10,000 dozen eggs a week or more than 5,616,000 eggs a year.

The business has been established since near the turn of the century, with Mr. Finkle assuming control from his father-in-law in 1957.

"There used to be more than 100 egg producers selling us their ungraded eggs." Mr. Finkle said, "but now there are only 35 dealing with us because most of the small part-time farms have been put out of business by the larger more efficient operations."

The eggs arrive at the station where they are graded according to weight, quality and appearance, he said.

"Basically they are divided into A, B, and C with the C eggs certified not fit for human consumption and sold to local animal hospitals for food," he said.

"If an egg is cracked it doesn't mean it is bad," Mr. Finkle said. "Many of our weekly over-the-counter total of 5,000 dozen are sold to people asking for the cracked eggs and they sell for almost half the price."

"Most of the restaurants in Belleville buying eggs from us purchase Grade A but two in town only using the eggs for baking, buy grade B," he said.

He said there was no difference in quality between A and B just size and when you use eggs for batter it isn't necessary to worry about eye appeal.

The eggs are graded by placing them on a conveyer belt which carries them along above a mercury vapor light allowing the operator to look inside the egg and see if it is cracked or must be rejected because of a blood clot.

"We depend on the eye appeal for sales and we must try to eliminate the bad eggs if we want to do well," he said. "The bad eggs may also cause some people a little upset stomach."

The eggs move down the conveyor belt and after the cracked eggs and rejects have been removed they are automatically separated by weight and slide into the respective slots where another worker packs them on flats for storage.

"The old method only handled 75 dozen per hour but with the new machine we can grade 360 dozen eggs in an hour," Mr. Finkle said.

The station comes under periodic government inspection and the percentage of mistakes, or eggs slipping by the grader must be near two per cent or the operation may be fined, he said.

Mr. Finkle is able to sell his eggs five-ten cents below supermarket prices and he says they are usually never older than two days.

He said brown eggs were the same quality as white eggs but the birds laying them were larger and used by the farmers for meat also.

"We try to keep prices down," he said, "that is why we are encouraging our customers to return the cartons when they come pack and the program has been well received so far."

"Our prices are determined a week in advance by the Egg Marketing Board," he said.

Finkle Critical Of Board

Allyn Finkle, owner-operator of the egg grading station on Pinnacle Street, believes changes are necessary in the egg industry to make it more efficient. His operation comes under direct control of the provincial Egg Marketing Board.

"For one thing I have to charge the producer a levy on every dozen eggs he brings me," Mr. Finkle said "and this goes to the board to pay their expenses."

"I don't think this is necessary or right because I don't get paid by the board for keeping these weekly records and the producer loses out on about seven cents per dozen," he said.

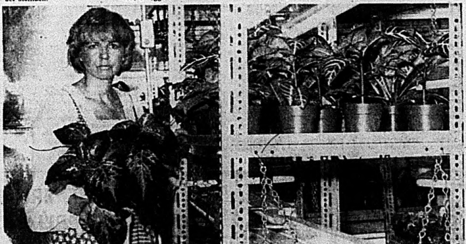
He also points out the destruction of millions of eggs last year as evidence of the board's mismanagement.

The Ontario Egg Producer Marketing Board, however, is concerned over the publicity during the current egg controversy.

In a two-page statement Thursday, board manager Brian Ellsworth said the "industry is efficient and well managed" and technological developments are largely responsible for "restraining the cost of eggs."

Keeping Watch

Allyn Finkle, owner and operator of the Finkle Egg Grading Station on Pinnacle St. operates an automatic machine capable of grading 360 dozen eggs per hour. Before the plant was automated only 75 dozen eggs per hour could be graded by hand.



Plant Growth Chamber

Maureen Hawthorne holds a rare trailing Queen [illegible] which grew from seed in her plant growth chamber, a completely climate-controlled room which is capable of producing over 15,000 plants a year. Mrs. Hawthorne has built the chamber in the woodshed of her 131-year-old farm, about three miles south of Stirling on the Baptist Church Rd., off Highway 14.

Brochure Outlines Drinking Problems

A new brochure has been made available to the Canadian public which outlines effects on drivers if they combine alcohol and common drugs.

David Chamberlain of Public and Industrial Relations Ltd. in Toronto, a spokesman for the Insurance Bureau of Canada (IBC), said in a telephone interview Thursday the IBC completed a study last year involving 16 student volunteers in labratory and road tests.

Mr. Chamberlain related the study proved "that mixing alcohol with common drugs used in tranquilizers, sleeping pills and cold remedies is deadly dangerous."

"Drivers don't realize the combination of moderate or safe amounts of alcohol and such drugs often results in impairment — severe at times," he commented. "They become a menace to themselves, their passengers and other users of the highway."

He pointed out such impairment is possible even if drivers' blood alcohol level is below .08 The Criminal Code of Canada allows for convictions if a driver is impaired by acholhol or drugs.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and Constable Don Kuzyk, community services officer with Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville, said their departments do not have the brochures but indicated they are interested in securing quantities.

Dog Case Continues

Judgement in the case of Marion Trussler, of Cambridge, was postponed Thursday in Cambridge provincial court until September 9.

The Ontario Human Society conficicated 159 dogs from Mrs. Trussller's Cambridge home April 1. Sixty-five of the dogs were brought to the Belleville branch of the Ontario Humane Society for adoption Ninety-four dogs were destroyed.

Mrs. Trussler pleaded not guilty to a charge of wilful neglect or failure to provide suitable care and food for the 159 dogs.

Reds Pound Montefusco

Pitcher Eats Crow Instead

JOHNNY BENCH

By HE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Montefusco could have had a steak dinner, but he had to eat his words instead.

The brash San Francisco Giants pitcher vowed to strike out Johnny Bench four times Thursday night and the Cincinnati Reds slugger promised Montefusco a free meal if he did.

As it was, Montefusco wasn't even around long enough to face Bench four times. The Reds bombed out the right-hander with a six-run second inning en route to an 11-6 triumph over the Giants.

"I told him before the game that I'd buy him a steak dinner if he struck me out four times," said Bench, who hit a three-run homer in the big second-inning rally. "Nobody's going to strike me out four times in one game."

The Reds' victory, coupled with Los Angeles Dodgers' 11-10 loss to Atlanta Braves, boosted Cincinnati's runaway lead in the NL West Divison to 14½ games.

In other National League baseball action, New York Mets beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2, Montreal Expos defeated Philadelphia Phillies 7-4, Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 and San Diego Padres beat Houston Astros 5-3.

Pete Rose tripled in Cincinnati's three-run sixth, driving in his 50th run of the season and the Reds outhit the Giants 12-11. Von Joshua hit his fourth homer of the year for San Francisco.

Roland Office hit a three-run homer off Los Angeles reliever Mike Marshall, capping a six-run rally in the ninth inning that gave Atlanta the victory over the Dodgers.

Trailing 10-5 going into the ninth, the Braves scored two quick runs on three hits, including an RBI double by Earl Williams that knocked out Rick Rhoden.

Marshall came in and struck out Dusty Baker for the first out before Larvell Blanks singled home the third run of the inning. Office then hit his game-winning homer over the left field fence.

Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer, his second of the night, to lead a four-run rally in the eighth that lifted New York over Pittsburgh. It was the first time the Mets had beaten the Pirates this season after eight losses.

Jerry Morales' run scoring double in the eighth broke a 3-3 tie and Manny Trillo squeezed home another run, lifting Chicago over St. Louis.

Bobby Tolan scored the tie-breaking run on an error in the eighth inning as San Diego beat Houston.

Admiral's Cup

First Time For Canadians

COWES, England (CP) — Three boats will make Canadian yachting history today as they cross the starting line for the first event in sailing's world series, the Admiral's Cup.

Competing against the best sailors from 18 other countries, the three crews are the first Canadians to enter the four rigorous races of the regatta.

Team captain Gerhard Moog of Toronto predicted Thursday the Canadian novices "will make a respectable showing". But they suffer the disadvantage of sailing with new boats and new crews.

Moog and his Ontario-based crew of 10 have been seasoned in years of international racing, but their 45-foot yacht Dynamo, built for the Cowes race by C and C Yachts and launched in Toronto just eight weeks ago, still has not been able to try out all her sails.

Diva, another C and C design built in Finland, will carry a pickup crew under skippers Stephen Tupper of Vancouver and Bruce Sully of Goderich, Ont. Their 11-man crew includes two Norwegians—one of them the 46-footer's owner.

Third Canadian entry is the 41-foot Kanata, shipped from Vancouver to race under owner-designer Vladimir Plavsic. His nine-man crew is a blend of two West Coast crews chosen for the Admiral's Cup, premier event in the big money, big league of ocean racing.

Tupper, national coach for the Canadian Yachting Association, says expense has been one reason why Canadians have never attempted th Admiral's Cup before.

But Moog who spent $10,000 just to bring Dynamo here, adds that Canadian sailors have been intimidated for too long from taking on the world's best.

Tupper agreed: Psychology tends to run against the beginner."

Moog, a Toronto businessman who took part in one of the Cowes races last year, says the three-boat German team is the one to beat this year. Germany won for the first time last year and is back with what many observers call a stronger team.

But British, Australian and United States teams, all past winners of the cup, will also be serious threats.

Experience is crucial in the races, with crews facing tricky tides, winds, waves and shoals across the English Channel.

To come close to winning, the Canadians must do well in the four races: today's 220-mile Channel race, scheduled to end Sunday, two inshore races of about 30 miles each ,and the exhausting Fastnet race, a five-day, 603-mile run beyond Lands's End to Fastnet Rock and back that starts Aug. 9.

Moog says the Channel race starting today will enable the Canadians to shake down their crews into smooth racing trim, in time, he hopes, to pick up points in the later races.

Among other competitors are former British prime minister Edward Heath, in his Morning Cloud III. Heath, eliminated from the British team in trials several weeks ago, will not be eligible for the Admiral's Cup. Prince Philip also will skipper a boat in one of the races.

Soviets Win Again

HAMILTON (CP) — The Soviet Union beat Mexico for its second victory in a pre-Olympic water polo tournament Thursday while Cuba had to work hard for a 7-5 win over Canada.

The Soviets, showing more speed than in their opening-game victory over Cuba on Wednesday, were led by Vitaliy Rojkov and Nikolai Melnikov who had three goals each.

Sergey Gorshkov, Aleksandr Dreval and Aleksandr Rodionov scored two goals each while single scores came from Aleksandr Dolgushin, Aleksey Barkalov and Aleksandr Kabanov.

The Mexicans got three goals from Armando Fernandez, two from Francisco Garcia and one each from Arturo Valencia and Javier Guerra.

The Canadians, who won their first game against Mexico, forced the Cubans to [illegible] for their win. Gerardo Rodriguez and David Rodriguez scored two goals each while Osvaldo Garcia, Jorge Rizo and Jesus Perez added one each.

Jim Ducharme of Dollard des Ormeaux, Que., led Canada with three goals. Stephen Hart, also of Dollard des Ormeaux, AND Paul Hart of Hamilton added the other scores.

Tonight, Canada faces the Soviets and Cuba goes against Mexico.

Boston Red Sox Already Appear To Be Eyeing World Series

CARL YASTRZEMSKI

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To a man, Boston Red Sox refuse to claim anything yet, but there appeared to be a hidden message in the notice on the clubhouse bulletin board.

The notice was there for all to see Thursday night after the Red Sox swept a doubleheader at home from Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 10 innings and 6-1, raising Boston's American League East lead to nine games over idle Baltimore Orioles.

Chalked on the board normally used for reporting times for routine batting practice were the words:

"Friday—6 p.m. pitchers and everybody."

Pitchers taking batting practice when they don't hit in regular season games, or even in the league playoffs? That doesn't make sense, unless thoughts are pointed toward baseball's World Series when pitchers must bat against the National League champion.

"No, we're not thinking about any World Series, not with two months to go," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "The pitchers are wlcome to come out and take batting practice if they wish. It's the first time we've done this, but it's no great deal.

"Of course, if we can stay far ahead, we're going to have to get the pitchers ready to hit in enough to get through the playoffs and into the World Series. There's plenty of time for that."

In the only other American League game Thursday, Minnesota Twins beat Kansas City Royals 7-2.

Rolling along 21 games over .500 with a 63-42 record, the Red Sox are threatening to make a runaway of their division, but they're wary of the Orioles who overcame a seven-game Boston lead in the final weeks to win last year.

"We're not going to go into a tailspin like that this year," veteran Carl Yastrzemski said after helping the Red Sox to the sweep over the Tigers. "We have too much talent now. Everybody on the team is contributing. That's what it takes to win."

TONY OLIVA

As the team captain, Yastrzemski is showing the way with amazing hustle and durability for a player who will be 36 Aug. 22. He drove in two runs, including the tying score in the eighth inning, in the first game against Detroit.

Then he walked, sprinted all the way to third on a grounder and scored Boston's second run in the fourth inning of the nightcap. In the sixth, he delivered a key single and scored in a three-run inning.

Asked about his daring run to third, setting up Bernie Carbo's run-scoring single through a drawn-in infield, Yastrzemski said:

"You have to go all out all the way, that's all there is to it. As I neared second, I glanced over my shoulder and decided to go for third. Things like that help other players, such as Bernie getting the big hit with the infield in. That's winning baseball."

Phil Roof hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning and Eric Soderholm and Tony Oliva had solo homers, powering Minnesota past Kansas City.

Oliva also drove in a run with a double, while rookie Jim Hughes evened his record at 9-9, with help from Bill Campbell. Hughes left with two out in the seventh after John Mayberry singled in the Royals' final run.

Four Undefeated After First Day

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Four teams were undefeated after the first day of play in the Canadian Junior Women's Softball Championships Thursday.

Quebec and Ontario have 2-0 won-lost records and Moncton (N.B.) Rebels and British Columbia are 1-0 going into today's play.

Eleven games were played Thursday.

The two top teams in each division will meet in a double knockout competition starting Saturday night. The tournament ends Sunday.

Holly Denton of Alberta caused a sensation in Thursday's play with a record 12 strikeouts in four 1-3 innings as she led her team to a 6-2 win over New Brunswick. Her pitching broke last year's record of 10 strikeouts in a single game.

In another highlight, the Moncton team came from a 7-3 deficit to score six runs in an extra inning to down Lashburn (Sask.) Bluebirds 13-7.

Clair Reed of Ontario managed the only one-hitter of the day in a 3-0 win over Alberta.

In this morning's play, Alberta meets Manitoba, British Columbia goes against the Northwest Territories, New Brunswick plays Newfoundland and Saskatchewan meets Nova Scotia.

Rozelle Rule Attacked

LOS ANGELES AP — A federal court judge, calling the National Football League's controversial Rozelle rule illegal issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday that sent running back Cullen Bryant back to Los Angeles Rams.

"I think the Rozelle rule in conjunction with the standard player contract and the option clause violates Section I of the [illegible]man antitrust act," said Judge Warren Fergu[illegible].

Last Friday, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle ordered Bryant assigned to Detroit in compensation for the Rams' signing of wide receiver Ron Jessie, who had played out ni option with the Lions.

Running Back a Dealer

MEMPHIS (AP) — Federal officials Thursday said running back John Harvey of Memphis Southmen was arrested by Drug Enforcement Administration agents here and charged with conspiracy to possess and distribute heroin and cocaine.

Harvey, former star with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League before he joined the World Football League, appeared before Magistrate Aaron Brown last Sunday and was released on $25,000 unsecured bond.

Harvey was one of six persons indicted July 24 by a Laredo, Tex., federal grand jury in connection with what one drug enforcement agent called a "dope-trafficking ring" which has been under investigation for some time.

Meanwhile, Southmen president John Bassett Jr. said no action has been taken in the matter and Harvey is still "a regular member of the squad."

A decision on his status with the club will be made by the league office once the facts have been gathered, Bassett said.

A three-page indictment states the ring operated for about five years. It lists 12 "over acts" of which undercover drug agents were involved in five.

Bolts In Fourth

BOSTON (CP) — Boston Bolts moved into sole possession of fourth place in the National Lacrosse League with a 19-12 victory over Quebec Caribous Thursday night.

The Bolts scored their sixth consecutive win and moved two points ahead of the Caribous and idle Maryland Arrows, tied for fifth at 32 points. The Bolts have 16 wins against 19 losses and two ties for 34 points.

For Boston, Bram Wilfong scored three goals and had three assists, Larry Bell three goals and two assists and John Allen two goals and three assists. Ivan Thompson scored two and set up four.

Pat Differ scored three for the Caribous, outshot 51-47.

Action resumes Saturday with Montreal Quebecois visiting the Arrows at Landover, Md.

Expos Dump Phillies

Dwyer Trade Looking Great

MONTREAL (CP) — The deal that brought Jim Dwyer to Montreal Expos of baseball's National League from St. Louis Cardinals was not considered earth-shattering, but from Dwyer's view it may just be a new lease on his baseball life.

Dwyer was acquired last Friday in a deal that sent shortstop Larry Lintz to the Cardinals. Since joining Montreal, Dwyer has managed seven hits in 16 at-bats for a .438 average, and Thursday night he made his Jarry Park debut with a sacrifice fly and an inside-the-park home run as Montreal downed Philadelphia Phillies 7-4.

"I'm not surprised he's hitting well," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch. "He has a good swing. I'd be surprised if he ended up hitting over .400 but he can hit the ball."

Dwyer hit the ball well for his inside-the-park homer which came off Philadelphia reliever Wayne Twitchell in the seventh inning. Dwyer lofted the ball into deep right centre and it appeared that right fielder Ollie Brown had made a homer-saving catch.

But just after Brown caught the ball, he slammed into the fence and had the wind knocked out of him as the ball slithered out of his glove.

"Brown had the ball and then he hit the fence and I saw it pop out," Dwyer said. "It ran through my mind that they might rule he had the ball long enough, then I saw the umpire wave the ball was still in play and just ran.

"I've gotten off to fast starts before. Don't forget, I've only had 16 at-pats. Still, it's always good to get off to a good start."

Dwyer now has five consecutive hits in five at-bats and is making the latest Expos deal look good.

The win was the third for Montreal in nine meetings with the Phillies this season.

The Expos grabbed a three-run lead in the first inning with Larry Parrish slapping a two-run single to cap the outburst. The Phillies cut the margin to 3-2 by the fourth inning, but Montreal came back with three in the fifth with Dwyer's sacrifice fly and run-scoring doubles by Gary Carter and Mike Jorgensen accounting for the runs-batted-in.

Philadelphia came back with a pair of runs in the seventh before Dwyer's homer cooled them off.

Left-hander Dan Warthen picked up his fifth win against four losses and his first victory in the majors as a starter. He left the game after six innings because of a tight muscle in his left shoulder and was replaced by Dale Murray, who picked up his fifth save of the year depsite giving up two runs in the seventh.

Ron Schueler, the first of four Phillies pitchers, was charged with his third loss in seven decisions.

The teams play a twi-night doubleheader tonight.

End of Track For Eddie Shack?

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie (The Entertainer) Shack, whose helter-skelter style has delighted fans around the National Hockey League (NHL) for the last 17 years ,these days speaks of his hockey career in the past tense.

"If hockey is over then it's over: It's been fun, a lot of laughs. I've done everything I ever wanted to do. Still, those 17 years in the NHL went so damn fast."

Shack, keeping himself busy at the golf club he has a share in and at his travel business, says he hasn't had any solid invitations to any training camps this fall.

The NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, with whom he saw only spot duty last season, have shown no interest in having the 38-year-old forward return. The NHL St. Louis Blues showed some interest put Shack says he doesn't want to go there.

He said he talked to owner John Bassett of Toronto Toros but has not heard anything further from the World Hockey Association club.

Shack said he has no interest in refereeing or coaching hockey, except perhaps coaching at the junior level.

The Sudbury, Ont., native who broke into the NHL with New York Rangers in the 1958-59 season, has scored 239 goals and 226 assists in 1,047 games. He has been a 20-goal scorer with five different teams—Toronto, Boston Bruins, Los Angeles Kings, Buffalo Sabres and Pittsburgh Penguins.

"I always treated the fans right and they were good to me," said Shack. "Everything I have now I owe to hockey. How could I have any regrets?"

STRIKE SETTLED

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Racing is expected to resume Monday at Naragansett Park race track after settlement of a strike by horsemen which delayed the racing date more than five weeks. Preliminary agreement has been reached on a five-year contract allowing the horsemen 48 per cent of the purses.

Wins Not Easy To Come By

A pair of 2-0 thrillers highlighted Quinte Fastball League action on Thursday night.

The first hook-up saw Bardon Supplies just get by Devolin Motors and put a stranglehold on first place. In the other match, Auger Men's Wear came out over the Ellis Juniors as they battle for the final playoff spot.

Earl Foster picked up the Bardon win, he gave up only two hits and four walks to Devolin batters. He also set eight of them down on third strikes.

Don Holoway was saddled with the loss, he allowed a total of six hits and one walk and struck out Bardon batsman.

Foster's triple in the first inning scored Ron Weese to give Bardon what proved to be the winning run.

Other Bardon safeties came from Bill Dewey, who also tripled, Denis Neron with two singles and one single from Weese and Keith Stacey.

The two Devolin hits came from Dave Horwood, both were singles.

Auger Men's Wear put together some clutch plays in their victory, with Bob Swan contributing a four hitter to the cause.

Swan didn't walk any batters in the contest and struck out three Ellis Juniors in the process.

Bruce Sutherland was the loser although both runs were unearned.

Sutherland gave up seven hits and a walk and struck out three batters.

Auger hits came from Jim Livingstone, with a pair of singles, Joe Theriault and Bob McAlpine, both with doubles. Singles were contributed by Al Ferguson, Dennis Orr and Ted Cornell.

All four Junior hits were one baggers, coming from the bats of Mark Coates, John Romano, Jim Richardson and Steve Campbell.

Miller Wins Legion Event

The second Ladies Legion Golf Tournament was held at Bayview Golf Centre recently and, just as in its initial run, was very successful.

Marg Miller, Legion, scored first low gross while Marilyn Kalisvour, also of the Legion, was next. Third gross went to Barbara Denike, again of the Legion.

Prizes for the tournament were donated by Bayview Golf Centre, Rollies Sports Centre, Adams' Furniture, AVCO Finance, Coca Cola Co., Blacks Wallpaper, Booth Radio, Jack Fitzgerald, Towne Furniture, Bill Richardson, George Wilson, Gord Jewel, Dempsters Bread, King Sol, O'Connors Jewel Box, Barton Pharmacy.

Convenors of the event were Marg Miller and Marg Clapp.

Sidney United Gets Lesson

Sidney United, Trenton area's under 21 soccer club, got a taste of how a well polished team plays Thursday night when the Belleville Olympics rolled to an easy 11-1 victory in an exhibition contest.

Xdravko Fundic potted four goals to lead the onslaught. Charlie Nesterovski, Chris Huckle, and Bob Kitcher added a pair each and Tony Goncalves rounded things out for the Olympics.

Have Enough On Scoreboard

Ellis Construction came up shorthanded as far as players are concerned in their Belleville and District Ladies Softball League game. Luckily for them, they didn't come up short of runs, as they defeated Mobil Chemical with only an eight-person roster. The final score was 12-11.

JUDY RAPPEL

Another close game occurred in Madoc, as the Purinettes tied Belleville Broadloom 6-6.

Donna Brant and Helen Barberstock teamed up to take the victory; the two combined to strike out three batters and put Ellis two points ahead of Mobil in the final playoff position.

Aileen Barr absorbed the loss. She struck out one.

It was a night for hitters, with Judy Rapell leading the way for the winners. She had a single, a double and a triple. Lilian Barberstock had three singles and Pat Robson reached base four times on safeties.

Sue Shannon belted two triples and two doubles in the losing cause, while Cathy Rolland had four singles and Lynn Wood a single and a double.

It was errors that cost Purinaettes a win with Broadloom, as they made three miscues in the final inning.

Sandra Fleming hurled for the home squad, giving up six hits and four walks. She had two strikeouts.

Mary Anne Sills threw for Broadloom; she also had two strikeouts.

Chris Fyke doubled twice for Belleville and Margie Scanlan had two singles.

Fleming pounded a homer and a double for Madoc and Joan Bailey had a single and a double. Brenda Haye had two singles.

Shero Foresees Association

NHL Coaches Regarded as Bums

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

Philadelphia Flyers coach, Fred Shero, is well-known for guiding the first expansion club to a National Hockey League Stanley Cup championship. However, Shero is fast becoming known as a pioneer in another aspect of coaching.

He is the first coach in the NHL to lay down the law with management. Club officials know that as far as players are concerned, their jurisdiction comes to an abrupt end. As far as telling Shero how to play games and individual players, well, they may as well commit suicide for that's exactly what it would be to the Philadelphia organization. Any interference of any kind is not tolerated by Shero.

"I'd simply pack my bags," said the Flyers' coach.

Most of his colleagues are among the lowest paid members of their respective clubs. If the truth were known, management generally regards coaches as bums.

"We're not bums," said Shero, "and I, for one, don't intend to be looked upon as one."

Most professional coaches live in constant fear of losing their positions.

"There's no way that should happen," said the Philadelphia coach, "I couldn't work under anyone I was afraid of, but most pro coaches are in that position."

However, Shero has carved a path for coaches out of the management jungle. In Philadelphia the coach makes the decision on everything pertaining to his players and the game -- with no interference from the hierarchy.

"That's the only way it can be done. Coaches have placed themselves in ridiculous situations," he stated. "Firstly, they're told to win hockey games. Then they're told by four or five different people at the executive level what the're supposed to do and how they're supposed to do it. 'Handle this guy lightly, I want to see you do this, this and this.' After a while they're so confused about what they can and can't do they begin to forget their original function. They're so worried about stepping on toes and watching out for the management they stop watching out for the team. Next thing don't do that with someone else and when the game starts you know, the club's in a slump, and out he goes."

FRED SHERO

The set-up in Flyer country is just the opposite.

"If I'm going to take the responsibility for losing I don't want anyone telling me how to run my team," he said, "that just doesn't make sense."

The coach related an instance during last year's Stanley Cup final series where he informed management the team needed the Spectrum in which to practise.

"We were in some little arena," he said, "it could'nt be helped the first day, but the second practice we had I figured should be in the Spectrum."

Shero said because of the show which had been appearing in the club's home rink it cost officials $800 more than usual to get the surface ready for the afternoon session.

"They did it though," he added, "it had to be done. They know if I consider it a necessity to the team, then they'll do it without much question."

Shero foresees the possibility of a coaches association stemming from his stand.

"I hope some coaches have followed my example," he addd. "I think Bob Pulford (LA Kings) has established a situation similar to mine."

In most pro sports the coach finds himself pulled in one direction by the power of a player's association and in the other direction through personal fear of the management.

"With the conditions that face nearly all of today's professional coaches, particularly in hockey, an association is a strong possibility," he said.

Two Series Squared

Lockhart Fires BISL No-hitter

Norm Lockhart gave up four hits and struck 12 batters on Tuesday night and still lost. He decided to take things into his own hands in the quarter-final playoff game Thursday night, and threw a no-hitter for Post Office over Mead Johnson.

The win evens the Belleville Industrial Softball League series at one game apiece.

In the other playoff game, Constellation bounced back against Brooke Bond, winning 6-3 to tie that series at one game each.

Lockhart was brilliant for Post Office as he allowed only three men to get on base, with free passes. He set 10 batters down on third strikes.

Sonny Holoway was the victim of Lockhart's talents, as he gave up eight hits in the loss. He walked one batter and caught eight Posties on third strikes.

Hits were contributed by Bill Leitch and George Johnson with two singles each, Lockhart's double and singles from Ron Mariott, Ed Perry and Jim Burke.

Ken Kerik took the Constellation victory, giving up three hits and three walks. He struck out two Brooke Bond batters.

The loss was shared by Ross Geen and Tom St. Jules, They combined to give up seven hits and a walk, while striking out four.

Kerick singled and tripled to help his own cause while Blaine Mullins hit two singles and a double in the win.

Singles for the losers came from Lou Rivers, Al Colden and Ross Geen.

Green Sets OLA Record

By HE CANADIAN PRESS

Dan Green set an Ontario Lacrosse Association points record Thursday as Peterborough Gray Munroes beat Lakeshore Maple Leafs 35-11 to become OLA Junior A champions.

In the only other scheduled game, visiting Rexdale Warriors used an eight-goal second-period effort to spark them to a 18-7 victory over Oshawa Green Gaels.

In Peterborough, Green picked up 13 assists and one goal for a season total of 205 points, 14 ahead of Gaylord Powless' record of 191 set in 1967 when he played for Oshawa Green Gaels. Green had 55 goals and 150 assists.

Moe Jodoin led Peterborough with eight goals, Randy Bryan and Bob Wasson had five each and Steve Byers and Mark Vitarelli added four each.

East Germans Trounce Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Displaying superb ball control and better conditioning, East Germany, lead by Eberhard Vogel with three goals, dumped Canada, 7-1 Thursday in international soccer.

Joachim Streich added two goals for the Germans, who led 3-0 at half-time, with single scores coming from Hans Jurgen Riediger and Jurgen Pommerenche. Carl Rose scored the lone Canadian goal.

German coach Georg Buschner told reporters the Canadian team was overtrained in toughness and physical ability but deficient in technical aspects of the game. Little could be done to improve Canada's hopes for next summer's Olympic Games in Montreal.

He said he was happier with his team's play than Tuesday night in Toronto when the Germans scored a 3-0 victory. "We were preparing for the Olympics by changing players around at various positions trying to assess their ability at different spots."

East Germany was third in last year's World Cup and was the only team to defeat West Germany, the eventual winner.

Canadian coach Bill McAllister said his squad started training four weeks ago and after playing their hearts out in Toronto, "it's pretty hard to come back two nights later against a machine - like team that the Germans have."

TOM WEISKOPF

Massengale Surprise Leader

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — An old, beat-up putter, - mallet headed and wooden-shafted—a gift from his caddy—turned the golf season around for Rik Massengale.

"Just like the last three, four years, I wasn't doing much of anything," Massengale said, "Out in Palm Springs early in the year my caddy, Denny Ferrell, was watching me putting one day and I was complaining about it and he said he had an old putter I ought to try.

"He brought it out the next day and I've used it ever since. I think that's the biggest change there's been in my season—the putting."

Massengale, armed with that putter, scored eight birdies on his way to a seven-under-par 65 and the first-round lead Thursday n the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Massengale, another faceless struggler on the tour for his first five years, broke through to his first triumph in the Tallahassee Open—after he'd gotten the caddy's putter—and, with $53,278 in official earnings, has more than tripled his earnings for the entire 1974 season.

He's going for a $50,000 first prize here, but isn't counting the money yet.

"You can't say I'm about to win the golf tournament 'cause I had a good first round," he said. "I've led golf tournaments in the first round before and wound up making $500 for the week. Anything can happen yet."

He had good reason to pe less than over-confident. Lurking just a single shot off his pace with a 66 was Tom Weiskopf, a playoff winner over Jack Nicklaus for the Canadian Open title last weekend.

Jerry Pate, a former national amateur champion who is making his first American start as a pro, Pat Fitzsimons and Tommy Aaron were at 67, two strokes back and five under par on the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course that often yields some of the season's lowest scores.

The group at 68 was made up of British Open champion Tom Watson, veteran Gene Littler, Dick Lotz, Bud Allin and Rod Funseth.

Johnny Miller, the defending champion who needs to finish first or second here to pass the absent Nicklaus for the money winning lead, had a 69.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 73 and South African Gary Player a 75.

Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer skipped this rich event—it's exceeded in value by only one tournament this season—to concentrate on preparations for next week's Professional Golfers' Association national championship.

Roughies Still Threat

TORONTO (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders claim to be hurting and poorly prepared for tonight's Canadian Football League game but they still pose a strong threat to the winless Toronto Argonauts.

The Roughies, coming off their second win of the season three days ago at Montreal, have the usual collection of bumps and bruises but Ron Lancaster and George Reed, perennial stars of the Saskatchewan backfield, make up for at least some of the disadvantage the visitors find themselves in.

Traditionally, a travelling team seldom wins both games on its road trip, often because it has little time to prepare for the second game and allow injuries to heal.

"It think it is common practice around the league that you prepare for the first team and if you win, great," said Lancaster, veteran Saskatchewan quarterback. "Then you go out and do your best in the second game with what you've got left.

"We haven't even see a film on Toronto yet. We know they have some new people but we don't know who they are. When you only see a team once a season and not at all in the exhibition schedule, it's pretty well impossible to prepare for them."

REACTION TO OUR GIFT OF A "HOLIDAY OF A LIFETIME" IN ONE OF SEVEN BEAUTIFUL FLORIDA LOCATIONS, WAS SUCH A SUCCESS WE HAVE DECIDED TO MAKE THIS OFFER AVAILABLE TO OUR CUSTOMERS AGAIN. THERE ARE A LIMITED NUMBER OF TRIPS, SO DON'T DELAY. PURCHASE A NEW 1975 VEHICLE AND HAVE A VACATION ON US!

This is not a contest. This is a gift of appreciation to our customers.

Dear Friends and Customers:

Over the past few months we have had an opportunity to review our 1975 model line-up with many of you. Your comments and the number of vehicles sold have convinced us that we have the most complete transportation package in the industry. Consider these outstanding and proven performers PINTO, MAVERICK, MUSTANG, TORINO, CUSTOM 500, LTD, THUNDERBIRD and the whole range of FORD TRUCKS. Add to all these the all new GRANADA, LTD LANDAU and SUPER CAB TRUCK and we completely cover our customers needs. After a careful evaluation of our present stock, I have decided to get a fast start on clearing our 1975 models to make way for the arrival of 76s! How about price? We have considered this factor very carefully and we are going to help you fight inflation by setting our clearance prices as low as possible. To help trim our prices even further we have been expanding our used car sales volume and need a constant supply of vehicles to satisfy our cutomer demand. I guarantee you we will be giving you the best possible allowance on any trade you own.

WE WANT YOUR BUSINESS . . . TRY US, IT HAS TO COST LESS!

Sincerely,

Benton Fry

BIRTHS

WHITEHEAD — Wayne and Marion (nee Yorke) are pleased to announce the birth of their son Warren Frederick William, Sunday, July 27, 1975 at Belleville General Hospital. Weight 8 lbs. 15¼ ozs. A little brother for Wendy and Wyatt. Special thanks to Dr. Fry and Dr. Walsh and nurses on 5th floor.

IN MEMORIAM

DENYES — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter Denyes who passed away August 1, 1973.
Deep in our hearts, he will always stay,
Loved and remembered every day.
—Sadly missed by wife Edna, daughter Mary Lou, son Jack and families.

WOOD — In loving memory of a dear grandfather and great grandfather, William E. Wood, who passed away August 1, 1971.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Terry, Carol, Terri-Lynne and Brad.

FAULKNER — In loving memory of a dear friend Harry Edwin Faulkner who passed away August 1st, 1973.
We think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep.
But still within our aching hearts,
His memory we keep.
—Ever remembered by Eric, Biolet and boys.

DENYES — In loving memory of a dear friend Walter Denyes who passed away August 1, 1973.
—From a friend who never forgets.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday Aug. 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have some good ideas today. You'll try the pleasurable ones, shelving others more practical.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) Your financial prospects are mixed today. However, when you total the score gains will outweight losses marginally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Though in a gregarious mood today, you're hypersensitive to the way others treat you. Don't let it mar your fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't accept something long-desired if it means offending a friend or associate. Later, you can have it without strings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a bit of a wheeler-dealer today You may pick up one tab too many to suit your aching purse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could profit today by shrewd tactics, but not like yourself too well if you feel you're taking advantage of less alert souls.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An idea you're promoting will stand on its own. You could cloud the deal if you try to embellish on it too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In a situation where you and a partner share an interest, seek only your fair share.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to change your mind once too often today and miff a close friend. She felt your decision was firm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your ambitious interests are overly strong today. You'll do things without gaining pleasure. Take time to smell the roses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could take a chance with the outcome highly speculative, even though your common sense tells you "No."

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A member of your family is entitled to your praise for going out of her way for you. Give her a few pats.

To Your Good Health

Few Pounds More No Real Problem

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like your opinion on how much I should weigh. I'm a girl, 13, 5 feet, 4 inches tall. I have large bones, and I weigh 124 pounds. My measurements are 33-24-33. I think I should reduce.

Please tell me how much I should weigh.—Miss K. S.

Normal weight for a girl your age and height would be about 115 pounds, give or take a pound or two. This is while wearing normal indoor clothing and without shoes.

Don't invent any weight problems.

You need not worry too much about a few pounds over the so-called norms. A lot can depend on your stage of physical development. Girls tend to add some weight during this period, and often in odd places. In most instances, it all evens out within a couple of years.

Unless there is some real health-related reason for dieting, I do not recommend it for young folks like yourself. More important for you than the fad diet you mention in your letter is adequate exercise, sleep, and perhaps elimination of those infernal snacks. These steps should assist nature in producing the desired results.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 50, and had a complete hysterectomy two months ago. I feel good, go out dancing, and my doctor says the incision has healed exceptionally well.

However, after my post-surgery checkup, he said to take it easy and not to do any heavy lifting. My question is: How can you tell when it's all right to have sexual intercourse after an operation of this type?—Mrs. R.

Sexual relations can be resumed when the post-operative examination reveals the healing is complete. This usually takes two months, after which the danger of injury or infection is practically nil.

Dancing and the like should not have any harmful effects.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem is that my eyes water. I am 61. For the past several months my eyes have watered so much I can hardly read the paper. Is this a common symptom when one gets older? What treatment is possible?

My vision is quite good for my age.—F. B. M.

Tears are drained through two tiny openings located at the nose side of the lids.

They are collected in a sac from which they are released at a steady rate through a tear duct. Normally, we are not aware of this process.

When there is an obstruction of the ducts leading to the nasal surface, as in an infection, for example, an excess of fluid can build up and overflow.

Constricting drops often can alleviate this, but if this has no effect, then a probe to open the obstructed ducts may be in order. You should see an eye doctor to determine the exact cause of the excessive tearing which, although it is not uncommon in older persons, is not normal and not to be ignored.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read a lot about enlarged prostate. But no one ever explains why and how it happens.

I just had a physical and was told I have this. What causes it?—H. W.

The reason you haven't read about it is that we just don't know. Yet 30 per cent of all men over 50 develop the condition.

Dream Worked For CBC Type

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Lowry fulfilled the classic fantasy of many a middle-aged executive caught in the treadmill of corporate life.

He made the dream come true by selling everything, buying a boat and escaping to the tropics.

After five adventurous years of travel around the Caribbean and in Central America, he and his wife have returned to show fellow-Canadians his fascination with Canada.

Lowry, 52, left the security of 15 successful years at the CBC and his native town to go island-hopping. He said the decision came while driving in rush-hour traffic to his duties as sales manager of CBLT.

"The utter futility of it all suddenly hit me," he said. "I knew there had to be a better way of life.

"Instead of going to the office, I returned home and told my wife, Joy, how I felt. Luckily for me, she went along with the scheme. My wife has always been my greatest asset."

Their youngest son Peter, then 16, remained at school and their two elder boys took care of him.

The next step was buying a 65-foot boat and sailing to the Caribbean. They signed on a mate and galley girl to complete their crew. Their charter venture lasted three months.

"Frankly, it was worse than working," said skipper Lowry. "We waited on people, hand and foot. Some were pleasant, but most were terrible.

"The end came when we were chartered by a particularly obnoxious couple from Boston to sail from Nassau to Haiti. It was time to turn to something else."

He turned to photography and for two years combined color slides and post card views—with articles on his Caribbean travels.

"I might have been living that life today but for the fact that our boat was too big. She was beautiful but we just couldn't afford to keep her.

"So we sold it and I worked for the next two years as a delivery skipper. It was a pleasant life, delivering boats to their new owners and often staying with them for a spell until they were able to sail the craft on their own."

After experiencing severe storms in the Caribbean and different sailings, Mr. Lowry said they were offered a trip to New Zealand. Instead of accepting it, they decided to go on a one-year sojourn around Central America in a camper truck.

In Central America, he shot photographs of Panama, Guatemala, Honduras, Belize, Nicaragua and El Salvador for official government posters and cards and slides.

When Central Americans complained about not knowing enough about Canada, he thought of the idea of photographing historic Canada.

Working with the Toronto Historical Board, Lowry travelled to different historic sites to photograph. He said he has plans to take pictures in the Maritimes, concentrating on fishing craft and the men who sail them.

"There are so many places we haven't seen," he said. "So much that I would like to capture with my camera.

"When I quit the CBC, I cut all my ties and gave the pieces to my friends. It was a symbolic gesture. I've never worn a tie since and never will. Without a tie, you can go anywhere that's worth going to."

Opening lead — 10♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

South didn't know just how to bid his hand. The one thing he was sure of was that there was no reason to use Blackwood. He didn't really care whether or not his partner held the ace of clubs.

Six was a good contract, but careful play was necessary and South gave the hand the correct careful play.

He ruffed the club lead and drew two rounds of trumps while leaving the jack of trumps in dummy.

Then he went after the diamonds by cashing his ace of diamonds and leading towards dummy's kind.

This play left West right between a rock and a hard place. If he ruffed South would play low from dummy and be able to ruff a losing diamond in dummy later on.

West saw this danger and discarded, but his move didn't faze South. He went up with dummy's king and led back the suit. East was in but could not lead a trump so South got to ruff one diamond which was all he needed.

Ask the Jacobys

Today's question is "What is an elimination play?"

The answer is that it is a name given to a group of plays in which declarer eliminates all the cards in one or two suits and then throws an opponent in to force him to make a lead that will be favorable to declarer.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Bicentennial Games Introduced in U.S.

NEW YORK (Reuter)h — The king is George Washington, the queen is Martha Washington, the bishop is Benjamin Franklin, the knight is Paul Revere, the rook is the Liberty Bell and the pawns are a drummer, fifer and six Minutemen.

These are the pieces found in the newest chess set on the markt, and the latest item in a long ist of toys, games and dolls being introduced during the first year of the American Bicentennial.

The chess set, hand-antiqued and made of aged maple and walnut, is among a large collection of Bicentennial items found in New York's prestiges F. A. O. Schwarz toy store on fashionable Fifth Avenue.

The set to commemorate the Bicentennial sells for $35.

Another intriguing item is a set of playing cards—the American Bicentennial historical playing card deck.

The oversized cards consist of reproductions of 52 paintings depicting people who contributed to the history of the United States.

They include Americans from all walks of life—the founding fathers, military leaders, politicians, Indians, artists, poets, scientists, famous figures from American folkore and legendary heroes of the Wild West.

The set, which sells for $7, is divided into four suits representing important periods of American history — coonial (spades), federal (clubs), Civil War (diamonds) and frontier (hearts).

A 160-page illustrated book which accompanies the deck contains a biographical sketch of the life of each person featured on the cards.

The paintings, in full color, are done by the American artist Douglas Gorsline, who is well known for his meticulous full-length costume figures. His works are in many private collections and he has illustrated numerous costume books and volumes dealing with American history.

Speaking of costumes, F. A. O. Schwarz also sells, for $22.95 authentically-styled outfits of machine-washable cotton twill and poplin for boys and girls who wish to dress like their cononial ancestors.

The boys' three-piece outfit consists of a blue and white jacket with brass buttons, a white vest with gold trim and white knickers. It even comes with a black tricorne hat, similar to those worn by the colonialists.

The girls' costume is made up of a white and blue party dress with gold and lace trim and a matching mop cap.

Other Bicentennial toys on the market include drum sets for $6.95, a 500-piece jigsaw puzzle depicting numerous scenes of American life and history for $3 and a package of three separate family games recreating the development of American independence at $12.95.

Mistress Rights

LONDON (AP) — The English legal sysem is taking its first tentative steps towards according a amn's mistress status equal to that of a wife. Two separate developments, one in Parliament and the other in the Court of Appeals, said that in appropriate circumstances, a mistress may apply to a court for maintenance from her dead lover's estate and may qualify for a share in the house in which she has been cohabiting.

Tension Increases

In the wake of Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia, North Korea has reportedly increased its forces close to the demilitarized zone (DMZ), an area about two miles wide either side of the demarcation line with South Korea. Sources say the North Koreans have moved part of two armored divisions up to the zone and are stepping up tunneling operations along the DMZ. In view of the situation, the presence of some 38,000 American troops in South Korea is considered vital to the South. The North has long demanded the removal of U.S. troops, contending that they are a source of tension and pose an obstacle to peace in the divided peninsula.

Plumber's Life Not All Clover

TORONTO (CP) — Steamfitter Ivan Goudie made a little under $15,000 last year, and figured that was average for men in the plumbing trade.

He said that most members of the public have a greatly exaggerated idea of how much construction workers make.

"I figure it's a good job, but not all that many persons think," said Mr. Goudie, 56, in an interview. He has been in the plumbing and pipefitting trade for 30 years and his father and brothers were plumbers.

He said he would not recommend it to his sons because he has seen too much unemployment. Construction work is seasonal in nature, he said, and the wages include payments to the union funds for vacations, pensions and other fringe benefits.

Mr. Goudie has raised a family of five children here since he first joined the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipe-Fitting Industry, after coming out of the air force in the Second World War.

Like all plumbers, he apprenticed for five years before becoming a journeyman entitled to work alone for full wages. He said he remembered starting out at $1.30 an hour after the last war. Today, he owns a car a cottage and a home he built himself.

"I figure I'm one of the lucky ones," he said.

"This is a good trade, but it has its hardships and when you consider them, I don't think we are overpaid."

Some of the hardships he listed included: carrying heavy piping, working in the open, driving his car to jobs without income tax deductions and the ever-pressing problem of unemployment.

"Some guys are lucky," he said. "They finish one job and move right on to the next. Maybe they get 11 months' work like I did in the last couple of years. But another guy has to wait.

"In the last 10 years, I've been off for four or five months on several occasions. Some years have been pretty grim."

Last year was a good year for him. He worked 11 months at the hourly rate then of $8.44 an hour. On top of this, he got pension contributions, vacation, dental, drug and supplementary unemployment benefits for a total cost of $10.41 an hour to the employer.

Under a new contract recently signed the wage rate will be $9.85 an hour for a 37½-hour week, rising to $11.22 an hour or $420.75 a week by May 1, 1976. By then, a man who works a full 1,800-hour year, may expect to earn more than $20,000. With fringes, the final cost to the employer will be $13.70 an hour, the top in the construction industry.

Ford Meets Soviet Leader

HELSINKI (CP) — President Ford met with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to discuss an arms limitation treaty today and then took off for Romania from this capital where leaders of 35 countries held the European conference.

The president said after the 3½-hour meeting at the Soviet embassy that some progress had been made in the intricate negotiations to limit the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers.

"Da, da, absolutely," agreed Brezhnev.

Ford also will visit Belgrade before returning to Washington after a 10-day European tour.

During the three-day security conference which ended Friday, the heads of government from Europe and North America promised to turn the present political detente into military detente.

The 35 heads of government signed a 134-page charter for good conduct. And they now have formally recognized the postwar division of Europe—a major objective of Brezhnev.

The 30,000-word document covers fundamental principles on which security in Europe is to be based, co-operation in economics, science ,technology and the environment is to be increased, and personal and cultural contacts are to be enlarged.

Largely through Canadian efforts, the document has a section which says the signing countries "will deal in a positive and humanitarian spirit with the application of persons who wish to be reunited with members of their families."

It was designed to help families split by the Iron Curtain.

The agreements—which are not binding—were negotiated by experts over a two-year period in Geneva.

Ford told the delegates Friday history would judge this conference "not by the promises we make but by the promises we keep."

Canada Cement Workers Out At Three Plants

BATH — More than 100 production workers at the Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. plant here walked off their jobs at 8 a.m. today.

Robert Ostofi, secretary-treasurer of Local 219, United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers ,said they were joined by workers at Winnipeg and Brookfield, N.S. All production workers in the company — about 1,000 — are expected to be off the job shortly, Mr. Ostofi said.

At issue are wages, pensions and cost-of-living provisions. The union has been without a contract since July 1.

The Weather

Synopsis — Cooler air should reach all areas of Northern Ontario by Sunday bringing showers and thundershowers. Remaining hot and humid in the south with an increasing possibility of thundershowers today and Sunday. Cooler air should reach the south by Sunday night.

550 Died of Heat in 1936

In Fahrenheit Old Days It Topped 100 for Week

TORONTO (CP) — Although four more days of hot, muggy near-35 C. weather are forecast, it can hardly rival the hottest, longest heat wave in Ontario 39 years ago when 550 persons died from the heat.

In the 1936 wave temperatures topped 100 degrees fahrenheit (38 C.) every day from July 7-14.

On Wednesday July 8, 1936, the temperature recorded in the sun in Toronto was 158.7 degrees fahrenheit (63 C.) while in Woodstock the temperature in the shade was 106 degrees fahrenheit (41 C.).

Downtown Toronto was like a blast furnace with stagnant air reheated by roads and buildings.

A 23-year-old woman, the first victim in Toronto, got up from the dinner table, said she was feeling weak and was dead a few minutes later from heat prostration.

The death toll started with 30 on Friday, July 10. In five hours the next day, 22 persons, mostly elderly, died from the heat.

In 1936, city dwellers without today's air conditioners and swimming pools went to the Toronto Islands or beaches for refuge.

At night they stayed there and slept in the grass or sand while others crowded parks and slept on benches or on their front lawns.

During that week, water supplies began to dry up with the Toronto reservoir dropping to 53 million gallons from 83 millon in a week.

Across the province, new reservoirs and pumps were ordered immediately with reserves almost gone.

Northern Ontario forests sat dry while large sections of forest north of Sault Ste. Marie burned out of control for days.

Farmers plowed under sections of their crops shrivelled by the blazing sun.

Hoffa's Family Fears He Has Been Abducted

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The family of Jimmy Hoffa fears he has been abducted, but police say they do not have a clue to the mysterious disappearance of the former Teamsters union boss.

"We don't know anymore than we knew at this time yesterday," Police Lieut. Curt Grennier said late Friday, 48 hours after the one-time leader of the largest union in the United States vanished from this Detroit suburb.

However, the Detroit Free Press quotes Hoffa's daughter, Barbara Crancer, as saying "investigators" believe two associates of Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone, a longtime Hoffa friend and reputed Mafia leader, may have taken her father hostage.

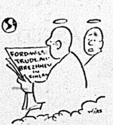
Hoffa's son, James P. Hoffa, also said he believes his 62-year-old father has been abducted, although he expressed confidence the elder Hoffa was still alive.

But no ransom note has been delivered for Hoffa, last seen outside a plush restaurant here Wednesday afternoon.

The family told The Associated Press that Hoffa said he was going to the Machus Red Fox restaurant to meet Giacalone.

Family members said they believe Hoffa was to meet with a second person at the restauront, put they did not know his name.

Ben Wicks



'Who's looking after the store?'

Oops, So Sorry

ONEIDA, Wis. (AP) — Emerson Reed 41, stomped out of the house in a huff after an argument with his wife at their rural home near here.

His wife Shirley, upset, then piled into the car with several of their eight children, thinking Reed was walking down the road.

She threw the car in reverse and started backing down the driveway when the children started screaming, "Mommy, you've run over Daddy."

Reed, who had been lying in the grass behind the rear wheels of the car, tried to get up after the car tire rolled over his stomach, the Brown County sheriff's office said.

But Shirley panicked behind the wheel and drove the car back up the driveway, running over Reed's stomach again, deputies reported.

But Reed still managed to get up and comfort Shirley. He was in hospital for observation, complaining only that it was hard to catch his breath.

It's Still Hot

Petawawa's 39 Tops Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Central Canada continued to swelter Friday as the first day of August brought little or no relief to Ontario and Quebec residents plagued by record high temperatures and humidity.

In Montreal, the temperature soared to 38 C., surpassing the previous all-time high for Aug. 1 of 34 C. set in 1955. A small dog locked inside a parked car on a downtown street for more than three hours died from the heat.

The heat wave was felt throughout the province as the temperature hit 34 C. in Quebec City.

Petawawa, in Northeastern Ontario, was the hottest spot in Canada with a record high of 39 C. and temperatures hovered in the mid-30s Celsius in most southern Ontario cities.

In Ontario, the mercury reached 35 C. in Ottawa, Windsor and Toronto, while London recorded a high of 34.

Many companies in Toronto office buildings without air conditioning sent employees home early. Beer stores, dairies and ice cream parlors are expecting their busiest weekend of the year.

Many appliance stores were sold out of air conditioners and fans, and some people without air conditioners checked into air-conditioned hotels and motels for the weekend.

Weather forcasters said this week's heat wave was caused by the stagnation of a warm air mass over the region.

The Toronto weather office forecast more hot, humid weather for today, with a chance of thundershowers in most areas.

But there is some hope of relief. The weather office said southern Ontario can expect more thundershowers Sunday, with cooler air moving in by the first of the week.

Slightly cooler temperatures are also expected throughout Quebec province.

A cold front moving into northwestern Ontario already is having an effect. Trout Lake, 100 miles northeast of Kenora, reported temperatures of only 10 C. early today.

The Maritime provinces remained relatively cool Friday. Temperatures reached 29 C. in Fredericton, N.B., and a high of 24 C. was reported at Halifax. Charlottetown remained relatively cool with a high of 23 C.

Like the Maritimes, most areas of Western Canada were experiencing seasonable temperatures.

California Earthquake Injures 15

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — California's strongest earthquake in 4½ years jolted a 200-by 300-mile area, damaging dozens of buildings and causing 10 to 15 minor injuries in this Sierra Nevada foothills town.

The tremor, the most severe of four that hit Northern California Friday, measured 6.1 on the Richter scale of earthquake intensity.

It was the strongest quake to hit California since 64 persons died in a 6.6-magnitude Los Angeles earthquake Feb. 9, 1971.

Officials said there was no damage to the nearby 650-foot high Oroville Dam, the world's tallest earthen dam.

Meanwhile, a tremor measuring 4.9 on the Richter scale rumbled through portions of five southern California counties late Friday, but there were no reports of damage.

Lockheed Admits $22 Million Payoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. admits it paid at least $22 million to foreign government officials and political groups since 1970 to sell its airplanes abroad.

The payments are under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and the Senate subcommittee on multi-national corporations.

Lockheed is refusing to disclose the names of those who took the payoffs, or to identify the several countries involved.

Lockheed said it believes the payoffs are in line with local business practices, and that disclosure might seriously injure Lockheed, possibly prompting recall of millions of dollars in advance payments put up by foreign customers.

The company said some of the payoffs were made from a secret, $750,000 fund which has now been discontinued. Leftover cash has been put into the company's bank account, it said.

The disclosure came in a routine report on quarterly earnings, released Friday in Washington and Burbank, Calif.

Lockheed has about $1.6 billion worth of orders in about 30 foreign countries for its air planes ,chiefly the L-1011 Tri-Star jet pasenger plane and the C-130 cargo plane. About 12 per cent of all its sales are to foreign governments.

Earlier, Lockheed had repeatedly denied making any overseas payoffs after one of its competitors, Northrop Corp., said its own bribes and questionable foreign payments were made in imitation of Lockheed's practices.

Prisoners Accept Food

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoners at Millhaven penitentiary came out of their cells for meals and visitors but not for work and exercise Friday in the second day of a proposed 11 day sit in in support of demands by British Columbia penitentiary prisons for a union. Prison director John Dowsett said guards opened cell doors at the usual hours for meals and prisoners came out to pick up food trays and return to the cells.

Asks Judge For Loan

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Peter Parker was more than a little surprised when Michael Kloepfer, 26, asked him for a loan. Kloepfer said he had been "evicted yesterday without any place to stay and I was going to ask the court if I could borrow $5 to get me through. I'll pay it when I come back." Judge Parker, when he recovered from his surprise, said it would not be proper for him to make a loan as it would then involve him in a debtor creditor position with Kloepfer. He recommended Kloepfer go to the Salvation Army for help.

James Bay Bishop Dead

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — A funeral service will be held today at All Saints Church for Bishop Neville Richard Clark, 65, who died Wednesday of an apparent heart condition. He was archbishop of James Bay at the time of his death.

Nigeria Re-opens Borders

LAGOS (AP) — Nigeria reopened its borders today after closing them following Tuesday's bloodles coup d'etat. Life in black Africa's biggest and richest state returned to normal as Nigerians quietly accepted the removal of Gen. Yakuba Gowan and his replacement by Brig. Muritala Mohammed as head of state.

Coffee Prices Raised

TORONTO (CP) — General Foods Ltd. announced Friday it has increased the wholesale price of a pound of coffee by 20 cents and the price of instant coffee brands by about three cents an ounce with further increases expected. The move follows a 60 per cent increase in the cost of, green coffee beans on the world market, the company said in a news release.

Oshkosh Arrives

CFB Trenton Firefighters Made Happy By Arrival of Special Tanker Truck

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Oshkosh is here and most pilots at CFB Trenton and others forced to make emergency landings are breathing easier because of it.

The Oshkosh is a newly arrived tanker firetruck purchased for its special capabilities in the unique field of fighting aircraft fires.

"Our main purpose when a vehicle has radioed an emergency call, after we are properly deployed along the airstrip, is to evacuate the passengers," said Sgt. Jack Kearly, the man who is in charge and usually the first on the scene of any emergency landing.

"The Oshkosk is specifically designed to lay down a coating or sheet of light water that most people call foam," he said, "and this combined with a new chemical we are using for the mixture has reduced the chance of spot fires."

The fire department at the base is trained in handling emergencies for all types of planes owned by the Canadian forces and periodically the firefighters take special courses to learn new techniques.

"Most people would think this was all we would be required to do," he said, but we are also required to fight any structural fires on the base or in the quarters of the personnel just off the base," he said.

"If we have to, we can mobilize a complete second firefighting unit within five minutes," he said.

A new fire hall was constructed just over 12 years ago and is strategically located near the end of the main runway.

"We are also responsible for fire safety on the base. We make periodic examinations of extinguishers and fire procedures and we also inspect plans for any new buildings to ensure they will be built to conform to safety standards."

The firefighting unit is one of the few equipped to repair and replenish most of the extinguishers on the base.

"One of our men designed a special mounting device for the Oshkosh truck to hold a breathing apparatus in place," said Sgt. Kearley, "and this allows us to save precious seconds when we have to put it on and go into a smoke-filled room."

The unit is not restricted to the base in its firefighting efforts.

"Two or three times a month we are called by local agencies to assist in fighting fires off base," he said. "If we are the first on the scene we assume control and then when the primary company arrives we take a back-up position and help when they need it."

In the past three months the unit has been called on to deploy for 26 emergency landings, 30 structural fires and seven or eight grass and other type fires.

"We also take an active role in fire prevention education, travelling around and talking with various groups of adults and children to explain necessary safety procedures," Sgt. Kearley said, but we can't always prevent every fire so we have to remain alert to fight the ones that come along."

Astrology and the Stock Market

No hard-headed businessman would ever trust astrology as a guide to making money — right?

Wrong.

How wrong is indicated by the fact that a lot of very hard-headed businessmen heed the advice of a Toronto patent attorney-cum-astrologer, Thomas Rieder. His book, Astrological warnings and the Stock Market, predicts market trends from 1972 to 1980.

The barometer of the market's state of health is the Dow-Jones industrial average which is tied to the behavior of a group of key stocks. When the Dow-Jones rises, everything's coming up roses on Wall Street. When the Dow-Jones plummets, stockbrokers tend to jump out of windows.

In September, 1929, for example, the Dow-Jones hit the skids, after a stratospheric rise, and didn't stop sliding until it was at rock bottom. The market crashed and the Great Depression began.

Tom Rieder says this calamitous event was clearly prefigured by certain planetary warnings, mainly bad aspects of Mars, Neptune and Jupiter. Also indicated in advance, he says, was the second phase of the market slump in May, 1930 which deepened the Depression and guaranteed for millions a decade of economic misery.

Using the ancient premise that the position and aspects of the planets correlate with earthly events, Tom Rieder, after painstaking research, worked out a technique for applying astrology to the stock market. It's not infallible, he admits, but at 70 per cent its accuracy is distinctly better than Russian roulette.

"And," he told me, "I've consistently profited in the market by following my own advice."

In his book, published in 1972, Rieder forecast a "bad" market beginning in December 1974 with a March or April and another setback in June.

For current investors, one of Tom Rieder's most relevant discoveries is that over the past 70 years when the Dow-Jones has been used every time the planet Saturn (signifying restriction in astrology) has entered one of the two "money signs" Taurus and Leo, the market index has dropped, often calamitously.

Examples:

In November, 1912, Saturn entered the sign of Taurus, exactly timing the start of a major market downturn.

In June, 1917, Saturn moved into Leo and the Dow-Jones promptly dropped 30 per cent.

In March, 1940, Saturn entered Taurus and was followed almost immediately by one of the most dramatic declines in Dow-Jones history. (Interestingly Saturn's exit from Taurus in May, 1942, saw the market immediately start to climb.)

In 1946, Saturn entered Leo at the beginning of August, coinciding exactly with a 15 per cent drop in the Dow-Jones.

Then in 1969, Saturn again entered Taurus and kicked off "bear" market (that's bad — "bull" is good).

All this is prologue to the present.

When does Saturn again invade a money sign.

Funny you should ask. It's on September 17, 1975, when the planetary symbol of restriction enters the zodiacal sign of Leo.

"It's likely," warns Tom Rieder, "to mark with some precision a further drop in the Dow-Jones."

And he adds: "Can anybody afford to ignore the risk of a market break if it is YOUR money that's at stake?"

Writer Explains Business Game

By JOSEPH DUPUIS
CP Business Editor

In a world becoming increasingly cynical, there may be some excuse for those who regard the art of doing business as nothing more than a little game executives play among themselves.

Certainly, many a big deal has been made over a martini or on the seventh tee, an atmosphere surely more suited to game playing than high corporate finance.

But, relax cynics, business is a game, a serious one granted, but still a game.

The authority for such a statement is John McDonald, a New York editor and author, who sets out to prove it in a new book titled—what else? The Game Of Business.

McDonald, a respected editor for Fortune magazine for three decades, uses the 400 pages in his book to set out his theory on economic games, and relates it to real-life deals that have changed corporate destinies.

There's Ford losing its market domination in the 1920s to General Motors because Henry Ford Sr. "lost touch with the rules of the game."

There's oilman J. Paul Getty pulling out of the lucrative California market because he didn't appreciate a key game strategy—understanding the values of the strategic players.

There's Boise Cascade merging so successfully with Ebasco Industries because both found the "core" of the game—that is they found the best possible deal with a gain for both of them to be divided.

And last year's world oil crisis. Was that a game? Certainly.

The surprising thing about the events in the oil crisis of the 1970s, McDonald notes, was not that it happened but that consuming oil nations were surprised it happened.

Incredibly, he says, the consuming nations, like the United States and Canada, took no strategic or coalitional measures to protect themselves—a key game sin.

The big fact that emerges from his study of game theory is the importance of strategy and coalitions.

Too often, McDonald—not to be confused with the mystery writer of the same name—gets cumbersome in explaining his concepts with graphs and charts.

But, never mind, the behind-the-scene insights into corporate financing, and the background material on the corporations themselves, makes it worth while, regardless of any philosophy on gaming.

History Being Rewritten In Bicentennial Battles

NEW YORK (Reuter) — During the next few years, as has happened in the last three months, thousands of British soldiers will be slaughtered in mock battles across the United States in a subtle rewriting of American history.

As part of the Bicentennial, almost every one of the 50 states is presenting some form of celebration.

And, as might be expected, the British are going to be soundly defeated, time and again.

The defeat will be worse and more widespread than the British suffered in the 13 original states from 1775 to 1781.

During the revolutionary war, several thousand British soldiers and German Hessian mercenaries were killed in more than 20 major battles, while American battle deaths were listed as 4,435.

So far, almost that many have "died" in the battle reenactments which have taken place during this the first Bicentennial year—and the celebrations continue for another five years.

Even major American defeats are being changed into victories for the Bicentennial by over-patriotic organizers of the celebrations.

For instance, the battle of Long Island on Aug. 27, 1776, was at the time a shameful rout of American colonial forces, with casualties estimated as high as 6,000. British casualties were 377.

However, one of the battle's official American historians, Joseph Palisi of Brooklyn, now insists that "it was not the spectacular British victory it migh have been. The revolutionary war might have ended in Brooklyn if (American General George) Washington had not been able to extricate his men. It was an incomplete British victory; they were not able to close their circle of annihilation."

In reality, and only with the help of darkness, a storm and some determined Massachusetts fishermen, was Gen. Washington able to evacuate his army across the East River to Manhattan. The action has often been compared with the evacuation of Allied troops from the beaches of Dunkerque in 1940.

After the loss of Long Island and Manhattan, the American army retreated north to White Plains, N.Y., where, on Oct. 28, 1776, they were soundly trounced by British forces under the command of Gen. William Howe.

However, the co-chairman of the Bicentennial committee of the city of White Plains contends that "it was not a defeat, it was a victory, because it defeated (Gen. Howe's) plans, and when you're defeated in your plans you've lost. There are a lot of skeptics who say, 'You got thrown off the hill.' Yes, we got thrown off the hill, but we stood our ground. It's our hope that we'll get the historians to see it our way."

Then there was the disastrous battle of Savannah, Ga., on Oct. 9, 1778, in which the Americans had 83 killed or drowned, 453 captured and lost large quantities of ordnance. The British lost three dead and 10 wounded.

But the city does not plan, as yet, to include any mention of the city's fall in its commemorations.

Cyclist Injured

TWEED — An 18-year-old Quebec cyclist, Barry Thomerson, suffered head injuries Thursday when the side-mirror of a bread truck struck him.

Madoc OPP said the cyclist was travelling eastbound on Highway 37 when a passing bread truck, owned by Weston's and driven by Douglas Neal, 18, 36 Murney St., Belleville, lost a side-mirror accidently striking the youth, who was returned to Beaconsfield, Quebec after a cross-country journey.

A hospital spokesman said today he is in satisfactory condition. A second cyclist travelling with him was uninjured. The accident occurred about seven miles northeast of Tweed, at the intersection of Highways 37 and 7. Provincial constable Derrick Traviss is investigating.

Three Hurt In Crash

MADOC — A two-car collision here Thursday evening has caused a total estimated damage of $1,700 to both vehicles.

Drivers of the two cars were William Derry, 44, of Madoc and Robert Martin, 25, of Bancroft. Both drivers and a passenger in the Martin car, 22-year-old Marilyn Fuller were taken to Madoc medical centre for minor injuries.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred at 9.30 p.m. on St. Lawrence St. The Derry vehicle had $800 damage and the Martin vehicle had $900 damage. All three were treated and released from the medical centre. Constable Dennis Bush is investigating.

Vandals Smash Store Windows

City police report two incidents of willful damage within the past two days. Windows at The Gordon Company, locksmiths, North Front St. and Zegouras Variety, Dundas St. E., were broken by vandals. No suspects have been apprehended. Gordon Company damage was estimated at $150 and Zegouras at $75.

Education Beat

New Teachers Need Help

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Monday's Intelligencer saw another letter to the editor from someone whose heart bleeds for teachers — the subject was salaries and the letter concluded with a profound statement "teachers are our best educational buy."

The anonymous writer explained that teachers are better educated than most other people and therefore have better intellectual and social abilities.

This is an ironic claim considering educators, above all people, are supposed to be able to recognize human potential and then develop it. To feed their own egos with meaningless praises defeats their purpose.

But of course education was not the problem with this writer. It was money.

One complaint we seldom hear from teachers is the huge discrepancy that usually exists between starting salaries and maximum salaries — and the teachers have no one to blame but themselves.

There is no doubt about it starting salaries are far too low and it also can be argued that maximum salaries are far too high.

Middle range salaries, which usually encompass more than 50 per cent of the teachers, are adequate and can provide a good living.

In Hastings County a new teacher would begin to earn $7,700 at a minimum elementary school level with a possible maximum of $11,000 in the Level 1. Most new teachers would be closer to the $7,700 mark. It's really not enough to attract good young teachers into the profession.

Likewise, in the secondary school salary schedules a new teacher in category 1 starts at $8,100 with a possible maximum of $14,800 after 11 years. Again the starting salary is not enough to attract good new teachers.

The possible reason for the low starting salaries probably stems from the fact that the appointed teacher negotiators have somewhere between eight and fifteen years experience and quite frankly are not interested in fair deals for starting teachers despite the fact that bigger starting salaries could attract better teachers into the profession.

The maximum salaries have skyrocketed for both teachers, vice-principals and principals. This is an area which is open to controversy and has brought much criticism upon the profession.

Teacher federations would do well to take a look at the reasons why the profession has such a discrepancy in its salary ranges.

Barnyard Manure Seen Potential Power Source

LANGTON, Ont. (CP) — A source of free methane sometimes can be right under one's feet. All one needs is the knowledge to tap it, a Grade 12 chemistry class at Valley Heights Secondary School learned this year.

Originator of the class experiment, designed as a motivational tool, is Dr. Pash Ummat, an organic chemist.

Dr. Ummat got the idea for this experiment a year ago when he read reports on methane producing experiments. He began the class project four months ago.

The methane source in this case is pig manure, which contains some straw, and water. Methane is the main constituent of natural gas.

The mixture or slurry is put into a large metal container called an anaerobic digester which resembles a crude pressure cooker.

Standing for about two weeks at room temperature, the slurry began to give off carbon dioxide. The gas was bled off through an exhaust system. With the oxygen gone, the anaerobic organisms decomposed the organic material. The carbonaceous material volatilized producing methane.

After about four weeks sufficient methane was produced that could be burned. Methane would be produced more quickly if a vacuum was created in the digester.

Even though the experiment is four months old, methane is still being produced. Dr. Ummat is not sure when the process will end.

"I had a group of students in the room the first time I lit the Bunsen burner.

"When the flame burned, a wave of enthusiasm went through them when they started to clap.

"This experiment has stirred up a lot of enthusiasm among Grade 12 and 13 students. Next year I hope to get the Grade 12s involved in an ongoing project of this nature," he said.

In the production of methane from manure, Dr. Ummat said: "All you are doing is taking out the impurities and what is left is a concentrated form of nitrogen that can be put back into the ground.

"This fertilizer is probably more effective than what you originally started out with," he said.

Any manure, including human waste, can be used to produce methane.

Although the production of methane as illustrated by this experiment is in the preliminary research stage, Dr. Ummat sees the day when it will be feasible, because, in principle, it is economical to produce.

"I think particularly for Western countries it is essential to look more seriously into the production of methane.

"We learned our lesson in 1974 when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) demanded such high prices.

"From the scattered reports I have read or seen, people are conscious about fuel prices and are beginning to take some kind of action," he said.

"Methane produced in this way could definitely augment our depleted natural resources as well as produce other chemicals such as chloroform," he said.

The present drawback is that not much has been published by members of the scientific community as to how best to produce methane.

"The details aren't forthcoming. To date I haven't seen any experimental report as to how to do it properly," he said.

He said it would be sometime before the production of methane from manure could be adapted to daily use.

Byers Has Good Idea

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward county council's reports are not of the stuff that makes best sellers and at least one councillor finally has voiced disapproval of the "read aloud" sessions for this uninspired prose.

At the July session of council Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers stated that the presentation of committee reports is "the most boring part of council."

He added that, presumably, all councillors can read. It is pointless to waste the time taken by committee chairman in reading, word for word, the committee reports.

The deputy-reeve suggested it would be more constructive if the chairmen dropped these dull scripts in favor of more spontaneous reports that contain more information.

If deputy-reeve Byers' proposal gains support some of the "great moments of council" may vanish forever.

It well may be that never again will the council chambers ring with stirring reports such as the announcement that "Johnson Street was spray patched and treated with screenings and chips to improve the washboard."

Also gone with the wind of councillors delivering their committee reports could be gems like: "Moved that a door for the front of the County Buildings be ordered from W. Hooper of Spencerville."

In suggesting that council consider a new format, deputy-reeve Byers has offered a progressive proposal to his fellow councillors.

Often the lengthy reports read word for word in council only hint at what may have happened. The councillors who sit on each committee are well informed of its activities but the committee reports offer only a vague interchange on who moved what and why.

As deputy-reeve Byers did comment, presumably all members of council can read. There is little point in the ritualistic recitations of the reports that are included each month in every councillor's agenda.

These bulletins usually provide as much stimulation as the reading material found in the average dentist's office. They suggest an inferior precis of what may have been an interesting and thought-provoking committee meeting.

It's time other members of council moved to support deputy-reeve Byers in developing a new system of reporting on committee meetings.

When Picton town council meets committee chairmen often shorten sessions by suggesting adoption of the reports unless there are questions. Through this short cut councillors are spared the "read aloud" time that is frequently boring and pointless.

If county council does move to a freer method of presentation it may provoke more discussion of committee sessions. Committee chairmen, freed from their lessons in literature, possibly could offer much more informative verbal reports.

Compromise Best for All

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

I'm not a subscriber to the "big is bad" theory. Nor am I a believer in what is sometimes heard about the underdog in a fight, that he's got to be right.

Mind you, most of us give our sympathy to that underdog and cast suspicious glances at the top dog — the big fellow — with money or position.

Just such a "big vs. little" conflict occurred in Trenton this week and it ended in what appears is a concession on the part of both contestants. The little fellow didn't win all, and the big fellow didn't brow beat the small fry.

The homeowners in the 74-home Burttdale Heights subdivision in northeast Trenton won't get all the repairs they claim must be done to their houses. And on the other hand, Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd., the builder, won't get away with doing none.

It's a draw. Both sides will give a little and, one hopes, will meet cordially in the middle.

The point isn't, in this case here, whether homeowner claims were justified. The issue is too complicated to be dealt with fairly in this short space. Rather, let's consider the method by which the claims and counter-claims were faced, and the consensus drawn.

Being the aforementioned underdogs, the Burttdaleans, had one tool — public exposure geared to embarrass the "other guy". Though some think it an unworthy tool, it nonetheless exists, and can, as in this case, be used to effect.

There is no doubt it worked. Builder Maurice H. Rollins came to Trenton to sit in what some called "the hot seat". He responded to the concerns of the homeowners. And whether they were satisfied, and they seemed to be, is beside the point.

He was there. That's all that mattered to people who claimed they couldn't get action privately.

They had banded together, formed a temporary union, to solve a problem they felt they held in common. Being lower to middle income people, as a spokesman claimed, they had that one tool — public exposure of their plight.

In their group, 10 men proved mightier than one. In the force from numbers, they received redress in a primary manner, without the need for letters and their resulting long waits for replies.

A five-member committee was formed to negotiate with the builder. That's a long way towards solving their problem. Now they have forced a situation in which communication — what some Burttdaleans called sadly lacking — will be face to face.

Sampling Site

Metre-square cages in Pancake Hill pasture fields keep cattle from cropping grass. Sols and crops specialist Bill Hurst takes monthly sample from under cages in test fields. They are immediately weighed and tested to determine digestible protein content. Test results will indicate best type of pasture for grazing at various times during the April-October grazing season.

Forage Tests May Provide More Efficient Grazing

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Seasonal changes in pasture crops and grasses could have a significant effect on the rate of weight gain in beef cattle, but no one knows for sure.

Hastings provincial ag rep Doug Tipper feels finding out is important for farmers in his area. "we have a lot of potentially productive rough pasture land in this area. It could produce a lot of beef if it is managed properly."

On the Pancake Hill pasture farm owned by the province and operated by the Hastings Farm Service Club, pasturing answers are being sought on a typically rough Hastings farmsite.

Five pasture fields are involved, each with its basic forage crop — birdsfood trefoil, timothy, broom grass and natural grass.

Bill Hurst, soils and crops specialist from the province's Brighton office, explains the experimental procedure:

"We put out metre-square cages in the five fields so the cattle can't eat what's under them. At regular intervals we cut what's under the cages and weigh it.

"This year the University of Guelph was able to co-operate with us. We ship the samples off to Guelph where they're analyzed for digestible protein content. That's what puts meat on beef cattle."

Mr. Hurst explained that protein content in different types of pasture varies with the season. "In the spring it's high, but it declines with drier weather. What we're trying to find out is the kind of pasture that produces most digestible protein at various times of the year and under various conditions."

The object of the exercise is to enable the agriculture ministry's office to be able to recommind to farmers the kinds of pasture they should have their cattle on during the grazing season.

"In this part of the country," Mr. Tipper said, " a beef farmer should be able to keep his cattle on pasture right through the spring and summer. We're trying to find out how he can get the most weight gain."

In addition to the pasture cage samples, open field samples are taken. This gives an indication of how various types of pasture will regrow after being grazed over.

Also, the grazing cattle are weighed once a month to see how they're gaining on their pasture diet. "Last year," Brighton-based beef specialist Bob Murray said, "the average gain was 220 pounds."

Results of the season-long experiment should provide valuable information on pasture usage in the area, Mr. Tipper said.

In previous years experimental work on the farm had been restricted to regular weighing of the cattle. This year, with the analytical facilities of the University of Guelph available, more precise information on protein content as the season progresses will add another dimension to the study.

Gardening Column

Herbs Add Spice to Food

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Since last week's column provoked an interest in the growing of herbs, we'll be happy to carry on as requested with more of the same. And this week with some herb descriptions that may help you decide which ones you may wish to cultivate.

The are specified as either annuals, perennials or biennials. The annuals will produce in quantity this year. The biennials in their second year. The perennials only to a limited degree this year, but next year and for many years to come will provide crops in ever-increasing quantity.

And we'll start with one that all of you have tasted if you ever bought black balls at the penny candy counter when you were a kid. The licorice-flavored seed in the centre probably came from the herb known as anise.

Anise is an annual that grows 15 to 24 inches tall. The two-inch clusters of tiny white flowers produce grayish seeds, the same licorice flavored seeds of black ball fame. But anise is one herb that should be held until next year since it requires a four-month growing season.

Lemon Balm is a perennial whose lemon scented leaves can be used as a seasoning on fish, in lemonade or in a herb tea. It grows one to two feet tall with a two-foot spread and will do well in sun or partial shade and in soil that is rather dry and infertile.

Sweet basil is a bushy annual, 15 to 24 inches tall that comes in several forms, with green leaves of varying size and one variety with dark purple leaves, more commonly known as decorative basil. All have a similar scent and flavour, slightly reminiscent of cloves. Basil requires full sun and likes light sandy soil.

Borage is an annual with a cucumber-like fragrance and taste and its leaves can be used accordingly. I like it for its appearance, with its nodding, unusual blue and pink flowers and robust tobacco-like leaves.

Caraway is a biennial and another herb, like anise, that provides licorice flavored seeds. But these seeds don't appear until the second year This year, they will develop a mound of feathery dark green leaves, that remain practically evergreen throughout the winter. Next summer, clusters of tiny white flowers will shoot up on two-foot stalks and by mid-summer the desired, brown-colored seeds will appear. Caraway likes full sun but will tolerate almost any type of soil.

Chives is another herb whose attractive, purple, ball-like flowers make it deserving of a place in your flower bed and its sweet onion flavour makes it deserving of regular use in your cooking. Chives are a perennial that will produce from seed, a ball-like clump in the second year. One thing about chives — the more you pick, the more they produce. And they do well indoors on window sills or under lights where they'll produce for you all winter long.

Dill is an annual that is a must in your garden if you do any pickling. Seeds, flowers and leaves can all be used interchangeably. Dill grows about three feet high and spreads an equal distance. It likes full sun and a well-composted soil.

Dairy Farmers Getting Better Prices, Paying More to Operate

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

For dairy farmers in Canada, 1975 is proving to be a year of higher prices on most products, offset considerably by increases in operating costs.

Latest figures, for April, show the average farm value of fluid milk for fresh consumption at $11.87 per 100 pounds of milk testing 3.5 per cent butterfat.

That's an increase of 27 per cent over the price of $9.37 a year earlier.

The retail price of fluid milk in April was 54 per cent higher than at the beginning of 1973—a substantially greater rate of increase than the 35 per cent rise in the consumer price index for all food used for home consumption.

And it's almost as great as the 57 per cent increase in retail milk prices in the 12 years up to the beginning of 1973. Prices of all food for home consumption had risen by 46 per cent during that 12-year period.

Producers are benefitting not only from higher prices but also from a modest increase in the volume of sales. Fluid-milk consumption tends to increase in proportion to population growth, regardless of price increases.

The target support price of industrial milk announced April 1, 1975, is almost 30 per cent higher than a year earlier—$11.02 vs. $8.50 per hundred pounds.

The Canadian Dairy Commission's offer-to-purchase price on two other major products have risen by comparable amounts in the current dairy support year:

On creamery butter, the support price has been boosted 26 cents or 34 per cent to $1.03 a pound. On skim milk powder, the increase is 14 cents or 28 per cent, to 64 cents a pound.

Stocks of skim milk powder on hand have been soaring. Inventories stood at 20.7-million pounds of the powder at June 30, 1975, nearly 2.5 times as great as the 84 million pounds that were in stock at mid-1974.

The federal agriculture department says that current stocks of skim milk powder in major exporting countries exceed a full year's normal export supply.

Under the pressure of the over-supply, world prices of the powder have dropped 43 per cent in the past year—including 23 per cent in just the last four months—and no improvement is expected this year.

Another trouble spot in the dairy industry this year is the export of live dairy cattle.

Exports of purebred cattle are running about 30 per cent below last year's rate, exports of grade cattle are down 85 per cent, and calf exports are negligible.

The decline in cattle exports is blamed on high prices of Canadian cattle and the worldwide slowdown in economic activity.

And dairy producers face many of the same operating problems that other farmers must contend with, notes Clive R. Tisdale, recently re-elected president of the Canadian Consulting Agrologists Association.

These include substantially higher costs of machinery and equipment, seed, fertilizer, feed grains and the like — combined with record-high labor costs and the difficulty of recruiting adequate help.

Yet another difficulty, some producers claim, is that they are required to operate at much less than capacity, in exchange for the unrealistically high selling prices that have been fixed by government appointed marketing agencies.

Whither Trenton?

A difference of 50.

That's all Trenton businessman Douglas Whitley sees between the number of Belleville voters — most of whom will likely support Robin Jeffrey at the Aug. 11 Quinte riding Progressive Conservative convention to replace retiring MPP Dr. Richard Potter — and those from other parts of the riding who, hopes Mr. Whitley, might be leaning toward him.

The 400 delegates who will be voting for Dr. Potter's replacement will not be giving any landslide victories, predicts Mr. Whitley.

"I've been involved with every election campaign there has been in this area since 1945," he notes. "I'm a proven quantity, as far as being a Tory goes."

Mr. Whitley's Conservative credentials include current positions as secretary of the provincial Quinte Riding P.C. Association, and president of the federal Prince Edward-Hastings P.C.'s, in which capacity he has acted as George Hees' campaign manager for the past two federal elections.

And the persistent Mr. Whitley does not let the fact he is an apparent underdog concern him.

"I've got lots of friends in Belleville — I must have 3,000 insurance portfolios there," he adds.

Despite earlier statements that "it's time we had a Trenton candidate," Mr. Whitley insists the riding needs a representative who has no "parochial" views.

But he will have trouble reconciling that with his consistent position over the years that Trenton's future does not lie with Hastings County, but in the opposite westward direction. He takes strong exception to opponent Jeffrey's concept of a "Quinte City."

That is a position he must rationalize for anyone casting ballots at Trenton High School Aug. 11.

It Pays To Complain

People often don't realize how much truth there is in the old axiom "the squeaky wheel gets the grease."

Take, for example, the new hydro corridor planned to link the new Lennox generating station to the Oshawa area.

Prince Edward County residents literally hit the roof when they saw initial proposals for power lines crossing the scenic Bay of Quinte.

Subsequent protests about "visual pollution" apparently reached the right ears.

Plans now call for power to come from the Lennox station via an underwater 230,000 volt electrical cable near Green Point.

Laying of the mile-long cable will be a three-year enterprise and cost some $4.5 million.

The ministry of energy made the latest plan available for public scrutiny May 12, with July 15 established as the deadline for public submissions.

This time, there were none.

Labor Takes Initiative

The September 20 seminar on control of occupational alcoholism and drug abuse is a surprising but most welcome initiative on the part of the Quinte District Labor Council.

Surprising, because it is normally the employer who is the first person concerned about someone attempting to do their job while "under the influence" or shaking a hangover. And the seminar, planned for Loyalist College, is welcome because "Monday morning flu" is a disease that costs companies millions of lost manhours every year.

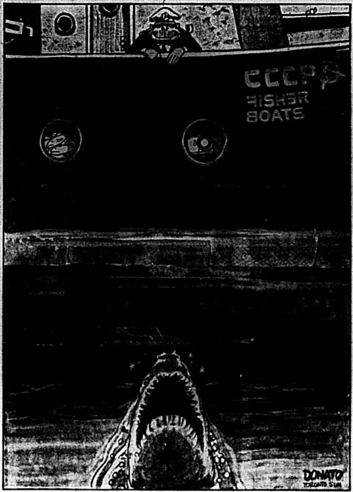
Belleville General Hospital is the only Quinte area employer to our knowledge that has special counselling services available for workers with drinking problems.

The Labor Council's seminar will have representation from management and labor, in addition to experts from Toronto's Addiction Research Foundation.

On the subject of excessive imbibing, it is interesting to note the near complete absence of criticism in the wake of provincial announcements that police will be making random roadside checks and prowling beverage room parking lots in the never-ending battle to keep drinking drivers off the roads.

When mandatory breathalyzer tests were first introduced in the sixties, civil libertarians raised a tremendous howl.

Perhaps all those terrifying traffic fatality statistics are finally beginning to sink in.



Member's Postal Inquiries Mainly About Personal Issues

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — As Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo-Cambridge) keeps a perceptive eye on his mail, he detects a marked shift toward personal problems.

"The mail used to be largely about national issues, but now I am getting more letters about personal things—family problems, jobs and that type of thing.

"Perhaps it reflects our society in general. Newspapers and television now spend more time on individual problems—alienation journalism—and with a general affluence people have more time to think about themselves.

"It seems that the greater your physical security, the more your emotional security is put to the test. We're suffering from the effects of freedom."

Mr. Saltsman says he has noticed this gradual swing to more personal-problem mail over the last four or five years.

"The trouble is, we often can't help a great deal."

Pierre O'Neill, the prime minister's press secretary for the last 2½ years, leaves the post next month for a two-year teaching assignment in Senegal.

Mr. O'Neill, a veteran reporter for La Presse before joining the prime minister's staff, will become director of a journalism institute in Dakar. He was recruited through the Canadian International Development Agency.

There is no indication who will succeed Mr. O'Neill.

A Toronto public relations firm—Heal, Shaw and Walden—has been given a $50,000 contract by Statistics Canada to help develop better procedures for conducting household surveys. The Commons was told that outside help is necessary because of temporary staff shortages at the senior level of the agency's information division.

Roosevelt Douglas, a landed immigrant from Dominica who was sentenced to three years in prison following the computer-destroying incident at Sir George Williams University in 1968, is in a unique situation.

He has been ordered deported from Canada. But he also is on parole, and under existing laws, persons on parole are not allowed to leave the country.

Mr Douglas will be able to stay until Dec. 13 when his parole expires. Then he will be asked, against his will, to leave. He wants to remain in Canada because he fears political repercussions if he returns home.

'Colorful' Language More Prevalent on Tube

The Christian Science Monitor

Are the American public airwaves getting dirter, or does it just seem that way? Watching 250 hours of prime-time TV shows confirms what even casual viewers can hardly escape noticing — that the use of vulgar language on the tube has risen sharply since a few years ago.

There has already been enough public outcry to slow, though not to reverse, the trend, according to network sources. But a lot more will be needed if the public really wants the living-room screen to be free of the profanity that has become all too accepted in everyday life — and that will hardly become less so if it pervades the medium before which so many Americans spend so many hours.

Even the forthcoming "family" period in the early evening is slated to contain "controlled" vulgarity. Why should there be any at all? Why shouldn't TV be self-cleaning like all those products it sells?

The situation is somewhat different from movies and the stage, where vulgarity has gone much further but on privately owned premises. Citizens who buy tickets for such entertainment share in perpetuating it.

Citizens who boost the ratings of vulgar shows on TV may also be said to share in perpetuating vulgarity. But here the "theater" is the public air. And broadcasters who profit from the use of it bear the burden of using it responsibly.

This does not mean any falsifying bowdlerization of serious documentary or dramatic representation of human life and society. Nor does it mean getting away with meretricious material simply by screening out foul words. As the preprofanity movies proved, a full gamut of sensationalism can be exploited with out a censorable word on the soundtrack — just as, on the positive side, the movies and the best writers in all media have proved that the color, strength and weakness in a full range of human intellect and emotion can be expressed without such words.

The gratuitous vulgar language that now demands reform in TV entertainment is merely a surface manifestation of the deeper irresponsibilities of the maker and sponsors of too much of that entertainment. Not only do they relentlessly purvey cheap values, distorted reality, violence-as-a-universal remedy and other dubious freight for the public air. They also ensure that the air thus occupied is to that extend excluding the public from preferable material.

'Mr. Canada' Heads New Liquor Council

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — As you probably are aware we now have a new 30-person Liquor Advisory Council in Ontario, under the chairmanship of "Mr. Canada," John Fisher.

The function of the council is to advise the government on matters of liquor policy and administration, acting both on its own initiative or on matters referred to it by the authorities.

In view of the many squabbles that have surrounded liquor administration in the province in the past few years, such as the Kitchener Oktoberfest and the question of drinking in parks, and the constant political problem that liquor presents one can see there is a valuable job it can do.

It can come up with reasonable and practical solutions that the government can adopt without personal recrimination, not having originated them itself.

One of the first problems the council may have to face is the question of 18-year-old drinkers.

A few years ago when the government reduced the drinking age from 21 to 18 there wasn't much criticism.

But, since then, however, and particularly recently, there has been very considerable protest.

One criticism is that the lower limit has greatly fostered drunkenness not only in the 18 year old group but among youths, even children, much younger.

Another is that it has drivers in automobile accidents up in the 18-21 age group.

It would take a lot of courage for any government to reverse itself now, though one western province is said to be considering this.

But let's see what the council has to say.

Incidentally, most licence holders apparently wouldn't be too unhappy to go back to the old days.

They apparently feel that the kids spend the night over a pitcher of beer and take up space which other bigger spenders might occupy.

As for "Mr. Canada" I can hardly give an objective opinion having been a classmate and life-long friend (Bob Stanfield was another).

But to me, John Fisher has always been a fine public servant, and one who never has been properly rewarded. John Diefenbaker promised him a senatorship, (which he earned) but didn't deliver.

From my knowledge of him he will do an excellent job.

Kuwait Example Of Welfare State In Islamic World

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Mention Kuwait and if the name rings a bell at all, it spells a nation of rich Arab sheikhs and their oil wells.

It's true the ruling prince of Kuwait, 12th Amir in line of the present ruling Sabah family is rich, very rich and Kuwait has plenty of oil just like her fellow Persian Gulf neighbors.

Not that much mind you, that the Kuwait government has hesitated to cut back in oil production, though she has gone along with fellow members of OPEC, (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, in hiking the price of oil in late 1973.

This kind of familiar background, to which add that country's recent record purchases of sophisticated weapons from France and Britain, gives the well-laid impression that Kuwait is just another Islamic nation of very few "haves" and plenty of "have-nots" with the millions in oil royalties either revealed in expensive cars or hidden deep in secret Swiss bank accounts.

Yet paradoxically mention Switzerland the Arabic scholar and publicit will tell you that a true understanding of tiny Kuwait and its social and political make-up suggests a Switzerland or Sweden of the Arab world, geographically small, socially conscious of her people's needs and with enlightened rulers.

In short we are told Kuwait is the Islamic world's example of the modern welfare state.

The oil millions have not suddenly flowed from the recent hike in oil prices but have been coming in for a long time. They have been distributed internally to the kingdom's health, welfare and educational services as well as to needy fellow Arab states.

The Kuwait Fund for Arab Economic Development is now 14 years old and has distributed loans to Algeria, Egypt, Jordan, Tunisia, all cash-shy and except Algeria oil-shy states.

But more impressive and almost totally unknown in the West is Kuwait's advanced education, health and hospital and teacher-training facilities. Medical services in Kuwait are free to all residents.

As far back as 1970, there were about 130 kindergartens and primary schools with nearly 70,000 students in a country of about 740,000 people and a small area of 9,375 square miles.

The range of technical colleges and teacher training institutes already substantial before the hike in oil prices, has increased in the last two years. The University of Kuwait is one of the most progressive in Islamic states and in a part of the world where old-fashioned concepts of teaching based on Koranic religious law predominate.

If you haven't noticed, Kuwait university has been running large advertisements in many Canadian and American newspapers seeking professors of engineering, the sciences, economics, accounting and even of comparative history (Western and Eastern).

A major power in all this is the Kuwaiti crown prince who is also responsible incidentally for funding a chair in Islamic history at the now world renowned Islamic Studies Institute at McGill University.

Much of it has been motivated by a benevolent ruling family who also permit a more-or-less free press, a critical parliament, all elements which none of Kuwait's Arab neighbors possess but only Israel the avowed enemy but against whom Kuwait has not yet fought.

And yet in all this public sector, expansion and benefits to her people, such as modernization of the basic facilities for health, education and state assistance, Kuwait appears to be more like modern Israel herself, than like a European Switzerland.

Federal Tax Invisible To Consumer

KITCHENER — WATERLOO RECORD

It is probably true to say that a majority of Canadians are not aware that they pay federal sales tax every time they pass money across the counter for any article made or processed in Canada. The federal sales tax, 12 per cent on most kinds of goods, goes on the price charged by the manufacturer to the wholesaler.

Provincial sales tax, currently five per cent in Ontario, is added to the price paid by the customer to the retailer. It is highly visible. The bigger federal sales tax bite is invisible, tucked away somewhere in the mixture of costs, profits and taxes that make up the retail price.

There is no doubt that we do pay it, because on the taking end the government at Ottawa counts on its sales tax for $5 billion a year of revenue. That's about $800 per year per houshold that forms part of the cost of living, whether you realize it or not.

Ecumenical Drop-in Centre Is Offered in Mississauga

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The combined efforts of 20 Mississauga churches at Square One shopping centre have provided Mississauga shoppers with a service believed to be the first of its kind in Canada.

An ecumenical drop-in centre, staffed by volunteers from the member churches of Mississauga East Community Churches in Action (MECCA), now is in operation on the lower floor of the mall.

The centre offers a place to sit and talk, free coffee, books, and friendly listeners for casual conversation or personal problems.

Volunteers are also equipped to refer those in need to appropriate social agencies.

Future plans call for baby-sitting service, senior citizens' card games in the afternoons, and a teen drop-in program for Friday evenings.

"To the best of my knowledge it's the first in Canada," said Rev. Guenter Dahle, pastor of Mississauga's Peace Lutheran Church and chairman of the drop-in centre's board.

Pastor Dahle, past chairman of MECCA, said headquarters of the denominations involved in the organization—Lutheran, Roman Catholic, Anglican, United Church, Presbyterian, Reformed, and Salvation Army—have heard of no similar venture in Canada on an ecumenical basis.

He said information booths have been established in some malls, but the Mississauga centre is the first to have permanent quarters and so large a scope of operation.

The idea originated a year ago when Pastor Dahle, whose congregation worships in the mall's auditorium, approached mall officials about renting space for such a project.

Square One officials responded by offering the space rent-free, with an option to provide day care if the church so desired.

The congregation decided the project was too big for a single church and turned the idea over to MECCA, and a committee composed mainly of laymen from the member churches was formed in November to make plans for the centre.

The centre opened May 30, with official opening services June 21.

In addition to the space, mall authorities foot the utility bill and mall crews helped with remodelling.

"Our thinking is simply that we believe in community service," said George Becber, Square One's assistant manager. "We were delighted when we were approached."

"I've really been impressed," said volunteer Marie Nuss, secretary of the drop-in centre's board, about the attitude of mall officials to the centre.

About 60 volunteers staff the centre, with at least two on duty at a given time. The only paid employee is director Yvonne Green, who works on a part-time basis.

Other expenses include coffee and payment for some of the furnishings. Mrs. Nuss said expenses so far have been about $1,500, a sum roughly matched by donations from member churches and other sources.

The centre has a Christian emphasis, but volunteers note that active preaching is not a part of their job.

"Religion is not to be shoved down anyone's throat," said Mrs. Nuss, a member of St. Dominic's Roman Catholic Church. "It turns people off right away."

Pastor Dahle said the centre is designed to "build a bridge" to those outside churches and bring people back to God through love and concern.

He described the centre as "a visible symbol of Christian men and women working together to respond to a common need."

"Our faith will show forth with anyone we speak to," said Elva Dodd, who attends St. John the Baptist Anglican Church.

Reading matter in the centre is largely Christian, and volunteers will provide referrals to churches and other forms of spiritual help to those who express an interest.

So far, volunteers say, the number of people coming into the centre has not been large—about 15 a day—and more have come out of curiosity or for a friendly chat than to discuss serious problems.

"I think people want to know what it's about before they unburden themselves," said Joy arraugh.

Hope, Conscience, Prayer And Cross Strong Anchors

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

James Smith, a Fellow of the Royal Society and a well known yachtman in his time, spent years in the Mediterranean tracing from port to port St. Paul's voyage to Rome. Of the record in Acts 27 Smith wrote, "The result is nearer than I could have expected had it been the log-book of a modern ship."

It is easy to understand why people long ago feared the sea. Their ships were small and unsafe. Their coats were unlighted. They had no compasses. If the sky became overcast and no land visible, they had reason for thinking they were lost.

This was the case on board Paul's ship. A terrible storm drove it hither and yon. On the fourteenth night they suspected they were nearing land. "And fearing that we might run on the rocks, they let out four anchors from the stern, and prayed for day to come."

Have you and I anchors on board the ship of life? Have we confidence they will hold in time of need?

One sure anchor is Hope. A man was about to commit suicide. He had just heard of the death of his only child. There flashed into his mind the opening words of the Apostles Creed that he had not thought of in years, "I believe in God the Father Almighty." From that moment he was strangely moved by a hope we all can share.

Anchor number two is Conscience. I marvel at the way many town and city folk are able to make their income and shopping end meet. By the same token farmers in Eastern Ontario are "lucky" to get 17 cent a pound at outlets for beef. And yet the Lanark County Board of Education rationalizes the hiring of a new director of education for a starting salary of $41,00 by citing what directors elsewhere are receiving.

The vote was close; seven to six Those six trustee had enough sense to realize that financial comparisons are becoming odious, and enough conscience to feel for the people back . Their sort, anywhere in our democratic system, deserve to be encouraged and the others by passed by an aroused electorate.

Anchor number three is Prayer. The eye has developed through evolution in response to light. The ear has developed in response to accoustical vibrations. Prayer has developed as an invisible means of support since, through the silence of eternity, has come to countless men and women the response of God.

But they lowered a fourth anchor. The strongest of them all for us is the Cross. Its mysterious power reaches the very bottom of sin and grief. It holds firm, due to the Savior's grace.

I can picture the captain calling the roll the next morning. With awe and gratitude he pronounced the name of the dauntless missionary who, when they expected the worst, had exclaimed, "Take heart, men, for I have faith in God!"

When life's voyage is over, may it also be said of us that "all escaped the land." There may we gather, not by a stony beach as on the island of Malta but on Canaan's blissful shore. There by a fire kept bright and warm by the love of Christ, may we sing his power to save.

Neglecting Faith Weakens Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of church scholars, analysing why church membership and participation have slumped during the past decade, say it often is because churches have not concentrated on their prime task: nurturing faith.

They've tended to stress working for social betterment rather than on instilling religious premises for it, according to several of the experts. They say such efforts are fine, but don't basically energize church life.

The first essential to church vitality is the job of bolstering convictions, devotion and a steadying perspective on reality, the theologians and sociologists say, with social action derived from that prior function.

If churches simply join secular forces in good causes, such as struggles for social justice, without fuelling the religious roots of it, the church is "committing institutional suicide," said Rev. John Neuhaus of Brooklyn, a Lutheran.

He said the health of the churches requires that they be "distinctive enough to warrant real gut commitment" by deepening awareness of ulimate values and purpose. Without that, he said, churches lose their vitalizing core.

They also are "denying the world the distinctive perception and resources of the Christian community," he said.

He and the other church thinkers, participating in a recent conference sponsored here by the United Church of Christ on problems of church growth, all are advocates of applying religious principles on action to improve social conditions.

But they noted a balancing trend in mainline denominations—those which have been most active on social issues and whose membership has sagged—to restore more emphasis on the rudimentary task of nourishing basic concepts and principles.

Dr. Paul Harrison, a Baptist and professor of religious studies at Penn State University, said the "first purpose of the church is worship," which means developing a "relationship with the eternal" as a basis for viewing secondary issues.

However, he said, the drama of worship has been "lost in the modern world," and with that "dramatic enactment of religion being lost, the heart of religion has been eclipsed."

Rev. Theodore H. Erickson of New York, a United Church of Christ planning specialist, said that to revitalize the cause, churches should abandon the system of lone congregational pastors and replace them with team leadership stressing education in basic Christian concepts in every facet of the church's program for young and old.

This wouldn't be a "10-day wonder," he said, but in 20 years, it could do much to revive church growth and strength.

Warm Weather Equals Early Freestone Peaches

Warm dry weather during June and July will cause first varieties of Ontario peaches to appear one week earlier than expected. In fact you can find Redhaven freestone peaches on the market right now.

The Ontario Food Council says peaches should be high in quality and plentiful this year; lack of moisture has not had a significant effect on peach size.

Somebody loves the Food Prices Review Board: Dominion Stores Ltd., in a new release accompanying its annual report for the year, lauded the board for its "success in analyzing food cost factors, providing accurate well-documented information and establishing that food price movements are the results of a complex set of influences rather than the effect of the operation of a single factor or segment."

This fall the Packaging Association of Canada will hold a major show in Toronto to exhibit material and machinery used to package manufactured goods.

That's news for you because it is estimated that in 1976 Canadian manufacturers will spend $2.3 billion on packaging materials, machinery and services to contain, protect, merchandise and distribute manufactured goods. That incredible cost accounts for about four per cent of the value of the goods themselves.

Excess packaging has been one of the greatest complaints of budget-conscious consumers and ecologists alike in the last few years and while the Packaging Association is already touting its Pac-Ex 75 there isn't a word abroad about ecologically or economically sound packaging materials.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Keith Wager

Wager — Brunet

The wedding of Linda Diane Brunet and Gary Keith Wager was held in an afternoon service Saturday, July 5, from College Hill United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Brunet and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Keith Wager.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon sheer over sharkskin with a mandarin neckline. The front and back bodice had alencon lace trim. The semi-princess gown featured an attached laced train. The waist length mantilla veil and headpiece was of nylon stubble and alencon lace. She carried red roses and ivy in the shape of a cross.

The maid of honor was Ruth Wessey who wore a blue empire waisted halter dress accented by white lace; a cameo on the bodice and a blue elbow length chiffon cape. Her wide-brimmed hat was trimmed with a blue ribbon. She carried a bouquet of blue and white mums.

The bride's attendants were Christine Brunet, sister the bride, Jean Armonas, sister the groom and Michelle Fralick. Their gowns were identical to maid of honor's gown, but the attendants gowns were yellow, pink and green respecitively.

A cousin of the bride, Laura Brunet served as flower girl.

The best man was Barry Jones. The ushers were Doug Brunet, brother of the bride, Brian Wager, brother of the groom, and Tony Armonas, brother-in-law of the groom.

A dinner and dance was held at the Belleville Shrine Club.

The couple travelled to the Niagara Falls area and reside at 102 Oak Hills, Foxboro.

JANET DAWN WRIGHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wright, graduated July 24 with honours from Scarborough Centennial College with a diploma in the Nursing program. Janet is a graduate of Moria Secondary School.

KATHRYN ELIZABETH MCMULLEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard D. McMullen, Foxboro, graduated recently, with first class honours from Carleton University, Ottawa, completing the Degree of Bachelor of Arts (Honours). She will be continuing her master's degree at Carletion University.

Books By And About Women

CHALK DUST AND CHEWING GUM

By Freda Bream

The author began her venture into the teaching world by almost accidentally answering a newspaper advertisement. However, after this first step it was almost impossible to withdraw. Having graduated from Teachers' Training College some 20 years previously, it was with mixed feeling that she approached her first class of high school students.

She found herself with a class of low-ability students from the city core; superficially world-wise, amoral, lazy, and often dirty, and yet who emerge as entertaining, lively, and often delightful individuals as seen through the eyes of Mrs. Bream.

Above all her book takes us "behind the scenes" in the actual business of teaching, its problems, its compensations, its vocational aspect with a vividness that will strike a chord with anyone who has ever taught.

This book is available in The Corby Library.

Family Therapy Works

CALGARY (CP) When a family experiencing emotional tension discovers the nature of its problem it cannot be ignored anymore, says Dr. Karl Tomm, director of a family therapy program at the University of Calgary.

"They see the consequences of their behavior and it makes them uptight.

"Once this happens it has a powerful impact on the family and it is hard not to change."

The program, begun in 1973 with provincial funding, emphasizes working with family groups rather than individuals.

"The primary goal is to assist families to manage their own emotional problems effectively," Dr. Tomm said.

Counselling is provided free under the psychiatry division at the university, and families may get in touch with the program with or without referral.

The program direcor said the first step in family counselling is to define the problem. All members of the family are asked to attend the first interview and each member then is asked to define the problem in his view.

The treatment team consists of professionals in psychiatry, nursing, social work and psychology, all of them specialists in family therapy.

Treatment is usually carried out in weekly interviews lasting about six weeks.

"Treatment is usually short terms and families come are usually in a stage of crisis," Dr. Tomm said. He added that unless a family is willing to make an effort to solve their problem, therapy is a waste of time.

"Sometimes people have to suffer more pain before they are willing to change. We point out the problems and it's up to them to work them out."

A typical case would involve a young boy who is aggressive and violent at home and at school. Therapists would try to get everyone's view of the situation and would also study how family members relate to each other.

"In therapy it becomes apparent there is a surface problem and a real problem. If the therapist effectively pinpoints the real problem, the surface problem diminishes rapidly," he said.

Once the real problem is defined family members have to deal with other problems in their relationship.

"This may involve having the parents stop scapegoating the boy to work on their own relationship."

Dr. Tomm said a survey of families counselled last year showed that 90 per cent of the adults who rsponded were moderately to extremely satisfied with the program, while only 57 per cent of th children reported the same satisfaction.

JOBS SCARCE

Time Isn't Ripe for Going Back to Work

By SHARON AIRHART

Since the end of April, Canada Manpower has been operating with a new concept: the job information centre approach.

The object is to expose all persons looking for a job to all the jobs available locally and in other areas.

"It's a better idea because people aren't categorized by counsellors," says Marilyn Williams.

Miss Williams and Sally Manchurek, both counsellors at Manpower, agree that the new system is helping find more jobs for clients.

"The information is posted at the front of the office and people can look for themselves," Ms. Manchurek says.

"It's putting the responsibility on the clients and frees the counsellors to talk to employers."

The new approach is of particular benefit to women seeking to re-enter the job market since they'll decide on job suitability themselves when seeking employment.

But in spite of the new system Ms. Manchurek and Miss Williams caution that this is not an ideal time for a woman, out of the job market for several years, to seek employment.

"You have to consider the job market," Miss Williams says, "We don't want to discourage anyone but jobs are scarce in this area."

There are currently 1,346 females registered at Canada Manpower; about 400 of them are students looking for summer work.

"There are jobs," Ms. Manchurek adds, "but they're not the kind people want or can get."

She explains that jobs are either minimum wage unskilled work or highly specialized professional positions.

"It's unfortunate that now, when more women than ever are coming in, there are few jobs. They're getting panicky."

The counsellors however, had hope for the future.

"The recession is supposed to be bottoming out now," says Marilyn Williams. "When the lay-offs began in Belleville in November I figured by spring things would pick up. But nothing happened except more lay-offs. So I'm not making any more predictions."

In more usual economic conditions, both counsellors advise that the woman who has been out of the job market seek retraining through Canada Manpower or other community resources.

"Often we prescribe retraining as much to build a woman's self esteem and confidence as for skill upgrading," Miss Williams says.

"The fact is that women who have been in the home for several years haven't been with people and its difficult for them to meet employers confidentally."

For women currently working at home but expecting to take an outside job in the future, the women recommend planning ahead.

"If they know what they want to do in five years time, this is the time to begin working towards it," Ms. Manchurek says.

Miss Williams adds that even general, non-specific courses offered by the Board of Education or Loyalist College are valuable.

"A few courses help you remain stimulated; they keep your mind working."

While both counsellors agree that right now most employers don't consider volunteer work as job experience, it shouldn't be overlooked.

"Employers very rarely consider volunteer work.

They don't like to look at it right now because they have many more qualified persons they can consider. Paid work counts for more," Ms. Manchurek says.

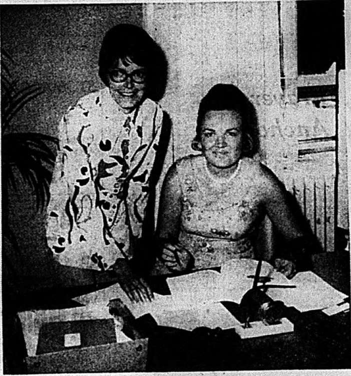
However she said that recently a woman who had typed on a volunteer basis for a charitable organization won an office job over a more recently employed person becasue her skills had remained sharp.

For the future, women who plan to work again might consider occupations like data processing or insurance selling.

"Most job vacancies will be in hotel and restaurant management in the future," Ms. Manchurek adds.

For the time being, however, the woman who has been out of the job market for years and who has few skills must be patient.

"Employers are picking the cream of the employee crop right now."



Sally Manchurck and Marilyn Williams, Manpower Counsellors

Aptitude Test Guides Counsellors

If you'd like to go back to work but you don't know quite what you want to do, Canada Manpower can help you.

"I think everyone should have aptitude testing," says Marilyn Williams, Manpower counsellor.

"It shows where your strengths are and where your weaknesses are," add counsellor Sally Manhcurek.

Spatial and form perception, verbal skill and even manual dexterity are tested among other things.

The series of 12 tests begins at 9 a.m. and last about two hours. Another test, to determine the client's interest, is given afterward to complete the morning's testing.

"It's exhausting but enlightening, "Miss Williams says.

Both counsellors add that they've taken the tests and admitted they were "difficult and exhausting."

However anyone who is interested in career planning is welcome to take the tests at Manpower.

They're used as a guideline to help clients and counsellors choose retraining programs in the right area and they're useful in helping to place one of the most difficult clients to walk in — the well-educated person with no specific training.

First Impression Made by Resume

If you're planning to re-enter the job market outside your home, it's important to remember that the first impression your prospective employer has of you is made by your resume.

A well-prepared and informative resume won't win you a job but it will probably get an interview for you.

Recently women in Canada's public service professions attending a career advancement seminar participated in a session that dealt with resume writing. Here are some of the tips they received:

First, make sure your resume is clear, consistent, organized and concise.

It must be typed; and original is better than a photocopy or a carbon copy. It should be clean and up to date; don't send a resume with handwritten corrections or additions.

It's best to write each resume specifically for the job you're trying to get. Expand on specific applicable points.

Include a brief covering letter; it should state the job you wish to apply for, request an interview, explain why you're interested and mention the enclosed resume.

Specifically, a resume must include the following information in this order:

Name, address and telephone number. Social insurance number. Date of birth. (Experts recommend that you don't include this if you feel it will place you at a disadvantage; employers are forbidden by law to discriminate on the basis of age.)

Education: degree or diploma, year, university or post secondary institution, course or major. Certificate or grade completed; year, program (Commercial, academic, technical.).

Employment history work backward from the present or your last outside job. Fill in gaps in time with general information: time spent travelling or working at home.

Be sure to include summer jobs and volunteer work, mentioning supervisory responsibility.

You should include salaries in the job history.

Other training: Indicate courses you have taken and the organization offering the course. State the length of the course.

If you have published material, indicate the title and the date as well as the publication.

Include one or two work references; clear with the reference first.

If you are including additional information on a separate sheet or sheets, list them on the resume.

Job Search Made Easier

The Job Search is a booklet for adult women returning to work.

Published by the Ontario Women's Bureau, 400 University Avnue, Toronto, is describes the necessary steps to successful job hunting including self-assessment, analysis of job expectations and the search itself.

You can obtain this booklet from the Brueau.

GARBAGE NOTICE

Householders who would normally place their garbage for collection on Monday, August 4, 1975, are reminded that, in accordance with the contract with the City of Belleville Garbage Collection Contractor there will be no collection made on that day it being the Statutory Holiday known as

"CIVIC HOLIDAY"

Garbage and refuse should be retained and placed for collection on the next normal collection day, by householders so affected.

Uppity Women Riders

Catharine Colon, 40, of Detroit poses proudly on her motorcycle in Los Angeles as she tells how she founded a motorcycle club for women in the Michigan city. She's on a cross-country tour, recruiting members. The club with 40 members, is called Uppity Women. Members' ages range from 12 to 56. They don't ride in packs and try to avoid characteristics of male cycle clubs. (AP Wirephoto)

Ann Landers

Kids Make Own Mistakes

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sick and tired of your advice to mother to MYOB when the future of their children may be at stake.

I am referring to your latest advice to Mrs. Z., who asked if she should warn her son about the bad temper of "Madame Svengali."

If you saw your daughter in the path of an oncoming car, wouldn't you do everything in your power to save her? Would you let her learn "first-hand" what it's like to be hit by a truck because she wasn't wise enough to look where she was going?

Several years ago, I followed your advice and said nothing when my daughter married the wrong guy. Now—several years and three children later—they are getting a divorce. I could have saved that girl untold agony if I hadn't listened to you.—No Fan Of Yours

Der No Fan: Sorry, but the addvice is still MYOB. You could have stood on your head and sung the Star-Spangled Banner and your daughter STILL would have married "the wrong guy." So stop beating yourself, Mother. The mistake was HERS, not YOURS.

It would be lovely if parents could funnel into the heads of their children the wisdom gained through years of experience. But they can't. All parents can do is provide them with emotional support and a loving environment.

They can't, nor should they try to direct their children's lives. Sometimes children must stumble and fall—and even break a few bones—before they can walk independently and be responsible for themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me or I will lose my job. I work with fiberglass and I'm allergic to it. Although I am only 35 years old, my hands and face look like I'm 80.

When I come home at night I use a lot of vinegar and water to relieve the itching. It helps for a while, but then I get small blisters on my skin and the itching drives me out of my mind. Can you suggest some medicine that might help?—In Misery

Dear Ms.: If you are lucky you WILL lose your job, because you apparently don't have sense enough to quit. No job is worth what you're going through. For heaven's sake, girl, get yourself out of that plant as soon as possible.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I was going steady with George. He ran into a little emergency (car payment) and needed $200 in a hurry. I lent him the money and he was very grateful. We had an understanding that he would pay me back as soon as he could.

Three months later we broke up. Although George still calls me from time to time, he never mentions the $200. Now I'm in a financial bind and could use the money. How should I ask him for it? Frankly, I'm embarrassed.—Tapped Out

Der Tapped: Ask him promptly, bluntly and at frequent intervals—until he pays up. Tell him if he can't manage the entire amount now you'll take $50 a week until the debt is repaid.

Why be embarrassed? You aren't asking for a gift. You are simply reminding him of his moral obligation.

CONFIDENTIAL to Mine Or His?: Laws vary from state to state. In some areas "misrepresentation" is grounds for annulment. Let this be a lesson to you. Next time don't go husband-hunting with a geiger-counter.

Summer Kitchen Tips

GOOD TOGETHER

Currant jelly blended with prepared mustard is a fine accompaniment for broiled pork chops.

FLAVOR IN HEART

To add interesting flavor to beef heart, soak it in buttermilk overnight before cooking.

HOT WEATHER COOLER

Serve iced coffee topped with whipped cream into which a little coffee liqueur or white creme de menthe has been added.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

The difference between mayonnaise and salad dressing. Mayonnaise is an emulsion of oil, egg and vinegar and salad dressing is mayonnaise mixed with a cooked starch base.

USE UP THAT FRUIT

If you have a serving or two of canned pineapple tidbits left over, drain it and add to a can of Boston-style beans and slices of crispy cooked bacon or well-browned pork sausage.

SUMMER COOLING

A good way to cool-off for the summer is to sprinkle powder inside shoes and sandals.

RE-USE BUTTER

Melted butter can be used again if kept in the freezer.

RICE CASSEROLE

Rice can be cooked with eggs, cheese and vegetables.

'Last Resort' Tries to Save Delinquent Boy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Operation "last resort" began recently for a 15-year-old boy, a reject from juvenile facilities that found him too disruptive to handle.

The program consists of intensive surveillance by two child-care workers operating in shifts. During the night, the boy will sleep at a group home he has disrupted and abandoned in the past.

If the program fails, the alternatives, says juvenile court Judge David Hart, are "either chuck up our hands and let him sink or swim in the community or raise him into adult court and that's barbaric."

The boy has challenged society and the justice system at every level and has won, but his only laurels may be a life of crime.

"He's a sick little boy," Judge Hart said in an interview. "If he was a hard-core delinquent—a real crook—we might raise him and we're admitting defeat.

"It's such a perfect example of the failure of the system to prevent a kid becoming a criminal."

Juvenile authorities estimate 40 to 60 children in the Greater Vancouver area need one to three years treatment in a secure setting—a place from which they cannot escape.

There might be 120 such children in British Columbia, which has never had such a facility.

In the absence of secure facilities, many child workers say they believe B.C. is gambling on some unknown force preventing such delinquents from entering the criminal underworld.

The history of the boy is shown in his appearances in Judge Hart's court.

At the age of 12, he was caught trying to steal a car after taking the keys from an automobile showroom.

He then entered the first stage of the justice system, voluntary probation, designed to assist the family with the situation.

A few months later, the boy, back in court on charges of breaking and entering and theft, was ordered, as part of his probation, to write an essay on the rights of people.

The following spring he was back again for assault causing bodily harm, which arose from a vicious fight at a ball game, and he seems to have spent the next year and a half evading probation officers while getting into a pattern of heavy glue-sniffing, marijuana smoking, theft and organizing others to carry out thefts.

Five months ago, his situation came up for review every week in court—an effort to shake him out of his pattern of petty crimes and abnormal behavior.

He was jailed for one night in an effort to shock him into realizing where his pattern was leading, but he still ignored a 7 p.m.-8 a.m. curfew.

An application was made to place him in The Maples, a Vancouver home for emotionally disturbed children. This home, like almost every juvenile resource in B.C., has a waiting period of two or three months before admissions can be made.

In March, another group home that has facilities for about eight boys and girls in a non-secure setting and provides one-to-one counselling, accepted him.

Because it was believed he would run away while waiting to enter the group home, he was housed in the Juvenile Detention Home here, the only secure juvenile facility used generally for short-stay cases of remand and assessment.

In mid-March he entered the group home and six weeks later took most of the home's residents with him.

It is alleged they broke into a house in New Westminster and stole more than $400 worth of goods. Three days later, the boys and girls from the home were found in Hope, about 90 miles east of here.

He was remanded in custody to juvenile detention again.

After three weeks, the group home he had disrupted agreed to take another chance on him, but quickly found it could not cope with his refusal to conform to rules. Back to juvenile detention.

The Maples announced in early June it could not consider him for the program because of his "extreme acting-out behavior."

The child welfare services of the human resources department was asked to consider him for the Island Youth Centre, but that institution couldn't accept any more juveniles because of a current staff freeze.

Then the Juvenile Detention Home looked at a door he had demolished and said it wouldn't keep him anymore. So he was returned to the resources of his own community—the local police cells.

A juvenile court assessment says the boy always contrives to control his situation by manipulating people and if pressure is applied to make him conform, he runs away.

Children Beaten

TORONTO (CP) Parents of battered chilbren were often battered children themselves, according to Dr. Robert Bates, a member of the child abuse unit at Hospital for Sick Children here. He said that if a child is mistreated, he may take out his frustrations later on his own children.

Bodies Bared

VANCOUVER (CP) The Canadian Nudist Confederation recently celebrated at the Van Tan Club here, one of Canada's older nudist colonies. Established in 1939, the club has 40 members, with mostly couples. The director said there still is prejudice against nudists.

New Cable Speeds Telephone Service

An $80 million underground "highway" for telecommunications, which passes near Belleville, was completed recently with the final splicing together of two sections of buried cable on the 415-mile route.

The digital cable systems, which can carry the equivalent of 20,000 telephone calls, is called the LD-4 system, and links Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, the most heavily-travelled communications routes in the country.

The underground system follows a route from Ottawa, passing through Tweed, about 20 miles north of Belleville on its way to Toronto.

Bell area manager R. W. Carleton said Friday the new line will not have immediate benefits to Belleville but within the next few years is expected to make major improvements in inter-city communication, including Belleville, Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall.

Mr. Carleton said the line initially will handle the major traffic between the three centres. As lines become available, Bell Canada hopes to tie into the major line at Belleville, thus giving the Quinte area a greater number of long distance lines.

Eventually lines will be established with Kingston and other major centres through eastern Ontario for an inter-city communications network.

Mr. Carleton said there will be one immediate benefit to Belleville and that is some of the older networks will be freed for long distance use.

City Police Plan Crackdown On Moped Operator Offences

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

There will be no second chances for offenders 16 years of age and over who violate new amendments to the Highway Traffic Act regarding motor assisted bicycles (mopeds), says City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie said officers will not issue warnings for first offences commited by those of age. Charges wil lbe laid immediately.

However, he add,ed "juveniles cases may be different. You have to deal with juveniles differently."

Chief Crosbie said his department received notice late Thursday from the assistant deputy minister of the provincial ministry of transportation and communications that some amendments to the Highway Traffic Act covering mopeds now are in force.

The new legislation now makes it illegal for anyone under 16 years of age to operate a moped on Ontario roadways. It also makes it illegal for anyone to carry a passenger on a moped.

Under section one of the act, a moped must not weigh more than 120 lbs., it may not have a piston displacement of more than 50 cubic centimetres and it may not have a hand or foot operated clutch or gearbox driven by the motor and transferring power to the wheel.

A moped must have pedals which are operable to propel it at all times and it may not be able to travel faster than 30 m.p.h. on level ground within a distance of one mile from a standing start.

Municipalities have also been given the authority to ban mopeds on roadways under their jurisdiction where the speed limit is 50 m.p.h. or more.

Chif Crosbie said the balance of the amendments will come into effect at a later date. This is due to administrative reasons.

An amendment making it mandatory for the wearing of helmets will probably be the final portion to be proclaimed because a special helmet has yet to be devised.

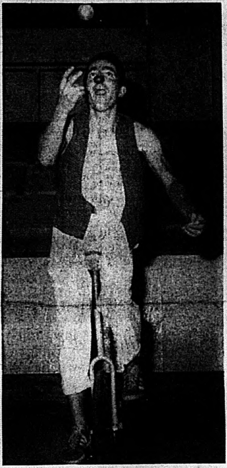
Yardmen Sponsor Cavalcade

The Grenadier-Yardmen Drum Corps are holding a display and ticket sale at the Quinte Mall for the Cavalcade of Corps competition, Saturday, August 9, at 7.30 p.m. at Exhibition Park, Belleville.

The cavalcade will bring together four out-of-town bands plus the Grenadier-Yardmen Drum Corps.

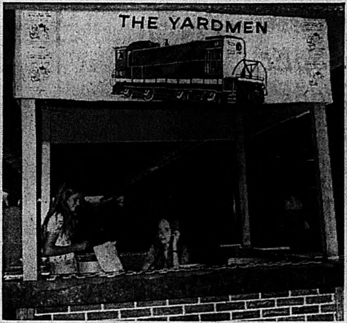
Appearing will be Phoenix from Rochester, N.Y., the Interstatesmen from Troy, N.Y., the Sentinels from Emmaus, P.A., and the Imperial Knights from Sudbury.

The price of the tickets is $2.50 for adults; and $1.50 for children. Buttons are also being sold at the display for 50 cents.



On the Ball

Malto, one-half of the clown-juggling team of Malto and Mari, warms up Friday in preparation for tonight's Lighthouse Concert at 8:30 p.m. at Memorial Arena. Billing themselves as the world's biggest rock circus, Lighthouse begin a nine-week tour across Canada tonight. The show also includes a trampoline act.



Cavalcade Coming

Sandra Wilson and Cynthia Cole, two musicians with the Grenadier-Yardmen Drum Corps, man a display at the Quinte Mall selling tickets for the Cavalcade of Corps competition to be held at the Belleville fairgrounds Saturday, August 9 at 7:30 p.m. Three American bands and one from Sudbury will join the Belleville-Kingston group in the competition, to be followed by a dance featuring Easy Company. Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Rabid Bat Discovered

An incident in the east end of the city has prompted Hastings and Prince Edward medical officer of health, Dr. H. R. Lenk to be extremely wary of bats.

"Do not try to touch or catch them with your hands," Dr. Lenk said. "Stay away from them, particularly if they seem to be acting peculiarly."

Wizardry On Monday

The Wizard of Oz is coming to Belleville the evening of Labor Day Monday, but not the one that turns up every year on TV, starring a youthful Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Bert Lahr, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley.

The performance, under the sponsorship of the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, puts the emphasis on the wizardry of Oz, against a background of the familiar tale.

Geared to both children and adults, tickets are a flat $1.50 at the door. The 2½-hour performance will begin at 730 Monday at Centennial Secondary School auditorium. Cameras are welcome to record the magical on-stage feats.

Water Ticklish Business

Swimmers complaining of itchiness after swimming at Riverside Park on the Moira River have likely contracted what is known as "swimmers' itch", Dr. H. R. Lenk, medical officer of health for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, said Friday.

Dr. Lenk said it is not a serious condition and could be confused with insect bites. "In particularly troublesome cases — which are unusual — a doctor can prescribe a lotion that will take care of the problem", Dr. Lenk said.

Lighthouse Begins Canada-wide Tour with Belleville Concert

Rock bands have to work harder at entertaining than they did in the 60s, says Ralph Cole, the 23-year-old leader and original member of Lighthouse, one of Canada's better-known rock bands.

To prove his point, Lighthouse begins a nine-week tour here tonight accompanied by one of the oldest forms of entertainment in the world. Billing themselves as the world's biggest rock circus the Lighthouse concert includes a clown-juggling act and trampoline act along with all the atmosphere of a circus.

"Plans are more sophisticated now, they've just about heard everything, but above all, they want to be entertained and that's what this show is all about," explained Cole.

The tour heads east to the Maritime provinces for five weeks then returns to Toronto for three more weeks before heading out west to complete their Canada-wide travels.

Concerning his new band, Cole said it's more instrumental than the previous band which disbanded after a Canada-wide tour last summer, "We've got a good band and we're trying some new things and some old things," he added.

Most Residents Agree Non-smokers Have Rights

The World Health Organization (WHO), in a recent report, released in Geneva, recommends governments introduce legislation to protect non-smokers from exposure to smokers.

In the 100-page report, WHO suggest one way of controlling exposure is to have the consent of non-smokers before others be allowed to smoke in their working environment.

Smokers have also come underattack from the Non-Smokers Association of Canada, which recommend the revival of chewing tobacco and snuff instead of smoking because of the fire hazzards.

The president of the 20,000-member group Robert Ludwig, said recently a splat of juice is better than a blazing mattress.

In a survey taken in at a local shoping centre, the following people were asked: Do you feel smokers should require permission to smoke in a public place such as restuarants and theatres?

Here are some of their answers:

KEN SHARP

A 61-year-old real estate salesman, Ken Sharp said he would be in favor of having to ask permission to smoke in a public place.

"If a threatre or a restaurant is air conditioned properly the smoke won't linger," said Mr. Sharp.

A smoker himself, Mr. Sharp said, "a good part of smoking is a phobia."

"The pollution of cities probably does more damage than smoking," said Mr. Sharp,

RICK LANGSTAFF

Rick Langstaff, a 19-year-old Belleville resident, said, "smoking should be resticted to certain areas."

"Smokers should respect non-smokers especially around food," said Mr. Langstaff.

Having just quit smoking, Mr. Langstaff said that in a confined area, "Smokers should not light-up if it will bother everyone else."

LAURA GOIN

A visitor from Saskatoon, Sask., Laura Goin said she would rather see different sections in a restaurant for smokers and non-smokers.

Having to stop smoking due to medical reasons, Mrs. Goin said she now has a different attitude and is "reluctant to take the priveleges away" from the smoker.

"Smokers should not be allowed to in smaller confined areas such as stores or hospitals."

RUDOLF HEYDENS

A smoker for about 25 years, Rudolf Heydens, 41, said he feels smokers should ask permission when non-smokers are around.

"It is just common courtesy," said Mr. Heydens. "It's the same if you go into someone's house," said the music educator.

"I have been in homes where people have prefered that I don't smoke. So, I don't smoke," said Mr. Heydens.

Mr. Haydens said, "It is unfortunate that it would take legislation."

BRENDA RUTTAN

Brenda Ruttan, a 23-year-old stenographer from Napanee said "smokers should have to ask permission to smoke in a public place."

Miss Ruttan said," smokers in public are alright as long as it doesn't bother anyone else."

"One shouldn't be able to say, "you cannot smoke, unless you are being a nuisance or blowing smoke in someone's face," said Miss Ruttan.

DEBRA ESCOBAR

"Yes, definitely, and I'm a smoker," said Debra Escobar, a 38-year-old freelance journalist from Belleville.

"It's an infringement of people's rights, blowing smoke in someone's face," said Ms. Escobar.

Ms. Escobar said the "right of people who don't smoke should prevail over the people who do smoke."

Costs Up

Inflation-Holidayers Can't Escape It

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

People who travel this summer, can expect to experience increased prices on their journeys.

Hotel and motel room prices, on the average, have increased about $2 a night from last year.

"Prices went up because of wages, gas, hydro and other supplies," said Betty Lawson, owner of the Avalon Motel.

"There has been an increase of 40 per cent in the price of sheets alone," said Mrs. Lawson.

Inflation, however, has not affected the provincial parks. The provincial parks are the "same prices" as last year an official of the department of natural resources said.

For a day pass, the cost is $1.30; overnight camping, $3.50; and for a season's pass, $15.

William D. Bennett, assistant director of operations, said, the federal parks system is consolidating, and will eventually have a standard price across the country.

Currently there is a $2 day pass fee, and a $10 annual fee to the parks in Ontario, said Mr. Bennett.

Some resorts in the Quinte area have also reported an increased weekly rate.

The increase is mainly due to the higher price of upkeep said June Hawley who handles the bookings of the Twin Cedars Cottages, Cloyne.

Even the cost of travelling to the various attractions has gone up from last year because of gasoline.

Air Canada also reports a general rise of 11 per cent in their fares between last summer and this year.

Last year a return flight to Vancouver cost $286 and this summer it is $314, said an Air Canada spokesman.

Car rentals, bus and train fares also reflect the gas price increase.

On the average, car rentals have increased $1 in the last 12 months for a mid-size, late model car.

A Budget Rent-a-Car spokesman said the increase is due to the higher price of cars.

George Bongard, special traffic operator for the Canadian National Railways, said prices have increased about 10 per-cent for passenger service.

A trip to Ottawa on a 'red' day was $7 last year but now is $7.75 said Mr. Bongard.

Reductions of fares are possible with different plans offered by the CN, said Mr. Bongard.

Youth, senior citizen and family fares allow 20 per cent, 15 per cent, and 10 per cent off the Red, White, and Blue day fares, respectively, said Mr. Bongard.

Ash Trays, Towels Favorite Motel Targets

Petty theft and vandalism do not appear to be increasing in area hotels and motels.

"The main items we have taken are washcloths, towels and ashtrays," said the owner of the Voyager Motel, Leo Leduc.

Having been in the business for 30 years, Mr. LeDuc said that petty thefts are not increasing at his motel.

The only increase of thefts reported at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, is in silverware, said Pat Carrol, who looks after the accounts payable. "Summer is the fastest time for thefts because it is the tourist season," said Mrs. Carrol.

Several items other than small items taken, have been televisions, a cash register, and an armchair taken within the last year, said Mrs. Carrol.

Christopher Davis, manager of The Four Seasons Motor Hotel, said that nothing major has been taken since he has been manager.

"If something is missing from a room, we phone the guest and try to be as diplomatic as possible," said Mr. Davis.

The owner of the Avalon Motel, Betty Lawson said, "It is not bad here."

Pedestrian Killed

In the course of celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of neighbors Gordon and Shirley Harris, Norwood Rd., Marmora, Mrs. Eva Post, 81, was struck by a car and killed at 9.45 Friday night.

Mrs. Post was walking from the north to the south side of Highway 7 about a mile west of Marmora at the RELM Club.

Mrs. Post, of Forsyth St., Marmora, was struck by an eastbound car driven by Douglas Matthews, 48, of Oshawa. No charges have been laid in connection with the fatal incident.

Teachers Swap Roles

PICTON — A teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Roy Goostrey, this year will participate in an exchange program with teacher Denis Read of Great Britain.

Mr. Goostrey, a mechanical drafting teacher at PECI, applied for the exchange in 1974 through the ministry of education and the Canadian Teacher Exchange in Toronto.

His application was forwarded with those of other interested teachers to England where all were compared with similar applications by teachers there.

Applications were matched in relation to subject and grade level and returned to Canada for consideration.

Operating Costs Rise

Betty Lawson, owner of the Avalon Motel, on North Front St., says operating costs have risen sharply in the last year. She said as an example that the price of sheets has jumped 40 per cent in the past year.

Phillies Split With Expos

By SCOTT ABBOTT

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Carter of the Expos was perhaps the only clear winner as Montreal and Philadelphia Phillies split a National League baseball doubleheader Friday night.

Carter outdueled loser Tom Hilgendorf in the fifth inning of the second game, slamming a let-up pitch into the left-field bleachers for his 14th home run of the year and the winning run in the Expos' 6-4 victory after the Phillies had taken the opener 8-6 in 10 innings.

"I've faced Hilgendorf for the last two years now, in Puerto Rico," said Carter, who sat out the first game.

"He's always had good success against me before."

The match-up between Montreal reliever Fred Scherman and Phillis pinch-hitter Tony Taylor was not as decisive.

Scherman, the second-game winner and now 2-4, got Taylor to fly out wth two men aboard in the sixth inning of the second game with the Expos ahead 5-4.

In the opener, Taylor had greeted Scherman when he made an eighth-inning appearance with a three-run pinch-hit homer that put the Phillies into a 6-5 lead.

The Expos tied it at 6-6 in the bottom of the inning as Pepe Mangual dashed home on first baseman Richie Allen's error but another error was the Expos' downfall in the 10th.

Mike Schmidt led off with a walk and, when John Oates laid down an infield hit, scored on a throwing error by Jose Morales with Oates ending up at second. He came home on Larry Bowa's hit for the final Philadelphia margin.

"We should have had two," said Expos manager Gene Mauch of the 10th-inning misplay.

Philadelphia had scratched out single runs in the second, third and fourth innings but the Expos got an RBI single from Larry Bittner and a three-run homer from Larry Parrish in the fourth. Bob Bailey delivered a run-scoring pinch-hit single in the seventh before Taylor's shot.

Jim Dwyer and Mike Jorgensen each blasted a two-run home rin the first inning of the nightcap off starter Jim Lonborg, but the Phillies came back to tie on Schmidt's 20th homer in the second and a two-run double by Schmidt and Hilgendorf's single in the fourth.

Biittner contributed an RBI hit in the seventh.

Tom Underwood, 11-7, goes for the Phillies tonight against Steve Renko, 4-8.

Wilt The Banger?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, the National Basketball Association's all time leading scorer, ended his athletic retirement Friday and at the same time became an owner—in volleyball, not basketball.

The seven-foot-two giant, who once averaged more than 50 points per game for an entire NBA season, purchased South-International Volleyball Association, his lawyer said.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN

The purchase price was not disclosed.

Seymour Goldberg said Chamberlain "will be directly involved and will play" for the Bangers, but probably won't play in all the team's games.

A team spokesman said Chamberlain will make his first start Aug. 6 in a game at El Paso against the El Paso-Juarez Sol.

Goldberg said the [illegible] of Philadelphia '76ers and Los Angeles Lakers "is [illegible] shape," and added that "those reports out of New York about him going back to basketball are ridiculous."

Virdon's Neck On Block?

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Martin will be managing his fourth major league team in seven years and it will be with his first team and first love—the New York Yankees.

The Associated Press learned Friday night that the fiery Martin will be back in Yankee pinstripes, replacing Bill Virdon, who had a contract running through 1976. The announcement of the change was expected to come today.

The New York Daily News said the agreement between Martin and the Yankees was sealed earlier this week in a meeting in Denver, where the controversial former Yankee second baseman had gone to make a speech.

Yankee general manager Gabe Paul returned to New York from a business trip Friday night and, when asked about the reports, would only say: "I can't comment on that."

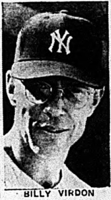
However, Brad Corbett, owner of the Rangers and the man who fired Martin two weeks ago, said Friday night that Paul had called him earlier in the day and asked for permission to talk with Martin about a job.

BILLY MARTIN

Martin's return to New York brings him full circle in a controversial career, which started with the Yankees in 1950, moved him to Kansas City in 1957 before stops in Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Minnesota, his final team as a player, in 1961.

Martin, 47, who began his major league managerial career in 1969 with Minnesota, was fired by the Twins, Detroit and Texas, all because he got into disputes with management. In each case, he had taken a team and made it a contender only to lose his job because of differences with management.

Virdon, who was hired only last year, said Friday night at Shea Stadium following the Yankees' 5-4 victory over Cleveland: "I have no knowledge and no comment. I haven't heard of anything.



BILLY VIRDON

"I just hope it's not another Pittsburgh thing," he said, referring to his 1973 firing by the Pirates, which, he said, he learned from reporters and not management. "I hope they tell me first."

"Bill's been very honest with me and I respect him for it," said outfielder Bobby Bonds, whose off-season acquisition along with pitcherCatfish Hunter was supposed to bring the Yankees an American League pennant. But it hasn't turned out that way, as the Yankees find themselves buried in third place with two months left in the season, following key injuries to Bonds, left-handed power hitter Ron Blomberg and centerfielder Elliott Maddox.

They Just Can't Lose

Somebody Up There is Crazy About the Boston Red Sox

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Rice wasn't trying to avoid taking the blame Friday night when he said he'd just been following orders. It was the credit he was shunning.

Rice's bunt started down the third base line but ended up in left field and Carl Yastrzemski, who had started out on second base, wound up crossing the plate with the ninth-inning run that gave Boston Red Sox an 8-7 victory over Detroit Tigers.

In other American League baseball action, Texas Rangers beat California Angels 2-1, New York Yankees edged Cleveland Indians 5-4, Kansas City Royals blanked Oakland A's 6-0, Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota Twins 5-1 in a rain-shortened 5 1-3 innings and Baltimore Orioles swept a doubleheader from Milwaukee Brewers 6-4 and 3-1.

Willie Horton hit two Detroit homers against Luis Tiant, the second one, a three-run effort, tying the game 6-6 in the top of the ninth. And Bill Freehan [illegible] Tiant for two homers, the second one putting the Tigers ahead 7-6.

LUIS TIANT

But in the bottom of the ninh, Denny Doyle beat out a bunt single to shortstop and coninued to [illegible] Michael's wild throw. [illegible]zemski then singled Doyle home and moved to second on a throw to the plate by right fielder Billy Baldwin.

After Fred Lynn was walked intentionally, Rice bunted, surprising everyone in Fenway Park. Rookie pitcher Pentz pounced on the ball. He had no chance to get an out anywhere—but he tried anyway. He fired to third, the ball sailed wide of the base and Yastrzemski steamed home with the winning run.

"I'm not a bunter, but I did as I was ordered," said Rice. "It's only the second time I've ever bunted as a pro."

Tom Grieve and Roy Howell hit consecutive homers in the seventh inning and Gaylord Perry hurled a two-hitter to give the Rangers their victory over California.

Sandy Alomar's sixth-inning triple gave the Yanks their winning run and enabled Catfish Hunter to chalk up his 14th victory with relief help.

Steve Busby shackled Oakland on six hits and George Brett hit a two-run homer to highlight a four-run seventh inning for he Royals, who edged within nine games of the first-place A's in the West Division.

Chicago erupted for five runs in the third inning, two on Pat Kelly's homer and three more on Ken Henderson's homer, before the rain started and Minnesota's twinbill wound up as a 5 1-3 inning single game.

Tommy Davis' grand-slam homer, his second in five games against Milwaukee, gave the Orioles their first-game triumph. In the finale, Jim Northrup's tie-breaking single highlighted a two-run burst that enabled Balimore to creep to wihin 8½ games of first-place Boston in the East Division.

Kingman and Speier Reverse Roles at Plate

By THE ASSOIATED PRESS

In San Francisco, a mostly singles hitter was looking for a single and he homered. In Pittsburgh, a home-run hitter was looking for a run batted in. He bunted.

San Francisco Giants' Chris Speier was "just trying to get on base" when he [illegible] ton's J. R. Richard in the ninth inning of a 1-1 game. "I wasn't thinking home run."

Speier hit a homer, his ninth of the season, to lift San Francisco to a 3-2 triumph over the Astros moments after Giants team-mate Willie Montanez had homered to tie the game.

In Pittsburgh, New York Mets' Dave Kingman—a hot batters who hit 13 home runs in July—laid down a perfect bunt to score a run in New York's 4-2 victory over the Pirates.

The victory brought the third-place Mets within seven games of the front-running Pirates while Philadelphia Phillies split a twi-night doubleheader with Montreal Expos to pull within 4½ games of the National League's East Division leaders.

"We gained some ground, but we should have gained more," said the Phils' Larry [illegible] Philadelphia won the opener 8-6 in 10 innings but [illegible] the nightcap 6-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Diego Padres blanked Atlanta Braves 4-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers beat Cincinnati Reds 5-4.

San Francisco pitcher Ed Halicki finished with an eight-hitter, nine strikeouts and his fifth vicory in 13 decisions.

Kingman's bunt made it 2-0 New York in the fourth inning. Felix Millan and Jesus Alou had the other RBI hits for the Mets, while Dave Parker drove in both Pittsburgh runs.

San Diego left-hander Randy Jones pitched a three-hitter for his third victory in a row, 14th triumph and sixth shutout of the season in beating Phil Neigro.

Bob Gibson and Lou Brock combined their talents to lead St. Louis past Chicago. Gibson demoted to the bullpen, put down a four-run Cubs uprising in the sixth inning and blanked the Cubs for 3 2-3 innings to post his first save of the season. He scattered four singles and struck out three.

Brock, who has a severe ankle injury because of stretched tendons, pinch hit and delivered a bases-loaded double in a clinching, four-run eighth inning.

Participants Leave Exhausted, but Happy

Too Much for Any Coach To Absorb in One Week

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

Last call came a little early at the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium held this week at Four Season's Hotel. Most of the 110 participants decided to pack it in Friday instead of waiting until the last lecture had been completed and closing ceremonies had taken place, Saturday.

That's not to say the clinic was a flop, quite the contrary. It was a complete success. That's why so many coaches decided to leave early — they simply couldn't take any more.

Frank Carney, former Austrian National and Canadian University coach and master of the zone defence, was one of the few went the full route. Even though he was a lecturer, he summed up the general feeling of the students with, "I have to get back home. I'm completely saturated. There was so much information and knowledge coming at me it was impossible to comprehend."

FRANK CARNEY

"Look at this guy," pointed Carney almost randomly, "look at the expression on his face. He's mentally exhausted."

Carney's synopsis reflected the opinions of the partakers.

The symposium offered such lecturers as Fred Shero, coach of the Philadelphia Flyers, Billy Harris, former coach of the Swedish National team and the World Hockey Association's Toronto Toros, Carney, and Roger Neilson, coach of the Ontario Hockey Association's Major Junior A Peterborough Petes.

The clinic was more though, than just a presentation of coaching strategys, tactics and systems. It also gave an insight into the often forgotten coaching skills. For instance, Dr. Richard Lonetto and assistant John Marshall, from the University of Guelph, astounded the participants with their presentations of hockey psychology. The two have done mounds of research into exactly what makes the hockey player tick and offered solutions to very real problems a coach might face in understanding the moods and efforts of his players.

At the conditioning level, the audience was treated to the highly informative sessions of Peter Elson, who inherited the works of Lloyd Percival and came to the seminar from his research program at Percival's Toronto Institute.

And last, but not least, the eighth member of team of clinicians was Fred Dunbar, Canada's trainer of the year. He wasn't long in proving why he was awarded that honor.

However, the session wasn't hard only on those taking it is. It was just as difficult on the eight clinicians. The intensity of the lectures and question periods had, by the end of the week, drained the lecturers both mentally and physically.

"In all," as Carney said, "it was the greatest hockey clinic ever presented in the history of the game."

Bauer Watches From Shadows

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

Father David Bauer's name was one any hockey enthusiast would have known well, in the mid 60s. Now, a director of Hockey Canada, he keeps himself in the background, unlike the period in which he was embroiled in much of the controversy that surrounded the International hockey scene.

This past week, Bauer was on hand as a special advisor at the Tam O'Shanter sponsored Hockey Coaches Symposium and his presence was very much in evidence throughout the weeklong event, the first of its stature in North America.

However, he reamined in the background once again, declining an offer to sit on a panel discussion on Wednes day, in Kingston. He also did not involve himself in any kind of open discussion during the week.

This small degree of anonimity is self-evolved, to a certain point. He is quick to indicate that as merely a director in the Hockey Canada body, he cannot really speak for the entire organization.

"If I discuss certain points of view held by the body, I am sometimes censured by the heads of organizations, who feel they should be the spokesmen," said Father Bauer.

Clarence Campbell (NHL president), and Bunny Ahearne (former president of the International Hockey Federation) are two who have objected to Bauer's outspoken comments concerning relations petween their organizations and Hockey Canada.

With the recent meetings in the hockey world, at all levels, his somewhat intraverted attitude has become even more prevalent for the 50-year-old Bauer.

Until many things are solidified between Hockey Canada and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association as well as Hockey Canada and the IIHF, Bauer feels his opinions, however qualified they may be, should remain in the board rooms, working toward organ izational policy.

Things may soon be better for relations between Hockey Canada and other hockey organizations, including the International body.

With the new president, Dr. Geunther Sabetzki, of West Germany, succeeding Ahearne as president of the IIHF, Canada may get a better shake when it comes to international competitions.

Sabetzki has said he will not rule with a dictatorial hand, when it comes to decision making, as Ahearne did in his 22 years as head man. This could mean a possibility of an open tournament in the future, allowing Canadian professionals to play.

Bauer stated emphatically, "there is no way that Canada will ever win a world title again with amateurs playing for us."

The statement is basically the same as the one in 1965 after Canada had come fourth in that year's World Championships, in Tampere, Finland. Although the statement he made in 1965 was not as accented as the one this week, both spelled defeat for Canadian amateur hockey on the international level.

As far as Hockey Canada's connection with the CAHA is concerned, he said that they are closer than ever before to enjoying almost complete co-operation. "Changes in personnel, and lessening of outside tension from pro leagues and the world body has resulted in better liaison between the two Canadian factions.

Shero Criticizes Missing Coaches

While Fred Shero is sympathetic to the position of most professional hockey coaches (this outlook is related in Friday's edition) he also scours upon their high and mighty attitudes.

"There should have been more pro coaches, particularly National Hockey League coaches, in attendance," said the outspoken Philadelphia Flyer tutor.

FRED SHERO

As Shero gazed upon the gathering of about 110 players, coaches and trainers taking in the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium at Four Seasons Hotel, he could pick out only one of his counterparts from the NHL. That was St. Louis Blues young strategist, Gary Young.

"The pros didn't come because they knew there would be amateurs and the amateurs didn't come because they knew there would be pros," summarized Shero.

"It's a conflict that's been going on for years," he added, "if they'd just realize that what goes on at something like this can only benefit hockey as a whole."

The Flyer tactician was also critical of the fact that in the entire lot, only one junior coach could be counted. He was lecturer Roger Neilson of the Ontario Hockey Association's Major Junior A Peterborough Petes.

"This is a tremendous experience," he said, "it's too bad most coaches are arogant enough to believe they don't need this type of thing."

Boris Kulagin (foreground) lectures at the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium held at Four Season's during the past week. Kulagin, by way of his interpreter Leon Zarakhovitch, made two presentations to the group — one Tuesday night and one Thursday. The Russian national head coach then left Belleville for talks with Clarence Campbell.

Kulagin Attends Despite Condition

While Boris Kulagin attended the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium, he made few appearances. The czar of the national squad spent most of the time in his hotel room.

It was reported that Kulagin was suffering from the combined ills of high blood pressure and an ailing back.

"At first he was ordered by his doctors not to come to the symposium", explained his Russian interpreter, Leon Zarakhovitch, "but he felt it was so important that he be here instead of one of his assistants."

"And he began to feel better," added Zarakhovitch, "so we were able to come for sure."

The Russian contingent arrived at the Four Season's at 8 p.m., when registration opened, Sunday night after flying over from their homeland the day before.

Kulagin was simply supposed to attend as a spectator, however he did decide to lecture.

"He felt it was about time we began to give more to the world hockey scene," stated Zarakhovitch.

The coach spent all day Monday in his room preparing a lecture and recovering from the long trip from Russia, to Montreal, to Belleville.

Tuesday was much the same. He did, however, give a short general speech on the development of Russian hockey and a brief outline of the Team Canada 72 and 74 series, from the Russian point of view.

Despite his physical condition, Kulagin suffered through a brief question and answer period — a warm gesture on his part.

Even though he was in pain, he did not lose his sense of humor. One questioner confronted him with why his players were not considered professionals when they are paid and ours are considered professionals because they are paid.

Kulagin quickly replied, "The difference is that while Russians play like professionals, they are paid like amateurs."

He then left the lecture theatre and returned to his room. A few minutes later he re-appeared and spoke briefly with Philadelphai's Fred Shero.

Then it was back to the room.

"Kulagin has a duel mission in Canada," said his interpreter, "while he is attending the symposium now, later in the week he will be discussing terms with Clarence Campbell on the upcoming eight-game series with our two top teams."

His back again giving him great problems, Kulagin spent all day Wednesday and Thursday in his room. He was to have taken part in the symposium's panel discussion at Queen's University Wednesday night, but due to his health, Zarakhovitch went in his place.

Thursday evening he lectured again and answered numerous questions. He never backed down from a single one, though a few were slightly controversial.

Then the pair were off to their session with Campbell. The outcome of their talks will not be known until sometime next week.

Kulagin stated that he was most happy to have been able to attend such an impressive venture and proud to have been part of such a tremendous breakthrough in the world of hockey.

Next Year a Big Question Mark

Quality One Reason for Success

Originally Gary Green had set the enrolment number for his Tam O'Shanter's International Hockey Symposium at 60. As the event drew closer however, it became evident that 60 was certainly too compact. In effect, what he did was double the limit as he accepted just over 110 applications.

"I probably could have had twice as many as that," said the Tam O'Shanter organization, "this was my first attempt at something of this nature though and I went for quality rather than quantity."

When Green decided on quality, he wasn't kidding. attending the week of seminars were some of the best known hockey personalities in the world.

The USSR was represented by their head national coach, Boris Kulágin. Holland's recently appointed national coach, Fred Holger, was also on hand and from Switzerland were delegates from the minor and major national associations. Along with international, amateur figures were professional representatives, such as Gary Young, coach of the Louis Blues. Various college, university, and minor league coaches from across the continent filled out the roster.

GARY GREEN

"I still haven't had the time to realize exactly what and how much took place here this week," said Green, "it's going to take some time before it all sinks in."

The history of the event, the most prestigious of its kind in development of hockey, will not be forgotten. Tam O'Shanter's International Hockey Symposium will be copyrighted and sold in book form.

What about next year?

"It's up to Tam O'Shanter," said Green, "I would like to see it become an annual event, but we'll have to wait and see."

With the ground work already laid for a bigger and better (if possible) symposium, and the success of the first one, Tam should be most agreeable to making it a yearly happening.

Father David Bauer was once a familiar name in the world of hockey. However, since taking his post with Hockey Canada, Bauer has preferred to remain in the background. With current hockey talks at the national and international level, Bauer stayed completely in the shadows at the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium this past week.

PUT ON WAIVERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League have placed Bubba Bridges, a defensive tackle, on waivers. Bridges is going to Calgary Stampeders for a five-day trial, a spokesman said Friday. At the same time, the Ottawa club has brought in Brian Marcil, a 26-year-old Canadian offensive-defensive lineman, on a five-day trial.

SIGN PENN

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions Friday signed import defensive back Charlie Penn for a five-day trial with the Western Football Conference team. Penn is from Iowa State and played four exhibition games with Toronto Argonauts in 1974 before being released. He is 6-1 and 175 pounds.

Old Fort Henry

Upper Canada Village

St. Lawrence Parks

You're less than a day's drive from a 1st class vacation experience that lets you get back to nature and experience life as it used to be.

The St. Lawrence Parks Commission invites you to relax at its 14 major park areas and 2,460 camp and trailer sites all along Highway 401 stretching from Kingston to the Quebec border.

Or step back into the 1800's at Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg (401 exits 119 and 120), a complete town of 40-odd authentically restored buildings — a living history of pioneer Ontario.

And treat the kids and yourself to Old Fort Henry at Kingston (401 exit 104), and see life as it was in a nineteenth-century fort featuring the spectacular Fort Henry Guard performing precision drills within the massive limestone walls of "The Citadel of Upper-Canada".

All facilities are open Mid-May to Mid-October. The Fort Henry Guard does not perform after September 15.

UIC Pulls Out Equalizer

If anyone was looking for a decision in The Intelligencer and UIC series they'll have to wait at least two more games. On Friday night the two clubs battled to a 3-3 tie to keep the series at a 1-1 stand off.

In the other Belleville Industrial Softball League quarter-final action Friday, Black Diamond took their series 3-0 over Independents by defeating them 11-3.

The Intelligencer went into the bottom of the seventh inning with a 3-1 lead and it looked like they would take the series lead, but clutch hitting from UIC produced two runs for the tie.

Hurling for the Intell was Jim McKay with seventh inning relief help from Joey Edwards. They combined to give up five hits and two walks. There were two strikeouts thrown against UIC batters.

Joe Scanlon threw for UIC allowing four hits and issuing four walks, he sent three Intell batters to the bench on third strikes.

RON ANDREWS

Stingy pitching limited the hitting on both sides. T. Goncalves led The Intelligencer with two singles. Kevin Joudwa slammed a homer and Glynn Reynold singled.

UIC batter Clint Halliday was the nemesis of Intell pitchers. He had two doubles and a triple. Al Walker and Joe Scanlon had singles to add to the attack.

Black Diamond moved up a rung in the playoff ladder by defeating Independents 3-0 in the best-of-five series.

Ron Andrews was the winning pitcher, he gave up 12 hits and struck out 11 batters in the effort.

The loss was shared by Earl Colton and Greg Bellis. They had two strikeouts in the losing cause.

Hits were abundant for Black Diamond. Gene Francis led the way with three singles and a two bagger, Jack Francis had two singles and a double and Ralph Francis tripled and singled.

Paul Trumpour hit well for Independents, with two singles and a double but it was to no avail. Other safeties came from Mike Wati and Doug McKay with two one baggers apiece.

Trenton Wins Two

Two wins for the Trenton Peewees over the Belleville Broadloom have put them in a commanding lead in the best three out of five playoff series.

The Eastern Ontario Baseball Association playoff has seen Trenton defeat Belleville 11-10 and 13-9.

In the first game of the series Trenton had to come through in the clutch, with Steve Smith hurling the victory.

The loss was shared by Glenn McQuaid and Tony Parks.

In that contest Bruce McEachrin had a double and two singles for Trenton and Rob O'Brien doubled.

For Belleville, Rory McLeod tripled, doubled and singled and Brian Cronkrite doupled.

In the second hook-up, Trenton pitcher Smith came up with another win.

The loss was shared by McQuaid, McLeod and Tony Parks.

McQuaid tripled and singled in the losing cause.

The Belleville Yardmen Midgets took first place in their Eastern Ontario Baseball Association division when they beat Thurlow.

The final score was 5-1, with Frank Meloche taking the win on a three hitter.

The loss was absorbed by Barry Beer and Brad Sullivan.

Steve Badgley had a triple and a single in the win. While Meloche singled Twice, as did Howie Coons.

The Thurlow hits were all singles from Beer, Bill Sullivan and Terry Tanner.

Stasiak Turned Back In Bid for Belt

Stan Stasiak lost in his bid to dethrone Edward Carpentier from his North American championship last night here at the Memorial Arena, before a sweltering crowd of about 500 screaming fans.

Stasiak was disqualified after 17 minutes of the scheduled 30-minute, one fall, bout, the main event on the four match card.

In the first tussle, the Wild Man drew a disqualification, allowing Crusader Robinson to take the win.

Chris Tolas and Billy Red Lyons fought to a draw in the second preliminary.

In the most entertaining bout of the night, Bobo Johnson and Vicky Williams took a last minute win from Little John and Lalani Kai in a mixed Tag Team event. Johnson and Williams fought back after being subdued earlier by a rope brought into the ring by Little John. The bout ended at 29:56 of the scheduled 30 minutes.

Burkitt Takes Feature

Lucky Homedale, owned, trained and driven to victory by Harry Burkitt of Belleville, took home the winner's share of the $700. purse in the Molson-Formosa Pace at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway Friday night.

The four-year-old Bay gelding, a nine to one shot, edged out Lord Bunter, driven by Pat Hunt, to take the $350 winner's money. Gallant Mir finished third.

The winning time for the mile pace was 2:10:1, with Lucky Homedale returning $1980,9-10, and 440 to his backers. Lord Bunter paid $1070, and $400, while Gallant Mir, with Guy LaRush in the bike, paying $470 to show. The exactor payoff of two and three returned $2190.

The fastest time in the 10-race card was recorded in the filth, with Caddy Sue pacing to a new lifetime best of 2:08. Bernard Hunt drove the three-year-old Chestnust filly to only her second win of her short career, with Single Impression second and Culpepper County drawing in third.

The largest payoff of the evening came in the eighth, when Wrong Time, a nine to one shot, combined with Perfect Lobell to come up with a $65.70 exactor.

ARGOS TO OPERA

TORONTO (CP) — Ed Harrington, a former all-star defensive end for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, has a new employer—the Canadian Opera Company. Harrington, a former Mr. Oklahoma and now a social worker, has been signed to play the role of the executioner in the company's production of Salome starting Sept. 20 at O'Keefe Centre.

SETS PACE

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — Austria's Niki Lauda, leading with 47 points against 33 for defending champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, set a gruelling pace Friday in training for Sunday's German Grand Prix and shaved 10.5 seconds off South African Jody Scheckter's Formula One Nuerburgring lap record. Lauda drove his fastest qualifying lap of 14.2 miles in seven minutes 0.6 seconds, or 121.46 miles per hour. Scheckter's record was set in the 1974 European Grand Prix.

Macs Face Tough Test At Home This Weekend

The Belleville McDonalds are in for a rough time of it this weekend, but at least there are some bright spots.

TED HOY

The rough time stems from the fact the Macs will be hosting two of the top teams in their division this weekend at the Alemite.

On Saturday, Woodstock will be in for a doubleheader, and they are a team to reckon with.

After a last place finish in 1974 they have made vast improvements, namely in the coaching staff. The new man is Ken Fortey, and he is given much of the credit for Woodstock's sudden climb to contestion. Another factor is the Werby Family. There are three of them with the Warriors and they all make an important contribution.

Pat Werby is leading the league in batting at this time, while last year he hit .209 DanWerby is some where near the top of the batting lists also, while brother Steve Werby is a top notch base stealer.

Bill Fidlin and Don Reeder are the clubs two top pitchers, Reeder threw in Woodstocks' last win over Belleville 6-5.

After that the Macs play Newmarket on Sunday night in another doubleheaders. Out of the pan and into the fire.

Newmarket leads the East Division and in a power laden club with plenty of hot bats.

For starters, they have the leagues' most respected hitter in Les Downing, who doesn't only hit for average, he also powers home runs. Derek Kinnersley is an added threat. He played for the Richmond Hill World Champions, and is nicknamed the "rabbit."

JACK LEHMAN

They not only have hitters, they also have a strong pitching staff, with Bob Domik and Bill Lunney. News has just come through that Larry Marshall, another top rated pitcher has joined them, Marshall pitched much of this year in Oshawa for Falcone T.V. and hurled against the Tony's in a series to see who would be host team for the Canadian Championships.

Now for the Belleville bright spots.

The Macs have picked up two new pitchers in Jack Lehman and Ted Hoy.

Hoy is somewhat of a legend in Belleville, and was pitching top tournament ball in Cardinal before coming down. He has a deceiving motion and uses lots of off speed stuff to fool batters.

Lehman has yet to lose a game this year while pitching for Verona in Kingston and should be an asset to the bull pen.

Finally there is Gary Goyer, who the Macs have been hoping to get all year.

It is an accepted fact that Goyer is one of the best natural hitters to ever step out of Belleville. He also plays in the in field or outfield when called upon.

It should make for an interesting weekend as the Macs launch themselves into four big games.

GARY GOYER

LOST TOP CHOICE

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota North Stars said Thursday they have lost their top draft choice, defenceman Bryan Maxwell, to Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association. However, general manager Jack Gordon said the National Hockey League team has signed goalie Paul Harrison, a third-round choice. Harrison was with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

equal opportunities

With two seemingly equal advertising opportunities available, how would you decide which was to carry your sales messages?

We have a suggestion—take a few minutes to find out just how seemingly equal they really are.

Ask questions—how big is their circulation audience? Where do readers live? How much do they pay? And others.

Then ask for proof!

Ask to see a copy of their latest report from the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Equal opportunities? Be ABC-sure!

IN MEMORIAM

WHITFIELD — In memory of Herbert Whitfield, who passed away August 3rd, 1963.

Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the angels wait,
Stop then thy repining,
God knows what is best,
Somewhere, somewhere,
Land of the bliss,
Where we live anew,
Beautiful Isle of Somewhere.

—Sadly missed by wife Jennie, daughters, sons and grandchildren.

DIGENOVA — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Maria Concetta, who passed away August 3, 1972.

Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
A link from our family chain is broken.
She has gone from our homes but not from our hearts.

—Always remembered by Domenic, Joseph, Vincent, Laura, John, Pat, Frank and Maria.

PHILLIPS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Alice Edna Phillips who passed away August 2, 1974.

Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
A link in our family chain is broken,
She has gone fom our home but not from our hearts.

—Sadly missed by son James, daughter Phyllis, son-in-law Clifford and granddaughter Shelley.

TURNER — In loving memory of a dear husband, Dad and Grandpa Leon (Lee) A. Turner who passed away suddenly three years ago today, August 2, 1972.

A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever dear.

—Always remembered by wife Hazel and family.

IN MEMORIAM

WHITNEY — In sad and loving memory of a dear father, Frank W. Whitney who passed away August 2, 1970.

The blow was great, the shock severe.
We little thought his death so near,
Only those that have lost can tell.
The sorrow of parting without farewell.

—Sadly missed by daughter Evelyn.

PHILLIPS — In loving memory of a dear sister, Alice Edna Phillips who pased away August 2, 1974.

Tenderly I treasure the past,
With memories that will always last,
And when I cease to think of you,
Will be when God has called me too.

—Sadly missed by Mabel.

PHILLIPS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Alice Phillips who passed away August 2, 1974.

So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay,
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come our way,
Though absent you are ever near,
Still missed, loved and always dear.

—Sadly missed but always remembered in our treasured memories by daughter Doris, son-in-law Clinton Brown and family.

TOP OF THE LINE FOR $45,000.00

This backsplit is located in one of the most highly desireable areas of Trenton. There are mature trees and the grounds are immaculate as well as the inside and outside of the home. Viewing is by appointment only. Three bedrooms, hardwood floors, a beckoning recreation room and tranquility. You could not ask for more.

INDUSTRIAL OR RESIDENTIAL?

These 115 acres are located north of Belleville and are ideally located for industrial use since a railroad forms part of the western boundary. The railway presently has about only 4 trains a day on it, and the land broadens out away from the tracks, making it suitable for residential development as well. Presently used for agricultural purposes, this land would have to be approved for other uses. Discuss this provery in confidence. Price — $172,500.00.

HUNTINGWOOD HILLS

You must see this three bedroom bungalow a few minutes out of Belleville. Be prepared to be captured by its embrace of ten acres of land, especially after you enter the living room and kitchen and gaze out of the huge windows. Priced at $54,900.00. Call us. You can also see another bungalow down the road listed by us.

HUNTINGWOOD HILLS . . . . AGAIN

$42,000.00 is the listing price of this brick bungalow which is a year and a half old. The lot is 85 x 225 and the backyard is large. The 10½% mortgage has three years plus left to run. Call us for an appointment to view this home and others.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 20-year-old son of actor Ted Knight, co-star of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, has been arrested for investigation of burglary.

Theodore Knight Jr. and Howard Klein, 21, were taken into custody Thursday at Klein's apartment, where police said they found a 100-pound safe stolen from a dental office.

Klein and Knight, whose father plays newscaster Ted Baxter on the television comedy series, were released on 1,000 bail each and were ordered to appar for arraignment in municipal court on Aug. 7.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Contestants in this year's Miss America pageant will be permitted to pose for photos in two-piece swim suits.

Albert Marks, the pageant's executive director, said the two-piece suits "look more realistic in today's society." But he emphasized that skimpy two-piece suits and string bikinis are prohibited.

Marks said the traditional one-piece suits would still be required for the pageant's swim wear competition.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Minnie Riperton was shaken but not seriously injured after being struck by the paws of a clawless lion with whom she was filming a television commercial.

Miss Riperton was filming the commercial to promote her new album at a Hollywood studio Wednesday with the lion, a stand-in for the lion who had posed docilely for her album cover.

A spokesman for the singer said the lion, "spooked for some reason" jumped on his hind legs and lunged toward Miss Riperton, who was seated on a velvet chair. Observers said she leaped up, but the lion's paws hit her back and shoulders' leaving red welts.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuter) — To get added authenticity in the role of one of the Washington Post reporters in All The President's Men, the film about the Watergate scandal, Warner Bros. studio announced Thursday it has cast a Washington Post reporter in the role.

The studio says Roy Aarons, head of the newspaper's Los Angeles bureau, will play a reporter's role in the film about how two Post reporters exposed the Watergate scandal and contributed to the evenual resignation of former president Richard Nixon.

The two main roles are being played by Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman.

WON'T PART WITH MODEL T

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — It has been driven 700,000 miles and still is going streng. That's the Model T Ford owned by Mike Tonis, 81. Every day people stop him and want to buy the car. "Never," he says "I'll drive it forever." He has been driving the navy blue car for 41 years. He bought it for $5 during the Depression years.

Opening lead—Q♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

South analyzed the lead. It was obviously the top of a suit headed by the queen-jack. He reviewed the bidding. West had opened one of those pesky weak two-bids that are made on a six-card suit and a total of 7 to 10 or 11 high-card points.

The queen-jack of spades accounted for 3 points; add one ace and West would hold 7. He might conceivably hold both aces, but that wasn't likely. With 11 high-card points and a good six-card suit he would have opened one spade only.

South counted his winners and saw that he had a potential of 10. All he had to do was to knock out the right ace first. So South grabbed the first trick, decided that he might as well try clubs first, led out his king of clubs and wound up making four notrump.

"Pretty good guess, wasn't it?" he asked North.

"A fine, but unnecessary one" was the reply.

North pointed out that if South ducked the first spade he could knock out either ace and make his contract. No guess would be needed.

Also, if West abandoned spades, and led a heart South could duck one heart and be safe if hearts broke 5-2.

Ask the Jacobys

A New Mexico reader wants to know what the Vienna coup is.

The answer is that it is a form of squeeze in which declarer sets up a card in a defender's hand as a prelude to squeezing him. It was supposedly first played in a whist game in Vienna around 1850. We will show one in Monday's article.

Rauwolfia Stops Hypertension

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain how rauwolfia works to help keep high blood pressure under control. Does it work on the nerves, the blood vessels, or what? Does it tend to make one less active?

I had 170 over 100 pressure. I'm 63. I'm not overweight, and I'm in good health otherwise. I did not know until the examination that I had high blood pressure.

The doctor prescribed reserpine. How does it work?—J. H.

The reserpine is the generic name for one of the "rauwolfia" drugs.

Rauwolfia can be called one of the first tranquillizers in history, thought to have been in use in India as long ago as 1000 BC. One of its first uses by the ancients is thought to have been for snake bites. As a matter of fact, another name for the roots from which the drug reserpine is extracted is "snakeroot."

American chemists extracted reserpine from the rauwolfia root in the early 1950s, marking a breakthrough in the treatment of hypertension. It works by blocking the action of body chemicals called "catecholamines." It is thought to act directly upon the central nervous system, and has a mild tranquillizing effect.

It can make the patient less active because of its sedative results. But the user should report episodes of depression while on such drugs to the physician. In such cases it is inadvisable.

One point of interest in your letter that I wouldn't want to be lost on other readers is that your high blood pressure was discovered at a time when you felt well. There is a rather intensive campaign afoot to promote this idea, and to encourage regular blood-pressure tests.

Now, with the new drugs, such as the one you inquired about, early detection can bring appropriate treatment to extend lives. Another point of interest in your letter should be stressed: lean persons can have hypertension as well as the fatties, even though obesity is usually associated more with the problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Hyperventilation. Please discuss it. It appears there is nothing that can be done about it. Is it emotional or psychosomatic? Why can't a tranquilizer be prescribed?—Mrs. P.A.

Normally, there is a continual exchange going on between the oxygen breathed in and the carbon dioxide breathed out, the latter being the by-product of cell metabolism. We don't pay attention to our breathing under normal circumstances because it is largely an automatic response governed by the chemical balance between these two elements.

When a healthy person forces himself to breathe more rapidly or more deeply than he would normally (Athletes, for example), excessive amounts of oxygen enter the system and increased amounts of carbon dioxide are forced out.

Since the automatic breathing control is regulated, as I said, by the amount of carbon dioxide in the body at any given time, when this is lowered, as in the manner described above, breathing may be curtailed.

Such episodes can be relieved by the simple expedient of breathing into and out of a paper sack (not a plastic one), thus reestablishing the necessary carbon dioxide level.

Hyperventilation can stem from cardiac inefficiency, or from a pulmonary (lung) disorder. It is often associated with a neurotic response to situations. If you suffer such episodes, you should be examined thoroughly.

Tranquilizers can help, if the condition stems from a nervous disorder. However, it would be best to get at the root of the problem, so that it can be treated. Treatment by tranquilizer should not be the immediate response, since this could mask an underlying mental or physical problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can lack of blood circulation cause hair to fall out? I've been losing my hair for almost two years. I am a male, 27-years-old.—B.B.

Poor circulation can be a factor in poor scalp health, and thus in hair vitality. I suggest you try massaging your scalp briskly but gently from time to time. See if this doesn't help out.

Otherwise, I suspect your condition is hereditary, a matter of what is called "male pattern baldness."

There isn't much you can do about that, short of hair transplants.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL.

For Sunday, Aug. 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Good news is coming regarding a major project concerning you personally. Don't wander too far from the phone.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others tend to treat you in an exceptionally generous fashion today, even one you thought didn't give a hoot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The more people around the better you feel today. You're at your best in places where the crowd gathers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll receive confidential information from an influential contact today. There's profit for you if you keep mum.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your concept and grasp are broad today. In business put things into practice the way you see them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're likely to meet someone important today. Do what you can to develop this contact, for repeated future benefit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's a lucky day for you and your partner. If you're involved in a venture in which you can take the initiative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could resurrect an old project and make it pay, with a dab of ingenuity here and touch of elbow grease there.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Acceptance is no problem for you today. You'll be so popular, you'll get two social invitations, both of them fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day for you to tackle a major home project. You haven't felt up to mastering it before.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Pay off some social debts today. See who's available. Invite two or three of them to dinner.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions are taking a favorable turn regarding a family situation whose outcome you've been a bit skeptical about.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Mon Aug 4

ARIES ..(March 21-April 19) Co-operation in the family is likely to be sparse around your house, especially if you're the one who sets a poor example.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It will be difficult for those you work with today to please you. You tend to expect too much. Do the tough job yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're participating in social activity today keep the stakes as low and friendly as possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't be able to wheel about as freely as you'd like today. Others will make demands on your time and talents.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you're outgoing and gregarious. Today, you're apt to withdraw a bit. You'll be annoyed if anyone tries to invade your private sanctum.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to spend too loosely today for things outside your usual range of purchases. You might pick a white elephant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't put too high a price tag on winning or being first today in activities with your friends. An old pal will resent it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful today in dealing with one whose ideas have clashed with yours before. There are still some hard feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't expect too much from a friend who has shown he is not of a giving nature. He won't change his spots today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll know what you want today, but you won't go after it with the full determination you're capable of mustering.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a good day for you to work on projects you don't enjoy. The end results are likely to be less than desirable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't go too far overboard in pursuing a good time today. You tend to be slighty prone to overindugence. Make moderation your byword.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tues Aug 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're unlikely to get all benefits you're entitled to today. In haste to finalize matters, you'll settle for second-best.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't try to make an important decision today unless you have all the facts. Your hunches aren't too reliable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) One you're fond of who seldom returns things may ask to borrow something again today. Review her record mentally before agreeing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something you feel you're entitled to is ikey to be awarded to one you think is less deserving today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll achieve what you go after, but you may use some unbecoming tactics. Be careful whose toes you tread upon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't look to friends to bail you out of tight spots today. They'll be too concerned with their own problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Success in your endeavors will not come easily today. If you want to make it, you'll have to be bold and tenacious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) No one will think less of you if you ask to have something important re-explained because you didn't grasp it at first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you be tempted to put good money after bad to save something that you might be better off without, even at a loss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) You tend to let others overly influence your thinking today. What's good for them is not necessarily in your best interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're still not operating at peak efficiency workwise. Mistakes today will be of your own making.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's not a good day to take any risks. What may appear to be easy pickings could be attached to a very thorny stem.

Calls Filmed

NBC television has repeated its movie, The Secret Night Caller, starring Robert Reed as a maker of obscene phone calls, because the network said there is a high incidence of obscene callers. They said that the Bell Telephone system report more than 50,000 complaints of obscene calls each year.

Licensed Landlords Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Godfrey, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto, said Friday that the Ontario government should license all landlords in the province, and the cabinet should have the power to lift the licences of rent-gougers.

He said the system would be similar to that of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario "which has the power to license hotels, and if you step out of line, you possibly could lose your licence."

He said the threat of being put out of business would discourage landlords from rent-gouging.

Mr. Godfrey said in an interview that he opposes rent controls as unworkable, adding they have failed where tried, but supported rent-review boards of the type proposed Thursday by Housing Minister Donald Irvine.

Indians Home From Japan

WINNIPEG (CP) — The governments of Canada and Ontario had better wake up to the problem of mercury poisoning in northwestern Ontario, Toomy Keesick of the Grassy Narrows Indian reserve said Friday.

Mr. Keesick, who has just returned from a two-week trip to Japan, said governments here "need to be taught a lesson from the Japanese doctors."

He said he and other members of the Grassy Narrows and White Dog reserves now want to "create an educational program to teach our people what pollution is."

Andy Keewatin, chief of the Grassy Narrows reserve, described Japanese mercury poisoning victims as "shocking and pitiful."

"You can't explain it in words," he said. "It's shocking to see them."

Reject Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — About 230 members of the Ottawa Atomic Energy Workers union have voted to reject a contract offer from the management of the commercial products division of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL).

The workers who include machinists, drivers, assemblers, mechanics sheet-metal workers, electricians, and storage men at AECL facilities here and in nearby South March were in a legal position to strike at midnight Thursday.

Port Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Resources Development Secretary Allan Grossman said Friday the government will allow a deep-water port and limestone quarry at Fisher Harpor, near Manitoulin Island, subject to pollution controls by the developer.

U.S. Tells Gen. Quang That It Won't Take Him

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States is advising Dang Van Quang, the refugee South Vietnamese general asked by Canadian authorities to leave Canada, that he has virtually no hope of being admitted to this country, U.S. officials said Friday.

Quang, once a national security adviser to former South Vietnamese president Nguyen Van Thieu, has been living temporarily with his wife and three of his six children in Montreal.

July 7, Canadian Immigration Minister Robert Andras revoked Quang's special one-year ministerial permit and ordered him out. Andras said he accepted, after police investigations, charges that Quang was guilty of nefarious activities in drug trade.

Quang then wrote to the U.S. consulate in Ottawa requesting permission to settle in the U.S.

A reply to his letter Friday to Ottawa advised the consulate that his chances for admission to the U.S. are virtually nil, U.S. officials said.

They said Quang's letter was not a formal application for permanent residence in the U.S. and the reply is not a formal rejection. But it does advise him that if he applies for a visa his prospects are not good.

Decision to Build Pickering Airport Called Irresponsible by McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario cabinet ministers said Friday the federal government's decision to proceed immediately with construction at the Pickering airport site is irresponsible.

"It's irresponsible, but there's nothing more we can do," said Treasurer Darcy McKeough. "We have done everything. This is the end of the road."

Transportation Minister John Rhodes said: "It's irresponsible as hell for them to start building before anything is decided on who is going to pay for what."

Mr. Rhodes, interviewed by telephone from McMaster University Medical Centre in Hamilton, said Ontario will refuse to commit money for roads and services until a cost-sharing agreement is reached.

The provincial government has asked Ottawa to delay construction at Pickering just north of Toronto until details of cost-sharring arrangement for roads, services and acquisition of land for the proposed community of North Pickering have been settled.

Mr. McKeough said he did not think negotiations for cost sharing would take too long, adding that Ottawa could have waited until the issue is settled.

Mr. Rhodes has estimated that the cost of roads, sewer and water lines leading to the airport would be about $116 million. A rapid-transit system would cost about $400 million.

Egg Production Ordered Halted

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Egg Producers' Marketing Board will tell three Ontario egg producers next week to stop producing eggs or face court action or seizure of their flocks and eggs.

The board decided earlier this week to cancel the quotas of the three producers because they had not complied with board regulations regarding inspection and record-keeping.

Four other producers who faced similar action have complied with the board's regulations.

Brian Ellsworth, board general manager, said he would not release the names of the producers until they have been formally notified of the penalties.

The board's procedures came under fire from Hamilton lawyer Herman Turkstra in mid-July when he asked the board not to assume the trappings of a court and attempt to impartially judge whether his clients were guilty of contravening board regulations.

He said he would take the board to court in an attempt to stop its procedures. Mr. Ellsworth said Friday the lawyer has applied to the Ontario Supreme Court for an order restraining the board from acting against his clients.

Mr. Turkstra says the board, if it feels his clients have broken the law, take them before an impartial judge.

Envoys Exchanged

HELSINKI (CP) — An agreement Friday between Canada and East Germany for the exchange of ambassadors successfully capped Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's fourth European visit in less than a year.

Trudeau, in this Finnish capital for a week-long European security summit conference attended by 34 other heads of government, met briefly with Erich Honecker, premier of the East European country, to approve the pact.

Murder Suspect Escapes

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A man who took 10 persons hostage at gunpoint during the weekend told them he had "nothing to lose" and was "not going back alive."

An unidentified 20-year-old woman hostage said the man told the hostages, who escaped unharmed Sunday, that: "I've got the name, I might as well have the reputation."

Meanwhile, 150 city and provincial police from Barrie, Mount Forest and Guelph, using helicopters and tracking dogs and armed with shotguns and semi-automatic military-style rifles, concentrated their search Monday night within the city limits for Donald Kelly, 36, who escaped Saturday from North Bay district jail where he was awaiting trial on two murder charges.

The woman hostage said the man "nearly shot" Albert Blaney, who was held hostage along with his wife, their crippled son and his girl-friend.

She said Mr. Blaney told the man: "I got no phone. I can't report you. Go away."

Police said the 10 hostages were tied up in a cabin Sunday before the man made his getaway in Mr. Blaney's car.

The hostages managed to free themselves and a neighbor called police by radio.

Tony Celentano, jail governor, said Kelly escaped at about 9:55 a.m. EDT Saturday while a grocery truck was making a delivery at the side door of the jail building adjacent to a room in which Kelly was visiting with his mother.

The governor said Kelly punched a guard and ran out to where a truck was parked with a high-powered rifle in it. One shot was fired and Kelly escaped.

Canada, U.S. Lacking Oil

TORONTO (CP) — A geologist at Carleton University in Ottawa says assertions that Canada and the United States have a large undiscovered potential for oil are "dangerously misleading."

Dr. F. K. North, writing in the current issue of Science Forum magazine, also says the hope that several offshore areas will solve the problem of oil shortages is "almost certainly doomed to disappointment."

"Neither Canada nor the United States will be able to postpone a dramatic energy decline, let alone reverse it."

Queen Mother 75

Good Queen Mum Marks Birthday

LONDON (AP) — Britain's queen mother, "marvelous mummy" to the Queen and the beloved "good queen mum" to the country she has served for more than half a century, turned 75 Monday.

She spent the morning opening more than 10,000 cards, telegrams and presents and receiving the wellwishes of 200 persons who gathered outside Clarance House, her London home.

In a blue and light brown dress and chiffon hat, the Queen Mother smiled and waved as the crowd sang: "Happy birthday dear Mother, happy birthday to you." Guns roared a birthday salute in Hyde Park and at the Tower of London.

As the daughter-in-law, sister-in-law, wife and morther of four successive British sovereigns, she has been enchanting the British, and many other people, for 52 years.

A widow since her husband, King George VI, died in 1952, he queen mother has continued a strenuous round of public duties.

U.S. Embassy Seized

Japan Frees Reds For Malaysia Deal

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — A Japanese airliner arrived today carrying five Japanese Red Army guerrillas freed from Japanese prisons to be exchanged for up to 50 hostages held by terrorists in the United States embassy in this capital of Malaysia.

More than 500 armed policemen, including many sharpshooters, were stationed at the airport, about 14 miles from Kuala Lumpur. The airport was closed to the public and to all flights from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The Japan Airlines DC-8 landed at 7:45 p.m. (8:15 a.m. EDT).

The same plane is to take the gunmen in the embassy to a destination yet to be revealed.

Among the five released were two deported from Sweden last March after being accused of plotting an attack on embassies there. They were Kazuo Tohira and Jun Nishikawa, who was involved in an attack on the French embassy at The Hague last September.

About six gunmen burst into the 12-storey American International Assurance building housing the U.S. embassy on Monday.

They originally demanded the release of seven imprisoned members of the fanatical, leftist Red Army. They also asked for a Japan Air Lines plane to be used in their getaway from Kuala Lumpur.

They threatened to blow up the building and their hostages, including U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins and Swedish Charge d'Affaires Fredrik Bergenstrahle, if their demands were not met.

After lengthy negotiations, the Japanese government bowed to the demands and freed five guerrillas.

The negotiations snagged when the two other convicts refused to go—one because he belonged to a rival group, the other on the grounds of ill health. However, the gunmen eventually settled for just five.

Estimates on the number of hostages ranged from 15 to 50. Officials said they had ordered hot lunches for 70 people sent to the hostages and gunmen. But there was no indication whether the 70 tallied with the total number involved.

Three persons, a wachman and two police officers, were wounded by shots fired by the gunmen shortly after they stormed the building. However, the terrorists said no hostages had been hurt.

The building also houses the Canadian empassy, but all of its employees were evacuated safely.

Japan's Red Army has carried out a number of terror actions abroad during the last five years, notably the 1972 Lod Airport massacre in Israel in which 26 persons died.

In a telephone call from the U.S. embassy, one of the terrorists said: "We want to announce our solidarity with the Laotian, Vietnamese and Cambodian revolutionary people. Long live the Palestinian people's struggle."

Officials in Tokyo speculated that the raid was timed to embarrass Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki, now visiting Washington and scheduled to hold his first talks today with President Ford.

Israeli Gunboats Shell Tyre

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli gunboats attacked southern Lebanon today, pounding the town of Tyre, while Israeli troops raided a nearby refugee camp.

Lebanon said Israeli warplanes also took part in the attack, but the Israelis did not immediately confirm this.

Lebanon's defence ministry reported four army officers killed and the Palestinian command said five guerrillas died in artillery bombardment of Tyre, 13 miles north of the Israeli border.

After the gunboats attacked at dawn, the guerrillas said the Clouds of Hell rocket s quad retailiated against the northern Israeli border town of Qiryat Shmonah.

Reports from Beirut said Israeli jets followed up the earlier attack, thundering across the border at mid-day.

The Palestinian guerrilla command said "our forces are heroically fighting off the raiding enemy warplanes."

A Lebanese army spokesman said the Israeli air raid lasted 20 minutes, and two Palestinian camps were the main targets. He would not elaborate or give casualty figures.

An Israeli communique said its troops "killed or wounded a number of terrorists" at the El Buss refugee camp near the Mediterranean port city of Tyre. Later, Israeli sources confirmed the Lebanese report that gunboats and artillery also had taken part.

Early reports said one Lebanese army officer and 10 Palestine guerrillas were wounded.

No Israeli military casualties were reported.

Crosbie's Parking Permit Stolen

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie discovered last week a municipal law enforcement head is not immune from petty theft.

Chief Crosbie revealed today a regular parking permit issued by the Belleville Parking Authority was stolen from the dash of his car.

He said the theft probably occurred at 322 Pinnacle St. when he took a load of clothes in to One Hour Martinizing. "That's where I'm sure it was taken from," he said.

"I foolished left my car unlocked for a few minutes," he remarked.

He said the permit has his name and licence number printed on by pen. It is one of the yearly permits with a special rate for city employees.

Air Crash Kills 188

CASABLANCA (Reuter) — A commission of inquiry Monday began searching the wreckage of a chartered Jordanian airliner which crashed near Agadir on Sunday, killing all 188 persons on poard.

The wreckage was scattered over an area of seven acres and search teams still were looking for the aircraft's "black box" flight recorder which might provide clues to the cause of the crash, the third worst in aviation history.

The commission, composed of aviation experts from Morocco and Jordan, also was questioning air traffic control staff here and in Agadir to piece together a history of the plane's last minutes.

Moroccan officials have said that it was heading east, instead of southeast, to Agadir airport, when it crashed 25 miles north of Agadir, on a flight from Paris.

Hoffa's Disappearance Unsolved

'Tony Pro' Brushes off FBI Questions

DETROIT (AP) — A former Teamsters official says Jimmy Hoffa told him last year that Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano threatened to kill Hoffa or kidnap his grandchildren if he refused to give up efforts to regain the union presidency.

Provenzano appears to be the key to a widening investigation into the disappearance of Hoffa, who failed to return home from a luncheon meeting last Wednesday.

A source in New Jersey said the FBI spoke to Provenzano on Monday.

"When the FBI got through to him, he told them, 'I'll give you guys five minutes, then I'm going to Florida,'" the source said.

The source said Provenzano, a former Teamsters vice-president, then flew to Florida.

Said an FBI source in Detroit: "Well, I guess you could say it was a short interview."

Hoffa's family has received no ransom demand but believes Hoffa was kidnapped. Hoffa's son, Detroit lawyer James P. Hoffa, said Monday he believes his father is alive because there is no solid evidence to the contrary.

Daniel Sullivan, once a business agent for Teamster locals in New York City, said Monday night Hoffa told him about Provenzano's threats on May 5, 1974, in Washington.

Sullivan said Hoffa told him: "Tony Pro threatened to pull my guts out or kidnap my grandchildren if I continued to attempt to return to the presidency of the Teamsters."

Sullivan was one of 13 dissident Teamsters who petitioned the federal courts in 1957 to put the union under federal monitoring in an effort to sweep corruption from the union. He now is owner of a truck leasing firm in Philadelphia.

Hoffa's son said the FBI is focusing part of its investigation in New Jersey, where Provenzano built the Teamsters power base he lost during a prison stint for labor extortion.

Provenzano and Detroit Mafia figure Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone are two of three men whom witnesses and family members say Hoffa was scheduled to meet last Wednesday, before he disappeared.

Provenzano and Giacalone both denied planning to meet Hoffa, and Provenzano told a New Jersey newspaper he hasn't seen or heard from Hoffa in more than four years.

But Sullivan, who described himself as a "friendly adversary" of Hoffa, told The Associated Press that Provenzano and Hoffa had a number of meetings in Miami in the last two years.

Sullivan said he learned from Hoffa's son that similar threats against Hoffa had been made by an Ohio Teamsters official.

Sullivan said Provenzano and the Ohio unionist plamed their troubles with police on their close association with Hoffa, who always was in hot water with the law.

A source close to Hoffa said last weekend that the Provenzano-Hoffa feud began while they were serving time together at Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison, when Hoffa refused to amend the union's pension plan to include Provenzano.

Provenzano was convicted for extortion; Hoffa for mail fraud and jury tampering.

Hoffa was last heard from Wednesday afternoon when he phoned and asked his wife: "Where the hell's Giacalone? I'm waiting for him."

Hoffa earlier had said he was going to meet Giacalone, Provenzano, and Detroit labor figure Leonard Schultz, witnesses told police. Schultz denied he had been party to plans for such a meeting.

Oppose Boost

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) Monday asked its board of directors to assess an immediate special levy on member municipalities to carry on a legal battle against Ontario Hydro's application for a 25-per-cent increase in residential rates.

Hydro originally wanted to increase its rates by 30 per cent.

The AMO, whose 600 members represent 80 per cent of the province's population, requested the levy at its fourth annual conference which continues until Wednesday.

Fans All Sold Out Before Heat Wave Ends

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

If you couldn't buy a fan in the city Saturday you weren't alone.

Seeking relief from the four-day heat wave that kept temperatures in the mid-30s hundreds of Belleville residents tried to buy fans and small air conditioners Saturday but to no avail.

A check with four major fan dealers on Saturday afternoon revealed it was impossible to buy one. Many dealers reported a heavy demand for them but most had run out by Friday evening.

The Canadian Tire Associate Store on Coleman St. reported an above - normal demand through Thursday and Friday and by early Saturday morning the store was completely sold out of all types of fans.

The same situation applied at Consumer Distributing Co. Ltd. on N. Front St., Simpsons as well as Simpsons-Sears at the Quinte Mall and Cherney's Furniture World.

By late Sunday afternoon a cold front moving into the area brought temperatures back to normal. The weather is expected to remain sunny through the week with temperatures around normal. The high today will be 27 with a low tonight of 14. Wednesday's high will be between 23 and 25.

By Saturday cloud cover and possible showers are expected for the area. A weatherman at CFB Trenton said today the heat wave which lasted four days did not set any records in Hastings County. However, there were record temperatures set in other areas of the province.

Trading Popular

An ever popular place at the Bancroft Gemboree is the family swampping table, where many fine deals, swaps and barters are carried on. Swappers and purchasers alike at the Gembroree were enthusiastic about the calibre of display there.

Organizers Happy With Gemboree Crowd

BANCROFT — As the end of the 12th annual Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree rolled around Monday evening, everyone from family swappers to rock dealers and owner-manaegr Carl Bosiak appeared to be pleased with this year's five-day show.

Mr. Bosiak said the crowds were down during the days this year because of the excessive heat for the first three days.

However in the evenings we really had capacity crowds," he said.

During an interview Monday, Mr. Bosiak hinted at more activities for next year.

"In a month or two, we'll be making some major announcements about the Gemboree and activities here," he said. "But right now I can say that we are going to be completely reorganizing along with lots of other things."

This year 41 rock and mineral dealers attended the Gemboree.

The dealers came from all parts of Canada and the Eastern United States and the guest book of visitors recorded names from all parts of North America as well as Europe, Asia and Australia.

Bearers were Lorne, Clayton and Roswell Reid, Jack White, Fred St. Louis and Floyd MacInnes.

Cemeteries Get Facelift

SOPHIASBURG — A federal Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant has enabled the township cemetery board to restore seven abandoned burial grounds here.

The LIP project started in January, 1975 and continues until this month, involving a grant of $16,577. Unemployed persons were given work at the cemetery sites and brush and weeds cleared away. Historic tombstones were straightened and restored.

Among the cemeteries improved through the LIP grant were Big Island, Demorestville, Bethel-Doxsee, Roblin, Quaker, Lazier and Solmesville burying grounds.

Cement Strike Continues

BATH — Pension plan benefits and cost-of-living provisions in their new contract are major issues that have split Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. and its production workers, said Harris Hull, president of Local 219, United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, here Tuesday.

Production workers struck Saturday at the company's plants at Bath, 15 miles west of Kingston, Winnipeg, Woodstock, Ont., a Toronto warehouse and grinding depot in Saskatchewan Office workers at these plants [illegible] to walk out Thursday, when strike action becomes legal, Mr. Hull said.

Also slated to go out are production and office workers at the company' plants in Brookfield, N.S. and Havelock, N.B.

"We have no quarrel with the company's offer of 70 and 45 cents an hour increase for each year of a two-year contract," Mr. Hull said. "We do want our pension scheme cleaned up and cost-of-living provisions in our contract to be effective immediately." Current basic wage rate for production workers is 5.06 an hour, Mr. Hull said.

Burglar-Proof Sliding Doors

Ed. McKinney
Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

Burglaries always increase during vacation periods when the homeowner is away. One of the favorite accesses is via the sliding glass door. Today's standard hardware for locking sliding doors is pretty flimsy and even an amateur will have no trouble in gaining entrance. But here's how you can outwit the culprit.

Cut a length of dowel (or broom handle) the right length and lay it in the track between the door and the opposite jamb. No way that sliding door can be slid without removing this wedge.

The groove at the top is twice as deep as the one on the bottom for easy removal. Foil this by cutting a piece of wood slightly less thick than the depth of the lower groove. Screw it into the upper groove, over the door when it's in locked position. Now the door can't be lifted unless it is opened all the way.

Restaurateurs Hold Line On Coffee Price - for Now

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Belleville restaurant owners and operators are taking a wait-and-see approach to an announced 20-cent-a-pound increase in the price of coffee.

The price increase was announced Friday by General Foods, a major North American importer and processor of coffee. It followed a 60-per-cent boost in the price of green coffee beans in Brazil, the world's major coffee producer, brough about by frost that severly damage the crop.

Louis Tsichlas, owner of the Cosy Grill said· "We'll stay where we are. We like to keep our customers happy. I understand coffee is going up 20 cents a pound. We go through 60 to 70 pounds a week, but I don't see a price increase right now." The Cosy's current price is 25 cents a cup — with seconds.

John Elioupolis, owner the Belmont Restuarant and Tavern, a popular downtown coffee stop, says he will wait and see. "I hear coffee could go up $1 a pound. If it does, we'll have to adjust. In the meantime we'll stick with our 25-cent-a-cup price."

In some restaurants, though, there are fringe benefits. With a meal, an average 25-cent cup of coffee will often be refilled at no extra charge. "We play it by ear," John Baliotis, of Spiro's Restaurant, said.

Bus Driver Makes Career as Artist

ACTINOLITE — When Toronto bus driver Paul Thrane quit his job three years ago to pursue a painting career near here he gave himself five years to make a success of it.

The Danish-born artist has only needed three years to achieve his goal — that of painting full-time and being able to support his family on their one-acre farm on Highway 7, about three miles east of the Highways 7 and 37 intersection.

So far this year, the 50-year-old painter has completed 34 paintings and sold 18 of them. His art will appear in a show August 18 to 31 at Belleville's Corby Library. This will be his second showing at the gallery and he expects to exhibit about 20 paintings.

He sells work through Toronto art galleries and soon expects to place several paintings in a new Bracebridge, Ont. gallery. He asks between $100 and $300 for a painting.

Being from Denmark, Mr. Thrane's most familiar work was that of seascapes or marine paintings. Today, his subject is the countryside and landscape of Hastings County, particularly the Tweed area.

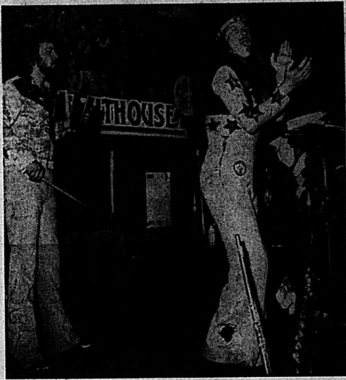
"I now feel very comfortable painting, in either oils or watercolors, this area of the province," he explained. Many of his scenes depict the Skootamatta River in this area.

Mr. Thrane is also a Loyalist extension course teacher and has conducted several classes in Coe Hill, Madoc, Belleville and Actinolite. This winter, he plans to teach again for Loyalist. "I utilize the countryside for teaching . . . many area farmers allow me to take a class across their fields for a lesson; they're very co-operative," he added.

Mr. Thrane said he left a secure job in Toronto "but I don't think I would have been happy if I had not tried painting as a full time career . . . I had to prove to myself for once and all that I could do it."

New Watercolor

Danish-born artist Paul Thrane stands beside a recent water color he completed for the opeing of his art show August 18 to 31 at Corby Library. The Tweed painter has been in Hastings County for three years pursuing a successful art career after quiting his job as a Toronto bus driver.



Rockin' On

Two members of Lighthouse's brass section rock on Saturday night as the group began their nine-week tour of Canada here in Belleville at the Memorial arena. Despite a poor turnout and unbearable temperatures, Lighthouse, one of Canada's best-known rock bands, gave an outstanding performance accompanied by two circus acts.

Youth Found Dead in Hospital Room

There will be an automatic inquest into the death by strangulation of a 19-year-old Trenton youth early today on the psychiatric floor of Belleville General Hospital says Philip Rickard, BGH executive director.

Mr. Rickard said no date has been set for the inquest to investigate the death of Joseph Mrkos of the Aljan Motel. He said he did not know whether an autopsy was scheduled today.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said Mrkos was found during a routine check at 3:30 a.m. "He had taken the belt from his kimono and was hanging from the shower faucet he said.

Chief Crosbie said Mrkos had been previously checked at 2:55 a.m. and nothing was found wrong.

He said police are assuming the death to be a suicide. The coroner is Dr. William Bates. He was in the BGH operating room this morning and could not be reached for comment.

Camp Introduces Cubs to Outdoors

It shapes up to be a busy time for camp chief Neil Sine and his four volunteer counsellors at the week-long Cub camp at Champ Saganoska this week.

Twenty seven boys, age eight to 11 arrived at the campsite in Vanderwater Park Friday and they'll be immersed in the outdoors until Friday, August 8.

The counsellors are augmented by two swimming instructors, a handicrafts teacher and three "workers", who can fill in as counsellors if required.

Although it is a boys camp, all the counsellors are young women, and all appear to be having a ball.

Their young charges, whose camp stay is underwritten by the Belleville Lions Club, are quite a handful. "So far (Monday), we've had three cut feet — one needed stiches — and a couple of severe cases of homesickness, but we're all still here and enjoying ourselves," said camp chief Sine.

Through the week the youngsters will get a good introduction to the outdoors from thir campsite in the Moira River Conservation Authority's Vanderwater Park.

Swimming, hiking and canoeing are major activities, and in their first few days they have begun work on a totem pole.

"They'll all go home tired but happy," said camp chief and quartermaster Neil Sine, over a pan of sizzling pancakes. He estimated the food bill for the week would be $600 not including milk.

While the Cubs were eagerly lining up for their pancakes Monday morning 15 Scouts at a nearby campsite were still buttoned up tight in their tents.

All of the 41 boys are enjoying their outing courtesy of the Belleville Lions Club and the district council of the Boy Scouts of Canada.

Big Breakfast

Three cubs, left to right Craig Scott, 10, Kyle Brown, 10, and Richard Peck, 8, start the morning off with a big breakfast at the week-long cub camp at Camp Saganoska this weekend. The camp is sponsored by the Belleville Lions Club.

Open House Planned

PICTON — An open house will be held August 15 at the Macauley House when a meeting is held to organize a Prince Edward County Museum Association.

Museum curator James Gooding said Monday the group will function as an auxiliary with members assisting in museum projects and in operation of the sales counter now open.

All persons interested in participating in museum activities are invited to attend the upcoming meeting.

Car Rolls, Four Hurt

TWEED — Four Tweed area men were injured in a one-car accident late Saturday on the Sulphide Rd. about 2½ miles northeast of this village.

A Belleville General Hospital spokesman said today James Moore, 22, of Actinolite, one of the occupants, is in satisfactory condition with lacerations to his arm and back.

The other three men were treated and released — the driver, James Albert Hartin, 26, of 16 James St. in Tweed with multiple lacerations, James Vilneff, 18, of Lewis St. in Tweed with lacerations to his hands and forehead and Edward Allan Kehoe, 23, of RR 3, Tweed with lacerations to his face, arm and back.

OPP at Madoc said the 1969 Buick was eastbound when it went out of control, struck a culvert and overturned. Two ambulances responded.

Constable Norman Papl estimated $3,000 damage to the car in the 8.50 p.m. mishap.

Woman Injured

BANNOCKBURN — A 63-year-old Pickering woman is in fair condition at Belleville General Hospital today with facial lacerations and a possible head injury following a one-vehicle accident Saturday on the Old Hastings Rd. just north of this hamlet located 15 miles north of Madoc.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said Lillian MacLeod was the driver of a landrover-type vehicle which was southbound on the 14-foot wide, hilly, gravel road.

Police said she lost control of the vehicle which entered the west ditch and struck a tree.

Lighthouse Concert Draws Poor Crowd

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Despite a poor turnout and unbearable heat one of Canada's best known rock bands, Lighthouse, gave an outstanding performance Saturday night at the Memorial arena accompanied by two-entertaining circus acts.

Billing themselves as the world's biggest rock circus Lighthouse only attracted about 250 people as temperatures in th arena soared to 40 degrees Celsius. The Belleville concert launched a nine-week tour for the band which wil take them to the Maritimes and the western provinces. , Except for four of the original members Lighthouse is a completely new band that boasts a stronger brass section and favors a more jazz-oriented style of rock.

Lighthouse leader and one of the original members lead guitarist Ralph Cole and fiddler Ian Gunther stole the show with several new songs entitled Soaring, and Rabbit Run. The group also played some of their more familiar material.

Cole said the band expects to cut a new album sometime after the tour concludes in September. They are trying a few of the album songs during the concert.

A juggling-clown act and a trampoline act were also part of the concert which lasted slightly over two hours. One of the bright spots in the concert was the circus atmosphere created by three old-style circus signs depicting the two circus acts and Lighthouse.

Baritone sax player Dave Tanner drew several standing ovations for his contribution to the band's new style of music.

Youth Injured

BRIGHTON — A 16-year-old Codrington area girl remains in satisfactory condition in Trenton Hospital today with multiple injuries following a two-car collision here late Monday.

Provincial police say Virginia May Golloher, RR 2, Codrington, sustained injuries in a collision on Prince Edward St. Details of the accident were unavailable.

Alarm Box

Belleville firegither responded to the following calls for assistance during a 72-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, Aug. 2, 2:05 p.m. — fire in garbage room at 191 Palmer Rd., cause unknown, no damage.

Saturday, Aug. 2, 7:07 p.m.— smoke investigation due to faulty air conditioner at Victoria and Grey Trust Co at 175 Front St.

Monday, Aug. 4, 11:09 a.m.— incinerator giving off unpleasant door at 170 William St.

Government Intervention Appears to Turn Markets into Messes

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

How is it that when government—any government—intervenes in a well established market, it turns that market into an unholy mess?

Government decision-makers are mature people, many of them trained in professions such as law, others with long experience in other fields.

Yet when they stick the government's nose into the business sector, they act like rank amateurs, unable to plan more than one move ahead, totally unaware of the collateral effect of their well-meant actions.

Let's look at a few recent cases:

—The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency, backed by the federal government, has so manipulated the egg market as to raise prices substantially, create shortages, and even allow millions of eggs to go bad in storage. All this is in the name of "stabilizing" prices.

—The Ontario government is giving purchasers of most North American cars a five per cent rebate, by removing the provincial sales tax on such cars. The stated purpose is to encourage activity in the Canadian automotive industry.

But half or more of the deals that qualify for the rebate are for cars made in the United States, by Americans.

The Ontario government estimates that it will give up $21-million in tax revenue, and that 15,000 extra cars will be bought becase of the repate.

If only 7,000 of those extra sales involve Ontario-made cars, the province will in effect be paying a $3,000 subsidy for each extra car produced here.

Apart from the questionable economics of the rebate, it obviously discriminates against buyers and sellers of cars imported from overseas. That means it violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

—The federal government has talked a great deal, but done very little, about the need for voluntary restraint to curb inflation. It has hinted that if Canadians don't accept voluntary restraint, it may do something drastic.

Well, Canadians have not accepted voluntary restraint. But organized labor has successfully pressed for even more inflationary wage increases, just in case the government does decide some day to freeze wage and prices.

As a result, collectively bargained settlements in the April-June quarter produced average annual increases of 18.8 per cent compounded, more than one-tenth higher than the first-quarter figure of 16.9 per cent.

Without the government's ineffectual intervention in the labor market, wage costs might not be rising twice as fast as the inflation rate.

—British Columbia's government took over the automobile-insurance business, confident that socialism could do the job better and cheaper than private insurers.

But the provincial insurance monopoly lost $34.1-million in its first year of operation.

It has peen hit by a months-long strike of its office workers, and motorists unlucky enough to have an accident must drive their damaged cars (if they can) or pay cash at the body shop. Those shops, by the way, have some of the highest labor charges in Canada.

These and other examples may not convert many socialists into free-enterprisers, or vice versa.

Certainly a case for government enterprise can be made, in circumstances where private industry can't or won't adequately meet the public's needs.

But politicians must learn to consider more than just the short-term political consequences of what they are doing before they crash their way into the business sector.

To have survived this long, the market system—and the people who comprise it—must be doing something right.

Two Sides to Pogey

The whole question of unemployment insurance benefits always seems to involve ambiguous overtones.

On the claimants' side of the coin, there seem to be many instances where humiliation or embarrassment are all too often part and parcel of the plight of the jobless.

The district UIC office's decision to once more allow claimants to have witnesses accompany them to interviews seems fair enough. The Quinte Information Centre's Bill Hockley has talked with enough people to get the impression that: "It appears the benefit control officer is only concerned with finding a way to cut off the claimant."

Fortunately for half a million Canadians, it is not yet a crime to be without a job in this country.

And yet how many of us know personally of those who abuse the unemployment insurance program, the ones who are really responsible for attaching a stigma to anyone "on pogey?"

There are Belleville employers who pay employees in cash, leaving no records to involve either themselves or workers in UIC contributions.

There are Bellevillians supplementing unemployment insurance benefits with salaries far exceeding the allowable limits.

There are Bellevillians who pass by any number of job opportunities without really good reasons.

And yet how many times do you hear complaints about "those Italians" making $10 an hour in construction, or see Jamaicans imported to pick Quinte fruit crops because producers can't find Canadians willing to sweat for their daily bread?

Realizing that their tax dollars are being paid many people officially listed as jobless who are quite capable of work or who are cheating the system does not sit well with most of this country's constituents.

That is why the federal government has proposed a tightening of the qualifying standards for those seeking unemployment insurance.

With productivity going down and prices going up, no Canadian can afford to be out of work.

And no other Canadians can afford to let him be.

Rent Review Good Start

His housing ministry's statistics indicating rents across Ontario have been increasing at an annual rate of 11 per cent, Donald Irvine scored some political points with his announcement that the Davis government will introduce rent review boards this fall.

Critics of the proposed legislation will be quick to note that the boards will not have the power to roll back or amend rent increases. But that is tantamount to price control, and we all know what the majority of Canadians seemed to think about wage and price controls in the last federal election.

Instead, the review boards would be brought into municipalities at their request, and have the power to subpoena landlords' records and "publicly expose unjustified rent increases through the holding of public hearings."

Mr. Irvine hopes the system will "shame" greedy landlords through negative publicity.

There are a lot of assumptions in the scheme.

How many complaints will it take, for example, to convince a municipality that calling in a rent review board for a hearing is necessary? Many landlords are prominent community members. Will municipal councils dare putting them through any inquisition?

There are some less tenuous elements in the proposed legislation. Minimum leases of one year for buildings with more than six apartments, mandatory lease renewal unless landlords can show just cause for non-renewal, and compulsory advance notification to tenants about rent increases or non-renewals — (WITH REASONS — are all sources of protection for both tenants and landlords.

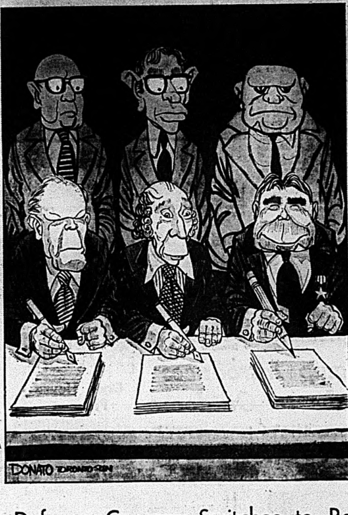
Viewpoints

Ottawa Citizen

Heavy U.S. opposition to Canada's quota on egg imports is building up.

That could hurt. Canada has been importing table eggs, but exporting eggs for processing. Last year the balance favored Canada, with 6 million dozen eggs imported, and 13 million dozen exported to U.S.

Unilateral action by Canada is shortsighted. It would give our producers only a short-term advantage.



'Silly Season' Strikes Commons Before Recess

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — They call it "The Silly Season."

It's that time of the parliamentary year when after working more of less steadily through nine months, the Honorable Members wait impatiently to break the marathon session for their long-delayed summer recess.

It's not so much a matter of reaching a clear and carefully considered decision that the nation's business has been completed as scheduled.

For that point is seldom, if ever, reached.

Rather it's more a case of the Honorable Members finally managing to reach a consensus that they're doing little more than wasting time and might better waste it at home in comfort than sweat it out in subtropical Ottawa.

That much they, at last, have achieved.

But before the records of this "The Long Session" start gathering dust on the shelves of Hansard, herewith consider a bit of documentary evidence of why they call it "The Silly Season."

They were debating — the same arguments over and over and over again — the pros and cons of "Ten Cent John" Turner's budget.

Yes, the Finance Minister has become known as "Ten Cent John," by way of that gasoline tax of his in the same mount.

Bob Muir, 18-year veteran Conservative MP for Cape Breton-The Sydneys, was speaking.

But he was doing more than repeating arguments against the tax.

He was using it as a peg on which to hang a strong attack on the government for it consistent neglect of Cape Breton's economic problems.

It was a good speech.

He was trying to drive home the point that the new tax would only worsen inflation's blows on the back of his steelworkers, miners, stevedores and fishermen.

"It will get worse," interrupted Liberal MP Victor Railton of Welland.

"The doctor from Welland says it will get worse — a surprising statement from a Liberal," observed Mr. Muir.

Up popped the good Dr. Railton with a "point of order."

It was improper for Mr. Muir to have referred to him as "the doctor from Welland," he complained, because "There are many doctors from Welland."

Bob Muir apologized, explaining that since medicine was an honorable calling, he hadn't thought he was "slurring or hurting" the wounded MP from Welland by speaking of him as doctor.

Then as, if that hadn't been a petty enough interruption, another Liberal MP, Mrs. Iono Campagnolo took after him for referring to her as "the delightful lady member."

"I want it on the record," she quibbled on a point of order, "that I am not a delightful lady — I am a member of the House of Commons."

Again Bob Muir offered regrets.

"I thought," he explained to the House, "that she is not only delightful, but beautiful too; but if she resents it, I apologize.

"I feel badly about it. The Hon. Members for Skeena surely ought to know whether or not she is a lady.

"I just want to say that in politics, one should take everything seriously except oneself and I commend that to the delightful, beautiful and Honorable Member for Skeena.

In Parliament's "Silly Season," it just isn't worth the effort for a hard-working and concerned MP like Bob Muir to make a serious speech.

Defence Concern Switches to Resources

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In the 1950s and most of the 60s our relations with the United States emphasized continental defence matters as much as trade and exports.

During the '50s, continental defence at the height of the cold war took precedence for a time over trade matters. These flowed smoothly as did the lot here of the hundreds of U.S. branch plants moving into Canada during the post-Korean War boom.

Such sovereignty problems as those which plague Ottawa today stimulated by a growing community of nationalists, for example U.S. troops assigned to our far-north radar networks, were also non-existent in the '50s and early '60s.

Times were just too good then to worry about such facts as the requirement for Canadians to get clearances from giant U.S. electronic corporations based in the U.S. to visit or work at Dew Line sites in which they are involved in planning and building.

Oh yes there were rumbles in Parliament about this. But basically the country was thankful to be under the U.S. defence umbrella to have more Yanks than Canucks manning some of those radar posts, to have Old Glory flying next to the then Red Ensign.

How much all that has changed in the '70s and indeed began to shift in the mid '60s, beginning with the crisis over nuclear-tipped Bomarc missiles which helped unseat former prime minister John Diefenbaker in the spring of 1963.

The switch from concern over defence to resources policies was in the wind with the appearance of Walter Gordon, "father of Canadian nationalism" in the Lester Pearson cabinet of 1963.

Some of Mr. Gordon's statist concepts would not come to fruition in Mr. Pearson's day, but are doing so in the Trudeau era.

Moreover resources control policies and limiting the spread of the U.S. multi-national company, now dominate our international relations with Washington, where defence matters once did so.

And this trend really took hard shape after the hike in world oil prices and the radical re-assessments by Ottawa energy agencies that Canada does not have the relatively unlimited supply of oil and gas always anticipated in the postwar era.

Rather we could run out of these at the present rates of consumption and end up being a largely importing oil nation by about 1990 rather than an exporting one.

Hence the announcements from Energy Minister Donald Macdonald regarding the end of our oil and gas exports to the United States, not immediately mind you, but certainly by 1980.

The Americans have not taken kindly to this, because of a feeling as historic as our own, that energy resources were limitless, that Canada would always be the most reliable of suppliers.

Well, we are not going to be and while the American customers are being let down easily, especially in the case of U.S. gas users who rely solely on Canadian source of supply, the relationship has clearly changed.

Then add the hassle over the need for the proposed Arctic gas pipeline, now estimated to be a $10 billion project as inflation mounts, and the scheme is perhaps a year away from approval, if at all.

Seatbelts Given Value

The Globe and Mail

What should be the last word on automobile seatbelts comes from a British appeal court ruling that automobile accident injury awards should be reduced when the victims were not wearing their belts. "Everyone knows, or ought to know," Lord Denning ruled, "that when he goes out in a car he should fasten his seat belt."

Right. Everyone knows, or ought to know, that even faultless driving on his own part is no guarantee against accident and injury in traffic.

We commend the British precedent to Ontario courts, and to the Ontario Government which favors the use of belts but has backed away from legislation to make them compulsory.

If a precedent closer to home is needed we can offer one from New Brunswick. Last January, the appeal division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision written by Chief Justice Charles Hughes, upheld a lower court ruling that the failure of an accident victim to wear a seat belt made her 20 per cent responsible for her own injuries. Damages were reduced proportionately.

If Ontario will not require motorists to protect themselves, such decisions by the court will provide the most effective persuasion possible.

Reed, manager of the local employment office, said that the current employment picture in Belleville and district is the brightest of the year. As of last week-end the number of persons receiving unemployment benefits had dropped to 592. Liberals Doing Better Than Leader

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — If, as seems most likely, they are now lining up at the post for the start of the election, most observers, I think, would agree that this is the picture as it looks at the start of the race:

The government will be returned, but with a reduced number of seats. The Liberals will make gains, but with its only chance of forming a government, and this a very bare one, as a probably unworkable minority. The NDP will do well if it holds its own.

The map of the future of the election is a hard one to read.

The Liberals are the key, and they are an essentially unknown quantity.

The party itself has risen in the public regard but leader Bob Nixon trails badly.

The obvious question then is how important is a leader in a general election.

There can be no precise answer to this, of course, but experience tells us that the leaders are very important indeed.

Important in winning. But even more important in losing a vote.

Logistically the Liberals' best chance of improving is in the cities, Toronto particularly provides a lot of openings, but a Toronto swing to the Liberals provincially would be a stunning surprise.

Aside from the cities there are seats in practically every area of the province which could turn Liberal, but at the start there is no strong indication that any of them will.

A big problem facing the government is that it is losing nearly 20 members through retirement.

Every time a member retires there is a new ball game in his particular riding and the government must be considered open in all these seats (not that it should lose all of them by any means).

Of the other seats it now holds it should hang onto most, if not all.

But chances of its taking opposition seats are slim.

There is a possibility in Cornwall, where Father Villeneuve, a very popular priest, is carrying its flag against George Samis. And it could take Sarnia if Jim Bullbrook finally decides not to run again. But that is about it.

As for the NDP, three of its members — (Shulman, Gisborn and Davison) are retiring. Other sitting members are in for strong battles.

And the party's only apparent chance of any gains is in a few Toronto seats. It will be lucky to come back even-steven.

Activities Day Draws Large Crowd

A fierce determination to ignore the intense heat and humidity, reminiscent of the early pioneer lifestyle being displayed helped make activities day at the Ameliasburgh Museum a recordbreaking event Sunday.

The museum staff of five area students bolstered by local volunteers, operated the various exhibits about early colonial life for more than 300 visitors passing through the museum. The previous daily record attendence had been 225 people.

A candlemaking demonstration was well received by the children in attenddence as were the loom, quilting and spinning wheel exhibitions — all performed by attendents wearing period costume.

"We have tentative plans to hold another activities day in the fall," said Harry Bisdee, curator of the museum.

"We hope to hold it near Thanksgiving and all the activities will be about the holiday theme," he said "Perhaps some of the local woman may prepare a meal and we might have cider and muffins for the visitors."

The museum is located in the former United Church in Ameliasbur, built in in 1868, and fuctions on the rotating exhibition theory.

"Every year we change the exhibitions by replacing them with other pieces on loan from local collections," said Mr. Bisdee, "This gives it a fresh look every season."

The museum is open from July 1 to Labor Day from 10 a.m. — 5 p.m. daily and from mid-May to mid-June and Labor day to Thinksgiving, weekends only from 10:30 a.m. — 6:30 p.m.

Mariners' Museum To Expand Exhibits

SOUTH MARYSBURG — The sixth annual Mariners' Memorial Service will be held Sunday, Aug. 10 at 2 p.m. at South Bay church with guest speaker Rev. Edward Schamerhorn of Bowmanville.

The unique service each year attracts hundreds of Quinte area persons who join in the tribute to Prince Edward's sailors and fishermen.

Chairman of the marine society Philip Dodds of Cherry Valley this week reported South Bay church, adjacent to Mariners' Park museum, is being decorated with flags, pennants, ship models, riding lights, brass binnacle, compasses and other nautical emblems under the direction of marine historian Willis Metcalfe.

Among those attending the salute to the county's "old salts" will be crew members of the brigatine Pathfinder and the cutter Trident.

Mr. Dodds noted plans for an addition to the display area are in progress to permit the exhibit of more artifacts, especially those related to the fishing industry.

Cyclist Injured

WEST LAKE — A Cobourg area girl was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital on Monday and later transferred to Kingston Hospital after falling from her bicycle on West Lake Road.

Injured was Helen Joachim, 17, of RR 4, Cobourg, a member of a group of about 15 cyclists on an outing with the Ontario Cycling Association.

Police said Miss Joachim and her companions were biking east on county road 12 when she rode into another bicycle striking the pavement with her head.

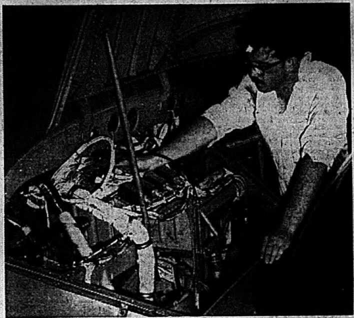
Woman Chokes To Death

CARRYING PLACE — A post mortem on the body of 31-year-old Carol Moran of Carrying Place has revealed that she choked to death, Sunday, while wading in about four feet of water off Indian Island in the Bay of Quinte.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Mrs. Moran, daughter of Vic Auger, a Trenton clothing retailer, had been in the water with her family and friends when she shoked and slipped below the surface. Her body was recovered almost immediately but efforts to revive her failed.

In Plane Language

A new display of old carpenters' planes has been introduced at the Prince Edward County Museum this month, demonsrtating early-day woodworking tools. A student of museum technology employed there, Donna Midwinter, studies the collection donated by Percy Steele, RR 2, Picton.



Always Ready

Pte. R.E. Nelson, an aircraft technician for the 424 search and rescue squadron, works on a Buffalo aircraft to ensure it will be ready for any emergency flight. The Buffalo is used both for search and rescue and as a light transport plane by the "Tiger" squadron. The unit is responsible for aircraft and marine search and rescue work in eastern Canada.

Armor Display Planned

PICTON — Tales of knights of the round table will come alive this summer at the Prince Edward County meseum during a special exhibit of armor dating from about 1500 to 1700.

Museum curator James Goodings says several pieces of armor will be on loan from the Royal Ontario Museum while the balance of the display will come from the Canadian War Museum and private collectors.

People have the wrong idea about bow armor was used," he observed in an interview Monday.

The armor was "tailor made" and each suit weighed from 40 to 50 pounds.

"You could actually swim in a suit of armor if it had been made for you," he commented.

Mr. Gooding said Monday no definite date has been named for the armor display but it is likely it will be scheduled in late August or early September.

Stampeders to Visit

PICTON — The Stampeders will perform at the Prince Edward County Centre here Wednesday, Aug. 6, startng at 8 p.m.

Special guest performers will be Thundermug.

Advance tickets are on sale for $3.50 at the County Centre, the Picton recreation and parks office and at Home Hardware. At the door, tickets wil sell for $4.

424 Squadron Helping Develop Canada's North

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Not all of the 424 (Tiger) Squadron's operations involve search and rescue work.

They are part of a major committment undertaken by the Canadian government to develop the northern part of the country, says Capt. John Morneault, adjutant for the squadron based at CFB Trenton.

"In our light transport role we are heavilly committed to supplying units constructing airfields in such places as Pond Inlet, Eskimo Point and Cape Dorset," he said "We are doing our share in northern development."

"The Buffalo light transport plane excells in use on short unprepared gravel airstrips and can be used to supply these remote areas," he said in an interview.

A normal assignment for a crew on one of the northern flights is to proceed from Trenton to Winnipeg, the project base, pick up the the supplies and service the communities.

In it's more dramatic role the 424 is responsible for rescue operations in Eastern Canada.

"Our search area covers from Kenora, Ont. to Matane, Quebec north to Baffin Islands and south to the American boreder," said Capt. Morneault.

424 Squadron is on call every day of the year 24 hours a day to provide one of its DeHavilland DH-6 Twin Otter aircraft for emergency rescue operations in its designated area.

"Each plane is staffed by a flight personell and safety specialists including two uniquely trained para-rescue men are dropped into the scene of any emergency to give immediate medical attention."

So far this year the squadron has carried out 33 aircraft searches, eight of which have resulted in fatalities, 10 marine searches and 43 crash positon indicator searches.

Two Hurt In Crash

A three-car collision on Dundas Street West Monday afternoon sent two people to the hospital and caused more than $1,000 damage.

Joanne avis, 18, the driver of one vehicle and Kim McNitt, 18, a passenger in the car, both of Burlington were treated at Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries and released.

Police said the Davis vehicle was moving eastbound on Dundas and was making a lefthand turn from the centre lane ont Applewood Drive when it was in collision with a car driven by Alvin Lainchbury, of Downsview, Ont.

The Lainchbury car was travlling westbound on Dundas in the curb lane, passing the third auto, driven by Patrick Logue, 57 of Toronto, which had stopped in the centre lane to make a left turn.

Drivers and passengers in the other two cars sustained no injuries.

Damage to the Lainchbury vehicle was $800 to the Logue car, $200 and the Davis automobile was unrepairable said Belleville police.

Brewers Retail Robbed

CAMPBELLFORD — Police are seeking three men in a light blue compact car following the holdup of a Brewers Retail sotre, Saturday.

Campbellford OPP said two men entered the store just before closing time at 6 p.m. brandishing a handgun and took more than $2,000 before returning to the getaway car driven by a third man.

The thieves forced the employees to lie down and bound and gagged them.

Thieves Get Big Gem Thaw

LONDON (AP) — Four raiders wearing stocking masks and armed with shotguns robbed a safe-deposit centre in London's jewel district Saturday and escaped with gems worth about $2.2 million, diamond dealers said.

But the dealers added that the gunmen left a grealer fortune behind. Only 15 of about 1,000 deposit boxes—perhaps containing $66 million worth of jewels and gold—were broken open by the robbers. They also left thousands of dollars worth of precious stones scattered on the floor.

The thieves bound and gagged seven persons, including the caretaker and other employees, but no one was injured in the 8 a.m. raid.

"The first thing I knew was when I felt a shotgun barrel pressed into my back," said the caretaker, who asked not to be identified. "We were told, 'If you open your mouth we'll let you have one.' No one was able to resist."

The raiders spent about half an hour at the Hatton Garden Safe Deposit Co. and then fled in a car, police said. The victims broke free soon after and sounded the alarm.

Worried depositors arrived at the vaults throughout the day to check their boxes. One said: "I've had a very big loss."

Another told reporters as he entered the building. "I have only a few housand pounds worth in the vault, but I know that a lot of them have sums well over £100,000 ($220,000) and others over £200,000 ($440,000)."

Most of the boxes are used on weekends py Hatton Garden dealers to safekeep their stocks.

Error Admitted

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Federal Reserve Board said Monday that it should not have paid $9.67 for bowling-score sheets and pencils used by its New York employees.

But it said almost all of the other $590 million in 1974 operating expenses were justified.

The board, answering congressional charges of wasteful spending, also said $41 paid to a St. Louis employee to offset her expenses while serving as "Ms. Torch" in a United Fund campaign was a questionable item.

LeBlanc Hopes that Courts Get Tough with Poachers

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc says he hopes the courts will begin to get tough with Canadians who poach fish.

In an interview taped for the CTV program Question Period, Mr. LeBlanc said he wants to give fisheries officers more powers to deal with Canadians who fish illegally.

He also said there are Canadians who violate the fishing regulations of the International Commission for North Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF) and they have been arrested and taken to court.

It is the government's intention to ask Parliament for more powers and stiffen penalties for fishermen who engage in poaching and other illegal practices, he said.

Mr. LeBlanc said the government will consider rescinding the recent ban on Soviet fishing vessels in East Coast ports.

"We would like to make sure that re-opening the ports would be followed by strict adherence to the regulations of ICNAF."

Canadian authorities have found there are discrepancies between the catch reported under national quotas to ICNAF and the catch inspected on board foreign vessels.

Although Canada considers unilateral declaration of a 200-mile fishing limit as a possibility, the minister reiterated his hesitancy to use that option.

"It is nice to posture and to claim unilateral action. The problem is that those who (do) will have to live with the results if it doesn't work."

If a 200-mile limit were declared, Canada would have to negotiate with countries that traditionally have fishing rights off its shores.

"Whether we declare unilaterally now and discuss, as Iceland is doing, or whether we discuss in view of extending our jurisdiction, it's a question of strategy."

Mr. LeBlanc said the East Coast fishing industry is in serious trouble and there is a need for some reorganization.

There are too many plants in some areas, and in some cases an ineffective use of resources, such as the use of herring for fish meal rather than food.

But he said support of the industry by the government is needed because the industry was losing money on every pound of finished product.

The government hopes its request for a special ICNAF meeting in September will lead to a 40-per-cent reduction by foreign fleets off Canada's shores.

"We are not trying to preserve the stock only for ourselves" . . . If we don't reduce the effort there will be nothing left for anyone.

'Secret' Report Subject of Talk

COCAGNE, N.B. (CP)—Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Monday he was amused by a description of a report on plans for restructuring of the fishing industry as being "a secret cabinet report."

Mr. Leblanc said in an interview most of the contents of the report described by the CBC on Sunday as secret were contained in a speech he made recently in Halifax.

He said the report dealt with the need to concentrate export licences, rather than compete on the foreign market "and we organize Canadian fisheries in the foreign market."

The CBC said the report it had obtained was to have peen made public in September. It said the report called for extensive government control including the establishment of five export corporations to handle all sales of domestic fish on the foreign market.

The report was also said to outline plans for a tough licensing program which would cut out part-time fishermen and reduce the number of full-time fishermen.

Mr. LeBlanc, speaking from his summer home here, said Canada already has a pretty tough licensing program covering a number of species of fish and shellfish. New licences are not being issued because "stocks are not able to withstand more fishing."

A task force had been trying to put together problems "that are acknowledged and accepted, look at possible solutions and make it into a discussion paper" for consultaion wih indusry, he said.

Mr. LeBlanc said he did not remember if a December, 1976, deadline for the establishment of a 200-mile limit is contained in the report—as reported by the CBC—"but even if it were . . . this would be an ideal date" by which jurisdiction should have been optained.

Rural Butcher Shops Face Stricter Checks

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government is considering legislation to tighten the control of meat sales from rural butcher shops, says a helath ministry official.

Dr. John Sterns, a veterinary consultant with the ministry's communty health protection branch, said Friday there is a loophole in current legislation regulating the sale of meat.

A group of eastern Ontario slaughterhouse operators met last week and called for changes in the Meat Inspection Act.

A spokesman for the operators said meat coming from slaughterhouses is closely regulated but there is little control over meat sold in butcher shops. Under the act, farmers can kill and dress their own animals, and bring the carcasses to a butcher shop for cutting and wrapping, as long as the meat is for personal use.

He said an unscrupulous butcher could buy an uninspected carcass from a farmer and sell it to an unsuspecting public.

In an interview from Toronto, Dr. Sterns said the possibility of purchasing unapproved meat exists only in rural areas. Most cities have bylaws prohibiting uninspected meat from entering butcher shops for custom cutting.

The act prohibits the retail sale of uninspected meats at butcher shops but custom cutting is permitted.

Dr. Sterns said revisions in the law are being considered by the government.

Law Rewritten To Back Gandhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian Parliament rewrote the law today to free Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from her embarrassing conviction of corrupt electoral practises.

The retroactive amendments to India's electoral code passed the lower house by voice vote with only one dissent. They were scheduled for immediate consideration in the upper house where passage also was assured.

Mrs. Gandhi's move took the edge off a Supreme Court battle due to begin Monday in which she was fighting to overturn the conviction and its mandatory penalty of a six-year ban on holding elective office.

With the laws changed, the offences no longer exist. But taking no chances, her government also amended the penalty to leave it at the discretion of President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, appointed by Mrs. Gandhi and generally recognized as acting at her bidding.

The government contended that the amendments were necessary to remove ambiguities in the law. It forbade the censored Indian press from reporting that Mrs. Gandhi would benefit from them.

"In my opinion, it is useless to say that this is made for any one case," Law Minister H.R. Gokhale told Parliament. "It can leave no doubt that it is not intended to be applied to any one individual."

But Mohan Dharia, a former member of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party expelled for calling on her to resign, said it was obvious to all that the government was bulldozing the amendments through to get her out of her legal troubles.

He proposed 13 amendments aimed at removing the bill's retroactive effect—that is, accepting the changes but without applying hem to Mrs. Gandhi's case. His suggestions were shouted down.

There were no opposition members to contest the amendments. They walked out of Parliament last week to protest the arrest of their leaders and, as a result, passage took only 90 minutes.

Mrs. Gandhi cited opposition plans to hold a civil disobedience campaign calling for her resignation as the chief reason behind her June 26 emergency decree and roundup of key opposition leaders.

She was convicted June 12 by a high court at Allahabad, near her Uttar Pradesh state constituency, of two counts of illegal tactics—using a top aide in her 1971 campaign before he resigned as a civil servant, and allowing local officials to put up rostrums and loudspeakers for her election rallies.

Neither is an offence under the retroactively amended Representation of the People Act. The amendments also retroactively sanctioned several other tactics for which Mrs. Gandhi was prosecuted but acquitted, including her use of a sacred cow and calf as a political symbol.

The charges against Mrs. Gandhi were brought by Raj Narain, the Socialist leader whom she defeated by 183,000 to 71,000 votes. Narain is among thousands of persons the government has had imprisoned under the emergency.

Mississauga Hydro Balks at Questions

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Hydro commissioners in this city just west of Toronto are refusing to co-operate with a judicial inquiry established to investigate allegations of bripery and corruption at city hall.

The Hydro commissioners say that the inquiry team has no right to delve into the past beyond Jan. 1, 1974, when Mississauga became a city.

The inquiry team has asked Hydro for information about "certain individuals" involved wth the former Town of Mississauga Hydro Commission.

The allegations, described by Mayor Martin Dobkin as "serious and startling," include bribery, assault and influence peddling and involve several past administrations.

Dr. Dobkin said: "We feel that there's enough precedent in law to show that the commission of inquiry is right to go back."

However, Hydro refuses to co-operate with the inquiry team until the issue of its legal authority has been cleared up.

Urge Incentives

TORONTO (CP) — Tax incentives to private development should be given to encourage renewal and rehabilitation of downtown areas, a consultant study report says.

The consultants, Peter Barnard Associates and Proctor and Redfern Ltd., were hired by the province for a six-month study to make recommendations for a possible new urban renewal program in Ontario.

Absolute Discharge In Indecency Case

OTTAWA (CP) — A 50-year-old former armed forces master warrant officer was given an absolute discharge Friday after he was found guilty of gross indecency with a 14-year-old boy.

In passing judgment, provincial court Judge Robert Hutton told George Falan the publicity surrounding the case has been "much more punishment than I could legitimately impose."

There has been consideraple publicity concerning a number of sex-related cases since Ottawa police charged 18 men last March in connection with an alleged male homosexual prostitution ring involving juveniles.

After he was found guilty, Mr. Falan said that when he called the Unique Modelling Agency in December he wanted to be certain the boys provided by the agency were over 18.

"When I phoned I made it quite clear to him (the operator of the agency) that I was concerned about the legality of the operation," he said. "I wanted to make sure the models were of legal age and was assured they were."

After more than 31 years in the armed forces, Mr. Falan asked for a voluntary discharge last month and has moved to Kingston, Ont. He said he has not found a new job.

Judge Hutton said this was not a case in which the juvenile needed to be protected from homosexual advances.

"This was a matter of free choice from greed and avarice," the judge said. "There is no doubt in my mind that the boy was doing this for money."

Of the 18 men charged, four have pleaded guilty or have been found guilty, seven have been committed to stand trial this fall and four are awaiting preliminary hearings.

Charges against two men have been dismissed and one man committed suicide shortly after he was charged.

Black Lung Racks Miner

LOGAN, W. Va. (CP) — John Mendez has a wife and 12 children, a constantly-worsening lung disease and a job in a coal-mine that gets harder every day.

But for John Mendez and thousands of coal-miners like him, there is little escape from the ravages of what they call Black Lung, short of total disability or death which will be the fate of many of them.

Mendez, a leading figure in the United Mine Workers (UMW), and for years a driving force behind the black-lung agencies which have sprung up across the country, says: "A miner who is still working with this disease is in limbo. No, it's safe to say he's in hell."

Black Lung is a form of pneumoconiosis caused by the inhalation of coal dust.

Nobody is quite sure how many miners have it, but since 1970 an estimated 600,000 have applied for federal compensation and experts say there undoubtedly are many more who have Black Lung in its early stages and haven't realised it yet.

"A miner who's still not completely crippled by this thing and has to keep working is in a hopeless situation," said Mendez, "and unless he can find a job outside he has no choice but to keep plugging away until he falls down.

"My own doctor has certified I'm 65-per-cent disabled because of Black Lung," he added with a listless shrug, "but the bureaucrats in Washington say this isn't good enough for compensation."

His conundrum and that of thousands of others like him lies in the conditions for compensation set out in 1969 and 1972 federal laws, administered by a division of a labor department.

A departmental spokesman in Washington said that of the 60,000 claims submitted since mid-1973 alone, only about 20 per cent were accepted. But a group of partially-disabled former miners who run the local Black Lung Association from a dilapdisted office in this little Appalachian town, say not more than five per cent ever receive benefits.

The labor department spokesman said there are three conditions which must be met before any miner can be compensated: All examining doctors must agree he has Black Lung, that it was caused directly by work in a coal-mine and that the miner is "totally disabled."

If all conditions are met, he said, the responsible mine owner would be told to pay the disabled man a basic compensation rate of $187.40 a month, rising to $347.80 a month for a married man with three or more dependents. But the mine owner can appeal the case through the entire court system before agreeing.

The spokesman was asked whether the requirement of total disability as a condition for compensation was not, in diseased men to stay in the mines and hasten the onset of the full debilitating effects of Black Lung.

"Absolutely not," he said. "They can, if they're partially disabled, force the mine owner to transfer them to another area where there is a lower concentration of coal dust in the mines and they are always free to find a job outside the mines if they can."

Mendez said this is rubbish (not the word he used).

"If I move to another area do you think the next (mine) operator is going to want me, knowing that I've got Black Lung and that I'll probably get worse and that he'll then be held responsible for paying me compensation?"

Mendez and other miners, who earn between $49 and $55 a day depending on their specific jobs, say it is difficult to find new work outside the mines as well.

"It's the same problem again," said Mendez, "Who wants to hire a man who's sick with a disease there's no cure for?"

The miners also seem convinced that doctors hired by the labor department to screen the reports and x-rays prepared by their local clinics are deliberately biased against them.

"You can see men with your own eyes," said Mendez, "who literally aren't able to get around anymore. They've had x-rays here which show they have Black Lung to the point where they're totally disabled and their own doctors have certified this. But the guys in Washington can overrule them and they do it time and time again."

Mendez and the labor department spokesman both say that a miner whose claim is rejected by the department has the legal right to appeal to the courts.

"But," said Mendez, "the lawyers demand either a huge fee, which we can't afford, or a slice of any benefits we win. Either way you have to sign your life away and when there may not be much of it left anyway, it's not something you like to do."

Last Agonies

The sons of Black Lung victim Jess Bishop watch as their father endures the last agonies of the incurable disease. Mr. Bishop died eight days after this picture was taken in April, 1975. Since 1970, 600,000 U.S. coal miners have sought government compensation for the disease. (CP Photo)

Compensation Difficult For Ill Miners to Get

LOGAN, W. Va. (CP) — The summer dawn breaks late over this steaming hollow in the Appalachian hills of Southern West Virginia.

But long before the mists have started to rise from the forested mountains, the pain, the blood-filled coughing, the retching, the gasping and the day have started for 65-year-old William Lee-Cox, former coal-miner.

"Times I cough like to die," he says, "and man, I want to die, but I just live on and on like this, every day gettin' worse."

Since 1957, Lee-Cox has suffered from pneumoconiosis, called Black Lung by the miners, the disease most dreaded, least curable and by far the most deadly in coal fields all over the world.

In the United States during the last six years, agencies called Black Lung Associations hav sprung up across the country and now are in the midst of planning a huge Washington demonstration to win greater congressional sympathy and support for their cause.

But for Lee-Cox and thousands like him, it's already far too late.

Black Lung is a little-understood disease resulting from the inhalation of coal dust, causing carbon capsules to form on the outside membrane of the lung, gradually cutting off the oxygen and carbon dioxide flows in the chest area.

Since 1970, 600,000 U.S. coal-miners have sought government compensation for Black Lung. Only a small proportion obtained it and in an age of space travel and computers, scientists and doctors still say there simply is no cure in sight for the disease. In fact, it's existence wasn't formally acknowledged in the U.S. until 1966 even though it was first diagnosed in Wales in 1929.

Its effects are usually devastating, always debilitating and they vary considerably from victim to victim. But William Lee-Cox has nearly all of them.

As he sits facing a window fan in his boiling hot little house, a stone's throw from the big, gracious Honaker Funeral Home, one symptom is immediately apparent.

The first thing you notice about Lee-Cox is that he shakes. Not with the kind of tremor that often accompanies aging but wth a violent, relentless shuddering that literally causes everything in the room to tremble with him.

"Doc says it's because my brain (and nervous system ain't gettin' enough oxygen, so I just shake and shake, buddy. How do you think I sleep in this condition? I'll tell you. Most of the time I don't."

The day starts for Lee-Cox about 4 a.m. with a rattling in his chest, a sense of smothering and then the terrible, wracking coughing takes over. His face turns a deep purple when he coughs, one hand clutches his throat and the other claws at the searing pain in his chest.

"About half the time I passes out when I get these fits. Everything goes black 'til the wife comes and props me up. Then maybe I'll go an hour or so before it strikes again."

Lee-Cox's 62-year-old wife, Lila, used to work as a maid but she had to quit a couple of years ago when the strain of looking after her husband and cleaning other people's houses proved too great and she had a stroke.

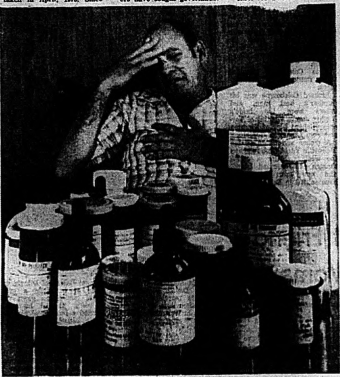
Now she, too, moves about the house slowly with the same air of long-suffering and patience as her husbind.

Lee-Cox had to leave the mines in 1958 when his lung disease became so bad he could no longer walk more than a few hundred feet without sitting down to catch his breath. He receives compensaion payments of a little more than 20 a month.

"Someday if the miners will just stick together on this thing the mines will be really cleaned up, God willing, and the ones who have Black Lung will get proper compensation for what they're suffering."

God may well be willing, but the intentions of Congress and the mine owners are less predictable.

Then the coughing starts again, this time with a lot of blood. When it's over, Lee-Cox is too tired to talk much more and you feel almost grateful and, ashamed for the chance to get away.



Much Medicine, Little Relief

Luther David of Logan, W. Va. a 47-year-old victim of Black Lung, sits behind some of the bottles of medication he uses daily to ease his suffering. Although he is unable to work, he is still unable to convince U.S. federal authorities he is eligible for disability compensation. (CP Photo)

Sulphur Fumes May Help Crops

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — The odors from sulphur gases emitted from stacks at sulphur-recovery and other petroleum-processing plants may be unpleasant to humans but may help plant growth.

Preliminary results compiled by Don Walker at the Agriculture Canada research station here, with help from staff in the soils department indicate that the amounts of sulphur gases emitted "can generally be considered beneficial to plant life."

The researchers wanted to find out whether sulphur emissions were sufficiently concentrated to affect plant growth adjacent to and downwind from main sources.

Twenty-four monitoring stations were set up between Calgary and Olds, an area in which half the province's total sulphur emissions of 700,000 tons annually occur.

Sulphur uptake by wet and dry soils and plants was measured, along with sulphur content of the rainfall at each site. The testing period lasted three monhs.

"The amount of sulphur absorbed by the soils varied," Mr. Walker said in an interview. "Wet soils absorbed more than the dry soils."

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Quinte Cuisine

Olga Kowal's family likes her waffles for breakfast lunch or as a dinner time dessert with fresh berries and cream. Besides cooking waffles for husband Paul and sons Gregory and Andrew, she likes sewing clothing for herself and her sons and doing bargello and macrame. Mr. and Mrs. Kowal came to Belleville two years ago from Montreal where daughter Cynthia lives.

Waffles

two cups sifted cake flour four tsp. baking powder
two eggs, separated
2¼ cups milk
¾ tsp. salt
eight tbsp. melted butter

Mix flour, salt and baking powder. Add milk and beat until smooth and then add beaten egg whites and, lastly, the melted butter. Bake to a crisp golden brown.

The layered look, which seemed to be on its way out last season, has bounded back stronger than ever for fall-winter '75 Left, a grey flannel jumper by Jerry Guttenberg with classic shirt and neck scarf with cardigan jacket; centre is James Daugherty's jimper in a new fabric called super-antelope and at right a pig suede jumper side buttoned over a body dress by Adri. (CP Photo)

Energy Crisis Influences Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — The layered look, which seemed to be on its way out last season, has bounded back stronger than ever due to New York's preoccupation with the energy crisis.

With home owners and office workers being asked to keep room temperatures at 68 degrees or lower, layered clothing is the obvious solution for keeping warm.

Eleanor Lambert, American fashion co-ordinator said: "Layering is the most urgent worldwide trend in an energy conserving world. It is seen differently in America. Few designers lay thickness over thickness as they are doing in Europe.

"Here it is more often shape over shape such as the jumper over sweater and blouse, a long tunic over a fluid dress or pants and a shirt or a vest over a dress or sweater and skirt."

The jumper which was popular several years ago has returned and can be worn with a contrasting colored blouse. This fall, many jumpers are designed loosely and with lowered necklines so that both a snug sweater and shirt can be worn underneath to provide added warmth when needed.

During press fashion week for the American Designer Showings, designer Adri showed an unusual combination of a pig suede, side-buttoned jumper worn over a hooded body dress.

The jumper could also substitute as a coat during a sudden drop in temperature.

Malcolm Starr teamed a pale cream suede jumper with a brown turtle-neck sweater and Abe Schrader's rendition was in brown ultrasuede with a brown, green and vanilla striped sweater.

The showings revealed that both real suede and glove-soft leather as well as synthetic ultrasuede are popular in the latest jumpers.

Other layering ideas see designers combining a tunic or overdress above a slim underdress as Adele Simpson does with a patterned dress over an orange slip dress.

James Daugherty said he feels layering is big news when done in new and interesting fabrics such as pliable leather for daytime and velvet for night. He showed a new over-dress style worn over a shirt, sweater and pants.

Yet another layered look was seen in Calvin Klein's double shirts. The outer garment is actually a smock worn over a bow-tied shirt.

Shawls and stoles for warmth were often worn with matching skirts, as in Anne Klein's floor length brick red skirt with grey lining showing at the side slit to match the large kerchief shawl of rust on one side and grey on the other.

Vests, as a hold-over from last season, seem to have gained in popularity with the added warmth aspect.

Delton II used a fabric contrast to come up with a bright orange suede vest worn over a grey turtle-neck sweather, to team with grey flannel trousers.

And for at parties where the rooms are on the chilly side, Bill Blass showed a long grey wrap skirt with a glittering black vest and white shirt, topped with a black velvet jacket

Chanel's Spirit Continues In Paris Fashion World

PARIS (AP)—Mademoiselle Chanel may be dead but her spirit goes on in the following of her acolytes—Jean Gazaubon and Yvonne Dudel.

They continued what made Chanel a beloved fashion figure—little jackets with contrasting embroidered bands, chains and pearls, pleated blouses and skirts, sling-backed pumps with contrasting colors on the toes, flapped pockets, buttons and bows.

Color nuances were stunning—for daytime clothes, mixtures in tweeds or jerseys such as rose and chocolate brown with deep red, green with beige, chestnut and white.

Coverings over dresses were usually in a contrasting color, such as a black cape over a toast-colored dress.

Coats shown were on an easy cut, only slightly flared, and many had mink or lynx fur trim or linings.

Pants were given bigger play than usual. One smashing outfit was a brown velvet trouser suit with a jacket embroidered in coral and brown, worn with a coral chiffon blouse and small coral knit cap.

A few ladylike black dresses led the way to the cocktail hour, and graceful silk crepes and chiffons in mid-calf length, some gently tiered, followed for "little evenings." Raspberry, black, white; water green and gold lame were the colors for evening, with enough panels and ruffles to make any southern belle happy.

This femininity is what seems to keep pulling in admirers of the classic Chanel style. They want the little suit, the cravat neckline blouse, the soft tweed jacket, and the beautiful workmanship, and the House of Chanel will go on providing them. Some may consider it old hat, but it still somehow works.

BOOMING BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Plastic bottle industry officials conservatively estimate that plastic bottle production will leap by eight to 10 per cent a year through until 1980. The boom is developing in the skin-care market and manufacturers are gearing up for a 40-per-cent production increase by 1979.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD COLEBOURNE

Colebourne—Wiggins

Joanne Elizabeth Wiggins and Edward Robert Colebourne were joined in marriage on July 12 in Christ Anglican Church in a ceremony conducted by Rev. Peter Tett.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wiggins and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Colebourne of RR 1, Cobyville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer organza with short sleeves and a A-line skirt leading to a full flounce with a chapel length train. The bodice and upper portion of the flounce were trimmed with re-embroidered daisy lace, and the train was accented at the back bodice by a bow and buttons. Her full-length veil fell from a juliette cap of embroidered daisy lace accented by pearls.

Carol Wiggins, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marlene Adams of Kingston, Judith Evans of Hamilton, and Joan Pope of Toronto. The attendants wore swiss dot voile gowns that had solid pink bodices, and flared skirts with hemline ruffles. Over the sleeveless gowns they wore short jackets with long sleeves.

Anne Colebourne provided vocal music during the services.

Richard Colebourne was his brother's best man, and ushers were the bride's brother James Wiggins of Toronto, Richard Law of Kingston and Tom Lennox of Toronto.

A dinner and dance at the Belleville Yacht Club followed the wedding. After a cruise through the Thousand Island, the newly-married couple have settled in Belleville.

Ann Landers

Man's Best Friend— But Not Woman's

Dear Ann Landers: I'd feel better if my marriage was ruined by another woman, but it was a dog. Maybe I can wise up others whose sweethearts are canine crazy.

Tuffy was eight years old and had never been left alone. Whenever we wanted to go out my mother-in-law had to dog-sit or we'd take Tuffy over there, depending on how my father-in-law was feeling.

On two occasions my mother-in-law was unable to come and we couldn't leave Tuffy there because he barked so loud when we came to get him, he'd wake up my father-in-law.

I suggested that MY parents dog-sit but Bill said, "Strangers make him nervous." So we stayed home.

I begged Bill to start leaving Tuffy for short periods of time until he became used to it. He said, "No, he'd get upset."

Finally, I went to our clergyman. He advised me to go out alone and said Bill would soon agree to come along. Well, it didn't work out that way. In desperation, I told Bill he had to choose between me and the dog. He chose the dog. I'd appreciate some comment from you, Ann.—Man's Best Friend But Not Woman's

Dear Friend: No sign of Bill's incredible immaturity during courtship? How long did you know this little boy?

Consider yourself lucky to have gotten out of the marriage early. Any husband who would prefer his Bow-Wow to a wife would be a lousy husband.

Dear Ann Landers: When a person applies for a marriage license, is it mandatory to give your correct age and the number of previous marriages? I need this information soon. Thanks very much for your help, Ann.—Altar-Bound

Dear A.B.: I smell a rat—in fact, a couple of them. I strongly suspect you have not levelled with your intended in regard to your past—which is a poor way to start off a marriage.

Laws vary, but you might be asked your age as well as about previous marriages. If you falsify this information, the marriage would still be valid—provided you are of legal age, and you are not legally marred to someone else—but your spouse may one day learn you lied and such deception might prove humiliating as well as permanently damaging.

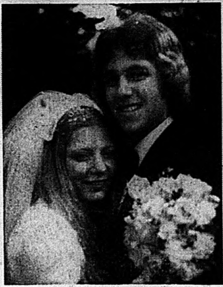
Dear Ann Landers: I am 32 years of age, in good health and full of pep. Luck smiled on me six months ago and made me a bride. Frankly, I had given up hope—and then this wonderful man came along.

We both love children and Ray would be a terrific father. I would give anything to have a baby but two years ago I had fibroid tumors and my gynecologist removed my uterus. I still have both my ovaries, however.

In this age of medical miracles, would it be possible to have a uterus transplant? Please ask your consultants and let me know.—Either Pink Or Blue Would Suit Me Fine

Dear P. Or B.: Sorry, at this writing there is no record of a successful uterus transplant. I suggest you look into adoption or take a foster child into your home. You and Ray sound like a couple who would make wonderful parents—and I hope it happens soon.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS ELLIS



MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL FLIEGER

Flieger — Wood

Brenda Marjorie Wood and Michael Donald Flieger were joined in marriage by Rev. J. B. Mitchell in a ceremony June 28 in Westminster United Church,

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wood, of RR1 Ameliasburgh, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Geraldine Flieger.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of caydal over sharkskin with a high neckline and long sleeves. The front and back bodice featured alencon lace with green ribbon inserts and the skirt hem ruffle had the same lace trim. A four-tier waist-length veil fell from a crown headpiece, and a bouquet of yellow roses, white carnations and baby's breath was carried by the bride.

Janet Barron of Ottawa was maid of honor in a green floral empire-line gown with a ruffle at the hem. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Sandra and Monica Wood, sisters of the bride, Nina Flieger, the groom's sister, and Rosanne McGarvey, wearing gowns in yellow, similar to the maid of honor and carrying identical bouquets.

The bride's brother-in-law, Gilbert Nisbet weas best man, and Chester Thompson, Karl Baldwin, Rick and Mike Watt were ushers.

A dinner and dance at the Elk's Lodge followed the wedding. After a trip to Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Flieger have made their home at 128 Sidney Street.

Ellis — McDonnell

St. Paul's United Church Stirling was the setting for the summer wedding of Shirley Anne McDonnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan McDonnell of RR 3, Stirling and Dennis Charles Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis, of Campbellford.

Rev. John May performed the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess-style gown of flocked nylon over taffeta with a roll collar pintucks on the bodice accented with lace and satin ribbon, and long full sleeves trimmed to match the bodice. A back tie fell along the self-train, and a waist-length illusion veil was caught by a headpiece of flower petals. She carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses, carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's sister-in-law Linda McDonnell was matron of honor in a yellow princess-style gown with short puff sleeves and a roll collar. The bodice was trimmed with yellow velvet ribbon outlined with a self-frill.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister Suzanne McCourt, and the bride's cousin Janet Hodges, who wore peach-colored gowns in a style identical to the matron of honor's.

The groom's niece Tammy McCourt and the bride's nieces Pamela and Connie Lee McDonnell were flower girls in dresses matching the matron of honor's.

Casey Francis was the groom's best man, and his ushers were the bride's brothers John and Myles McDonnell.

After a reception in St. Paul's Church parlor, the newly-married couple travelled to Niagara Falls and the United States on their honeymoon. They now live at 210 Portage Street, Campbellford.

African Cults Flourish In Roman Catholic Brazil

SALVADOR, Brazil (Reuter) — Squatting on a green throne under a picture of Lemanja, mermaid-goddess of the sea, the high-priestess of the Candomble cult holds court.

Black and white, rich and poor, the sophisticated and the illiterate flock to her hilltop temple, testifying to the strength of the voodoo-type Afro-Brazilian cults in what is nominally the world's largest Roman Catholic country.

Now over 80, her black skin ravaged by time, Mae Menininha (Mother Little-Baby-Girl) stretches out her hands in blessing, revered by all.

When she holds her religious ceremonies, the drums beat out in the night, the women clap, chant and dance, the faithful shriek, contorted and convulsed in a trance, as the spirits take possession of their bodies.

And the blood flows from the goats and chickens sacrificed to the spirits of distant Africa.

The city of Salvador and Bahia state, of which it is the capital, is the heartland of Brazil's African heritage and Mother Little-Baby-Girl is probably the most respected of all the high-priestesses here.

More than 50 years have passed since she was initiated, her head shaved and daubed with the blood of the sacrificial animal, on the first of the many stages that led to the high-priesthood.

Three years ago, when she celebrated her diamond jubilee as a "Mae de Santo" (high-priestess), authors such as Jorge Amado, composers such as Vinicius de Moraes, scientists and politicians paid homage in her hilltop temple amid images of the cult saints Oxossi, Xango, Nana and Obulate.

But there are countless lesser priests and priestesses and temples throughout the country, and countless other demonstrations of African and native Indian traditions in modern-day Brazil.

It is impossible to say with accuracy how many people participate in one form or another in the various African cults. Some estimates put it as high as 75 per cent of the country's population of 105 million, ranging from the unemployed to high-paid executives.

There is evidence of the cults everywhere. In the most sophisticated areas of Rio de Janeiro, inhabitants place candles, cigarettes and a bottle of cachaca (sugar cane alcohol) at street corners on Friday and Saturday nights as an offering to the spirits.

Along the sea shores they burn candles and bury pieces of paper with prayers written on them.

Around their necks they wear the "figa," a wooden fist with the thumb placed between the index and middle fingers to signify male and female genital organs, for fertility and protection from the evil eye.

Throughout the country's favelas (shanty towns) and in the chic neighborhoods there are innumerable "terreiros"—places of worship often no more than a straw-covered shack.

In Rio de Janeiro some estimates put the number of greater and lesser priests of the various Afro cults at 30,000.

The cults arose with the arrival in Bahia state of the slaves from Africa centuries ago. They could not practise their own religions openly since they were forced to become Christians.

But they gradually assimilated Catholic and native Indian practices to their own traditions, giving rise to Candomble and similar cults such as Umbanda and Quimbanda.

The deities were syncretized combined with the Catholic trinity and saint figures—Oxala becoming the equivalent of Our Lord of The Good Arrival, Omolu with Saint Lazarus, Xango with Saint Jeronimus, Oba with Joan of Arc, and so on.

Heavily tranquillized bears offer no resistance as Ted Rutherglen, a conservation officer with the British Columbia fish and widlife department, pulls them from a trap near Nelson, B.C. Garbage left on doorsteps of some local residents bring the bears out of the bush. The trapped bears are tagged, weighed and then taken to another watershed area and released. (CP Photo)

Bears Said Victims Of Human Behavior

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — "Bears are victims of human behavior," says Ted Rutherglen, a conservation officer with the British Columbia fish and wildlife branch.

He blames people—not the bears—for conditions that have brought the animals out of the bush, onto the doorsteps of some local residents, and into a special trap he designed to capture them.

The area surrounding this southeastern B.C. city has always been a favorable bear habitat because of the climate, Mr. Rutherglen said in an interview. The wet lands, fast vegetation growth, mild winters and moderate temperatures have allowed one of the highest bear populations per square mile in the province.

Before the trend to country living became popular, bears could seek food in lowland areas and feed off farmland, seldom being seen, he noted. Today, the increase in country homes has made that difficult.

Mr. Rutherglen has relocated 500 bears from the area since 1968 and has received consistent complaints about them since then.

He blames local community dumps and human ignorance for creating what is developing into a full-time bear problem.

Most dumps are on or beyond the fringe of timber, Mr. Rutherglen said and if not surrounded by bear-proof fencing, are easily accessible to bears.

Around Nelson itself, the problem is not the dump but the residents. Open compost heaps and garbage left on doorsteps attract bears to unsuspecting residents.

"There are people who want to live in [illegible], but fail to realize they should be able to do so in harmony with the creatures that belong there," said Mr. Rutherglen. "Many accept this and really try; others want to have city benefits on the fringe of timber."

But bears haven't always presented such a problem. In the mid-60s, dumps were created and, in 1968, unusually cold spring weather left late snow on the bears' upland habitat, forcing them to move down to the rivers for food. The bears then found the dumps, said Mr. Rutherglen.

When he receives a complaint from a bear-troubled resident, Mr. Rutherglen first sets up a bacon-baited trap of his own design on the property. When the animal is caught it is tranquillized, tagged, weighed, and a small tooth is extracted, from which the bear's age may be determined.

The trapped bear is then taken to another watershed area and relased. Mr. Rutherglen said he is reaching 85-per-cent rehabilitation success with the bears.

Irving 'Feels Better' For His Prison Term

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Clifford Irving, "Con Man of the Year" in 1972, strolls barefoot on the lawn overlooking a sunny inlet of this seaside resort. He affectionately nuzzles a pretty German woman friend and says: "Life is good. It always was."

Fine spirits for a man who a few days later declared himself bankrupt and for one still up to his neck in legal proceedings from the 1972 fracas that erupted from his fake autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes.

After serving 17 months in prison on charges of conspiracy and fraud, Irving, 44, moved here last July. He passes the time playing tennis, dining with friends and dabbling at pure fiction—a new novel he describes as an "erotic romance" about three women and a man living in the Hamptons.

"I'm sorry I got caught. And I'm sorry I involved my wife Edith, and I'm sorry I put my children into such jeopardy," said Irving, referring to emotional difficulties he says his young sons, Barnaby and Nedsky, now 5 and 7, experienced when both parents were in jail.

"But I feel better and more experienced for having gone through it all. It was exciting. And there's a certain satisfaction from meeting difficulties, conquering them and coming out relatively whole."

He said he has tried to block out the whole experience of prison life, where, by his own estimation, he was a "troublemaker." He said he was placed in solitary confinement a few times and was accused of being the ringleader of a prisoner's strike.

But he ruefully admits he's forced to think about the Hughes book all the time.

"The Autobiography of Howard Hughes" with the prefix "Auto" crossed out, was recently published in Spain. But Irving is being sued by Rosemont, a Hughes organization which owns the rights to Hughes' name, to stop publication of the book in the United States.

He says he is flattered that people on the street still recognize him and indicated a certain sentimental fondness for the book which friends say he is anxious to see published.

Irving and his fourth wife, Edith, are separated. She lives on the Spanish island of Ibiza with the two children. He doubts they will bother with divorce since neither wants to marry again. Irving has arranged for a showing of her paintings in Southampton this summer.

He was asked whether he was still in touch with Nina Van Pallandt, the blonde beauty who was instrumental in unravelling the hoax and whose sudden fame launched a short-lived singing and acting career.

"I don't know whatever happened to her, but I hear she came upon a patch of bad luck," he said. "I felt good when I heard that: I think she behaved in very poor taste."

Irving exudes that same cocky air that he mustered right up to the last days of his trial. But he says he was near tears when he heard himself described by the judge as "the biggest loser I know."

His book-about-the-book, What Really Happened, failed to make money. He says legal fees are eating up whatever resources he has from a few lectures and magazine pieces.

A few days later, his lawyers filed an application for voluntary bankruptcy in Brooklyn Federal Court. They listed his assets at $410. His debts were a bit more than that: $55,884,248.01 to be exact.

The bulk of that debt, they said, represnts a $55-million libel suit pending in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. The suit was filed by Fernand Legros, an artist who was the subject of an earlier and ironically-titled Irving book called Fake.

Has all this turned life sour for Irving?

"It's fruitless to worry about the future," he says. "I have always been easy-going and irresponsible and things have always worked out."

Luxury Books To Be Published

TORONTO (CP) — While most sectors of the publishing industry are becoming more cost-conscious, two separate projects now under way will result in books with price tags well in the hundreds of dollars.

These publishers are working to make the books as beautiful as possible on the premise that a luxury book is a work of art and will appreciate in value.

One of the new ventures is Basilik Press of London, represented in Canada by Griffin House of Toronto. Its first book, to be published soon, is a facsimile of one of the most beautiful books ever printed in Britain, the Kelmscott Chaucer. It will sell for $495.

Basilik plans to publish three books a year; the other two this year will be The Australian Flower Paintings of Ferdinand Bauer, tentatively priced at $720, and The Red Books of Humphry Repton at $840. Repton was the most influential 18th-century British landscape architect.

Rizzoli International Publications, a new company formed by one of Italy's largest publishers—Rizzoli Editore of Milan, will publish limited editions of luxury art books and high-class dictionaries.

Roger Boulton, marketing director of Oxford University Press in Canada, which represents Rizzoli, said: "Over the years, it has been our experience that luxury art books and quality dictionaries are two forms of publishing that are almost immune to recession and austerity."

The Kelmscott Chaucer will be produced in a limited edition of 500 copies, but at $495 each the book will bring in almost $250,000, assuming all are sold.

The type is specially designed condensed Gothic called Chaucer and the illustrations are from original woodcuts. The book is printed on hand-made paper with a rag content of 85 per cent and the binding is linen.

The original was published in 1894 as The Collected Works of Geoffrey Chaucer by William Morris at his Kelmscott Press in England. Hailed as "the noblest book yet achieved by any English printer," Morris limited the edition to 425 copies and sold each for today's equivalent of £225, not far off the price of the new edition.

How's Your Hearing?

Montreal — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

This is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so write for yours now. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. [illegible], Beltone Electronics of Canada Ltd., 3637 Metropolitan Blvd., E., Montreal H12 2K2, P.Q.

Where to find a 10¢ pay phone.

The cost of making a local call from some pay phones in Belleville, Picton, Trenton and surrounding areas is increasing to 20 cents. But there are still 10 cent pay phones around. And we'd like to tell you where you can find them.

The 10¢ Pay Phones
Generally, you'll find these phones on sidewalks, in railway and bus stations, hospitals, nursing homes, rooming houses and churches.

The 20¢ Pay Phone
Pay phones in most other locations, such as hotels, airports and restaurants will go up to 20 cents.

Pay Phone Emergency Calling
At the same time, a new service will be added to all outdoor pay phones. What this added service does is enable you to reach the Operator, Directory Assistance and Repair Service without depositing a coin.

From now on, when you're calling from a pay phone, look for the information card above the dial. It clearly tells you whether it's a 10 cent or 20 cent pay phone.

Old Cartridges Peddled As Lebanese Souvenirs

BEIRUT (AP) —Street urchins now are hawking spent bullets and old cartridges to motorists as well as their usual wilted roses and carnations.

"That's Lebanon for you," said Elie Estefan, director of the ministry of tourism. "Perhaps the trouble is not over yet, but the Lebanese have to use heir heads if they want to save their economy."

The bullets come from city suburbs which were the scene of savage street fighting between various Lebanese religious and political factions in April, May and June. The fighting left 2,314 dead, according to unofficial counts, and more than 16,000 wounded.

It also severely damaged Lebanon's big revenue earners, tourism and the shipment of goods from other countries through this country.

Some businessmen hope for a swift recovery, citing the nation's spirit of free enterprise characterized by the young street salesmen.

"It's not like the Lebanese to sit home at night," said Estefan.

"The Lebanese are always optimistic. We have the capacity to rebuild anything that is destroyed. If there is no trouble in the near future the hotels will be full again."

But Hans Luis Teufl, manager of the Phoenicia Hotel, believed Beirut will need "two years of quiet before any great number of American or European tourists come back."

The Phoenicia lost nearly $500,000 in June alone because of the fighting, Teufl said.

"It's really embarrassing," said Teufl. "This place has such potential, but with the fighting people ruin business for themselves."

Beirut earns about $450 million annually in tourism.

"Beirut is not just a city," said Habib Leteif, another director in the ministry of tourism: "Its festive atmosphere is a way of life and that is what brings people here."

But trouble has also become an accepted fact of life in Lebanon.

Border unrest between Lebanon's 250,000 Palestinian refugees and Israel, to the south, puts this country in the middle of a raid-reprisal cycle.

Internal disputes have been fought out by private militias since 1958, when United States Marines landed in Beirut to prevent a civil war. Both 1969 and 1973 saw heavy fighting between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas.

This year, the army managed to stay out of street battles, leaving right-wing Christians to bale radical Palesinian guerrillas and their left-wing Moslem supporters.

In the past, Lebanon's economy had always recovered within a few months. While the summer season was wiped out by army-guerrilla fighting in 1973, for example, 1974 proved to be a record year for tourism in Beirut.

This time an uneasy ceasefire and unsettled political problems have kept the country on edge. Many Lebanese believe there may be more fighting before next year's general elections.

"Lebanese do not feel secure, so how can a stranger feel secure?" asked Viken Minassian, assistant manager of the Palm Beach Hotel which has less than half of its 90 rooms filled.

"Businessmen are obliged to come to Beirut," said Adib Anasthase, general manager of the city's famed St. George Hotel. "But for the tourist it will take more time."

Progress Threatens Paradise of Thrifty

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Six years ago Marcel Pages decided he had had enough. His rooming house in nearby Vancouver was giving him nothing but trouble so he made up his mind to sell it and retire. He thought he would just find himself a room somewhere.

"But the rents were all so high. People wanted $80 a month for nothing worth living in. I already had this place here on Dyke Road, sort of a summer home. I looked it over and said to myself I'd give it a try. And then I moved in and I've been here ever since.

"You couldn't ask for a better place to live."

Along with perhaps a dozen other residents, Mr. Pages lives in a shanty at the eastern tip of Lulu Island, near New Westminster. His yard looks over the Fraser River, gently flowing past nearby Annacis Island.

Mr. Pages said that despite inconveniences he couldn't give up his peaceful home.

"We do have electricity but there's no running water. I get mine from the fire hall. I've even got a little garden of my own here.

"When I first got the place it hardly cost me anything. And the rent from B.C. Hydro, who own the land, is just $[illegible] a year. Where else could you live in Vancouver for $30 a year?

"But the prices have been going up. I think the last couple of places that sold went for $2,000 apiece and a fellow offered me $3,000 for my place not long ago."

There is no security along the dike as B.C. Hydro has the tenants on a month-by-month lease.

"So," said Mr. Pages, "we could all be out of here in 30 days or still be here six years from now."

Someone who knows about that kind of insecurity is Tony Stranan who has a houseboat beyond the Hydro land on an area leased by Brittain Steel.

It is a short walk down the gravel road from Pages' house. Houses are alternately ramshackle and sparkling. Plants in hangers and flower gardens abound.

But near the Stranan houseboat the environment changes. Here, dirt and rocks are in clumps and piles. A bulldozer has been over this area and levelled everything including the trees.

Mr. Stranan, who has been there for seven years, says it has been an idyllic plwce for him. But things have been going downhill.

Which used car would you rather buy?

All other things being equal, most people would probably pick the car on the right. Which is interesting.

Since the only difference you can see is a Ziebart sticker.

Whereas in matter of fact, it's what you can't see, and probably won't see, that makes the car on the right a wise choice. And that's rust.

The original owner (cagey rascal that he was) saw to that by bringing the car to Ziebart when it was brand new. Again, all things being equal, ~~he~~ ensured that the car would stay young looking for a lot of extra years.

Because once we get a hold of a new car, rust is in trouble.

First, one of our factory-trained technicians would look up the exact make and model of your car in our exclusive Technical Manuals. (They contain over 2,000 pages. Cost us $250,000 a year to produce. And nobody else has them).

They will allow him to pinpoint precisely where all the hidden, rust-prone sections are, deep inside the inner structure of your car's body. (Almost like having X-ray vision).

Equally important, they tell him exactly where (and where not to) drill the tiny holes, that allow our nine patented spray tools access to every nook and cranny of your car's interior body shell.

Then this vulnerable inside metal will be sprayed and coated with Ziebart's unique sealant. Finally, little yellow plugs are inserted in the holes and the Ziebart sticker is placed discreetly in the rear window.

All of which brings us back to our sticker and this moral:

No matter whether the car you're driving is new, or not-so-new, you can be certain of one thing. If it's got a Ziebart sticker in the window, you can be sure you didn't get stuck.

Air Canada to Cut Trips

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada may cut back some unprofitable flights to ease its current financial difficulties, an airline spokesman said during the weekend.

Faced with a large deficit this year due to declining traffic, the publicly-owned airline may implement lower excursion fares, special weekend rates and flight cutbacks, the spokesman said.

"We assume there will be cutbacks on flights, but we won't cut any routes; we have an obligation to serve Canadian cities," he said. Special "incentive fares" will be worked out and further details will be announced within a few days.

The airline's projected growth rate for 1975 was eight per cent, but traffic volume is down two per cent for the year and 15 per cent for the peak summer period.

Strathroy Woman Slain

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — A 62-year-old woman found dead Saturday in her home in this community about 20 miles west of London had been strangled, police said Monday.

An autopsy to determine the cause of death was held Sunday on the body of Frances Gibbons.

Police said they have no motive for the killing—no sexual attack was involved but they are checking the woman's bank account today to see if any large sum of money had been withdrawn recently.

The body was discovered after a newspaper delivery girl noticed the woman, who lived alone, had not been collecting her papers for several days. The time of death is not known.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Jamaica has donated a painting depicting Jamaican folklore to a Cuban government cultural organization, the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina reported.

Davis Is Made Chief

CURVE LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis became Chief Big White Brother in a ceremony Monday at the Ojibway reserve about 20 miles northwest of Peterborough.

Mr. Davis was made honorary chief of the 600-member band in a ceremony conducted by the band's chief, Elsie Knott.

Chief Knott presented the premier with a head-dress which Mr. Davis noted was in the blue and white colors of the Progressive Conservative party.

Par 72 Wins Motorland Pro

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

The score wasn't near a record for the tournament, but the weather didn't exactly cater to low scores eitherl as Brampton Golf and Country Club pro John Hendricks took home top prize in the fifth annual Motorland Chrysler Pro Tournament here Monday at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

The 18 hole round was the topper of the three day Golf Festival, held on the Trent Road Links each Civic Holiday weekend. Other events in the three-day affair included a mixed doubles tournament, and a three flight men's tournament.

Scorching temperatures were in evidence throughout the day, with strong westerly winds playing havoc on the scores of some 50 club pros from around Ontario.

Hendricks had finished the regulation 18 holes with a par 72, with nines of 36 and 36, for a tie with Bobby Breen, playing out of Toronto's Oakdale Gold Club. The pair then went to sudden death holes, with Hendricks taking the victory on the second.

Hendricks and Breen each broke even on the tough par four first hole.

Breen thn boegied the par four second. He missed a 25-foot putt for par. Hendricks sank his 15 footer from about the same line on the green, for his par, and the victory.

"It's not the best golf I've ever played here", said Hendricks, retreating from the second hole where he collected the victory, "but it's sure the best I've done."

His previous best was a 73 a couple of years back, when he was in the money, but well down the list. Today's 72, a wind-blown par, was good enough to win the whole thing for him.

The par score was six off the record 66, turned in by touring Canadian pro Gary Slatter, of Bayview Golf Club, two years ago, when he had his crack at the Motorland title.

Only thre golfers broke par that day, on a rain-soaked course, while Monday, in the heat and wind, none of the pros could break the 72.

Hendricks took home the top prize of $350 for his victory, with Breen picking up $275 for his second place finish. Hendricks also picked up $100 for closest to the pin on the par 3 18th. He landed his tee shot 6'6" away.

Checking in a 73 were Ned Bean, of Peterborough, Frank Wibley of Scarborough, and ex Motorland title holder, and Dave Clayton, of Oakville.

A pair of former champions were in at 74. Al Paterson, of Bayview, last year's winner with a 68, shot two over, as did record holder Slatter.

Gary Bowerman, a former US touring pro, now teaching out of Toronto's Weston Club, led a group of five with 75s. Jack Ellison of Mississauga, Paul Dove of Richmond Hill, Ken Duggan of Markland Wood, and Frank Gallagher of Glen Shields joined the former Belleville resident.

Bay of Quinte pro, George Balaz, shot a 78, the best he has shot in his years of playing host to the tourney.

Tripp Takes Amateur Title

The tough Bay of Quinte Golf Club was hard on the professionals that invaded it for Monday's round, but at least two of the amateurs who tackled it, fought back to par the course.

Playing in the Men's A Flight, Trenton's Gord Tripp and Larry Povo, of Picton, each toured the par 72 in the regulation number of strokes, to tie for the low gross title in that division.

Tripp wound up taking the title with a sudden death victory on the first playoff hole. Tripp shot a one-over, five, on the par four first hole, while Povo could come up with only a double bogey six.

Not to be denied his glory, however, Povo's 72, along with his five handicap gave him the Low Net title with a 67. Trenton's Len Coward checked in with a 68 net to take second low net.

In B Flight, Cliff Dell, of Bay of Quinte, who marked his 42nd birthday Saturday, celebrated by shooting a 74, and carting off top honors in low gross. Steve Bourque was three shots back at 7.

Robbie Hinchcliffe was in with a 67 net to win B division, with Trenton's Orval 'Red' Gravelle, right behind him, at 68 to take second.

Bill Brady's 80 was good enough to top the C Flight low gross. Playing out of Techumseh, he edged Dalewood's Joe Dukewitz by two strokes. Bay of Quinte had the two top low net scores with Jim Alexander coming in with a 63, the same as Don Doublas. Alexander was awarded top prize after officials sorted through hole-by-hole scores.

Doug and Jane Schlicter of bined for a 7 in the Mixed doubles event, held Sunday morning, for top honors in the low gross category.

Scotty Traynor and Joan Smith, both from CFB Trenton, teamed up to take the low net prize, putting together a 65 net.

Purinaettes Only Victors In Weekend PWSU Action

The sun may have been beating down on the Quinte area in copious amounts on the Civic holiday weekend, but for two of the three area teams involved in Provincial Women's Softball Union Playoffs, the weekend showed nothing but dark clouds.

Although the Madoc Purinaettes won their first game in second round Intermediate B action, the Belleville Yardmen bowed out of their Intermediate A series with Lakefield, as did Belleville Broadloom in their Intermediate BB series, with Brockville.

Sandra Fleming allowed nine hits on the Madoc mound, but no runs, as her Purinaettes team whitewashed Oshawa Legionettes, 7-0. Fleming struck out seven and walked four in picking up the win Jenny Black was pounded for 12 hits on the Oshawa rubber.

Bonnie Jones rapped a double and two singles to pace the Purinaettes attack, with Bonnie Thompson and Joan Bailey each stroking two singles. Leona Yfowski and Irene McSwary each singled twice in defeat.

Second game of the best of three set will go Wednesday night, in Oshawa, with the bus leaving Kramp's BP Station in Madoc at 6 p.m. It will stop at the Gulf Car Wash, on North Front Street, Belleville, at 6.30, for interested city spectators.

The Belleville Yardmen fell to Lakefield, although taking them to the full three game limit. They won the first contest but lost the next two. Lakefield came up with a 7-1 win, in Lakefield, Sunday to wrap up the series.

Shirley Gulliver started the game on the Belleville mound, but was pounded for five runs, on three hits and three walks, before being lifted in the second inning in favor of Sandra Claus, who finished. Claus allowed two of the five Lakefield runs in the second inning, striking out three and walking two in the seven and a third frame she worked.

Cheryl Batley gave up only six hits in pitching the win, whifffing five and issuing only one walk.

Sheila Smith had half of the Belleville hits, with three singles, while Claus had a triple and single, and Nancy Birch a three bagger. Batley led the winners' attack, with three singles, while Isabel Nichol had a triple and single.

The Yardmen now are relegated to the AA series, with the first game to be played Tuesday night, in Oshawa. Game time is set for 8.30 and the bus will leave Quinte Mall at 6 p.m.

It was the end of the line for Belleville Broadloom in PSWU play this season, dropping two straight games to Brockville, after bowing in their first series, with the Purinaettes. The Broadloom crew lost 7-1 in the first game, and were pummelled 16-6 in the second.

Sue Fobert went the distance in the opener, giving up 13 hits, all but one of which were singles. She fanned three. Mary Anne Sills had a double to lead the losers and Norma May added two singles.

In the second game, Brockville lashed out 20 hits to take the contest and the best of three series, although Belleville checked in with 19 safeties of their own.

Roseanne Hovinga had four singles to pace Belleville, with Mary Anne Sills contributing a triple and two singles. Chris Fyke and Helen Sills had three base hits each.

Mary Anne Sills and Fobert shared the loss, striking out five and walking six between them. Nancy Dye went the distance in the win, fanning four and walking the same total.

QFL One-hitter

Don Holoway pitched one hit ball on Tuesday night for Devolin Motors, to move them into sole possession of second place in the Quinte Fastball League.

The win came over the Ellis Juniors, by a 5-0 margin.

In the other QFL contest Auger Men's Wear upset Bardon Supplies 4-2 to move three points ahead of the Juniors in the playoff race.

Holoway struck out five batters enroute to the win. He walked three Junior hitters because of early control problems.

Paul Wilson went the distance in the loss allowing 10 Devolin batters to reach base on hits while walking one and sending five to the bench on third strikes.

Ralph Plane was the driving force for the Devolin offence as he pounded three singles to account for three RBIs. Jim Horwood singled twice while other singles came from Dave Horwood, Rick Rosebush, Gary Johnson, Bevan Clarke and Holoway.

The only Junior hit came from the bat of Steve Campbell, he doubled.

Front running Bardon Supplies was stopped cold in the second game of the QFL doubleheader when Auger defeated them 4-2.

It took two runs in the top of the seventh for the Trenton team to give Bardon their first loss in a number of contests.

Darryl Kramp was the winning hurler. He threw a six hitter with one walk and five strikeouts.

Ken DeMille and Earl Foster shared the loss. They were touched for seven hits and issued no walks while striking out 12.

Bob McAlpine had the hardest hit ball of the evening. His shot went 250 feet over the centre field mark for a four bagger in the second inning.

Other hits were contributed by Jim Livingstone with two singles and Joe Theriault, Brian Gariepy, Dave Akey and Kramp with a single apiece.

Tuxedo Miss Hangs On to Win Feature

Tuxedo Miss, five-year-old bay mare withheld a late drive by Lucky Homedale to take the Benson and Hedges Preferred Pace at the Quinte night, taking the winners' share of the 650 purse.

Tuxedo Miss, with Murray Samons in the sulky, picked up her fourth win of the 1975 season, in a time of 2:08.4, the fastest of the 10 race card. Arctic Frost was third, a half-length behind Lucky Homedale.

Harry Burkitt drove the second place finisher, while Joe Caruana was in the bike behind Arctic Frost.

The winner returned $850 to win, $530 to place and $270 to show. Lucky Homedale paid $580 and $550, while Arctic Frost paid $380 to show.

Tuxedo Miss is owned by Tony Monahan and Charlie Meagher of Peterborough.

Juniors Earn Opener

The Ellis Juniors killed two birds with one stone on Friday night at the Kemptville Senior - Junior Tournament.

By defeating Carlsbad Springs 5-1, the Juniors not only advanced in the tournament, they took their first win in the OASA Junior "A" playoffs.

John Sprackett allowed only four hits and came through with seven strikeouts in the win.

Bob Campbell doubled for Belleville to give them the only extra base hit.

On Saturday the Juniors went on to play Bath in the next stage of the tournament. Paul Wilson was the winning pitcher by a 3-2 score.

Wilson allowed four hits and no walks and had five strikeouts in the effort.

Again there was only one extra base hit in the win. It came from Peter Stailkovich who doubled to drive in a run. Other run scoring hits came from Pete Wilson and Wayne Andrews.

That was as far as the Juniors were to go, as Aurora defeated them 3-0.

John Sprackett was saddled with the loss as he struck out four batters.

Win Three of Four on Weekend

Patience Pays Off For McDonald's Fans

By TOM GAVEY
Staff Sportswriter

After weeks of predictions the Belleville McDonalds finally put it all together and won three out of four games on the weekend.

"I knew we could compete in this league (Ontario Fastball League), now we've finally proven it," said manager Harold Reid.

SCOTT REID

The Macs defeated Woodstock on Saturday night 3-0 and 3-1, and then played another doubleheader on Sunday night, losing the first game 2-1, but bounced back to win 4-2.

On Sunday night some beads up ball by the Macs, and no less than four errors by Newmarket in the second game of the twin bill gave Belleville the victory.

It was 2-2 going into the sixth inning when Newmarket's defence seemed to fall apart and Belleville runners took full advantage of the lapse.

When the smoke cleared, Newmarket had made two errors, Paul Goodfellow was on third on a passed ball and Belleville was ahead, for good.

Scott Reid was the winner, his third victory in OFL action, he allowed five hits, walked two and sent six Newmarket batters to the bench on third strikes.

The loss went to Bill Lunney, described as Newmarket's "hard luck" pitcher by one member of the Rays management. He gave up six hits and walked only one Belleville player. His strikeout total was three.

Gary Goyer made his presence felt at the plate for Belleville with two singles. Paul Goodfellow doubled and Terry Meagher, Peter Harrison and Glenn Carleton each singled.

In the first game of that twin bill hard luck saw Ted Waite take a 2-1 loss. It was the fifteenth time this year the Macs have lost by one run.

Belleville had a 1-0 lead going into the sixth, when Les Chaisson, who had made two errors in the game, decided to redeem himself by slapping a triple to left field. He scored on a long fly ball to tie things up.

In the eighth, Newmarket scored again to take the win.

Bob Domik was the winning hurler. He gave Belleville batters just two hits, walked three and struck out six. He also had trouble with his fielders, as they made three errors behind him.

Waite allowed seven visiting batter to reach base on safeties. He also issued three free passes and sent seven to the bench on third strikes.

The two Belleville hits were, a double from Steve Ling and a single by Waite.

Les Downing was the biggest threat for Newmarket. He singled and tripled and also walked twice.

Against Woodstock on Saturday night Belleville was followed on the field by someone called Lady Luck.

Actually luck only had a little to do with it, as Belleville put out a fine effort and seemed to get some breaks for the first time this year.

In the opening game, Reid shutout the Warriors 3-0.

The hitters for the Macs were also in fine form, as Carleton and Ling both pounded home runs. Carleton's was a towering drive over the right field fence, his first in OFL action. Ling's was an inside the park drive deep to left field.

GARY GOYER

"He turned on his after burners on that one" said Ling's mentor Harold Reid.

Scott Reid allowed three hitters to reach base on safeties, he issued one free pass and struck out one Warrior.

The loss was absorbed by Bill Fidlin, who allowed eight Belleville hits and walked none while striking out eight.

JIM CHASE

Besides Carleton's and Ling's four baggers, Goyer singled, Larry Mavety doubled and singled and Peter Harrison, Meagher and Wayne McTaggart added one baggers.

In the nightcap luck really played a part in the Mac's victory.

Two Belleville runs were scored on errors in the 3-1 win.

The Woodstock defense had much the same problem as Newmarket's on Sunday.

Chase was the wining hurler, his second victory of the year. He gave up four hits and one walk and sent six Warrior batters to the bench shaking their heads.

Bob Eccles was the loser a lowing six Belleville batters reach base on hits, walking one and faning one.

Goodfellow singled twice, Goyer cranked a double and singles came from Ling and Mavety as well as a run scoring single from Meagher.

Their showing this weekend give Belleville seven wins for the year with 17 games to go.

The biggest difference over the weekend was on defence as Belleville made only one error in four games. The opposition had nine.

The next Macs games are on the road, Saturday for a single game in Burlington, Sunday in Kitchener for a doubleheader.

Lockhart Continues Stingy Playoff Pitching

Norm Lockhart continues to lead his Post Office team through the Belleville Industrial League playoffs on the strength of his pitching arm. After firing a no-hitter last Thursday night against Mead Johnson, Lockhart came up with a two-hit performance Monday night, and the Posties dumped Mead's, 5-1, in one of two games played. In the other contest, Brooke Bond slammed Constellation 7-2. Both wins gave the teams 2-1 leads in the best-of-five series.

Lockhart left 12 batters watching third strikes and did not issue a free pass in fashioning the two-hit win. Fred Davis on the Mead Johnson mound, gave up eight hits, walking two, and not managing a strikeout.

Jim Burke, Soup Campbell, and Bob Wludyka each doubled for the winners, with Lockhart, Bill Leitch, Steve Cronkwright, Bill Pearce, and Eric Tugnette each stroking a single.

Dave Dolan, with a double, and Mark Reid, with a single, were the only ones to reach Lockhart.

Tom St. Jules fired the win for Brooke Bond, allowing six hits and striking out five. Ken Kerik was charged with the loss for Constellation, giving up nine hits. He struck out five and walked two.

St. Jules also led the way at the plate for the winners, with a double and single, with Lou Rivers, and Larry Bilham each adding a two bagger. Neil Goyer had a home run and single in defeat, with four others each singling.

Rally Breaks Tate's Heart

NEW YORK (AP) — Montreal Expos broke Randy Tate's heart with a single, then broke his back with a home run.

The sudden outburst in the eighth inning cost the New York Mets' rookie a no-hitter, a shutout and a baseball game all in one brief moment Monday night.

"I thought the ball would be caught," Tate said about Jimmy Lyttle's single that broke up his no-hitter with one out in the eighth and started the Expos to a 4-3 victory over the Mets. "I knew the ball wasn't hit hard—and I thought it was up high enough so that one of our outfielders would grab it."

But the ball dropped in for the Expos' first hit of the night—and Tate's heart dropped into his stomach for a moment.

"It made me feel bad at the time," said Tate. "But Joe Torre came over from third base and talked to me and gave me a pep talk. He said, forget about losing the no-hitter and start worrying about a shutout."

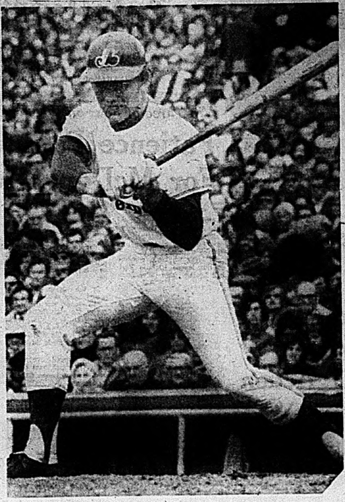
As it turned out, Tate had everything to worry about—and nothing to show for his night's work but his 10th loss of the season.

Pepe Mangual followed Lyttle's hit with a walk, Tate fanned Jim Dwyer for his 13th strikeout of the night, then Gary Carter singled for Montreal's first run before Mike Jorgensen hit a three-run homer to give the Expos a 4-3 lead.

Pitching the best game of his rookie year with the Mets, the right-hander relied on a heavy assortment of curve balls to dominate Montreal through the first seven innings. Shortstop Jack Heidemann made a fine play on Pepe Frias' sixth-inning grounder to preserve the no-hitter through that juncture.

After Tate struck out Jose Morales leading off the eighth, he continued to bear down even harder. He tried to get a curve ball by Lyttle but he hung it too high and the pinch-hitter hit a soft liner that dropped between three Met fielders.

Then came the Montreal fireworks that wiped out a 3-0 Met lead built on a fifth-inning rally highlighted by Gene Clines' two-run triple.



Mike Jorgensen—Three-run Blast

Ontario Wins Women's National Softball Title

MONCTON N.B. (CP) — Scarborough (Ont.) drove in four runs at the top of the first inning Sunday and held on for a 4-2 victory over Moncton Rebels to win the Canadian junior womens softball championship.

Donna Bnnett lead the way with a three-run homer, her third four-bagger of the tournament, to give Scarborough pitcher Sue Thompson the win.

Wendy Daley suffered the loss, but her tournament earned-run average of 1.45 was enough to win her honors as Most Valuable Player and best pitcher.

The Rebels waited until the fourth inning and the bat of Nancy Geldart before their offense began to roll. Miss Geldart botted a triple which scored one run and minutes later she stole home on a wild pitch.

Earlier in the day the Rebels had dropped a 9-3 decision to Scarborough. Five singles coupled with three New Brunswick errors and a walk in the fifth inning gave Ontario six runs and broke open a scoreless deadlock.

Claire Reed scattered seven hits in going the distance for the Ontario club.

The Rebels were able to keep their championship hopes alive later in the day by downing Lashburn (Sask.) Bluebirds 4-2. The loss eliminated the Bluebirds from further play in the double elimination finals.

A nine member all-star squad was announced following the game by tournament officials.

The lineup placed Bluebird pitcher Della Summers on the mound with Montreal's Debbie Huband behind the plate.

The all-star infield selections included Sharon Rose of the host Moncton club at first base, Scarborough's Donna Bennett at second, Newfoundland's Tammy White at third, and Mike Dollard from the Bluebirds at shortstop.

The outfield selections included Sonya Singer from Nova Scotia, Siona Skurjat from Scarborough, and Norma Reid from the Moncton Rebels.

The best batting average of the tournament was posted by Dawn Storey of the Victoria (B.C.) High Grade Hotel club who posted a .529.

Macs Still 21 Out Despite Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Belleville McDonalds, last place in the eastern division of the Ontario Fastball League with only four wins, won three more games in weekend action.

But despite almost doubling their win total for the year, the McDonald's remain 21 games behind league division-leading Newmarket Rays.

Newmarket defeated Belleville 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheador Sunday but the McDonalds took the second 4-2.

Home runs from Steve Ling and Glenn Carleton sparked Belleville to a 3-0 win over Woodstock Warriors in the first game Saturday and Belleville won the second 3-1.

In other doubleheader action Sunday, Kitchener Evergreens won the first contest 3-1 and St. Catharines Mr. Jackets took the second by tht same score. The other game Sunday—Woodstock at Oshawa Tonys—was rained out.

On Saturday, Hamilton Waxman Scrappers beat London Dukes by scores of 6-0 and 2-1.

Action resumes Tuesday with Burlington Provisioners visiting Oshawa, Hamilton meeting Toronto Globals, both doubleheaders, and Kitchener travelling to London for a single game.

CANADA-USSR WIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The world champion Soviet Union team won its fourth game of a pre-Olympic water polo tournament Saturday, beating Cuba 9-7. Canada had a 5-4 victory, handing Mexico its fourth loss of the tournament.

Bolts Break NLL Stalemate

LANDOVER, Md. (CP) — Boston Bolts pulled out of a three-way tie for fourth place in the National Lacrosse League, dumping Maryland Arrows 12-8 Monday night.

The Bolts moved two points ahead of the Arrows and idle Quebec Caribous. Boston has 17 wins against 20 losses and two ties for 36 points. The Arrows are 17-20.

Joe McRea and Stan Cox scored two goals each for the Bolts, outshot 50-48. Brian Tasker and Bill Coghill had two goals each for the Arrows.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, league commissioner Gerry Patterson said he has fined Ron Ryan of Philadelphia Wings $250 and suspended him for one game as a result of intentional physical contact with referee Noel Turner in a game last Wednesday against Boston.

Goaltender Merv Marshall of Long Island Tomahawks was fined $100 and suspended for one game for the same offence in a July 28 game at Uniondale, N.Y.

In weekend games, Maryland nipped Montreal Quebecois 16-15 Saturday and Quebec clubbed Boston 16-11 Sunday.

Cards Edge Pirates 5-4

Davis, McBride; One-two Punch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Davis owned the locker room stage after his game-winning hit against Pittsburgh Pirates Monday night and the St. Louis Cardinals outfielder obviously relished it.

An offering by Pirate starter Jerry Reuss in the eighth inning obviously fooled Davis and he admitted it: "I threw the bat at the ball. That was the only way I was going to hit the ball."

The bat met the ball, regardless of form, and the ball blooped over second base. Bake McBride, off and running with two out, scooted home from second with the decisive run in a 5-4 Cardinals victory.

In other National League baseball action Monday, Montreal Expos ruined New York pitcher Randy Tate's bid for a no-hitter and beat the Mets 4-3 while Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Atlanta Braves 9-1, Cincinnati Reds beat San Francisco Giants 7-5 and Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 5-3.

In Sunday action, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader 5-4 and 4-3 over the Mets; Chicago beat St. Louis 6-3 in the first game and lost the second 7-4, San Francisco edged Houston 5-4 and lost 10-9 in another double while Philadelphia edged Montreal 5-4, Atlanta beat San Diego 5-1 and Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 3-1.

WILLIE DAVIS

Saturday, it was St. Louis 4, Chicago 0; New York 6, Pittsburgh 0; San Francisco 8, Houston 7; Montreal 4, Philadelphia 3; Cincinnati 1, Los Angeles 0 and Atlanta 8, San Diego 6.

At St. Louis, Davis and McBride first combined in the Cards' two-run first inning with McBride scoring on a flyout by Davis.

Jose Cardenal's tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning moved Chicago past the Phillies in a game delayed more than 2½ hours by rain.

Cincinnati's George Foster hit a grand-slam homer in the eighth inning and Ken Griffey's tie-breaking double in the ninth beat the Giants and enabled the Reds to maintain their 15½-game lead over Los Angeles in the West Division.

Homers by Willie Crawford, Dave Lopes and Bill Buckner and Steve Yeager's two-run single led the Dodgers' rout of Atlanta. Los Angeles pitcher Burt Hooton scattered eight hits, including Darrell Evans' homer.

Greg Gross' tie-breaking two-run single capped a three-run seventh inning that pushed the Astros past San Diego.

Red Sox Hit Cold Snap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox, the red-hot leaders of the American League East Division, suddenly cooled out Monday night when they ran into a 16-hit Baltimore Orioles attack.

Home runs by Brooks Robinson, Bobby Grich, Don Baylor and Ken Singleton led the Orioles' 12-8 win after the Red Sox had taken a 6-1 lead.

"I don't know a hitter who doesn't like to hit in Fenway Park," said Baylor after collecting five hits, including his 17th homer of the season, and leading the team mugging of three Boston pitchers.

The assault ruined the evening for a season-high 35,868 Red Sox rooters, who saw their heroes' five-game winning streak snapped despite home runs by Carlton Fisk and Jim Rice.

Grich and Robinson each had three-run homers, Baylor's was good for two more, and Singleton added a solo shot in cutting Boston's division lead to 8½ games.

In other AL action, Texas Rangers beat Oakland A's 12-0, New York Yankees defeated Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, Kansas City Royals beat Minnesota Twins 6-5 in 10 innings, Chicago White Sox defeated California Angels 4-2 and Cleveland Indians beat Detroit Tigers 6-4.

Sunday, Boston beat Detroit 6-4, Milwaukee defeated Baltimore 4-1, New York beat Cleveland 12-1 in the first of a doubleheader and lost the second game 3-2, Minnesota swept a double over Chicago 7-4 and 12-9, Kansas City blanked Oakland 5-0 and California beat Texas 6-4.

Saturday, it was Texas 8, California 2; Oakland 6, Kansas City 5; Baltimore 6, Milwaukee 1; Boston 7, Detroit 2; New York 5, Cleveland 3, Minnesota 4, Chicago 1 and Minnesota 8, Chicago 3.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a six hitter as Texas embarrassed Oakland without the benefit of a home run.

Texas pounded Ken Holtzman for two runs in the first and three in the fourth—more than enough for Jenkins to raise his record to 13-12.

Thurman Munson's eighth-inning single scored Fred Stanley from second base, helping New York hand Milwaukee's Bill Travers his sixth consecutive loss.

Bobby Bonds drove in the other Yankee run with a third-inning sacrifice fly, while Robin Yount's sixth-inning single temporarily tied it for Milwaukee.

Fred Patek's 10th-inning single boosted Kansas City over Minnesota, halting the Twins' four-game winning streak and bringing the Royals within eight games of first-place Oakland in the West Division.

Tony Oliva's sacrifice fly off winner Doug Bird, 7-4, gave Minnesota a 5-4 lead in the top of the ninth but John Mayberry sent the game into extra innings with his 23rd homer of the season in the bottom of the ninth.

Busy Schedule In Girl's Softball

The girls saw plenty of action in the Belleville Minors Softball Asociation over the past week.

In the Junior division the Dairy Queen walloped Reids Dairy 25-1. The next time Dairy Queen played they managed a tie with Branch 99, 21-21.

Little Misses really went out to hit against Reids Dairy, with a 43-5 win over them.

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund defeated Dixie Lee, 9-0, by default in the other Junior Girls games.

Senior play had Stirling Sheet Metal over AVCO 11-9, in one of the weeks' closer games.

In the Intermediate division UCERA defeated Cosy Grill 26-2, Lynn Lucas took the victory, Sherry O'Neil singled four times.

UCERA had a good week, as they also defeated Belleville Conductors 32-12.

Tebby's Texaco defeated BYBF 29-23 and Claytons TV trounced Dairy Queen 31-4.

Quinte Drive In was victorious 28-23 over the Dairy Queen and Clayton TV won 9-0 over Belleville Conductors to round out the Intermediate play.

DEFEATS CANADA

OTTAWA (CP) — Istvan Gass scored three goals as the Hungarian under-23 national team defeated a Canadian team composed of Ontario all-stars 11 0 in international exhibition soccer Sunday. The Hungarian team is to play two games against Canada's national team, in Toronto Tuesday and in Montreal on Sunday.

L'Enjoleur Takes Derby

WINNIPEG (CP) — L'Enjoleur, Canada's Horse of the Year in 1974, won the $50,000 Manitoba Derby Monday to the surprise of few in the crowd of 7,829 at Assiniboia Downs.

The three-year-old colt, owned by Jean Louis Levesque of Montreal and ridden by Sandy Hawley, moved to the front with ease after half of the nine-furlong event and then held his opposition at safe distance.

Two lengths back in second place was Royal Morn, who had passed Western Dangler in the final turn.

Scott Tyler was fourth, followed by Rusty Gold and Peter Jack.

L'Enjoleur, son of Buckpasser, lived up to advance billing to win the race, but his time of 1:50 1-5 was well off the track record of 1:48 set in 1971 by Speedy Zephyr.

However, Hawley said the 1975 Queen's Plate winner was almost back to his top form of last year when he was the leading money-winning two-year-old in North America.

L'Enjoleur earned $34,857 for his owner, but less for the fans who wagered $64,478 on the race. He went to the post with prohibitively low odds of 1 to 20 and paid $2.10, $2.30 and $2.10.

Royal Morn, a son of Royal George and owned by Canada West Ranches of Calgary, paid $3.30 and $2.10, and Western Dangler of Elmbrook Stables paid $2.10 to show.

Levy, Williams Dispute Rule

MONTREAL (CP) — Coaches Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes and Jerry Williams of Hamilton Tiger-Cats got involved in a tactical disagreement on the eve of their clubs' Eastern Football Conference game tonight.

The subject was the use and abuse of the Canadian Football League's new rule permitting blocking above the waist on punt returns, and the outcome posed the possibility of fireworks tonight.

Williams appeared to condone disregard of the stipulation that punt coverage men give the return man five yards leeway, taking a 10-yard penalty but precluding a long return.

Levy with the league's most explosive punt returner in Johnny Rodgers, disagreed. He said that once it became obvious a team was ignoring the five-yard rule, officials should be able to assess an additional 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty, making the total cost of the tactic 25 yards.

"We were in a position to receive nine punts against Saskatchewan last week," said Levy, referring to Montreal's 24-20 loss to the Roughriders.

"One was blocked and one went out of bounds. On the other seven, there was flagrant disregard for the five-yards rule and four were called."

Levy put an end to the exchange, saying: "Let's just put it this way—if the defence is told to go in and block a kick without worrying about the kicker, and they happen to break his leg, then it's regrettable."

MARV LEVY

In another pre-game development, the Alouettes placed slotback and third-string quarterback Dave Lewis on waivers and then recalled him for a five-day trial.

Lewis has had knee problems and Levy said the roster juggling avoided placing him on the injury list and losing him for more than the Hamilton game. American defensive back Lewis Cook will take Lewis' place in the lineup tonight.

Meanwhile, Williams declined to say who will start at quarterback for Hamilton. Jerry Keeling and rookie Jim MacMillan have received equal attention in practice.

"Keeling is ready to play," Williams said of the veteran recently acquired from Ottawa Rough Riders.

"He's assimilated some of the offence—not all of it, but enough. He's a fine quarterback."

Byman Wins Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ed Byman, who defeated U.S. touring professional Lee Trevino in the Mexican Open last year, carded a three-under-par 69 Sunday to win the $14,500 Manitoba—open golf tournament.

Byman, making his first stop on the Canadian tour this year, finished three strokes ahead of the field with a 54-hole total of 208, eight under par on the par-72, 6,506-yard Breezy Bend Golf Club.

The victory was worth $2,900 to the 25-year-old bachelor from Boulder, Colo., who now plays out of Manzanillo, Mexico.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg fashioned a two-under-par 70 in the final round for a 54-hole total of 211, three strokes ahead of Terry Wiens of Vancouver, and Homenuik pocketed $2,175. money of $1,450 after an even-par 72 in the final round for a 54-hole total of 214, two under par.

Gar Hamilton of Toronto and John Elliott of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., both closed with rounds of 70 for three-round totals of 215 to share fourth spot. Each player collected $1,015.

At even par after final rounds of 70 were Don Graham of Calgary, and Don Klenk of Glenellyn, Ill. Both players won $652.

St. Kitts Stopped

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A strong closing finish by United States entries Sunday failed to keep the St. Catharines Rowing Club from winning its 15th consecutive championship at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

The Americans won 13 of the 18 final events Sunday while the St. Catharines club ran away with the Maple Leaf Trophy with a whopping 319 points in the final standings.

That was 147 points more than the second-place United States national team which closed with five gold medals Sunday, including a win in the prestige Championship Eight event.

The Mexican Rowing Federation placed third with 142 points. Toronto Argonauts, 138; New York Athletic Club, 138; Detroit Boat Club, 109; University of Western Ontario at London, 106; Ecorse, Mich., 92; Wyandotte, Mich., 86 and Ridley Boat Club of St. Catharines, 78, rounded out the top 10 of the final standings which included 42 club entries.

Set Dates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins said Thursday they will play four National Hockey League exhibition games here this fall. The games are scheduled for Sept. 25 against Buffalo, Oct. 1 against St. Louis, Oct. 2 against New York Islanders and Oct. 4 against New York Rangers.

Red Sharks on Streak

The Red Sharks of the Belleville Minor Softball Association Bantam Division won their seventh straight game and moved into a tie with the Police Association in recent play.

They picked two wins, one over the Police Association, 8-7, and another over he SACO Peewees 19-11.

They now have 19 points thanks to two consecutive wins by pitcher Ray Ellis.

Squirt action saw Ernie Tuck Appliances trounce Belleville Plaza 22-6. Steve Moore took the victory, with assistance from Jody Millar, who doubled and had two singles.

Sidney Inn had no trouble against William Belch, as they romped to a 34-4 victory.

BMBA Roundup

Strong Effort By Jim Wright

Jim Wright pitched a strong game for Trudeau Motors and came way with an 18-5 victory over Kinsmen in the Tadpole Division of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

Wright struck out 13 batters on the way to his win.

Derek Gallagher, Robert Jones and Wright all homered for the winner.

Belleville Conductors had no trouble with Legion House Dart League, defeating them 12-3. Mike Pineapple picked up that victory.

The Conductors won again, as they defeated Trudeau Motors 10-14 in a close match. Brain Chrispopher and Jim Crouchman took the win, striking out ten. Bob Jons took the loss.

In Tyke play Alhambra 109 defeated Bob Sullivan Auctioneer handily 26-9. Ron Stratherx took the win.

Dwight Embury homered and tripled in the victory, along with a double and a single to go the full circuit.

Peewee action saw H&M Variety take Bob's Sports 23-9, with Al Carlington and Dan Manning hurling the victory.

Jeff Hannah homered and tripled for the winners, while Al Carlington doubled and singled. Larry Mavety hit three singles for the losers.

Bantam play had Kinsmen defeat Mulroney's Sunoco 12-6 with Dale McTaggart tossing the win. The loss was shared by Louis Scanlon and Kevin Jeffs.

John Taylor and Jeff Dean both homered for the winners, while Jim Scanlon homered for the losers.

Pitching in the win was Bruce Wright, but it was his brother who stole the show. David Wright hit three home runs, a double and a single for a total of nine BIs in the game.

In a closer game, O'Neil's Stationery took a 16-12 win over Colonial Real Estate.

Joey Parker was the winning hurler, Jerome McQuaid smacked a grand slam home run to break the tie and give O'Neil the victory.

The Belleville Kinsmen Squirts took a 37-3 victory from Dixie Lee in Peewee action.

John Ramsey and Al Thompson shared the win, with Ramsey hitting two home runs and two singles, Dennis Tam homered, singled and tripled.

Richard Ellis Printing outscored Legion Branch 99 21-4 in their contents. Rusty Downey and Todd Unens hurled the win, Downey had a homer and two triples.

Town and Country went on a hitting spree against Nelles Realty, winning 42-8 in Tyke action. Brian Clarey pounded three home runs for the winners, he also tripled and doubled.

Richard Ellis Printing defeated Sun Luck Gardens 9-0 by default.

WINS TROPHY

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — Peter Isaac of the Gimli Yacht Club won the Manitoba Centennial Trophy Sunday for the best over-all performance during a two-day Olympic training regatta. Isaac posted a handicapped time of three hours, 19 minutes, and 55 seconds for the course, to edge out fellow club member Allan Kristofferson in his Lightning by 27 seconds.

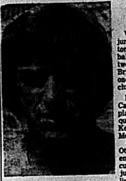
Injuries Big Factor in WFC Contest



PETER LISKE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Injuries will be an important factor in tonight's Western Football Conference game here between Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions, the second this season btween the two clubs.

Peter Liske, obtained from Calgary last season, will replace injured Don Moorhead at quarterback, B.C. coach Eagle Keys told a news conferenc Monday.

And Bubba Bridges, former Ottawa Rough Riders defensive end, will replace Bob Larson, cut because of a hamstring injury, on the Calgary defensive line.

Dick Wesolowski will replace tight end Henry Sovio, out with a back injury, on the Calgary offensive line.

Keys said Moorhiad injured his left shoulder when hit during Wednesday's game by Calgary defensive tackle John Helton.

"It's doubtful he'll even dress, but I'm going to wait," said Keys.

Middle linebacker Ray Nettles, kingpin of a defence that was badly chewed up Wednesday when Calgary defeated B.C. 30-28, will play with a hip pointer.

Veteran defensive back Joe Fourqurean, who injured a knee against Calgary, will start as will Calgary linebacker Blain Lamoureux, despite a broken thumb and shoulder injury.

Peter Palmer will replace rookie linebacker Paul Girody, on the 21-day injury list, at linebacker.

Palmer, released by the Lions before the regular season began, was called up Friday.

The Lions also cut defensive end Gerry Ellison and activated rookie Canadian Wally Saunders.

Calgary coach Jim Wood told the news conference that veteran Fred James will be replaced at defensive tackle by Lorne Sherbina.

"James hasn't played well," said Wood. "Sherbina did a good job when he got in there last week."

Karl Douglas, traded by the Lions as part of package for Liske, will start tonight at quarterback.

Douglas didn't start Wednesday, but came off the bench to lead a 16-point scoring effort and win the game.

Both Keys and general manager Jackie Parker are under some pressure to win big this season. Keys is in his last year of a five-year contract and Parker works on a year-to-year basis.

The Lions have a 0-2 record and Calgary is 1-1. The game will not be televised.

WINS WALK

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernd Kannenberg of West Germany won the International Competitions 1975 20-kilometre walk Sunday, covering the distance in one hour, 35 minutes and 44 seconds to take the gold medal.

Confusion Cup

COWES, England (CP) — The Admiral's Cup yachting series was in confusion today following disputes over Monday's 30-mile inshore race.

Red Rock III of Argentina, under skipper Robert Mandelbaum, was Monday's winner on corrected time while West Germany took over the points standings ahead of the United States.

The team standings, however, were provisional pending a decision by the series jury.

Mercedes IV of Australia, Don Alberto of Argentina, Mandrake of Italy and Ceil V of Hong Kong were reported to have started early and could be disqualified or penalized.

Bumblebee of Australia, Sanuma of Spain and Wah Wah Too II were first across the finish line Monday but ended well down the list on corrected time.

Second on corrected time was Yoeman XX of Britain with a time of six hours, 21 minutes and 58 seconds, just 51 seconds behind the Argentine winner.

Robin of the U.S. placed third in 6:22:18, followed by Pinta of West Germany, 6:23:21; Rubin of West Germany, 6:24:07; Noreyma of Britain, 6:24:45 and Battlecry of Britain, 6:25:09.

Kanata, under skipper-designer Vladimir Plavsic of Vancouver, placed 43rd in 6:43:57 and Diva, a boat chartered from Norway and skippered by Stephen Tupper of Vancouver and Bruce Sully of Goderich, Ont., placed 46th in 6:47:13.

The abandoned car is on the road to recovery.

There they sit.

Ugly, rusting eyesores.

Cars, abandoned in the night because they don't run anymore, they don't shine anymore. They don't do anything anymore but blotch fields and ruin landscapes.

What can we do?

We can put them on the road to recovery. Which is exactly what the Ontario Ministry of the Environment is doing.

The Ministry has initiated a program to get abandoned cars out of the fields and into recycling plants where valuable materials will be recovered and used.

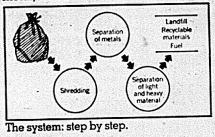
Three test programs have been completed, and a pilot project is under way in Temiskaming. The Ministry is now negotiating with 16 other municipalities in Ontario to start local programs as soon as possible.

Is it worth the trouble?

Five hundred thousand abandoned cars—that's how many are dotted across our beautiful province—say yes. It would be worth it just to get them out of sight.

But recycling abandoned cars will do a lot more than that.

Each heap will yield a ton of metal, metal we won't have to mine.



The system: step by step.

Metal we shouldn't mine, because our supply of natural resources won't last forever.

The road to recovery.

One of the main drains on our natural resources is the ever-increasing amount of garbage we all produce.

The Ministry is looking for ways to cut down on that amount.

And it's starting to re-use our garbage. Recycling abandoned cars is just one example.

Practically all of our garbage will be processed in recycling centres to be built right across the province. They'll turn garbage into valuable resources like fuel, landfill, paper, cardboard, metals.

The first of these centres is underway in North York. The rest will be strategically placed through Ontario in the next 15 years, with a transportation system and transfer stations to keep the whole network flowing.

When the system is fully operational, 90 per cent of Ontario's garbage will be recycled for re-use. The need for dumping grounds and landfill will be virtually eliminated.

It's a long and complicated road ahead.

But the route is clearly marked. And it leads to recovery.

IN MEMORIAM

SULLIVAN — In loving memory of a precious daughter Shannon Patricia who was accidentally killed August 5, 1973.

Many a day her name is spoken,
And many a day she is in our thoughts.
A link in our family chain is broken,
She is gone from our home but not from our hearts.
—Mom, Dad, sister and brothers.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my deepest appreciation to the many friends, neighbors and relatives for their prayers, flowers, cards, visits and all the help and concern while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital and Kingston General Hospitals and since my return home. Sincere thanks to the doctors, nurses and staff on 6th level at B.G.H. and all my doctors, nurses and staff at Watkins 3rd level at K.G.H. May God bless each and every one as he has me.
Anita O'Hara.

Marsh Perfect Stopover For Migratory Wildfowl

DOVER MARSHES, Ont. (CP) — Birds in this area near Windsor have found a resting area. But it appears that naturalists and wildlife enthusiasts cannot yet call the wildlife reserve a visiting point.

The Canadian Wildlife Service bought the 600-acre wildlife reserve for birds and animals a year ago. Residents in the area have become increasingly anxious to visit the secluded site.

As the former Dover Marshes Hunt Club, it was created more than 30 years ago by rich American and Canadian sportsmen as a private duck-hunting preserve, one of many in the area.

The service, part of Environment Canada, bought the land from the owners in its plan to buy back as many existing marshlands in southwestern Ontario as possible.

"Every time a marsh is sold, there is a good chance it won't continue to be a marsh for very long," said Jim Collins, a wildlife service officer. "It is usually turned into a marina or a farm.

"And the owners of this club built an excellent marsh here. They probably didn't know what they were doing, but through 30 years of trial and error, they created the perfect resting ground for migratory birds."

The marsh, originally a pasture which was diked and then flooded by sportsmen, has reverted to its original marshy existence. Its sections of cat-tailed areas intermingled with shallow ponds, are eagerly sought by migrating ducks, geese, swans, great blue herons, American eagles and other marsh birds.

Other animals inhabit the marsh. They include water snakes, rare turtles, weasels, minks, muskrats, racoons, foxes and special animals.

The marsh is in the direct migratory path of most waterfowl that fly between northern Canada and the United States every year, Mr. Collins said, and therefore an excellent resting and nesting area results from the marshes.

Since most migrating birds are traditional about their stopover points, the wildlife service officials said they were glad to pick up the area so easily.

"Tradition means a lot to waterfowl," Mr. Collins said. "They don't change their patterns easily, so it is important to preserve their traditional resting places."

He said the service does not feed the birds, as in some bird sanctuaries, because the marsh is rich in natural food and there is no desire to disturb the natural pattern.

But persons visiting the area threaten to disturb the tranquil marsh's natural pattern, he said. Plans to open up nature trails, picnic areas and parking lots have been temporarily suspended. The Agricultural and Rural Development Act diking project around the Lake St. Clair shoreline is taking top priority.

"We don't want to build walking trails and other facilities and then find out the dike is going right through them," said Mr. Collins.

"The primary purpose of this area is to provide a place for birds to rest. They can't take too much disturbance."

He said the service will have to find some way to let visitors walk around the perimeter of the marsh and, at the same time experience the natural habitat of the interior.

Mr. Collins said the service may convert the duck blinds into naturalist huts where photographers or birdwatchers could sit for hours in camouflaged secrecy

Ancient Body Found

The Hong Kong branch of Peking's Hsinhua News Agency released this picture saying t was a photo of a 2,142-year-old body recently excavated in the town of Chinancheng in Hupeh Province in the People's Republic of China. Hsinhua said the body is about 5 feet weighs 116 pounds. Hsinhua said the body was fairly well preserved. (AP Photo)

Whites Missing Black Musicians

JOHANNESBURG, (Reuter)—One of the ironies of South Africa's racially-divided society is that whites are not able to enjoy live performances of an entire new subculture of Black African music.

Known in local parlance as "black rock" or "jazz rock," this music is making piles of money for all those involved in it.

There are black super-stars in South Africa who have gold discs to their credit and who represent to the republic's black majority what Elton John is to Britain and North America.

But the average white is unlikely to have even heard of them.

There have been occasions when the government has waived the law which prevents blacks performing before whites.

But the fickle nature of official policy on the arts has meant that this vast reserve of African musical talent has been mostly kept from young white rock fans.

A small minority of musically-aware whites has been able to acquire a taste for black rock through a loophole in the law which can allow concerts in private.

University of Witwatersrand here is among several insituations which have staged black bands for whites, and the audiences have invariably reacted with wild enthusiasm.

But in the sprawling black townships around the country's major cities, where black rock was born and where it is performed nightly, only the bravest and most dedicated white fan would take his chance for an evening's music.

For one thing, an official permit has to be obtained in advance. A thirst for music is unlikely to be considered sufficient reason for granting a permit.

Secondly, the ghettoes contain some violent men who might hack "Whitey" to pieces — even if he did happen to be a long-haired liberal with a loathing for apartheid.

The problem is surmounted to an extent by the numerous black radio stations, which pump out hours of rock and soul music daily.

In addition to local transmission, white South African fans can tune into programs from Mozambique, Swaziland, Lesotho and Botswana. These countries rely largely on the products of the South African townships.

Records of black bands are also freely available to whites, although the selection available outside the townships is limited.

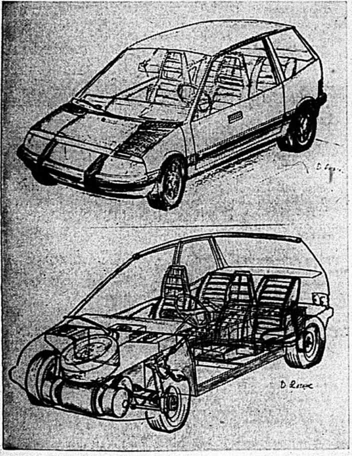
Probably the biggest superstar of the moment is 23-year-old Richard Jon Smith, a former porter at Cape Town's Groote Shuur Hospital.

Smith is officially designated a colored (mixed race) person, but could well be the country's leading symbol of "black is beautiful."

He is also one of the chosen few to have broken the race barrier.

Last year Smith was given permission by the department of community development to appear before both whites and non-whites on a tour of South Africa.

After Richard Jon Smith's tour there were high hopes among the scores of untapped black talents that things were on the move. So far these hopes have not been realized.



A Different Idea

Showbiz Briefs

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Twelve foreign film companies, including four from the United States, have been suspended from distributing their productions in Brazil, officials said Sunday.

The president of the Brazilian Cinema Institute, Alcino Teixeira de Melo, said the companies did not comply with an order that they have 80 per cent of the films copied in Brazil.

He added that the measure will stand as a formula to control the entrance of foreign film productions in Brazil "and to support our own productions."

Among the companies suspended were Cinema International Corp., Columbia Pictures, Fox Films and Warner Brothers of the U.S., and Shochiku Films of Japan.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "This is a positive dream come true for me," said the performer.

You could understand it if he was playing Hamlet on Broadway. If he had been cast in a film opposite Laurence Olivier and Katherine Hepburn. If he had been given his own television series.

But playing a gorilla? Yes, because Bob Burns is a gorilla nut.

When other boys were going to Saturday matinees and learning the names of their favorite cowboys, Burns was watching the comedies and memorizing the names of the guys in the gorilla suits.

A film editor at KNXT-TV in Los Angeles, he built his own gorilla suit about 14 years ago and began using it where he could—on an occasional TV show or a benefit for kids in a hospital.

But a couple of weeks ago he got a call to do 15 episodes of a new Saturday morning children's show for CBS, The Ghost Busters with Forrest Tucker and Larry Storch. Burns took his vacation and a leave of absence from KNXT and says he's having the time of his life.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wed Aug 6

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) You'll handle yourself today in a manner others will find attractive and inspirational. It will be easy to rally allies to your cause.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Now is a good time to get under way with creative changes you've been wanting to make for your residence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point to be as polite and tactful as possible with everyone tolay. A pleasant surprise is in store if you do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unusual conditions are brewing that could spell profit for you financially. Scurry around a bit for opportunities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be making some major changes in plans over the next few days. They'll prove beneficial. Let your insight guide you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Much of the sting will soon go from a situation that has been a barb in your side lately. Its negative effects begin to lessen today.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct. 23) Several persons of influence you know on a friendly basis will figure prominently in your affairs the next few days.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You know best what your priorities are now, and the type of returns you want. Keep your plans to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Act in accord with your highest ideals today, even though you may feel one you'll be dealing with isn't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A commercial situation you'll be involved in will have some fringe benefits not apparent at first. Explore them carefully before acting.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One with whom you'll be closely associated today has some rather sound ideas for something you can do as a team. Give them a try.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're going to make any important moves careerwist, timing now is in your favor. Cool judgment is a must.

To Your Good Health

Weight Loss May Lower Pressure

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I a 53-years-old and my blood presure is 170 over 80. My doctor does not believe in giving me pills for it. I lost weight, becaus he said my pressure would come down.

I weigh 152 pounds now (161 before). I am 5 feet, 6 inches tall. I am worried because everyone I talk to who has high blood presure tell me that I should be taking pills. Please advise. I don't know how high my blood pressure was before I lost the weight.—G.R.

Weight loss can, indeed, help control hypertension, and it would be important for you to know how high your blood pressure was before your weight lost. Ask your doctor about this. You may be in for a pleasant surprise.

I doubt that your doctor "does not believe" in giving medication to control high blood pressure. It might be more correct to say he would rather try conservative approaches where possible. Your case may fit into this category, where such approaches seem desirable.

If your present and subsequent weight loss has no effect on your condition, he most likely will turn to the medication. His seems to me a quite sensible approach. I trust you are restricting your salt intake also.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68-years-old and in seemingly good health. But I have low elimination, which has been described to me by my doctor as "bashful bowel."

Would a tablespoonful of mineral oil every other day help to end this problem, or is mineral oil useless?—B.W.

I am constantly amused by the colorful term my medical colleagues conjure up to give their patients, who promptly pass them on to me for translation. "Bashful bowel" is the latest.

A term used to describe an opposite condition is "greedy bowel," which mean copious absorption of material from the intestine.

Bashful bowel, I assume means a sluggish, "lazy" colon, also called atonic colon. For this, mineral oil is not useless, but it may extract vitamin A from the bowel contents before it can be properly assimilated into the system.

A "teaser" for your bashful bowel, such as milk of magneia or old-fashioned cascara, should help.

Better still, increase the bulk in your diet with more vegetables and fruits. Also establihing regular times for bowel movement, such as after breakfast, is most helpful in eliminating your bowel's "shyness."

A glycerin suppoitory inerted into the rectum may alo assist in movement until you can establish this regular rhythm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I haed a hysterectomy about six years ago, but still have my ovaries. I've heard pro and cons as to whether a person like myself needs a Pap smear.

I have asked my doctor and he says no since there is nothing t otake a smear of. He does give me a vaginal examination, and the nurse says that if things didn't look normal, he would recognize this.

I have a friend who says that her doctor insists on a Pap smear and she has had a hyterectomy. Can you explain this difference of opinion? I am a little concerned.—Mrs. E.T.

If a section of the cervix was left periodic smears should be taken. More recent techniques for this type of surgery do not leave any portion of the cervix. This may explain why your doctor says you don't require the smear and why your friend's doctor says she does.

Corporate Valuation Is Subject of Book

By SANDRA INGALSBE
The Canadian Press

The author of a new book on stock exchanges or overthat businessmen and their advisers have been misled by all the emphasis on stock market prices when appraising the worth of closely-held companies.

Ian R. Campbell, author of The Principles and Practice of Business Valuation, explains that there are major differences between widely-held companies—those traded on stock xchanges or over-the counter markets — and closely-held companies whose shares are not traded.

"If the shareholders of ABC Smelters think that their company should be valued at five times its earnings—just because that's what major public smelting companies are trading at—they are in for a shock.

"Yet that's what they've been led to believe—because virtually all literature published to date improperly ties public markt data to private market risk factors."

The book, believed to be the first to describe in depth the legal control of a corporation and how it influences fair market value, is aimed at businessmen and their professional advisers.

Mr. Campbell is national director of valuations of Thorne Riddell and Co., Canada's largest public accounting firm.

Legal editor of the book is Vancouver lawyer Robert W. V. Dickerson, recently appointed to the royal commission on the concentration of corporate power. The tax editor is another Thorne Riddell accountant, Robert J. Reid, a tax partner with a national firm.

Mr. Campbell says that businessmen do not pay enough attention to shareholder agreements and points out the problems of minority shareholders.

"Shareholder agreements generally do not spell out the intention of all the parties involved. Such agreements at times result in a minority shareholder realizing proceeds different than he anticipated."

The book also notes several contradictions in the revised Income Tax Act.

"The term 'fair market value" is neither defined nor embellished in the new tax act. Previously there were certain federal rules that influenced value determinations, which were generally consistent with provincial regulations. However, the federal government has eliminated these rules while many provinces maintained them."

These inconsistencies could thwart share transactions for the smallest and largest of companies, Mr. Campbell says.

The Principles and Practice of Business Valuation, Ian R. Campbell; 485 pages; $35; Richard De Boo Ltd.

Cash All Winners for Squeeze

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Most squeezes are rather simple. All you need to have a squeeze possibly, is all but one of the tricks in the form of high-card winners and potential low-card tricks in two suits.

Then, whether or not you know how to count a hand if you just run off all your high-card winners you may find that one of your low cards has become high.

Both Vulner.

West	North	East	South
		1♥	Double
Pass	2♣	2♥	4♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — 2♥

East starts off the defence by cashing two hearts. Then he shifts to the king of diamonds.

South takes his ace and is looking at a pianola. He has 10 sure tricks. The 11th may materialize by means of a successful club finesse, but South isn't going to risk his contract that way.

On the other hand, if he just runs off all his trumps while discarding down to three clubs in dummy he is going to squeeze East. On the last trump East will have the choice of chucking his queen of diamonds or unguarding his queen of clubs.

Note that the squeeze only occurs if South cashes his last trump. Remember, that as an essential to all squeezes, you must cash all your side-suit winners to develop your threats.

Ask the Jacobys

An Alabama tournament player asks, "We play weak two-bids with 7-11 high-card points and a good six-card suit. My partner criticized me for opening two spades with: ♠ A Q J 9 7 6 ♥ A 3 2 ♦ 8 4 ♣ 9 5 What do you say?"

We agree with our correspondent's partner. This hand should be opened one spade and not with a weak two-bid. It is too good for that preemptive action.

Replacements Installed

HALIFAX (CP) — Plastic surgeons here are installing artificial knuckles and finger joints using only local anesthetics. Plastic surgeon Dr. Winston Parkhill said five joints can be replaced within 90 minutes in the procedure. The joint replacements are an "end-stage treatment" for sufferers of rheumatoid arthritis here joints have become too distorted to respond to drugs or physiotherapy.

Trudeau Flies Home Too Tired to Talk

OTTAWA (CP) — A weary Prime Minister Trudeau returned to Ottawa from Helsinki on Sunday after a pleasant day in the Finnish backwoods waterskling, swimming and taking sauna baths.

An aid to the prime minister said Mr. Trudeau was too tired to talk with reporters following the visit—his fourth to Europe this pear—where Canada was one of the signatories of the European Security Treaty.

Mr.Trudeau topped off his busy week with a visit Saturday to a log cabin in southern Finland where, amid a relaxing atmosphere, he sat on a porch overlooking a lake chatting with the Finnish foreign minister.

On Sunday Mr. Trudeau rejected a three-hour drive to Helsinki and chartered his own amphibian aircraft to take him to the airport where a Canadian Forces Boeing 707 had been sitting since he and his party arrived Tuesday night.

On the grounds that he was too tired, the prime minister rejected a week-long request for an interview to put into context various Canadian endeavors in Europe over the last year—discussions over the composition of the Canadian NATO contingent, Canada's efforts to gain a contractual link with the European Economic Community and the country's search for new relationships to lessen dependence on the United States.

Mr. Trudeau is to give a news conference later this week to answer questions on Canada's decision to postpone the United Nations conference on Crime that was to be held in Toronto next month. The decision prompted the UN to switch the conference to Geneva.

The prime minister also is expected to answer question on allegations of corruption against Antonio Yanakis, Liberal MP for Berthier-Maskinonge.

In the latter case Health Minister Marc Lalonde, head of the Quebec federal Liberal caucus, has said the federal caucus will make any decisions about whether Mr. Yanakis will be suspended.

Search Coolers

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Monday searched picnic baskets and coolers at a nearby beach, and laid at least 12 liquor charges after receiving complaints from area cottagers. Police estimated there were about 2,000 people on Harmony Beach, 30 miles north of here, when the raid occurred. A police spokesman said that in addition to the liquor violations, 30 charges were laid under the Highway Traffic Act.

DRIVING ILLEGALLY

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — About 20 per cent of Karachi's motorists lack drivers' licenses, authorities said after a study that included spot checks of drivers.

Danson Assails Snooty Suburbs

TORONTO (CP) — Barney Danson, federal urban affairs minister lashed out Saturday at suburban residents who oppose public housing in their neighborhoods.

He said there is a moral obligation to share and "a mortgage doesn't give anyone the right to turn his neighborhood into a fortress."

"I don't want to see any child locked into a narrow, crowded, soul-killing urban environment just because some people believe that public housing should stay downtown," he told the weekend convention of the Canadian Organization of Public-Housing Tenants.

On Sunday, Ernie Rafuse, a community organizer from Nova Scotia, told the convention that residents of Canada's public housing want more affluent persons to live with them to end the stigma they claim is attached to subsidized housing.

He said he found that school staff from Halifax to Vancouver consider public-housing residents high-risk students who will be delinquents and this attitude makes these children feel like second-class citizens.

He said a solution to the public-housing stigma might be to build these housing projects in high-class areas and adjust rents to attract middle-class tenants.

GM Gave Liberals, PCs Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — An executive of General Motors Corp. says his company has contributed $50,000 each to Canada's two major political parties—the governing Liberals and the opposition Progressive Conservatives.

The GM executive, James Johnston, said this in a letter he wrote to United States Senate subcommittee investigaor Jack Blum on July 9.

GM officials told the firm's annual stockholders' meeting last May 23 that the contributions were legal under Canadian law.

GM Board Chairman Thomas Murphy refused at that time to disclose the amount of contributions, saying only that it was a "modest amount" in five figures.

Asked by a stockholder why GM made such contributions in Canada, while a competitor, Ford, apparently did not, Murphy replied:

"I can only speak for General Motors and General Motors of Canada and in accordance with the laws of Canada, they did make such contributions."

Murphy added that the contributions "were not taken from taxable deductions but were from business expenses."

Johnston's letter was made public Monday by the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, which is investigating foreign bribes and political payoffs by U.S.-based companies.

Hostages Still Held

Terrorists Wait Aboard Aircraft

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Five armed Japanese Red Army terrorists, still holding the U.S. consul and 14 other hostages, waited at the airport today to fly to another country. Difficulties developed in finding a country willing to take them.

The Japanese foreign ministry said in Tokyo it was making efforts to obtain Libya's permission for the terrorists to land there but that Libya had so far expressed reluctance. It said Japan was also asking Cuba, Syria and South Yemen.

"We cannot be very optimistic about whether Libya would accept the terrorists," said Japanese chief cabinet secretary Ichitaro Ide.

Malaysian officials, who had earlier reported Libya had granted permission for the terrorists to land, said snags had developed over such things as whether the terrorists could carry weapons on the flight and the size of the crew. There were reports the terrorists wanted to limit the crew to six, and the crew wanted 11. The crew objected to weapons.

The Japan Air Lines DC-8 which the terrorists and their captives boarded earlier today remained on the ground at the airport 14 miles from downtown Kuala Lumpur.

A government spokesman said two Malaysian officials would make the flight as hostages—Ramli Omar, parliamentary secretary to the communications ministry, and Osman Cassim, secretary-general of the home ministry.

It was not clear how the remaining 15 hostages would be removed from the plane or whether the terrorists would try to take them along.

The terrorists, masked and armed with automatic revolvers and hand grenades, left behind 28 of the hostages they had held in the U.S. embassy since they invaded the building Monday.

One of those hostages reported that the terrorists said farewell to the 28 with: "Sayonara. We are very sorry we had to do this to you."

Nine others were freed earlier. Four persons had been wounded during the two days.

The raiders left the 12-storey building that houses the embassy in separate groups, each in control of some of the hostages who walked to a waiting bus with their hands clasped behind their heads.

Police motorcycles flanked the bus for the 14-mile drive to the airport, where heavy security was enforced.

Among the hostages taken to the airport were U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins and Swedish Charge d'Affaires Fredrik Bergenstrahle.

At the airport the terrorists joined five radicals freed from prisons in Japan and flown to Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday on board a Japan Air Lines DC-8 in response to the raiders' demands. Four of the freed convicts were also members of the Red Army, a fanatical left-wing group, while the other was a member of a separate organization.

The terrorists boarded the plane while their five colleagues continued negotiations in an airport lounge with Malaysian officials on a possible destination.

Officials in Tokyo said the Japanese government had communicated with countries that might take the terrorists, but without success. They said Syria and Kuwait had refused, while replies were awaited from South Yemen, Libya and Algeria. But later the Malaysian spokesman said Libya had agreed to allow the plane to land there.

Cattle and Hog Trade to Resume

WASHINGTON (CP) — Saying he was moving to re-open the Canada-United States border to livestock trade, President Ford announced today the lifting of U.S. restrictions on the import of Canadian cattle, hogs and pork products.

Ford said he was taking the action in return for an agreement by Canada to lift what he described as "unjustifiable restrictions" on the import of U.S. live cattle.

In a formal White House statement, the president added that the actions by both countries will take effect Thursday.

Informed sources here say the agreement means Canada is removing all import quotas on live cattle from any foreign source.

U.S. quotas remain on the import of Canadian beef and veal products but high-level administration sources say these likely can be removed next year. Canada is also retaining its strict limits imposed in July on the import of U.S. eggs and egg products.

Red Power Top Threat RCMP View

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette quotes a confidential RCMP report submitted to solicitor-general Warren Allmand in Ottawa as saying Canada's "Red Power" Indian movement has become the principal threat to the country's security.

The newspaper says the report was prepared to brief Mr. Allmand for the United Nations international crime conference that was to have been held in Toronto later this month.

The federal government asked the UN to postpone the meeting after protests about the presence of the Palestine Liberation Organization in the country.

Before the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) crisis in 1970, the Gazette quotes the report as saying, it was possible for cabinet ministers to travel freely through the country.

But now, because of "red power" militancy, it has become necessary to look at each travel project carefully.

"The FLQ and other extremist Canadian groups of the right and the left are relatively tranquil and are not considered dangerous in the near future," the Gazette quotes the report as saying.

But the newspaper says the RCMP has learned recently that "certain Indian militants" have been collecting arms and making open threats of violence.

"And if their demands are not met rapidly, it is conceivable that the Indian militants will try to reach their objectives through recourse to violence."

FBI Wants to Talk To Hoffa's Foster Son

DETROIT (AP) — The FBI is studying some of Jimmy Hoffa's private notes in an effort to retrace activities of the ex-Teamster boss just before he disappeared, a source said today.

Hoffa vanished a week ago after he left for a scheduled luncheon meeting at a fashionable suburban restaurant.

FBI officials said Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, is one of several persons they would like to talk with, although there was no search for the 41-year-old union organizer who was raised by Hoffa from the age of 3.

It was not known precisely who else the FBI sought to interview.

The FBI refused to discuss Hoffa's notes, which were offered by his family. But a source close to the investigation said the material was "one of numerous" leads the bureau was pursuing.

A source said the notes include the names of union officials, business associates and politicians acquainted with Hoffa.

Hoffa's family posted a $200,000 reward Tuesday for information revealing the whereabouts "and-or leading to the safe return" of the missing former Teamsters union president and announced that persons wanting to add to the stipend could send money to "The Jimmy Hoffa Reward Fund."

Jay Bailey, the FBI's chief invesitgator, said that contrary to some published reports which apparently came from an FBI source, the bureau is working under the assumption that Hoffa is alive.

He confirmed that the FBI is working on several theories, and a source said one of the theories led to O'Brien and another led to Daniel Sullivan of Philadelphia, a former business agent for Teamster locals in New York City.

Allege FBI Wants Hearst 'Full of Holes'

NEW YORK (AP) — The father of sports figure Jack Scott says FBI agents offered him up to $200,000 to help them find kidnapped Patricia Hearst and told him they'd prefer to get her back "full of pullet holes."

John Scott's report of the money offer was promptly denied in Washington, where FBI spokesman Tom Harrington said "at no time" had such an offer been made.

The elder Scott appeared with his son, the son's wife Micki McGee, and professional basketball player Bill Walton at a news conference Tuesday to announce that the younger Scotts would refuse to co-operate with a federal grand jury in Pennsylvania.

The jury has subpoenaed them for questioning about reports that Miss Hearst hid out in a farmhouse rented by the Scotts at South Canaan, Pa.

Forty City Employees Get Parking Privileges

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

For 40 city hall employees, downtown parking is no problem. In fact, it's free.

Al Johnson, a spokesman for the city's treasury department said during an interview Tuesday the city this year paid out $1,200 to the parking authority to purchase 40 parking permits for city staff.

While parking permits generally cost $10 a month, the city pays $30 a year.

"The permits are only valid during corporation business hours (8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.)," said Mr. Johnson. "Employees can park anywhere, anytime within these hours."

He said the mayor and council are also supplied with permits but without the business hours restriction.

The question of parking permits arose this week when Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported his had been stolen. "The reason I noticed the permit missing was because I was given a parking ticket."

Weed Spraying Called Waste By Councillor

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Township weed spraying is a waste of money, says Sidney councillor Ernie Kells.

"All the weed spraying is doing is rusting the fencing," he said. "It isn't worth a damn."

Councillor Kells made these comments while council dicussed current work being undertaken by the township's roads department.

Reeve Gord Wilman said, "spraying seems to work well on roadside brush but it doesn't seem to hurt the weeds".

Council did not vote to curtail weed spraying.

A township spokesman could not give a firm estimate on what the municipality spends each summer on weed control but said "it's one of the township's smaller expenditures".

Angry Crowd Raids Reds

LISBON (Reuter) — Anti Communist riots spread through the conservative north of Portugal as the pro Communist Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves struggled to form a government.

Angry crowds who had been storming Communist party offices in the northern town of Famalicao for the last four days broke through a cordon of troops Tuesday night and sacked the building.

The soldiers, jeered as "murderers" and "Communist scum," put up no resistance and left the town in armored cars as the demonstrators wrecked furniture, files and emblems and set two cars ablaze.

Tempers flared when the body of a demonstrator shot dead by soldiers during an earlier assault on the building failed to arrive from nearby Oporto for a planned funeral.

The focus of the anti-Communist violence building up in the north for the past month then switched to nearby Santo Tirso, where crowds again wrecked the Communist party offices.

In both towns they smashed into apartments and offices believed to belong to Communists, and destroyed everything inside.

In Lisbon, doubts arose over the vote of confidence reported to have been given to Gen. Goncalves by leading military officers on Monday.

Some military sources said the meeting of 50 officers merely asked him to cotninue trying to form a government, without expressing personal support.

The attempt to unseat Goncalves during the weekend by Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, commander of the Copcon military security forces, appeared to have failed.

Carvalho, a revolutionary Marxist who rejects any party allegiance, had a political setback on Monday, reinstating a right-wing colonel he had just fired from the head of a commando regiment.

The apparent erosion of Goncalves' support in the armed forces reflects a growing feeling that popular sentiment is turning against the Communist party with which he is identified.

MONTREAL (CP) — RCMP officers seized 50 more sets of golf clubs in the Montreal area Tuesday, bringing to almost 200 the number of confiscated as part of a crackdown on possible illicit traffic in the sporting goods manufactured in the United States.

Quota for French

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government moved today to increase the number of French speaking public servants, effectively setting quotas within the ranks of federal employees. The announcement by Treasury Board President Jean Chretien is designed to fulfil objectives adopted by Parliament in 1973.

Prison Strike Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — The prisoner's union committee says a one-day Canada-wide pristoners' hunger strike will be held Sunday to press for a national prisoners' union. Keith Baker, spokesman for the committee, said the strike will be timed to coincide with the end of an 11-day work stoppage by prisoners at Millhaven Penitentiary at Kingston, Ont. The Millhaven strike was called in support of a similar action by prisoners at the British Columbia penitentiary in New Westminster, B.C.

Guerrillas Shot

TUCUMAN (AP) — Army troops have raided a guerrilla camp in a steamy jungle of northern Argentina, shot and killed eight guerrilllas and wounded several others who escaped capture, an army report says. Anti-guerrilla sweeps in the area have been conducted since early in the year. The People's Revolutionary Army is believed to operate guerrilla training camps in the area.

Montreal Seeks Help

MONTREAL (CP) — The city is seeking direct aid from the Quebec government to help pay Olympic construction costs now being financed through short term borrowing, a city official said Tuesday. Quebec has acted as a guarantor of loans to the city but it has so far made no funds available to defray Games construction costs.

Purple Paint His Own Idea

SMOOTH ROCK FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A 13-year-old boy returned home painted a bright purple but later turned an embarrassed red after a police investigation.

The boy told his parents that an older youth had tied him to a tree and sprayed him purple.

His parents called police who discovered that the boy and a friend had done an amateur paint job on themselves.

Police said when the boy found the paint could not be removed, he made up the tale of being tied to a tree to avoid parental discipline.

Rockets Fired

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas said they rocketed an Israeli border settlement early today and that Israeli artillery retaliated by pounding south Lebanon in a third straight day of border clashes.

The guerrillas gave no report on casualties, and the Israeli military command did not immediately confirm the attacks.

HAMILTON (CP) — Employees at three of four Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco) finishing plants in Montreal have ratified a new three-year contract identical to a contract ratified by Stelco employees here last week, the company anounced Tuesday.

Mercury Experts Coming

Japanese to Study Indians' Problem

KENORA (CP) — A team of Japanese specialists in environmental mercury pollution will visit Canada Aug. 10-21 to continue studies of mercury poisoning in the Wabigoon-English river systems begun earlier this year, the Treaty Three office announced Tuesday.

A group of Indians from the affected area returned last week from a visit to Japan where they exchanged information with mercury sufferers and researchers in the Minamata area.

The group includes Kenichi Miamoto, an economics professor at Osaka Municipal University; Jun Ui, a sanitary engineer, Nobuko Iijima, a sociologist, and Dr. Junko Nakanishi, a sanitary engineer, all from the University of Tokyo; Prof. Masazumi Harada, a neuropsychiatist, and Dr. T. Akagi, a pathologist, both from the University of Kumamoto.

Of greatest concern to the scientists are the native communities of Grassy Narrows and Whitedog, which traditionally relied on fish from the polluted waters for food and income.

Pathological examination by Japanese specialists this year verified that two cats, one each from Whitedog and Grassy Narrows, died of methyl-mercury poisoning now commonly known as Minamata disease.

High mercury content also has peen found in studies of blood and hair specimens from residents of the two communities.

A group of patients from Minamata will visit Grassy Narrows and Whitedog in September to continue the international exchange.

Fishermen Plan Lobby To Fight Net Regulation

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — A group of Brighton commercial fishermen, currently entangled in a dispute with Queen's Park over net size used to catch perch in Lake Ontario, are spearheading a move to form a fishermen's association in Northumberland County.

Ken Hutton, spokesman for the 35 men, said Tuesday, fishermen have taken initial steps to create a "bona fide association" and have verbally retained a lawyer.

He said an informal agreement to take the action was made among acknowledged leaders of the group. Each is one of 10 men who hold provincial licences to fish for yellow perch in Lake Ontario.

The association, he said, will include holders of about 50 various types of licences issued to county fishermen. Men with Lake Ontario rights will be concentrated in this area. All will be involved with self-policing of provincial fisheries regulations.

The move follows application by a dozen men for welfare from the Northumberland County social services department.

Mr. Hutton announced the action late in July and said it was both a necessity and a protest getsure against Ontario fisheries regulations requiring use of gill nets with a 2¾-inch mesh.

Fishermen claim the nets are too large to catch perch, their main fish "cash crop" comprising 95 per cent of their catch.

Ministry of Natural Resources officials say by using the smaller-meshed nets (most use 2-inch mesh) Brighton fishermen are potentially fishing themselves out of business. The ministry says the men are cropping fish that haven't spawned twice, the number needed to keep stocks of perch up.

Mr. Hutton said four men have been warned by ministry conservation officers against use of the larger nets. Officers have indicated court action, and confiscation of nets, boats and other equipment, is possible if fishermen don't comply with net-size regulations.

Mr. Hutton said Tuesday "There is no way they can fish, they're scared to go out."

Welfare was chosen as an alternative, but here, the men have come up against a problem.

A Northumberland County social services department official said Tuesday, the applications for welfare have been denied. He said the county "considers it a strike against new legislation" and a "labor dispute".

"There is no reason why they can't go on fishing," he said.

Officials Take 'Lenient' View

BRIGHTON — An official of the provincial ministry of natural resources said Tuesday conservation officers will enforce regulations regarding fishing net size at their discretion.

D.E. Gage, deputy director for eastern Ontario added, however, 1975 is considered a "phasing in period for the larger nets and "normally, when new regulations are issued, we start off leniently.

Mr. Gage made the comment after a group of Brighton — area commercial fishermen announced they plan to form an association to protest larger net size regulations which, they say, reduces their perch catch.

Regulations for Brighton — area fishermen came into force in July 1975, and marked the end of special, three-year-in-duration ministerial permission to use smaller nets, he said.

Speaking from Toronto Tuesday, William Foster, assistant deputy minister for southern Ontario, said enforcement will be undertaken "with some discretion".

"We don't plan to be vindictive or to harass them," Mr. Foster said. "If they're making an honest effort to phase in (legal-sized net) we would see that.

"Nothing will be served by prosecuting and keeping them out of fishing," he said. "They're decent people trying to make a living at a difficult occupation."

However, he warned that if ministry warnings are not complied with, "I guess a test case will be taken to court."

He acknowledged the ministry's "ambiguity over prosecution.

He called this year a "phase-in year" and recognized the resultant economic problem. But he said "an outright subsidy isn't available" and there is no legislation to provide for one.

Mr. Foster said the ministry's goal is to see all fishermen use regulation-sized nets by 1976.

"If they don't have the nets by next year, they won't be fishing," he warned.

Welfare Hearing Required

BRIGHTON — Commercial fishermen here will have to apply to a review board for welfare, says a spokesman from the community and social services ministry in Belleville.

The spokesman said the procdure is "standard practice" and will mean a review board hearing in Brighton in the next few weeks.

The move follows rejection of applications by 12 men from Northumberland County Social Services department.

Ken Hutton, spokesman for the 35 fishermen, said they have not decided what the next step will be. He claimed the dispute is not a labor problem, but a dispute over the government's assessment of the biological growth of perch.

Fishermen say the fish population is not dropping and that fish in the Presqu'ile Bay area grow too small to be caught in the larger nets.

D. E. Gage, deputy director of eastern Ontario for the ministry of natural resources said Tuesday claims fish are "stunted in growth" have not been supported by ministry research.

Election Date Switch Lacks Needed Support

PICTON — Picton Mayor Donald King, who returned Monday from the annual convention of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario in Toronto, has advised council the organization does not support a change in municipal election dates at this time.

Mayor King noted the possible change in dates has been debated but a motion to back th change was defeated at the AMO convention.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson who attended the convention with Mayor King said he feels the town definitely should retain its AMO membership as there is much information to be derived from the organization.

He said that members of the Eastern Ontario municipalities met and it is expected the mayor of Pembroke later will invite Picton councillors to attend an informal fall meeting. The purpose will be to arrive at some consensus of opinion in pertinent issues among members of eastern Ontario municipalities.

Reeve Richardson said the AMO convention was attended by 1,40 delegates.

County Match Factory a First

BLOOMFIELD — The village of Bloomfield became an industrial centre in the 1860's with a location of a match factory there.

Prince Edward museum curator James Gooding says that mention of the factory was discovered last week by museum technology students Charles Baird and Donna Midwinter during a trip to Toronto.

Mr. Baird spent several hours in the Toronto reference library while Miss Midwinter worked in the University of Toronto library, searching for the histories of craftsmen and tradesmen in Prince Edward County.

"This will tell us what we should be collecting," remarked Mr. Gooding who also travelled to Toronto with the two students, who have been employed this summer at the County Museum here.

Mr. Baird and Miss Midwinter, students at Algonquin College in Ottawa this weekend completed their summer's work at the museum here and have returned home.

Council Rejects Private Bid for Yacht Moorings

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council has opposed a request from the Prince Edward Cruising Club on Bridge Street for approval of a plan to lease a water lot in Picton Harbor for the installation of moorings for 18 yachts.

The decision to withold support was made Tuesday after a 10-member delegation from Prince Edward Yacht Club (PEYC) headed by Commodore Kenzie Maconald advised council this mooring space would make harbor navigation hazardous. A petition against the water lot lease signed by 40 persons also was presented.

Mr. MacDonald noted that the mooring space required for 18 yachts in from of the existing docks would create a navigation hazard for boats entering or leaving the harbor since the space needed probably would extend into the main channel.

He also stressed that Picton Harbor is a natural resource that has not been developed in relation to its potential.

"To begin the piece-meal division of the harbor by granting water lot leases to private commercial groups will seriously impede the future organized development on one of Ontario's finest natural, small harbors," stated Mr. MacDonald in a letter forwarded to council.

In a verbal presentation he observed the Olmpics in Kingston next year will bring many boaters into Prince Edward waters. If the docks proposed by the cruising club were constructed these visitors would have difficulty in stopping here.

"Personally, the water lot lease represents to me a situation where an absentee landlord gains control of a very valuable resource — our harbor," said Mr. MacDonald.

The cruising club is owned by Toronto resident Harry J. Smith.

Another spokesman, Richard Hart, told council the brigantines that now sail into Picton Harbor would not be able to stop there if the proposed docks were built. Also, the docks would prevent the easy flow of the small boats used by PEYC in sailing lessons.

"This is encroachment on a public domain," he stressed.

Dr. Ben Bechard of PEYC informed council he is not convinced that expansion is warranted at the cruising club as the present dock has been seldom filled this summer. In contrast the government dock at the yacht club has played host to many boats.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson said he had contacted the ministry of natural resources in relation to the water lot lease and was assured if council did not support the proposal there would be little liklihood of its approval.

He added that he strongly concurred with views expressed by the delegation.

"Its a destructive aspect as far as the harbor is concerned," he remarked.

Mayor onald King stated, "I totally oppose it."

Councillors voted to object to the cruising club's request for approval and to advise the ministry of natural resources of its stand.

It was also decided that council will study the harbor in relation to its present and future uses. Possible improvements will be investigated.

Landlord Complains About Official Tenant

PICTON — Town council has leased additional space at the present location of its town offices despite a reminder from its landlord that "the town of Picton has not been the most desirable tenant."

The second floor of a building owned by Mur-Van Developments Ltd. has been leased by council in addition to the ground floor where town offices have been established for several years.

The office space was leased for $3,000 per year, payable in monthly installments of $250.

In a letter to counci., Mur-Van Developments observed that "no one ever purchased a door mat and so the carpet in the foyer was ruined". Also, "no one ever purchased a vacuum cleaner to assist the janitor to clean the offices".

It was further observed that "no new furniture has been purchased to enhance the offices".

Council has agreed to a proposal by Mur-Van Developments that includes a rent reduction of $50 per month for one year as the landlord's share of redecorating expenses.

At Tuesday's council meeting it was noted stationery supplies now can be moved to the second floor of the office building leaving more space downstairs where the clerk and his assistants work.

Clerk Andrew Jarvis said hopefully a counter now can be installed downstairs as a protective measure in offices where a great deal of money periodically is handled.

Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers told councillors "a fair market rent" now is being paid.

Plaque Suggested

PICTON Picton merchant Victor Lord has contacted town council to request a commemorative plaque for the old oak tree at Mary Street parking lot, formerly the site of Mary Street School.

Mr. Lord advised council the tree was grown from an acorn sent from Windsor Castle and he feels it should be preserved as an historic landmark.

Picton Mayor Donald King supported the historian's proposal and said the tree should not be allowed to die from neglect. It was suggested some local organization might be interested in providing a plaque.

Milk Store Approved

PICTON —The Town of Picton has issued a $70,000 building permit to the Becker Milk Store for construction of a new building here.

The store will be constructed at the site of the BP gas station on Main St. which closed several months ago.

A permit totalling $99,000 was also granted to BIB onstCruction Ltd. for senior citizens units to be built on Mary Street.

Total of building permits issued in the month of July was $1,111,800.

Augustfest Date Set

COLBORNE — This hamlet's Kinsmen Club is staging an August Rock and Augustfest Friday and Saturday Aug. 8 and 9, in an effort to raise money for the club's community work and the Royal Canadian Legion rebuilding fund. August Rock, Friday night featuring the rock band Mad Win, and the Augustfest Saturday night, will both be held at the Colborne Arena.

Curator Retires

PICTON — Curator of Toronto's old Riverdale Zoo, Dr. Norman Scollard has retired in the Picton area.

Dr. Scollard recently has worked as temporary zoological director at the new Metro Zoo and will continue as a director of the Toronto zoo.

Salon Opens

PICTON — A Belleville hair stylist, James Christopher, this week has opened a salon in Picton's Armory Mall.

James Christopher of The Salon will work from the former Royal Beauty Salon.

He has more than 16 years experience in hair dressing and has attended classes in cutting and styling offered by Vidal Sasoon in London, England.

Authority Issues Invitation

MARMORA — The Crowe Valley Conservation Authority has invited the reeves and members of all the councils in the authority to be their guest for a bus tour of the Crowe Valley watershed on Thursday, Sept. 25.

Deputy-reeve John Wilkes (also vice-chairman of the Authority) conveyed the invitation to the Marmora and Lake Townships Council at its recent meeting.

He urged the members to make the trip, if at all possible, to see what has been accomplished.

Bazaar Planned

PICTON — The Prince Edward Historical Society has planned a collectors' bazaar in the Armory Mall, Friday, August 29, in support of the Gold Cup Festival.

The display will feature the collections of all interested area residents who wish to exhibit or sell. Further information can be obtained from Harold Bartman at 476-4488.

Picton Festivities Mark Weekend Races

PICTON — The week of August 24 and the Labor Day weekend will be proclaimed by town council as Gold Cup Festival Week.

At a council meeting Tuesday night a request by John Sibthorpe, Gold Cup race chairman, for this official recognition was granted.

Councillors also voted to support a display of Gold Cup racing craft on Main St. on Saturday Aug. 30 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Boats will be judged and a cash spot prize and trophies awarded.

Ronald Scott, chairman of the Picton Merchant's Association advised council in a letter, "This activity will add color and excitement to our part of the promotion and will also give fans an opportuntiy to view at close range many of their favorite craft which they would not otherwise view so closely.

Main Street will be blocked off from Elizabeth Street to the top of the Town Hill during the display.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson urged council's support of the exhibit since it represents" the first big step" in co-operation between the merchants' association and the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce.

Canadian Firms Find It Advantageous to Set Up Shop in the United States

By DAVID GERSOVITZ

MONTREAL (CP) — At a time when many Canadians bemoan the transfer of their corporations to United States interests, at least some American states are actively trying to reverse the flow.

Several states, in order to seek out potential investors in Canada, have hired agents to point out the advantages of setting up a branch operation in their state.

Since 1962, Chester Malley has been in charge of the Montreal office of the New York Department of Commerce and has approached "hundreds" of Canadian firms to establish branches in New York.

By his own account, however, New York isn't the only state now recruiting Canadian capital. "Other states—New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine—they all come up here to recruit Canadian investors."

In 1972, the last year for which Statistics Canada reports are available, American investment in Canada resulted in a new inflow of $569 million, compared with a net outflow of $138 million to the U.S. from Canada.

Translated into per capita figures, these totals represented an investment in Canada of approximately $2.77 for each American citizen compared with $6.57 in the U.S. for each Canadian.

Since 1972, said Mr. Malley, more than 60 Canadian firms have established divisions or plants in his state alone. He provides a field trip of possible locations and shows firms where they qualify for state or county aid.

Canadian investors in New York State, for example, can get compensation for on-the-job training programs and for hiring Vietnam veterans. They may also get exemptions in several counties from municipal and school taxes, often for up to 10 years.

Mr. Malley said in some cases, he'll even help negotiate financing of new ventures.

But savings appear to hold only incidental importance to Canadian investors in the U.S.

"Most of the companies that establish themselves in the U.S. aren't interested in what they can save," said Mr. Malley. "They're interested in what they can make.

"They may already have built up a market for their product, but the duty eats away at their profit. So they set up in the U.S. and are in a better position to compete . . . and to make more money."

"We went down there to make a buck," said Fred Major, chairman of Major Rod Manufacturing Ltd., of Montreal. "We had to do it to be competitive in the U.S. market."

Major Rod, which makes fishing rods and reels, has only 60 workers at its plant in Tupper Lake, N.Y., but by bypassing import duties, is able to compete in the U.S. sport fishing market.

Another company, Classic Book Shops, a chain with 50 stores across Canada, approached Mr. Malley three years ago for help to establish their first store outside the country—on Fifth Avenue in New York.

Since then, said Classic's owner Louis Melzack of Montreal, the chain has opened a second New York store.

Mr. Melzack says he didn't set up shop in the U.S. just for profit. There was also the challenge of competing with such major New York stores as Doubleday and Brentanos.

"And besides," added Mr. Melzach, "I'm flying the only Canadian flag on Fifth Avenue."

Horse Operas Violent?

"Shane" has been back. The movie classic of the old west featuring Alan Ladd was run again on television recently.

It's a reminder of many a "western" of the kind boys of all ages have enjoyed over the years and which are now somewhat in limbo.

Did those movies with their sagas of good guys and bad guys hurt the tender psyche? In the way, for instance, that people worry today about too much movie violence. Probably not to the same extent, for these horse operas after all were more in the realm of escapism, and in any event enjoyed their heyday before television came to absorb so much attention. Besides, there was all that dramatic scenery and occasionally someone would come up with a tongue-in-cheek spoof production on a western theme and everyone would have a good laugh.

In Kingston though a letter from one Philip H. Mott to The Whig-Standard, raises an interesting point. Based on a letter Mr. Mott wrote to the principal of a popular steak house chain — there's one in Belleville — it concerns the "larger-than-life-size wall mural" featured just inside the door in these establishments, "depicting senseless gun violence — a face-to-face shoot-out' between two cowboys."

Well now . . . shades of Gregory Peck and Jennifer Jones in that long-ago epic, Duel in The Sun, and a host of other confrontations out there among the sage brush and the cactus that Tom Lehrer, Harvard mathematician and satirist of going on 20 years ago spoke of, in the even then controversial atmosphere of nuclear bombs and desert practice ranges.

Mr. Mott sees the possibility of a "powerful subliminal influence" being exercised on the young by this mural.

Those who recall an era gone may see it otherwise, as a relatively harmless exercise in nostalgia. Perhaps if the western were still in vogue, it would be more wholesome movie fare than a lot of the very real violence that is let loose on the screen today.

'CANCEL THE LEADERSHIP CONVENTION!'

$4 Million a Conservative Estimate for Publications Issued by Government?

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — A question that a lot of us have been asking ourselves has now been answered.

Liberal Albert Roy had an inquiry on the order paper. How much, he wanted to know, did the government spend on printing of publications, report and reviews.

On the final day of the session he was given an answer.

In 1973-74 the spending was $4.2 million.

This figure frankly looks a bit fishy to me. I would imagine it is actually more. And knowing the way ministries of government can cover up expenditures it probably is.

But even accepting it as factual, it is too much.

This is said not from an assessment of need—such an assessment, of course, has not been made—but from a knowledge of the product.

As anyone here can tell you there is a constant flow (flood) of publications coming from within government which are extravagantly produced and many of doubtful worth.

One in fact might think that there was a competition to outdo each other in the ministries. And sadly, this most probably is the truth.

The avalanche of publications within government has coincided with the avalanche of publicity men with which it has become infested.

And it is easy to visualize how it works out.

A new publicity man enters a ministry and he wants to make an impression.

And a publication is the easiest and quickest way to make an impression. So he starts dreaming up publications.

And then, of course, he wants his publication to be as impressive as possible, so this means expensive printing.

We could use a controller of printing, an official who would weigh and approve or disapprove each and every publication that was planned.

The government actually moved towards this not too many years ago.

It announced that there would be a "Queen's Publisher" as well as a Queen's Printer, and he would supervise publications.

The plan advanced to the stage that when William Kinmond was made Queen's Printer the label "and Publisher" was added to his title.

But Kinmond could never make a break-through and get any control of publications.

The little empires which ministries are just wouldn't play ball.

One more of the sad stories of government inefficiency.

Spanish Connection

Possibly the only time Canadians get to hear the musical-sounding language that is Spanish, other than through short-wave radio, is on occasions such as the recent Miss Universe contest.

El Salvador in Central America was the locale of the contest and on an earlier occasion it was Puerto Rico.

In fact the whole event has a strongly Spanish orientation because of the many countries in Latin America where the language is spoken.

Now Belleville is to have in its midst students from Venezuela. They are due here next month to study at Loyalist College. Primarily they are coming to improve their knowledge of English, as a key to advancement in the post-secondary school environment, but other subjects may be included also as their linguistic proficiency improves.

The program is already under way in Brockville and other groups of Venezuelans, in addition to those coming here, are taking courses at colleges in Kingston and Montreal.

It's a reminder, incidentally, that one theory as to the name Canada is that it is Spanish in origin. Long ago, it is said, Spanish explorers in the St. Lawrence brought back to the homeland word — and it was not very complimentary — "Aca Nada." Or translated: "Here . . . in this place, there is nothing!"

Let's hope the Venezuelans are luckier. A Brockville picture shows two dark-haired beauties among the visitors there and notes the students are impressed with the higher education facilities in the smaller communities here. They had apparently expected a "stiff and formal" reception and were pleasantly surprised when it was just the opposite.

In the realm of cuisine, one thing they miss is fresh fruit. Probably our supermarkets and packaged foods will be an eye-opener for them too.

Montreal Gazette

In his letter to the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards, Prime Minister Trudeau only confirmed what he had already let be understood. Ottawa will neither disallow Quebec's official language act nor refer it to the supreme court to determine its constitutionality, as requested by the association.

If Canada had a true constitution, containing a bill of rights, there would be no place in it for a federal veto power over provincial legislation, since such a power is inconsistent with provincial autonomy in a federal system. In the absence of a true constitution, Mr. Trudeau is surely right, however, in holding that disallowance should be reserved for rare cases.

Rideau Canal Community Has Potential As a Historic Centre

Ottawa Journal

A cheer for Dr. Mary Burns, the archaeologist, who wants to rebuild some of the historic buildings that made Manotick a thriving centre on the Rideau Canal 100 years ago.

It's not hard to visualize Mill Square in Manotick as a miniature Upper Canada Village. There is the grist mill to start with. Then there is the house occupied by the Rideau Valley Conservation Authority, reputed to be a replica of Abe Lincoln's house in Springfield, Illinois. If the citizens of Manotick want to do something to celebrate the United States bicentennial next year, perhaps they should start thinking of an appropriate ceremony or celebration based on that.

The historic value of the Rideau Canal and the towns it spawned when the waterway was in full commercial bloom is just beginning to be recognized.

The federal and Ontario governments have stimulated some of this activity. But a good part of it has come from experts like Dr. Burns who are showing that archaeology has its uses at home as well as in Yucatan ruins or in Crete.

More can be done, especially by the municipalities. They have an historic past they can be proud of. They should capitaize on it.

UN Man's Death a Mystery

The Globe and Mail

Canada sends its troops into shooting wars for a nice national image. We risk the lives of these men to be a peacekeeper to the world. If that risk does in fact result in their deaths, the least the troops and their fellow-citizens at home can expect is that their commanders and their Government will be honest and forthcoming in saying how they died.

How was Captain Ian Patten, a Canadian officer on United Nations peacekeeping duty in Cyprus, killed? By a "stray bullet" that could have come from either the Turkish —or Greek-Cypriot side as UN reports, not contradicted by the Canadian Government, have put it? Or by a bullet that could only have come from the Greek side, as at least three returning members of the Canadian contingent have said?

The Canadians assisted in the UN investigation of the captain's death? What is the truth? And if we are too mealy-mouthed in the name of some sort of diplomacy to say how are our own people get killed we have no business sending them to where they might get killed.

An artistic new gateway of coloured stone built in recognition of the fair's 100th anniversary, will greet fair goers attending the Belleville Exhibition when it begin. Fair dates are Monday to Thursday, August 15 to 18. The new stone gateway now undergoing its finishing touches will be a decided asset to the main entrance of the fair grounds. Wings of the gateway arch gracefully toward the street and when completed will carry a plaque bearing the fair's name and the date of construction. Employees of the parks board are now preparing beds for flowers.

Pup's Death Week After Its Purchase from OHS Here

Editor
The Intelligencer

On Monday, July 1, 1975, my husband purchased a puppy from the Humane Society in Belleville, Ontario. It was an adorable six week old female cocker spaniel collie, eight inches in length, pure white with patches of the lightest shade of sandy brown. We called this simply gorgeous puppy Lizabeth or Lizzi. Lizzi died only six days later, on Sunday July 7, 1975.

At the time, we did not realize how serious it was when we were told that Lizzi had been born at the Belleville Humane Society. On Wednesday, I had to take time off my job to take my pup to the veterinarian. Because Lizzi was born in the Humane Society, she was not permitted in the building until all the other animals and their owners had been attended to. She had stomach sickness, diarrhea and round worms.

Lizzi died of distemper which caused her to go mentally retarded and to suffer from seizures. She also showed signs of kennel cough and had just recovered from a bad case of worms. This leads me to believe that the Humane Society must contain many diseases.

Many pet owners as well as myself should be aware of these diseases. When the veterinarian first told me Lizzi had distemper, I thought it was a disease that made dogs ugly and vicious. Distemper does not just affect small puppies, but it is contagious to older dogs as well. But if an older dog is subjected to the disease and unfortunately catches it there is a cure.

The disease appears as a cold and the victim suffers from a dry nose, running eyes, extreme tiredness and coughing. Older dogs can be cured, but it retards and later kills puppies.

The Humane Society deals with animals and are aware of these diseases. How can they then allow a puppy who is born under these conditions to remain there for six weeks? The vet told me if a puppy was subjected to these conditions for any longer than two weeks it usually had the disease.

I moved the Frankford just recently and wanted a dog so very much because my husband works night shift every second-week. Now I am told that it is unsafe to have another puppy for half of a year. Therefore this leads me to assume that the Humane Soceity, too, is contaiminated for the same length of time.

I carried and held a sick pup for three days, while I saw her die slowly. I loved her and tried to save her but Lizzi did not have a chance to live from the word go. As soon as she was born her future was to die very young.

It cost us $10 to buy her, $10 to take her to the vet and $10. to put her to sleep, all in six short days. This does not include the personal things we bought and did for her.

Before we were allowed to bring Lizzi home, we had to sign a statement saying we would treat her humanely. If at any time the Humane Society thought the conditions unfavourable, they could reposses our pet.

How could anything compare to the inhumane way she was kept before we owned her?

Allmand's Stand Criticized

Letter in
The Montreal Gazette

After listening to Mr. Warren Allmand on one of our local radio talk shows recently, I would like to make the following comments.

Mr. Allmand impressed me as a sincere, fair-minded, good-hearted and extremely innocent person. Unfortunately those would not be my choice of qualities for someone in his position. I think Mr. Allmand's greatest fault is judging other people by himself. It's time he faced reality (or at least put someone in the position who can) that not all people have characters like himself and have "just gone astray" because of "lack of love, etc."

Some people are just downright sick, cruel and dangerous and will always remain so no matter what is done for them. Everyone gets at least one chance in life to eitther make it or blow it The people who choose the harder path and try to make themselves a good and honest life should not be at the mercy of those who choose the faster and easier life of crime.

I am a true believer that the harsher the punishment, the bigger the deterent. Unfortunately, Mr. Allmand is 100 years ahead of his time with his humane outlook — but the criminals aren't.

Next Year's 'Habitat' Parley in Vancouver Now in Doubt

By GEORGE KITCHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations decision last week to pull its crime prevention conference out of Toronto and shift it to Geneva has thrown into question the future of Habitat, the big UN conference on human habitations which is scheduled to be held in Vancouver next summer.

The question is whether delegates from the Third World, made up largely of Arab and other so-called non-aligned countries, might launch a drive to cancel Canada's sponsorship of Habitat and transfer it from Vancouver to some other country.

Algeria, one of the leaders of the Third World coalition, raised the Habitat question this week when the UN's committee on conferences considered, and then rejected, Canada's request for a one-year postponement of the crime prevention conference on the ground the international climate was not conducive to success.

The Algerian delegate, Fathih Khaouane Bouayad-Agha, wondered aloud whether Canada might next want to postpone the Habitat conference.

The question is bound to be raised again, this time with more force, when another UN committee meets here later this month in one of the series of preparatory meetings for the Vancouver conference.

If the question is not raised formally on the committee floor, it is certain to be brought up informally in UN corridors as delegates seek to determine Canadian intentions and decide for themselves whether they should consider switching venues before preparations are too far advanced.

One thing that semed to irk some delegates was the short notice they felt Canada gave in asking postponement of the crime conference. The conference was scheduled to start in Toronto on Sept. 1 and Canada announced its request for postponement July 21. The additional cost involved in shifting the conference to Geneva amounts to about $170,000.

Third World delegates outnumber the industrialized West in the UN and they would have no difficulty pushing through committe, if they chose, a resolution to take Habitat away from Canada.

The question of representation at the crime conference for observers from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), which raised such controversy in Canada and forced the Canadian government to seek postponement, is a sore point with Arab representatives at the UN.

There was little direct reference to the PLO at this week's committee meeting beyond a charge by the Algerian delegate that the Canadian government had "yielded to pressure from you know who (Jewish interests) in order to prevent the PLO from attending the conference and denouncing state terrorism."

And the Egyptian delegate, Ahmed Aboul Gueit, questioned whether the UN, if it agreed to postpone the crime conference, could rely on Canada's judgment next year that the international climate had improved sufficiently for the conference.

Habitat, scheduled to be held in Vancouver from May 31 to June 11 next year, is a far more elaborate undertaking than the crime conference, involving greater expenditures and a great many more delegates.

New Zealand Provides Universal Insurance

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — When New Zealand's no-fault compensation law took effect last year it was hailed as a world advance in social legislation. Now people are asking if some aspects of it are altogether too liberal.

Under the New Zealand law, everyone in the country is automatically protected against injury. Coverage operates 24 hours day, at work or at home. Housewives and children ar covered as well as wage earners. Even overseas visitors qualify.

The no-fault basis means that anyone injured is entitled to compensation, whether to blame or not. the question of fault no longer is a factor.

Compensation involves medical and hospital expenses, payment for loss of earnings up to 80 per cept of normal salary, and lump-sum payments for prmannt injuries.

But some people began to raise questions when an American professional boxer, who suffered an ye injury in a bout with a local boxer, had his medical, hospital and even hotel expenses paid while recovering.

ritics dCeclard that anyone engaging in professional boxing as a career would carry adequate protection in his home country and that there wer people waiting for hospital beds who were obliged to pay for private hospital accommodation frm their own pockets owing t shrtage of public hospital space.

But a more extrem case has since emerged. A drunken ille-attacked a policeman with a Rknife. The immigrant came off second best, and in fact lost an eye in the fight. But although h had no right to be in the country and was committing a crime when he suffered the injury, he still was given compensation.

Later the immigrant appeared in court charged with assaulting a police officer with intent to injure, and was fined. In passing sentence, the judge paused to express wonder that a law could exist under which the offender was paid compensation.

Commission is not at present recommending a change in the law, but says the question of compensation for criminals injured while committing a crime is one of several possible future changes under consideration.

However, the chairman of the commission, K. L. Sandford, pointed out that once exceptions are made, there arc problms in where to draw the line. A safebreaker who blew himself up would clearly enough be breaking the law, but it was also illegal to drive through a red light, and people doing so could be injurd.

Sandford said the position of dependants also had to be considered—should they suffer qually with the person injured?

Australia, which is preparing an accident compensation schme partly based on the New Zealand model, is proposing to bar payment of compensation to persons committing a number of specified crimes.

Orienteering Proves Sport for Everyone

TORONTO (CP) — Ian Bailey, 13, doesn't tell many people he's the North American champion for his age in his favorite sport.

Ian, a Grade 8 student, is champion in the sport of orientbeing like "car rallying on foot."

Ian placed first recently in th 14-and-under class at the North American championships at Bear Brook State Park, N.H.

"I don't brag about it because most people haven't heard about orienteering," he said.

Orienteering is the use of a map and compass to find your way through parkland or wilderness areas. It's a competitive sport and the idea is to locate a number of pre-placed flags in as short a time as possible. Beginners usually compete over a 1½-to two-mile course with eight flags, while more seasoned competitors take part on a four-to five-mile course with from 15 to 20 flags.

The sport originated in Sweden and has become more and more popular in Canada. It is required training in the boy scouts, Canadian Forces and the United States Marine Corps. There are some 2,000 members in the Canadian Orienteering Federation. The North American championship was won by 17-year-old Ted de Ste. Croix of Vineland, Ont.

"That's the second time they got lost," she said, "but not me. I don't ever get lost. I just look at my compass and read the map. It's easy.

Touring Theatre Group Pays Bancroft Visit

BANCROFT — A travelling theatre group from Kingston, Kolass Snooze, has staged a friendly invasion of Bancroft this week. The group, with eight members, is funded by an Opportunites for Youth grant and has been travelling through eastern Ontario conducting theatre workshops in small communitties.

The co-ordinator of the group, Luke Lucassa says: "We try to make our program suit the areas that we are in. Here in Bancroft, we will be holding workshops in the park behind the post office. There will be several public performance too."

Thursday evenings, the plays will be held at 7 p.m. in the post office park and on Wednesday a melodrama will be produced at the Hastings Centennial manor.

All workshops in mime, juggling, voice, dance and improvisation are free to the public as are all the plays.

Gemboree Draws Visitors From Across Canada and U.S.

BANCROFT — Despite a reputation of being rock-bound country there's more than one reason 25,000 people come to this north Hastings Community for the annual international Gemboree.

"I've been coming to the Gemboree for two years now to see old friends and buy some interesting specimens," said William Christianson, from Barrie. The Bancroft Gemboree is known internationally for its mineral displays and collections.

Sandy and Gloria Ludlum, from Columbus, Ohio, said they operate a rock shop in their native town and attend a great many mineral shows "because that's our business." Mr. Ludlum has a Phd. in minerology.

"The quality of the specimens here are very good and we have a lot of fun," said the Ohio couple who come here each year.

John O'Conner, a mineral dealer from Ottawa, said he operates a booth at the Gemboree because he can do a good business here. Mr. O'Commer said he had a good supply of Australian Chrysopase and it was selling well at the show. He also said there's a fun atmosphere which is good for everyone.

Mr. O'Conner does the cutting and polishing, his wife, Margaret is a facetter and his son David is a silver and goldsmith.

own store in Connecticut, said he enjoys the Gemboree because of the variety of minerals as well as it provides a "great vacation" spot. He has been collected in the Bancroft area for more than 14 years and has been displaying and selling at the Gemboree for four years.

Pat Oberham and Wendy Penning, from Grand Rapids, Mich., said it was the first trip to the Gemboree for them.

"We sure will be back next year with a lot of friends in a mineral club," said Mrs. Oberham. "This is just a fantastic place and people are so friendly, she added.

"We've picked up some great rocks and had a good holiday," said Mrs. Oberham, "and next year we're going to know what rocks to bring to make even better deals."

Many people come to trade, swap, and buy and a few are here to sell.

REALIZE THEIR DREAM

VANCOUVER (CP) — What the members of the Maplewood Child Care Society call "the realization of a dream" is nearing completion on the banks of Seymour River in North Vancouver. It is a combined daycare, out-of-school care and pre-school centre with an adventure playground and park and an adjacent children's farm with animals and garden plots.

USE INSTANT TEXTBOOK

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The 15-cent daily newspaper is becoming an important ducation tool precisly because it is daily and in print form, says Owen Snider, an elementary school teacher. "A newspaper is a current textbook with a new edition every day," he said. A report prepared by educational services consultant Dr. Kan Advani says the newspaper was especially beneficial in the area of creative writing or composition.

Simple Salads with Spicy Dressings Make Summer Meals a Pleasure

From a simple and old time salad like sliced cucumbers soaked in vinegar to a green bean salad with white wine, these recipes are sure to perk up meal times, especially on hot days.

Ontario Salad

two cups tomatos, peeled, quartered, coarsely diced
¼ cup onion, chopped
½ medium green pepper, cut in julienne strips one tsp. celery seed
French dressing (recipe below)

Combine vegetables. Add dressing (recipe below). Chill at least two hours to blend flavors.

French Dressing

one-third cup vegetable oil three tbsps. wine vinegar
one tsp. salt
one tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. dry mustard
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. paprika (optional)

Combine in a jar with lid. Shake to blend before using. Keep chilled. Serves four.

Green Bean Salad

one quart green beans, cut in pieces three slices bacon, cut in small pieces
one onion, sliced,
¾ cup Canadian white table wine three tbsps. sugar
three tbsps. vinegar two tsps. cornstarch
two tbsps. water

Cover beans with boiling water. Cook, uncovered, for about 20 minutes, or until just tender. Add one scant teaspoon salt after first 10 minutes of cooking. Drain. Fry bacon pieces until crisp. Add to beans. Cook onion in bacon fat for three minutes. Add onion to beans. Add wine, sugar, and vinegar to bacon fat. Dissolve cornstarch in cold water. Add to wine sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened and clear. Mix dressing, bacon bits, and onion through beans. Serve warm. Serves six.

Coleslaw

three cups finely shredded cabbage
one tsp salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
dash cayenne
one tbsp. sugar
one egg, unbeaten ½ cup milk
two tbsps. butter
¾ cup vinegar

Place cabbage in bowl. In top of double boiler combine salt, mustard, cayenne and sugar. Add egg and mix well. Stir in milk gradually and then add butter. Cook and stir over hot water until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and gradually stir in vinegar. Pour over cabbage and chill.

Mold

one (½ cup) large ripe tomato, blanched, peeled and chopped one (1½ cups) medium cucumber, peeled, seeded and finely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion one envelope unflavored gelatin
1½ cups tomato juice
two tbsps. white vinegar
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce one tsp. garlic salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. oregano

Toss prepared vegetables in a bowl. Set aside. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup of the tomato juice. Meanwhile heat one cup of the remaining tomato juice; add gelatin mixture; stir to dissolve. Add vinegar, last ¼ cup tomato juice, and Worcestershire sauce; stir. Add vegetables and seasonings to hot gelatin mixture. Pour into a 4-cup mold. Chill until firm. To serve, unmold on greens.

No need to partially set gelatin mixture before adding vegetables!

Serves six.

Gazpacho Salad

two cans (10½ oz. each) beef bouillon undiluted three envelopes unflavored gelatine one and one-third cups water
1½ cups sliced pimiento-stuffed olives two cups diced cucumbers, unpeeled two cups diced, seeded tomato one cup diced green pepper
one cup diced celery
½ cup sliced scallions
two cans (4 oz. each) pimiento, drained and chopped
¼ tsp. salt
two-thirds cup bottled Italian dressing
Hard cooked egg slices
Sliced pimiento-stuffed olives

Combine bouillon and gelatine in saucepan; let stand 5 minutes. Stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves. Add water and chill until mixture thickens to the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Combine remaining ingredients, except egg and sliced olives; fold into chilled mixture. Turn into 1½pquart mold; chill until firm, four to six hours. Unmold and garnish. Serves eight.

Wilted Spinach Salad

four slices bacon
one onion, sliced
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
one tbsp. flour
½ tsp. dry mustard
one tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. Tabasco pepper sauce
¾ cup water
¼ cup red wine vinegar
eight cups fresh spinach leaves

In large skillet cook bacon until lightly browned, remove, and crumble. Pour off all but one tbsp. bacon fat. Add onion and cook until tender, about five minutes. Add mushrooms; cook five minutes. Blend in flour, dry mustard, salt and Tabasco. Stir in water and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add spinach, mix well and heat. Sprinkle with crumbled cooked bacon. Serves four.

Anchovy Lettuce Salad

two cans (2-oz. each) anchovy fillets two large tomatoes, cut into wedges one large cucumber, sliced
one green pepper, cut into strips ¾ cup olive or salad oil
two tbsps. cider vinegar
one tsp. fresh lemon juice
½ tsp. sugar
⅛ tsp. pepper
one large head lettuce, broken into bite-sized pieces

Drain oil from anchovy fillets into a large mixing bowl. Separate and chop fillets and add to oil in bowl. Add tomatoes, cucumber and green pepper. Combine olive or salad oil with vinegar, lemon juice, sugar and pepper; beat until well mixed. Add to bowl and chill at least one hour. Just before serving, add lettuce and toss to mix well. Serves eight.

Green Goddess

one clove minced garlic
½ tsp. dry mustard
one tsp. Worcestershire sauce two tbsps. anchovy paste
three tbsps. wine vinegar
three tbsps. chopped chives
one-third cup snipped parsley
one cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
one quart cut-up salad greens
one cup cooked shrimp
two tomatoes, quartered

Combine all ingredients, except greens, shrimp and tomato. Mix very well. Add ½ cup of this dressing to remaining ingredients. Serve at once.

Old - fashioned Cucumbers

green peppers cucumbers onions salt pepper
wine vinegar or white vinegar

Arrange layers of thinly sliced vegetables in a bowl, sprinkling with salt and pepper. Cover with vinegar, diluted with equal amount cold water. Refrigerate.

Ontario salad — marinated tomatoes with peppers and onions.

Exceptional Children Get Special Care While Boarding at Happy Halfway House

By ROBIN CHASE

The word "retarded" is not in vogue at Grace's place.

Grace's children are "exceptional".

Grace's place is the Happy Halfway House Inc. Boarding Home for Exceptional Babies and Children at 231 Albert St. in Belleville and its matron is Grace Ince — operator and president of the board.

The two-storey, brick house — a combination of two 80-year-old brick homes joined together a few years ago — accommodates 14 mentally-retarded children from three to 9½ years of age.

"I don't like the word 'retarded'," Grace says. "I like 'exceptional' instead."

"Most people think of 'retarded' children as little monsters," she remarks. "Ours are far from that."

Grace explains the home accepts children "mostly in the trainable, re-teachable range" and "as young as possible".

"But there aren't so many children now," she comments. "The doctors are urging the parents to keep them at home."

Grac says 11 of the children are of school age and 10 are currently enrolled in summer school at the William R. Kirk School. The other child will join his fellows in September while the three pre-schoolers will attend an integrated nursing school at Loyalist College.

"All our children are Crown wards and the Children's Aid pays for them," she notes. "There's practically no parent contact at all.

"There's no restriction on where they come from," she states. Her children are from such centres as Ottawa, Toronto and Sudbury across Ontario.

"We get a resume of the child which tells what he can do and what he can't and then we go to see him to see if he can fit in here," Grace elaborates. "Fortunately, we've been successful.

"The children go out to the fair, the circus — whatever will benefit them," she points out. "They're not tied down here.

"They can stay here until they outgrow the premises," she adds, meaning until they are too big for the junior beds and cribs with which the home is equipped.

"Some might be sent to foster homes," Grace says, explaining that the recent trend in exceptional child care is not to institutionalize, but to keep them in home environments.

Grace's daughter, Lee Hicks, who has worked with her mother since 1967, was supervisor at the home until she moved to Kitchener last week.

Lee was in charge of daily general development programs for the children. "We teach them things like how to feed themselves, to dress themselves, to tie their own shoelaces and to know shabes and colors," she said on her departure day.

"It takes a lot more time than with normal children," she pointed out. "It takes a lot of patience. It takes a one-to-one relationship."

Besides the supervisor, there are 13 other staff members working three shifts — days, evenings, and nights.

"A lot of them have taken the early childhood education course," Grace says. "The others are trained on the job.

"I'm a practical nurse by profession," she adds. "I got my training as a practical nurse in Montreal."

Grace is qualified in another respect. Her parents started the hospital for mentally retarded infants and children which is currently operated by the provincial government in Plainfield.

She worked there from 1964 - 66 before starting out on her own with the boarding home venture.

Looking ahead to September when all of the children will be in school, Grace says, "It'll be a very quiet place until the troops get home at 3:15 and then they'll have a ball. This is the only home they know."

Lee Hicks supervises three-year-old Steven in the Happy Halfway House playroom.

Humanitarian Venture Enjoys Steady Growth

The Happy Halfway House Inc. Boarding Home for Exceptional Babies and Children at 231 Albert St. in Belleville has made two moves in the past nine years — all due to expansion, says Grace Ince, operator and president of the board., The venture began in May, 1966 with one child on Cannifton Rd. and then moved to East Moira St. in 1968 to a home with four children.

In 1972, the number grew to 14 residents and the home was moved to its current location "because we outgrew the premises," Grace explains. "There wasn't enough room for the children to play properly. We needed more play room and bigger sleeping quarters.

"This is a specialized boarding home for exceptional children, but we're under the boarding home act as far as the provincial government is concerned," she says. "We get a licence every year.

"We''ve had as many as 15 children but we have a licence for 21," she adds.

Ann Landers

Over - the - shoulder Readers Bug This Daily Bus Rider

Dear Ann Landers: Here's another one who "never thought I'd end up writing to Ann Landers"—but I finally got there, like all the rest. My problem isn't serious, just awfully annoying.

While riding the bus to work and back I always carry a magazine or a newspaper to read. The bus is usually crowded but since I get on early, I always get a seat. Within five minutes someone is sitting next to me. Two minutes later I have this strange feeling, like his eyes are wandering over my reading material. I glance quickly to see if my hunch is right and, of course, it is.

I then feel that I should ask permission to turn the page. Maybe my seat-mate hasn't finished reading the article.

I am not a selfish person, but I would dearly love to enjoy my bus reading without worrying about the person sitting next to me. What do you suggest? —Nettled In.

Dear Net: Carry a magazine AND a newspaper. While you are reading the paper, offer the magazine to your seat-mate. You might even confess it bothers you to have someone reading over your shoulder.

And please don't feel like a freak. Your problem is shared by thousands—including me. Only it's not the bus, it's on planes.

Dear Ann Landers: About that mother-in-law who kept the photo album with snapshots of her son and his former sweetheart on the coffee table—your reply to "Seething Wife" didn't quite make it.

You said, "Your mother-in-law is no mind reader. Speak up and tell her how you feel."

One needn't be a mind reader to have a little sensitivity. I went through a similar experience with my mother-in-law. My husband's former sweetheart was the girl next door. For eight years I was treated to the latest news on "Mary Beth"—always in the presence of my husband and children. I never even knew the girl and I had no interest in her whatever.

One evening at dinner my mother-in-law was going on and on about Mary Beth until I finally interrupted and asked her to please change the subject.

She accused me of over-reacting and made a big deal out of it. I, of course, ended up looking like the damned fool, jealous wife. Suddenly I realized it was the moment she had been waiting for.

So, perhaps "Seething's" mother-in-law is laying a trap, as my own mother-in-law did. I hope she ignores that bait and keeps her mouth shut.—Outsmarted

Dear Out: You might have a point, in which case I would alter my advice to: "Your mother-in-law is no mind reader. Tell her how you feel—PRIVATELY."

Dear Ann: I read today where a 73-year-old farmer fathered twins. Is this possible?

My husband says the old goat must have had some help with the project—like perhaps a young farmhand or a close friend.

How about it?—Also Suspicious

Dear Suspicious: That man of 73 may well have fathered those twins. Male fertility often continues indefinitely.

Incidentally, multiple births have no relation to virility.

Churches Turn Into Schools As Brazil Fights Illiteracy

FORTALEZA, Brazil (Reuter) — Blackboards fill the aisles and teachers replace preachers in the cathedral of this northeastern Brazilian city as the country fights to eradicate illiteracy by 1980.

Since the Brazilian literacy movement was launched by the authoritarian military government in 1970 under the hallmark of an illiterate's thumbprint signature crossed out by a letter X, the adult illiteracy rate has dropped from 33.6 per cent to 18.7 per cent, according to official statistics.

Last year nearly two million people were taught to read and write, bringing the total for five years to more than six million. The number of people over 15 years of age officially listed as illiterate fell from 18.7 million in the 1970 census to 12.6 million at the beginning of the year.

More than a dozen countries have sought Brazilian assistance in mounting their own literacy campaigns and the movement itself has expanded into the fields of primary, technical, professional and health education for the adult population.

The difficulties faced by the movement are considerable, ranging from the vastness of the territory to be covered to the bad vision and slow mental capacity which malnutrition has caused in many of its pupils.

In some rural areas pupils and teachers have to trek through jungle and ford ranging torrents to attend their nightly classes.

Nowhere are the problems greater than in the destitute northeast where nine million adults, half the region's population, are officially listed as illiterate.

Here in Fortaleza, seven classrooms are set up nightly in the cavernous aisles of the yet-unfinished cathedral.

The vaulted roof resounds not to hymns but to the multiplication tables recited by roadworkers, builders, itinerant pedlars and prostitutes.

Elizer Soares is a 21-year-old street hawker who sells nuts and sweets in Fortaleza's red-light district. He comes from a rural area and never went to school.

Now he turns up at the cathedral every night and sits down in one of the classrooms where he learns to read and write.

Thousands of other underprivileged people like Eliezer come daily to the cathedral or to other posts, mobilized by a continual propaganda campaign.

The local municipal councillors, teachers, military officers, priests and students have all been mobilized to recruit the illiterate for the movement.

The local radio stations broadcast slogans such as "if you learn to read and write you will better your standard of living."

Quinte History On Tape

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Telling it like it was is the summer project of four Belleville students, under a federal Opportunities for Youth grant of $4,380.

The 11-week job involves Hastings County oldtimers recounting their experiences and memories into a tpe recorder. The recordings — about 45 hours worth when the project is completed August 15 — will be available to listeners at Glanmore House the Hastings County Museum. "And we sincerely hope people will go to the museum to hear about the history of this part of the county," emphasized Robert Miller, 17, a member of the recording team. "Otherwise our work will be wasted."

Other members of the team are Nancy Foster, 17, team leader and interviewer. The tapes are also typed out for museum records by Christie Strahan, 18 and Cyndy Newman, 17. The girls are Centennial Secondary School students and Robert Miller will return to Moira Secondary School in the fall.

By the end of the 11-week series of inteviews, the team expects it will have the personal memories of about 60 older residents of Hastings recorded.

"We have really enjoyed talking to the older people," Nancy Foster said. "They can bring history alive for generations to come, as well as ourselves."

The interviewers have received a few flat refusals in their search for oral history, but in most cases their subjects have been very co-operative.

Retired schoolteachers, they said, have been their star subjects so far. Miss Nellie Merry, who taught at BI and Miss Myrtle Peck, of Queen Victoria School both had many interesting anecdotes to relate.

With only two weeks to go to wind up their project, the young researchers have one problem. "We don't have any trouble finding peole to talk to, in fact we have more than we can handle," Nancy Foster said. "Since we started only nine weeks ago, three or four of the people we've talked to have died, but their memories will live for us to learn from and enjoy."

Push Me Teach

Chris, 5, gets a ride from Judy Shannon, an assistant at the Belleville Day Nursery. Chris and 38 other children spend their summer days in an organized program for "development of the whole child," said Mary Jane Matergio, school suppervisor.

Accord Reached on Subdivision

Rubber stamp approval from Belleville and the province is all that stands in the way of construction of a 70-home subdivision, following a meeting of Sidney Township council Monday.

Over the past several weeks, staff from Sidney and Belleville have been working on a water and sewer service agreement. The development is slated for the west end of Harder Drive and will be serviced by city water and sewer.

Sidney Council approved the agreement with Belleville Tuesday night and will have the document back to Belleville in time for city council's Aug. 18 meeting.

It is expected the document will receive speedy approval of city council because township council made no modifications to the agreement written by Belleville staff.

Reeve Gord Wilman said recently that because all of the province's requirements have been met in the development, "it should just be a matter of rubber stamp approval from the appropriate ministry."

Reg Breault of Breault Construction said if approval comes shortly much of the layout work and basement digging can be started this summer.

Work Under Way Soon On New Sidney Fire Hall

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Sidney Township council Reeve Gord Wilman says construction will begin as soon as possible on a new fire hall fon the Bayside area, following a council meeting Tuesday.

Council met with a number of engineers Tuesday night to hear design proposals with the contract for plans finally being let to the Belleville firm Morden and Guthrie Consultants Ltd.

John Guthrie, a spokesman for the firm, said he anticipates the two-bay fire hall can be built from cement block and steel for approximately $40,000.

Mr. Guthrie said he prefers a cement building to a prefabricated steel structure because of fire ratings. He said more damage is done more quickly to steel during a fire.

"It would be extremely embarrassing for the township to have its fire hall burned to the ground," he said.

A township building committee will begin meeting with the consultant immediately to make final plans with construction hoped to begin "very quickly," said Reeve Wilman.

The township this year purchased a new pumper fire truck for the Bayside Hall which will be located on the south side of Highway 2 near Bayside Secondary School.

Day Care Centre Aims At Child Development

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

There is a day care service in Belleville dedicating itself to the development of the whole child rather than just acting as a babysitting service.

The Belleville day Nursery, located in the old William R. Kirk School on John St., is operated by Hastings county with municipal and provincial funding.

The financial backing allows the school to charge a low daily rate of $4.50 almost half of what a corresponding nursery would charge in Toronto or Kingston.

In addition, if the parents or parent is not able to afford the entire amount the charge will be prorated according to Funds available said Mary Jane Matergio, supervisor of the school.

Currently, the school has 39 summer session children enrolled, a slight decline from the winter enrolment said Mrs. Matergio.

"We are permitted by licence to enroll 68 children and when the special nursery school using our second floor is shifted to a new centre we will complete the enrollment.

"This means we will also increase the staff from its present number of five full-time workers," she said. "The law says you must have three assistants for every 24 children."

All the assistants have received certificates in early childhood education, said Mrs. Matergio.

"We all give the child a well balanced diet consisting of morning and afternoon snacks and a hot lunch that includes meat, vegetables, bread and butter, milk and dessert," she said.

"The whole child means nutritionally, mentally and socially, said Mrs. Matergio.

The school has a science corner with fish and a gerbel so the children can examine animal life, she said.

"During the summer we have student workers from Experience '75 who work here, learning about the children, preparing for careers in early childhood development," said Mrs. Matergio.

"In the winter months we take part in the Community Involvment Program with area high school students and we are also a source of field experience for Loyalist pupils enrolled in the early childhood education," she said.

Water, Power Demands Not Taxing System

With the rising use in air conditioning for the summer months most people might expect the Public Unilities Commission electrical sysytems would become overtaxed.

This is not the case says Neil Britton, PUC manager.

The greatest increase in summer service provided by the PUC is for water, he said in an interview, Tuesday.

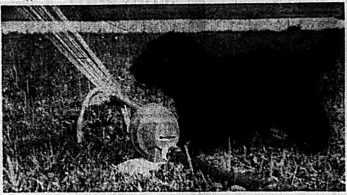
"Most people water their lawns abundently and this creates a greater demand for the water during the peak summer months," he said.

The difference is directly related to the weather, he said.

"This year and last year there was little difference in the water use and rainfall but in July 1973 when there was only 1.63 inches compared with the 1974 total of 2.34 inches There was more demand for water.

"In 1974 we pumped 184,339,000 gallongs of water in the month of July but in 1973, when there was little rain, we pumped 222,528,000 gallons of water." he said "This was an increase of almost 20 per-cent."

Mr. Britton said the PUC will have little trouble supplying the needs of the Belleville people, both in water and electricity, he said.



A Dogged Drinker

While there are some draw backs in trying to get a drink of water from an oscilating lawn sprinkler, the lure of cold water was more than Emily could stand. She ended up getting more on her than in her as her Queen St. master Jim Mitchell stood by.

Prisoner Headed For Loyalist

The 41-year-old prisoner who failed to return to Joyceville Institution Monday was on his way to Belleville's Loyalist College to register for a course, says a spokesman from the minimum security penitentiary.

Police issued a province wide alert for William Lotocki, of Burlington, Ont., after he failed to return after a temporary leave of absence. Lotocki was serving a life sentence.

SECRETARY NOT NURSE

A story in last week's Intelligencer dealing with a family planning display at the Quinte Mall this week incorrectly identified Pat Atkinson of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit as a public health nurse. She is actually a secretary to Gale DePauli, co-ordinator of the planning program. The display runs Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SPECIAL MEETING SET

Belleville's subordinte planning advisory committee will hold a special meeting Aug. 13 in council chambers beginning at 7:30 p.m. A number of developments already discussed by the committee will be given final conmendations included on the Aug. 18 agenda of city council.

SURVEY UNDER WAY

Members of the Citizens Committee in Napanee have been surveying residents to spend the $322,000 federal, provincial and municipal funding. It's part of the planning for the Napanee Neighborhood Improvement Program. The survey results will be presented to town council in early fall.

Ballplayers Plan Event

The Magical Land of Oz, a child-pleasing production, will be staged in Centennial Secondary School Aug. 11 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The play is presented by the Belleville and District Ladies Softball Association with proceeds going towards association costs. Admission is $1.50.

Separate School System Strong Says Director

EDITOR'S NOTE— This is the 12th in a series featuring county educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The separate school system is strong and is growing in acceptance and quality, says E. J. (Ed) Neville, director of education with the Hastings — Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Despite a levelling off of enrolment and a possible decline in the next few years, the 53-year-old director says he believes the quality of separate school education has increased dramatically since the government grant system was changed about 10 years ago ending a long economic fight for boards across Ontario.

Born and raised in Toronto, Mr. Neville has spent the past 31 years in education as a teacher, principal and inspector of schools in Belleville. He holds a masters of education degree from the University of Toronto and has taught at the Teachers' College at Stratford.

Appointed director of education in 1971, Mr. Neville said he believes the separate school system has undergone some positive changes in recent years.

Mr. Neville explained that since the grant structure changed separate school boards have been able to spend more money and energy on curriculum development.

"We feel we have made tremendous advancements in this area and are still seeking improvements in course development," said Mr. Neville, who is married with four children.

The separate school board is expecting an enrolment of about 4,030 students this fall.

Concerning religious education, Mr. Neville said the separate schools attempt to bring the Catholic prilosophy into all aspects of the student's lives.

Corn Aplenty

Mrs. Agnes Kleinsteuber was kept busy Tuesday selling her mixed white and yellow corn to customers on the Market Square. On Tuesday sweet corn was selling for 90 cents to $1 a dozen, but with the crop ripening quickly, growers could be faced with a lot of ripe corn all of a sudden. Customers are Mrs. Howard Lappan and her son, Phillip.

Hot, Dry Spell Creating Havoc for Corn Farmers

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Sweet corn growers in the Quinte area have a problem: Too much, too soon.

Corn for the table or for processing must be harvested and eaten or frozen within a 24-hour period assistant ag rep Richard Hendry, Picton said.

"I know of one farmer who had 600 dozen ears of corn ready in one day. That's an awful lot of corn to dispose of overnight."

The problem, Mr. Hendry said, was brought about by the recent hot, dry weather. "When the crop gets ahead of the harvesters, it's often left in the field and ends up as silage or is plowed under. This will happen in some cases."

The corn crop this year is not particularly good, Mr. Hendry said. "The dry-wet-dry cycles we've had led to poor germination. A lot of seed didn't catch."

On the Belleville market Tuesday, sweet corn was selling between 90 cents and 1 a dozen.

All fruit and vegetables, Mr. Hendry said, are 10 days to two weeks early this year, but this should be no problem for prosessors. Peas are out of the way now and they're ready for corn.

Meeting Date Changed

MARMORA — The date of the September Marmora and Lake Townships council meeting has been advanced to August 30 at the request of Reeve Ritchie Wells so that he may attend a wedding on September 6.

Notice of the change will be advertised in the local paper.

Study Shows Quinte Area No Haven for Hay Fever Sufferers

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

Weeds in the Belleville area are not only unsightly but to many residents who suffer form hay fever and other related ailments cause many hours of grief.

Since hay fever is not a reportable disease, there is no records of the extent of its effects but Dr. C.R. Lenk, of the County Health Unit said, "I don't think it is widespead."

The main problem is with ragweed pollen and other pollens, but it is not "worse here than any where else," said Dr. Lenk.

George Skalin of the ministry of environment, said hay fever is like "the temperature and the weather, it goes up and down."

The pollen count of the area use to be broadcast but was discontinued because it "upset the public" said Mr. Skalin.

The latest possible figures available are published—in a booklet by the Canadian Government Travel Bureaum Ottawa called Havens from

In this booklet it is estimated about 800,000 people suffer from hay fever in eastern Canada.

"The greater part of southern Ontario, including may of Ontario's major cities is heavily polluted with ragweed," states the pamphlet.

The pamphlet lists cities which has had records of their Hay Fever, printed in 1971. mends that a city with a rating of over 10 is not good for hay fever sufferers.

In the only figures available Belleville in 1956 had a rating of 30.2 Kingston in 1961-1963, 29.4; Picton in 1958-1960, 38.2; and Presqu'ile Park in 1963 the rating was 18.6.

There does not seem to be much relief for sufferers in the pollen counts, and recom- local area unless one travels north. As reported in the travel pamphlet, Marmora in 1963-1964 rated 9.6; and Bancroft in 1955-1957 received a 4.5 rating which is considered good.

The County Health Unit states the most prominent weed is ragweed which appears around mid-August.

The city is usually kept busy controlling weeds said Sid Wilkinson weed controller for the city.

"We spray with herbicide 2,4-D and do a lot of cutting," said Mr. Wilkinson.

"This year is harder because of the drier weather which makes the weed grow better."

Mr. Wilkinson, who heads a crew of eight men, said most of the weeds are on the boulevards and not in the fields.

"We're trying our best to control the weeds but it's hard," said Mr. Wilkinson.

Newfoundland Teachers Making House Calls

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) Thousands of Newfoundlanders who cannot read or write are being given the opportunity to learn by having tutors visit their homes.

A group of Memorial University students are involved in the project, called Teachers on Wheels, and have received a federal Opportunities for Youth grant of a little more than $14,000.

The objective is to build confidence in functionally illiterate adults and people unskilled in basic reading and writing.

The operators of the program say they will get a better response by visiting the homes and giving instructions on the spot, because most illiterate people feel embarrassed about their lack of education and appear uncomfortable in crowded classrooms.

Tuition is free and instructors will visit homes at any time of day or night, or on weekends, as often as required.

No diplomas, certificates or grades are offered, and all that is taught is reading and writing and practical instructions such as how to fill out application forms and how to manage a driver's test.

The instructors say most of their students will be school dropouts. A survey showed that in St. John's alone, with a total population of 130,000, there are 420 heads of families with Grade 8 education or less.

USE NEWS MEDIA

After these people learn the basic skills, it is hoped they will have enough confidence and desire to further their education through the provincial adult education centre.

Other programs designed to educate the illiterate are under way in the province but they are conducted in a classroom atmosphere with many people present. The Teachers on Wheels program is unique in that the instructors go directly to the homes.

Meanwhile, Memorial University, which has a free tuition plan for seniors, recently lowered the age limit to 60 from 65 years.

The university instituted free tuition for seniors in September, 1974, as a program in its jubilee year, which ends this month, commemorating its 50th anniversary of university status.

University president M. O. Morgan said senior citizens enrolled in the program obtained a great deal of help and satisfaction from it, and the university decided to lower the age limit to 60 years because more Newfoundlanders are retiring at that age.

"People of this age can make great contributions to life on campus and to communities because of their knowledge and experience gained through the years in working and dealing with others," he said.

The free tuition plan for older people applies to eastern Newfoundland through Memorial University's main campus here and to western Newfoundland through Western Regional College in Corner Brook and 30 other centres where off-campus courses are taught.

Memorial University does not design special courses for the senior students. They simply become an integral part of the general student body and may take any course or courses they want. Fees and tuition are free, but the senior students must buy their own text books and supplies.

A report by Leslie Harris, vice-president of Memorial, on education in the province recommends that the age at which students can leave school be increased by at least one year, to 16 from the current 15 years.

Mr. Harris, a native of the tiny fishing settlement of St. Joseph's on Placentia Bay, said in his report the extra year is needed because 11 years of basic education are required to meet the demands of current and future society.

Budworm Battle Continues

FREDERICTON (CP) — The struggle against the spruce budworm is continuing in New Brunswick this summer with radar and other sophisticated equipment being used to measure the characteristics and extent of the worm's movement over the province.

Scientists at the Maritime Forest Research Centre of the Canadian Forestry Service discovered several years ago that vast numbers of egg-carrying moths participate in voluntary flight each night during the adult period.

Because of the importance of this phenomenon in starting and spreading infestation, the centre has increased its research effort.

The over-all object of the project is to find a more effective way of dealing with the budworm problem.

The larval spray program that has been carried out in New Brunswick almost every year since 1952 has been successful in keeping trees alive. However, such operations restrict damage but do not reduce the problem.

The destruction of a large proportion of the egg-carrying moths that fly over the province each night for a two-week period in mid-July might be the weapon that is needed.

Three radar units will be used to track the moths to determine their direction and speed of flight.

The province's natural resources department is providing a DC-3 aircraft to carry specialized equipment for measuring wind patterns that move and sometimes concentrate moths in the airspace.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Please tell me where I can spend my holidays to escape the ragweed season which begins August 15. I prefer to stay in Canada.

Mrs. Eileen M.,
Kingston, Ont.

ANSWER: Ragweed victims should go north for relief in Ontario. Life gets more bearable from Parry Sound northward. For long distance travellers, British Columbia and the Maritimes provide relief and so do Banff and Jasper in Alberta. Saskatchewan has very little ragweed pollen. In Quebec, the Gaspe Peninsula Lac St. John district, and the Laurentians north of Montreal offer the best refuges.

QUESTION: We are driving out to Vancouver B.C. the end of August and would like the best route and main attractions and parks along the way.

Mr. Harry F.,
KINGSTON, Ont.

ANSWER: The best route is the Trans - Canada Highway. This takes you through many flat lands in the prairies which are rather a drag compared withe the beauty of the Rockies. Calgary marks the end of the prairies and from there the Trans - Canada Highway climbs 80 miles into the Rocky Mountains where the splendor of the scenery and the abundance of wildlife will slow your progress to a crawl. The resorts of Banff and Lake Louise, in Banff National Park, lie directly on your route. If you follow the 142 mile spectacular Icefeld Highway north to Jasper, you'll see the most beautiful scenery in North America. Along this highway lies the Great Columbia Icefields, a remnant of the ice age south of the Arctic. You can rent a pre-recorded tape and lightweight players at either Jasper or Banff. The tape leads you along the road, tells you what you are seeing and even fill in historic details from Indian and fur trade days in the Rockies.

The Banff-Jasper Highway affords the most beautiful scenery in North America and it is the kind of thing you don't want to take your eyes off. West of Lake Louise the highway enters Kicking Horse Pass in British Columbia.

Ahead stretch three more national parks — Yoho, Glacier, and Revelstoke and more eye-popping Alpine scenery. It cost a million dollars a mile to blast a highway through the Selkirk Mountains in Glacier National Park. The result, known as the Rogers Pass, is an engineering scenic marvel. Beyond Revelstoke, 140 miles west of Lake Louise, the highway curves through central British Columbia. Farther west of Revelstoke, it picks up the Fraser River as it enters its roaring canyon, then follows it from Hope, B.C. to Vancouver and the soft air of the Pacific.

An alternate route is to leave the Trans-Canada Highway at Sicamous and travel south on route 97A through the Okanagan Valley and route 3 to Vancouver.

The Okanagan Valley is a very beautiful drive along the Okanagan River where all kinds of fruit can be purchased at many roadside stands.

At Vancouver there are ferries to Victoria, on Vancouver Island. There are also many cruiseships around the island, which are delightful.

On your return you can take route 3, near the U.S. border which is very scenic and takes you to Waterton National Park, lying on the U.S.-Canadian border, adjacent to Glacier National Park, Montana. These two parks are virtually one and are noted for their scenery. Waterton Lakes Park covers 204 square miles of mountains and lake area, a scenic paradise not as crowded with tourists as Banff National Park.

Inflation Keeps Folk Near Home

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — You know that little vacation spot you've been dreaming about?

Inflation is spending the summer there, too.

Travel analysts say this probably won't stop you from going places. But you might not stay as long. And you're more likely to stick closer to home.

Food, transportation, accommodation, even penny candy . . . they're all likely to cost more than they did last year.

For, like everything else these days, a piece of summer paradise is going up in price.

A research centre specializing in travel and tourism reports that it costs an average of 10.7 per cent more to buy restaurant meals and snacks than it did last year; motel and hotel rates are up an average of 8.5 per cent and recreational services are up 8.8 per cent.

The organization, called the United States Travel Data Centre, is an independent, non-profit corporation based in Washington, D.C. It gathers statistical information about the travel industry.

It reports that railroad fares are 18 per cent higher than last year, bus fares are up 10 per cent, air fares are nine per cent higher. Gasoline prices are about the same as last year, but they are 40 per cent higher than two years ago, the centre says.

This means a family that spent $1,000 last year for $100 worth of gas, $400 for accommodations, $400 for food and $100 for recreation will spend about $1,086 this year.

Hugh Hefner, lounging in the backyard of his 30-room Los Angeles mansion, tells a reporter the Playboy company is being forced into a "more efficient and economic operation." But hard times or not, he's maintaining his super-Playboy lifestyle, with plenty of buxom young women around. (AP Photo)

U.S. Government Soon To Try Metric Switch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid early signs that many Americans will resist changing pounds to kilograms, quarts to litres, and miles to kilometres, the United States government is about to commit the country to going metric, an objective Canada expects to attain by 1980.

Metric, which measures distance, weight, temperature and volume in multiples of 10, is coming into widespread use on the heels of a new conversion law expected to clear Congress soon.

Among changes in the works or already occurring in federal agencies and in the private sector:

—The Weather Service is ready with plans for temperatures in Celsius (or centigrade), the replacement for the fahrenheit scale—a step Canada took last April 1. Shortly thereafter television weathermen will be reporting snow depth in centimetres and wind speed in kilometres per hour.

—The federal transportation department is encouraging metric road signs in at least 13 states. Canada already has metric road signs in most provinces.

—A major soft drink manufacturer (Seven Up) is selling its product exclusively in litre and half-litre bottes in Pensacola, Fla., and Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.

—The treasury department is requiring that all wine bottled in the United States be sold in metric containers by Jan. 1, 1979.

—The National Park Service is converting its signs and literature to metric units.

—General Motors Corp., U.S. Steel Corp. and a number of other big manufacturers are converting parts of their assembly lines to metric measurements.

—The Sun Oil Corp. has experimented with gas pumps which ring up litres instead of gallons.

—Many schools are routinely teaching metric to elementary students as is being done in Canada.

—Metric and customary units are used to mark home-run distances in River Front Stadium, home of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team.

Metric advocates are quick to say, however, that after conversion, football fields will remain at 100 yards, and most other sports measurements now in customary units will stay that way.

But there are labor leaders, small businessmen and householders who see no need for any changeover during this century.

"There will be massive resistance," predicts Thomas A. Hannigan of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. "What we have here is engineers and scientists trying to make an important social and economic change."

He went on, "They haven't the faintest idea what the changes will do or what they will mean."

MAY LOSE JOBS

Hannigan said skilled workers will lose jobs unless they can learn the metric system rapidly.

The labor leader also worries that many workers will be forced to make expensive purchases of new metric tools, before their old ones wear out.

Metric supporters argue that the traditional English system is cumbersome to deal with and long overdue for the statistical scrap heap.

For more than five years, there have been moves in a conversion which has already occurred within many corporations, especially those who do heavy overseas business.

Besides declaring a national policy of going metric, the new law would create a 21-member board whose purpose is to co-ordinate the change, industry by industry. Canada already has a metric commission within the federal industry department.

Conversion is completely voluntary. But for several years a number of federal agencies, led by the weather service, have been delayed in putting their metric programs in effect only by the absence of a congrersional commitment.

Proponents also point out what Canada already has done on the road to metric conversion.

Dr. Ernest Ambler, acting director of the National Bureau of Standards, which will co-ordinate conversion for the U.S. government, believes Americans are ready for the change.

"A number of years ago, the man in the strt was the man in the street was somewhat hostile. He viewed it as a foreign system that he didn't need and didn't see the advantage of, but I think that feeling has been changing to one more of curiosity," Ambler said.

Ambler is a native of Britain where the government agreed to permit both metric and traditional measurements for an unlimited length of time. When a decision to go completely metric was announced there was such a public outcry that the dual system was restored.

American officials now are modelling their conversion plans on the experiences of Australia and Canada where from the start it was made clear that the old system would disappear after a brief public education program.

Although the Australian conversion appears to be going well, truckers there won a brief return to miles per hour on road signs after threatening a strike.

One American wife was heard to say when told metric conversion is imminent, "I can see no reason in the world why I should have to learn that stuff."

Blacks in Britain Seek Own Identity

LONDON (Reuter) — After years of frustrated creativity, blacks in Britain are trying to establish their own cultural identity in what remains an alien and sometimes hostile environment.

Calypso singer Cy Grant, who is launching a black-only project known as the Drum Arts Centre says the idea of integration must be jettisoned.

"As long as we are extras on the stage of life," he says, "we will be regarded as outsiders."

Britain has a black population totalling around 700,000, consisting mainly of West Indians who have moved here since the Second World War. Other blacks have been Britons for generations.

About half live in London, where Grant would like to establish his centre.

"A black centre for the arts in London would have real potential for the emancipation of the most deprived section of the community," he says. And he feels his project has a fair chance of success because it has the backing of the British establishment.

Only a small number of Britain's blacks have made a mark in theatre.

Trinidadian Mustapha Matura was voted Britain's most promising playwright this year by London Evening Standard. Singers like Shirley Bassey from Cardiff's Tiger Bay and Cy Grant, whose original home was Guyana, have long been familiar names here, but black actors have usually found it very difficult to find a market for their talents.

Stefan Kalipha is a 36-year-old actor who left Trinidad in 1959. Most theatrical people will tell you he is brilliant but he is still waiting for his career to take flight.

"I've always found it very difficult to get parts," he says. "I often go six or seven months without work. I was a great success last year in Mustapha Matura's Play Mas but there was no follow-up."

Only a lucky few do make it. Derek Griffiths is one of the stars of the current hit The Black Mikado, a black version of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta. His steady stream of television and stage work allows him to keep up his favorite hobby, flying.

But not all black artists have his combination of talent and luck. Equity, the Actors' Union, recently said that while Afro-Asians constitute 2.5 per cent of its membership, only 1.5 per cent of theatre actors are Afro-Asian.

Many members of the black community feel that they are nowhere near realizing their potential in the world of theatre.

Black theatre in Britain has one substantial booster. Impresario Oscar Lewenstein was responsible for the staging of Jean Genet's The Blacks in 1961, for the arrival in Britain last year of the South African play Sizne Banzi Is Dead, by Athol Gugard, John Kani and Winston Ntshona and for the production of Play Mas.

Lewenstein says "If black playwrights and actors are given a chance, they could develop as an important stream in British theatre."

One of the biggest successes in black arts is the popularity of West Indian steelbands, particularly in schools. Russel Henderson from Trinidad blazed a steel trail here several years ago.

Steelbands are booming in schools in London, Birmingham, Bristol, Nottingham and Leicester.

"They are so popular that we haven't got enough teachers and instrument-makers to meet the demand," Henderson says.

He says steelbands have played their part in improving race relations. In schools with bands, West Indian parents have shown much more interest in school functions.

West Indian carnivals are also drawing crowds. Last year's carnival at Notting Hill attracted 500,000 visitors.

These developments are welcomed by Grant and other members of the drum arts committee but he scorns what he refers to as the British pillage of African art.

"There are boxes and crates of black art from all over Africa in the vaults of the British museum. Why isn't it on show?" he demands. And the fact that the enjoying of good jazz is often beyond the financial reach of the very people from whose heritage it sprang angers him.

"A night at Ronnie Scott's (the top London jazz club) can cost $24, he says. "How-many blacks can afford that?"

The forthcoming African Arts Festival to be held in Nigeria in November has created an unprecedented amount of artistic activity here among West Indians of African descent.

The same enthusiasm was shown in the 1966 festival in Senegal, but fell off after it ended.

Black leaders here are hopeful the excitement generated by the festival will gather momentum and emancipate "the most deprived section of the community."

Injured Immigrants Rehabilitated

TORONTO (CP) — Angelo Minatello, 42, was disabled and jobless two years ago because of a back injury he suffered on a construction site.

He was a laborer and knew almost nothing about wood finishing. Today, Mr. Minatello is a foreman for a Toronto woodworking plant. He learned his trade at a rehabilitation centre operated by Costi, an immigration centre.

"It is ironic that through injury, some find new interests, new careers," said Victor Marafioti, director of the centre's rehabilitation program. "Some found new jobs, others started their own businesses. Others returned to school. I know one construction worker who became a social worker."

Costi's rehabilitation program was established 13 years ago. At that time, it offered one course, cabinet-making, and had a class of 19.

There now is a $250,000-a-year budget. The rehabilitation program is the only workshop in Canada directed towards immigrants.

The rehabilitation program is funded by the Workmen's Compensation Board, grants by the provincial government's vocational rehabilitation services, revenue from sales of articles produced in workshops and by Costi funds.

Rehabilitation courses run for 39 weeks. About 70 per cent of the persons who take the courses find jobs, the centre's director said.

Maple Leaf Mills Appointment.

Grant Morrow,
Plant Manager.
Cavan, Ontario.

Maple Leaf Mills is pleased to announce the appointment of Grant Morrow, Plant Manager of the new Maple Leaf Mills' Cavan Feed Plant, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1975.

Grant has more than 28 years of experience in the feed production industry. Grant's role will be to manage the total facility and to assure the best quality products and the highest standard of service.

The new Cavan Feed Plant will employ 24 people and have an economic impact on the local economy of some three million dollars annually. It will provide a market for 30,000 tons of corn and a new source for the Master feed and farm supply needs of local agriculturalists.

This week... this month... even next month.

Freezing Vegetables

Freezing vegetables for eating in the winter months ahead can be economical. However, vegetables must be frozen following recommended procedures if they are to be tasty and preserve well. Look for tips in "Freezing Vegetables", a consumer information leaflet available in Food City stores this week.

While you're visiting our Consumer Awareness Centre for the above, why not pick up a free copy of "What Price Nutrition?". This recent study by the Food Prices Review Board, recommends ways in which you can feed your family a nutritious diet and still spend less! Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Tractors Damage Hearing

MONTREAL (CP) — High noise levels from tractors may cause almost irreversible damage to a farmer's hearing, says Prof. E. R. Norris of McGill University's agricultural engineering program.

As well, the farmer may not realize damage has been done until after two or three decades of exposure, when he has trouble understanding conversations, Prof. Norris said in an interivew.

Peter Havard, a final-year student in the program, said the government does not protect the farmer with any legislation concerning tractor noise.

"With increasing farm mechanization, noise exposure without control may become a very serious problem," Mr. Havard said.

Noise can increase irritability, Mr. Havard said. "Some researchers have noticed people have problems even getting a good, deep sleep after heavy exposure to noise during the day."

RECOMMENDS TEST

To see what damage, if any, has been caused, Prof. Norris recommends a hearing test be taken as part of the farmer's regular physical examination.

To protect the hearing, fluid-filled earmuffs tend to be best, Mr. Havard said. Ear-plugs and semi-inserts are less satisfactory.

In England, a major tractor company has begun giving away a set of earmuffs with each new tractor, he said.

As for the tractor itself, the muffler can be arranged to direct the noise away from the driver—over his head for example.

For the tractor without a cab, the farmer can put glass-fibre sheeting inside the engine walls or on the fire wall, he said. If the tractor has an older cab, acoustical foam should be put on the walls and ceiling.

Mounting the steering column, clutch and brake pedals with rubber will reduce the vibration, Mr. Havard added.

The farmer lucky enough to have a new cab with noise protection should always keep his doors and windows closed, Prof. Norris said. He cited the case of a friend who lost some hearing because he left the back window of his forage chopper open to hear the machine.

Parkinson's Sufferers Given Hope

SASKATOON (CP) — New drugs have been developed that may mean more reliable treatment for people with Parkinson's disase.

Dr. Oleh Hornykiewicaz, who developed L-dopa, the drug now in use, says, "In a few years we should have drugs available that are more reliable than L-dopa."

The drugs are being tested now and initial indications show they are easier for doctors to administer than L-dopa.

The side-effects of L-dopa, such as nausea, may remain with the new drugs.

Parkinson's disease is one of the most common affecting the nervous system. About 2,500 people in Saskatchewan suffer from it. It usually hits people over 50 but children can also be afflicted.

Parkinson's disease stops one section of the brain from producing a chemical called dopamine.

L-dopa will reverse the symptoms. The body converts it to dopamine which is used to replenish the body's inadequate supply.

Dr. Hornykiewicaz said in the most severe cases, L-dopa can't be converted into dopamine. He said he hopes the new drugs will be able to act independently with no need to be converted.

Heat from Power Station May Help Marine Culture

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A biologist with the New Brunswick fisheries department is studying the possibility that waste heat discharge from a thermal electric generating station near here may be used for the development of marine life.

Kerry Wilson of Fredericton, chairman of the Lorneville aquaculture steering committee, says a preliminary design report for establishing a pilot aquaculture plant with limited commercial application will be ready soon.

The report is based on theories that only 25 per cent of the thermal energy in the power plant at Colson Cove, now under construction, is converted into electricity. The remaining 75 per cent is never used and ends up being expelled from the plant as heat.

The study group has been asked for proposals for a project designd to use the waste heat to support the culture of salmonids, flatfish, oysters, mussels, clams, lobster and edible seaweeds.

Mr. Wilson says a $1-million plant is proposed for an area near the generating station.

The planning is being done now to coincide with the completion of the Colson Cove station, scheduled for 1975.

The power station will have a generating capacity of 315 megawatts and is to discharge annually into the Bay of Fundy an estimated 345 million gallons of sea water heated to 15.6 degrees Celsius above that of the bay water.

The report, being prepared by Atlantic Applied Research Ltd. of Halifax, will establish the size of the aquaculture facility, estimate construction and operation costs, and discuss various alternatives in respect to paying personnel.

Mr. Wilson says a steering committee will examine the report to determine whether the operation should be carried out by government or private industry, and if by government, whether provincial or federal, and by what branch.

The report was commissioned by the provincial fisheries department, the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, which will operate the power plant, and the New Brunswick Development Corp., which is co-ordinating development activity in the area.

Dr. Ralph C. Brinkhurst, director of the federal Fisheries Research Biological Station at St. Andrews, N.B., and chairman of the co-ordinating committee, recently explained that cold water on the East Coast creates difficulties for aquaculture.

Though most species are able to survive in the cold, Dr. Brinkhurst said, some actually die in low sea-water temperatures in the Bay of Fundy. In winter, temperatures may drop below freezing.

Eggs and Bull Testicles Used in Love Potions

SALVADOR, Brazil (Reuter) — Take a half-dozen quail eggs, a handful of peanuts, tree bark, sugar-cane alcohol and bull's testicles, mix it all up in a cocktail shaker, and you'll be a better lover than the legendary Don Juan, say the natives in this northeastern Brazilian city. It is here the art of making aphrodisiacs or love-potions is claimed to be second only to the art of making love itself.

The potent and allegedly potent-making medicine is on sale at stalls in street markets, on beaches and in tourist haunts.

Salvador—and Bahia State, of which it is the capital—have the reputation of being in the most passionate area of a passionate country, where the annual carnival reaches its wildest abandon.

And just in case there is any doubt, the aphrodisiac-makers are determined to do their share.

One of the best-known dispensers of aphrodisiacs is Fenix' Cantina in the model market, in the tourist centre of the city.

Presiding over Fenix' many delights and secrets is Pericles Duarte de Oliveira, 53, a greying-haired mulatto who has spent a lifetime concocting his potions.

Known to the connoisseurs as "Doctor," Pericles is helped by two women servers and does a flourishing trade throughout the day as customers return for what they believe to be his most effective potion—a concoction of catuaba root and tea bark drowned in sugar-cane alcohol, mixed with quail eggs, peanuts, cocoa, cola and jelly made from the skin of a bull's genital organ.

"They try them out because some are good for some people and others for others, until they find the one that is theirs," he says.

Pericles proudly shows his golden book of thanks from customers from all over the world.

Train Refreshment Stops Are Ending in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A highly distinctive travel custom is disappearing in New Zealand in the interests of progress. In a wave of nostalgia, railway enthusiasts have been sadly lamenting its passing.

Until recent years there were no dining cars on New Zealand express trains. Instead, conductors passed through the carriages at intervals chanting some such liturgy as "Temts freshts Taunui."

Knowledgeable New Zealanders were able to interpret this as meaning "The train will stop for 10 minutes for refreshments when we arrive shortly at Taumarunui station."

Expresses invariably arrived at Taumarunui, a small town about midway between Auckland and Wellington, in the middle of the night. But however moribund the passengers seemed, the announcement was the signal for frantic activity. Sleeping travellers were galvanised into action. They groped beneath the seats for discarded shoes, assembled jackets, wallets, and families, and headed for the carriage doors.

Immediately the train halted at the station, they joined in a mad rush for he refreshment counters where attendants stood ready for the invasion.

"Pieacuppatea," chanted the early arrivals, which the attendants were equally accustomed to translating as "A meat pie and a cup of tea."

Early customers rapidly retreated to a corner with their trophies, but those who were not quick off the mark were liable to be submerged by later arrivals, five or six deep, shoving toward the counters. Tea was liable to be slopped into saucers and pies trampled underfoot. But so massive were the cups and saucers that even crockery trampled by the milling throng survived the onslaught.

Tourists, watching the ritual in amazement, swore that New Zealand superiority at Rugby football followed naturally from the training received from childhood at railway refreshment counters.

Late arrivals were liable to receive their supplier within a minute or two of departure, so that they had to sprint back to their carriages as the train was whistling for departure.

Cups, saucers and plates taken aboard the train were collected after departure by attendants who passed through after the journey was resumed and alighted at the next station.

The whole process was repeated at frequent intervals throughout a journey of 10 or 12 hours and it was calculated that consumption of tea and pies per passenger was about enough to sustain an Asian peasant for a week or more.

In recent years, however, new express trains have been brought into service with restaurant and buffet service aboard. More trains will offer similar facilities soon.

More and more of the refreshment stops are being eliminated. That at Taumarunui, perhaps the most famous of the main-line way stations, closed a while ago.

Now another, at Frankton, has been eliminated. To mark the closing of its refreshment service, railway enthusiasts made special trips to Frankton, 80 miles south of Auckland, for the last day's service.

All of them, as a matter of principle, ordered pies and tea. Some brought their children with them to give them a last opportunity to experience the pioneer railway traveller's refreshment customs.

They presented bouquets of flowers to the refreshment room staff and lamented the end of an era.

"It's the end of a way of life," declared one hardened traveller and an expert in the art of sustaining life on New Zealand's express trains.

Longtime train travellers, connoisseurs of the fare at various stations, declare that the effete modern custom of taking a meal at leisure as the train is in motion cannot compare with the struggle and triumph of a hard-earned pienacuppatea. And the massive cups, saucers and plates with railway insignia on them have become collectors' items.

Military Management Group Still in Charge in Saigon

BANGKOK (AP) — According to Saigon broadcasts, the new South Vietnamese leaders have restored 200 miles of war-damaged rail lines and directed the rebuilding of 50 bridges, the filling of bomb and shell craters and the clearing of mines and live explosives from farmlands.

The broadcasts also are saying that dozens of new irrigation and land-clearing projects are under way and that factories have resumed production—some of them with workers in charge.

But the broadcasts indicate that the leadership in Saigon remains largely in the hands of the Military Management Committee (MMC) which took over after the surrender on April 30, although the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government is six years old.

The Communist led MMC wasted no time in asserting itself in foreign affairs. In the first week it laid claim to South Vietnam's seat in the United Nations and the old property in foreign capitals including Washington, although relations with the United States are not in sight.

It demanded the return of ships and aircraft flown out by refugees and, according to a Washington report, wrested an island in the Gulf of Thailand from Cambodia and battled Khmer Rouge forces on the Mekng Delta brder.

It sent a diplomatic delegation to explore relations with its old enemy, Thailand.

The broadcasts also indicate that the leadership is having a more difficult time with human problems.

The new regime has said in broadcasts that its No. 1 problem is security, a term that seems to encompass everything from pockets of military resistance and banditry to small-scale speculation and unco-operativeness.

A French diplomat, who asked not to be quoted by name, arrived in Laos from South Vietnam recently and he told reporters that shooting is heard nightly in downtown Saigon.

"By 8:30 p.m., the city is dead," he said. "People are afraid to go outside."

The Saigon Liberation radio has reported clashes in provinces near Saigon and the capture of soldiers of the old regime who had been holding out.

It added that authorities in the Mekong Delta province of My Tho recently organized a demonstration to encourage the people to reveal "henchmen and ex-soldiers who still are in hiding places."

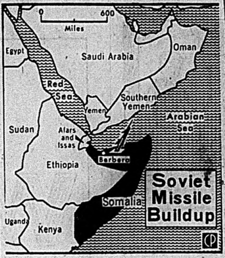
To win hearts and minds, the new leadership has drawn heavily in broadcasts on the image of the late North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, who is admired by Vietnamese on both sides as a patriot and liberator from the French. Ho's image has been distributed in thousands of posters and his words, according to Saigon radio, in tons of leaflets, song sheets and books.

Revlutionary people's committees have been set up for neighborhood law and order, and the new rulers have founded organizations for every age and status: liberated artists, liberated old people, liberated women and the like, the broadcasts indicate.

Saigon broadcasts have mentioned dozens of student and youth organizations, with functions ranging from helping clean streets to leading people to health care and protecting public property.

The Saigon reports say American books and magazines have been banned as "obscene," long male hair and Western dress have been denounced and Saigon's military boss, Gen. Tran Van Tra, has blamed the Americans for leading South Vietnam into "lascivious and decadent" ways.

Dispatches from Western correspondents in Saigon in the first weeks under Communist rule said prostitution, thievery and black marketeering were still going on. Later reports said such pursuits had waned under harsher measures, including public humiliation of transgressors and shooting of thieves.



According to informants the Soviet Union is stockpiling long-range guided missiles in a new installation located at Berbera, Somalia.

With a built-up missile supply, military experts say, the Soviet Union and the Arab nations it is friendly with could presumably control the exits from the Persian Gulf and from the Suez-Red Sea supply lanes, in event of an international crisis.

The guided missiles are believed to have ranges from 200-700 miles. (CP Newsmap)

Alberta Blacks Try To Revive Hamlet

AMBER VALLEY, Alta. (CP) — This northern hamlet was once a major black community in Alberta.

With a population of about 1,000, it was the centre of a fairly large, predominantly-black farming area. Then, during the '40s and '50s, many farmers migrated back to cities in search of better paying jobs.

Alberta Lipscombe, who left the community 23 years ago, said "most of the people who left for the cities would have stayed if they could have made a living farming."

Now, with a population that has dwindled to 100, many of whom are in their 70s and 80s, Amber Valley may be reawakening.

Amber Valley, in the Athabasca district 80 miles north of Edmonton, and Wildwood, a hamlet 65 miles west of the capital are in the same situation. They have become the focal point of a project aimed at regenerating pride of culture in Alberta blacks.

Operation We Care, an Edmonton based organization working at integrating Negroes into Alberta life, is funding the project. They are trying to attract back to the land the young people who left for the city with their parents.

The organization hopes development of secondary industries will give poor families in the areas a source of extra income so they can remain on the farm, or take up farming.

The first result of this effort came when Wildwood blacks began hand-producing ceramics, now on sale in Edmonton.

Lee Carter, director of Operation We Care, said that if Amber Valley is going to live again the younger people who have gone to the cities are going to have to return.

"They'll only return if there's an active social and cultural life here."

Amber Valley never had a commercial and institutional core to speak of, and what it had is lost. The one-room schoolhouse now is a garage and the little church is too old and too small to attract any but sentimentalists.

So, a year ago Mr. Carter formed the Amber Valley Community Association to help revitalize the cultural life of the hamlet.

CP News Roundup

30 Years Since Atom Bomb Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan observe the 30th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima today by emphasizing how close the two countries have become since the Second World War.

A joint communique to be issued today at the end of the third and final round of talks between President Ford and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki will stress the need for the two countries to maintain their close economic and security ties, U.S. officials said.

Implicit in the communique will be the reaffirmation of the American intention to maintain its nuclear umbrella over Japan.

Keep Election Date

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal elections in Ontario should continue to be held on the first Monday in December, the Association of Municipalities of Ontario decided Tuesday at its annual conference. Voting delegates from the 535 municipalities rejected a proposal allowing communities to set their own election dates.

Report Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP says there is no truth to statements by Edmonton publisher Mel Hurtig that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency prepared secret background reports on British Columbia Premier Dave Barrett and two other New Democratic Party cabinet members in mid-1973.

"There is absolutely no foundation to his statements," an RCMP spokesman said Tuesday. The CIA would have no reason to be interested in the politics of British Columbia."

Pact Ratified

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — More than 8,000 workers at Algoma Steel Corp. ratified a three-year agreement Tuesday by an overwheming majority, ending a strike that began July 31.

Members of Local 2251, United Steelworkers of America, voted 3,711 to 1,924 in favor of accepting the new agreement.

Millhaven Quiet

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The director of nearby Millhaven institute said Tuesday the prison was quiet on the sixth day of an 11-day sit-in by prisoners in support of a union for themselves and British Columbia prisoners. John Dowsett added, however, that prison officials "suspect that tempers are getting a little short inside" as prisoners remained in their cells during the recent heat wave. The prisoners began the sit-in Thursday and say they plan to continue it until next Monday. They leave their cells only for showers and meals.

Bones Are Old

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Human bones dug from the backyard of a city home two weeks ago have been identified by an archaeologist as being from 1,500 to 2,500 years old. Thomas Freel said Tuesday the skeleton found in his yard has been identified by Prof. William Finlayson of the University of Western Ontario as that of an early woodland Indian who lived between 500 A.D and 1000 B.C. Mr. Freel found a kneecap while digging a fence-post hole in May. Two weekends ago his family and some neighbors discovered almost a complete skeleton in a fetal position.

Back on Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Bus and subway drivers returned to work early today without incident following a 24-hour work stoppage Tuesday to back demands for increased wages.

Drivers at a meeting Tuesday unanimously accepted union recommendations to return to the job while contract negotiations continue.

Exports Stopped

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian housewives are having trouble getting tops for their jars of preserves and a spokesman for the packaging industry says the trouble began when manufacturers in the United States apruptly cut off exports to Canada late last summer.

J. B. Goldie, president and general manager of Anchor Cap and Closure Corp. of Canada Ltd., said the U.S. firms, which had supplied 40 per cent of the Canadian market, were faced with a shortage in the U.S.

Banks Fugitive

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — American Indian Movement (AIM) leader Dennis Banks was declared a fugitive Tuesday after he failed to appear in Custer County court for sentencing on riot and assault convictions in connection with a 1973 melee at the county courthouse.

Levy Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced Tuesday that export charges for crude oil and equivalent hydrocarbons will be increased by 25 cents a barrel Sept. 1.

Ontario May Run Second Lottery

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering a new lottery with draws every two months and tickets at $3 or $5, Robert Welch, minister of recreation and culture, said Tuesday.

He told the annual conference of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario that: "It would not surprise me that some consideration is being given to another type of game or draw."

Mr. Welch dropped the hint in announcing that the province is making $9 million immediately available for a wide range of cultural and recreational activities.

He said individuals and community groups are being invited to suggest projects ranging from the purchase of band instruments to arranging historical displays.

The money will come from proceeds of the Wintario lottery and Olympic lottery.

The minister said the province expects at least $20 million from the Wintario lottery this year.

Grants from the $9 million will be made only for a portion of the cost and will be considered on a "one-shot" basis with no commitment for further provincial funds.

Grants up to $5,000 will be available on a matching basis for events connected with municipal anniversary or centennial celebrations and municipalities, business and industry will be encouraged to develop fitness programs, he said.

Collins Bay Fugitives Caught in 15 Minutes

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Four prisoners armed with kitchen knives and a screwdriver escaped Tuesday from the nearby Collins Bay prison but were recaptured after about 15 minutes, says a prison official.

Prison director Ross Duff said the prisoners tied up a prison employee and used a ladder to scale the facility's 26-foot wall.

He said the four men, who carried sharpened kitchen knives and a sharpened screwdriver, entered the prison's sheet metal workshop where a knife was held to the throat of David Adams, a welder hired as casual help at the medium-security institution.

The director said the men were later spotted running across a field at the nearby Frontenac Institute, a minimum-security farm annex.

Frontenac guards in a truck chased the men and caught them. No shots were fired.

Mr. Duff said the welder was not harmed, but was threatened if he "raised a fuss."

He identified the four escapers as William Eric Mulligan, 24, of Toronto; Gary Kenneth Bowering, 24, of St. Catharines, Ont.; Randy Oscar Hill, 19, of London, Ont.; and John Raphael Saikkonen, 24, of Toronto.

Mulligan is serving life for murder punishable by life imprisonment; Bowering, three years for break, enter and theft and parole forfeiture; Hill, two years for possession of stolen goods valued at more than $200, and Saikkonen, 10 years for parole revocation and manslaughter.

On July 11, Collins Bay as well as other medium-and maximum-security prisons were subjected to a surprise search.

Mr. Duff said knives such as those used in Tuesday's incident may easily be removed from the dining areas and sharpened. The prison's metal detectors are used only in the visiting area and in the hospitals-classification area.

He said an administrative inquiry will be held to investigate the incident and make recommendations.

YMCA Council Asks Immigration Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration offices abroad should be disbanded and immigration halved to about 100,000 persons a year, the national council of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada (YMCA) said Tuesday.

In a brief to the special parliamentary committee on immigration policy, the YMCA called on the government to "cease promoting immigration" and to replace 174 immigration officers abroad with a small mobile team "which could go to appropriate countries when needed."

The brief, prepared by the YMCA's social issues committee, said the government should aim for a population of about 30 million by the turn of the century by adopting a "go slow" immigration policy suggested as one alternative in the green paper on immigration released in February.

Any policy should reject discrimination and give priority to reunification of families, the brief said. However, it added that Ottawa should drop the nominated relatives category, which grants preference to distant relatives of immigrants already living in the country.

The brief also stated that immigrants should be required to settle in specific areas in cases when they are admitted on the basis of a job skill that is in demand in a certain area.

Ballot Boxes Are Smashed

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 members of Local 506, Laborers International Union, smashed ballot boxes Tuesday at a meeting called to vote on a new contract offer from the Toronto Construction Association, a union official said.

Ray Ford, Local 506 business manager, said the proposal could not be discussed because of shouting from members present, so he called for a vote. He said that when the ballot boxes were returned, he asked for six members to volunteer as scrutineers.

Mr. Ford said about 100 persons rushed to the executive table, overturned it and smashed the ballot boxes. Police were called and the meeting was adjourned.

Statistics Given

OTTAWA (CP) — As requested by the western provinces, the finance department has begun regular publication of statistics showing the regional distribution of chartered bank assets and liabilities. But a department spokesman says the figures will not tell the provinces what they want to know.

The request was based on the long-standing belief in the West that the banks take in more money than they loan and that western bank deposits are used to finance industry in Central Canada, particularly Ontario.

The spokesman says this assumption can be neither proved nor disproved by the statistics available from the banks.

Firm Charged

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. and one of its top executives were indicted Tuesday on charges of violating United States federal rules covering crude-oil allocations to refineries.

It was the first criminal action filed against a major United States oil corporation for alleged wilful failure to comply with the Federal Energy Administration's (FEA) crude oil entitlements program, begun last January, U.S. Attorney Blair Griffith said.

Drugs Seized

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Six persons were remanded in custody until Thursday when they appeared in court Tuesday charged in connection with seizure of drugs, which police say are worth $10 million on the street, at a lodge 215 miles north of here.

Charged with conspiring to traffic in a narcotic are Alan Templain, 35, his wife Diane, 32, Lynn Deveaux, 23, and Morris Kenny, 25 all of Wawa; Joseph Valois 23, of Hawk Junction, Ont.; and David Patterson, 23, of Toronto.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Charles Jones, 25, and Bernard Guindon, 33, both of Toronto, and for Wendell Howell 25 of Atlanta, Ga.

Front and Rear View of New Country Club

Completion Delay for New Clubhouse Doesn't Seem to Matter to Anyone

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

Although the new clubhouse currently under construction for the Bay of Quinte Country Club won't be finished on time, nobody, including Club president Paul Henderson, is upset about the fact. The delay in completion may even be a minor blessing in disguise for the 53-year-old building.

The original completion date for the new $216,000 structure was to have been August 1, with the club making the transition from the old building by about the middle of the month.

The new facility will be ready for occupancy by about behind the original date, which was set in the early part of March. The changeover from the existing clubhouse should be complete by the Labor Day weekend.

The reason behind the delay are simple. Henderson termed them as just regular delays in the construction industry, really to be expected.

"No date was actually set down in the contract, so there's no pressure on either side to get the thing completed," stated Henderson. "There's no penalty for not having it done on time."

The new building, more of a needed replacement for the existing structure than a new concept, is deceivingly large. From a distance it looks small in its location on the former 1st fairway.

However, when one gets closer, and inside, it appears in its true light.

Built with practicaity and function in mind, floor space in the new building is very well used. Within the approximately 7,500 sq. ft. of space are included all the same facilities, with the exception of a games room, that now are in the old building.

Actual lounge and ining space has increased as to allow licensing for 216 as compared to the present 204. As well as larger areas, many features will be upgraded. Increased shower facilities will be among the top improvements.

The b iulding will also be located closer to the course itself. With reconstructin of Highway No. 2 a couple of years back, the fist hole was relocated north of the highway, with the 18th the lone hole south of the road. That has now been changed as well, with all golf being played to the north side, with the Clubhouse to be loated just to the south of the highway.

The location will also cater to asthetics, with a beautiful view of the Bay available. The view will be accessible through the south side of the building, which will bbe almost entirely of tinted glass, also adding to the large open concept.

Depending on several factors, including finances of the club in future years, the site will be ready to handle full recreational facilities, includng tennis and a swimming pool. The old cclubhouse, built when the club was formed in 1921, from two barns combined, will be torn down, leaving room for the possible facilities to the southeast of the new building. Land held by the club to the west is being sold.

The old clubhouse is seeing the years catch up on it. Formed from two barns moved to their present location from Trent Road farms, it has started to slowly sink awa,with the ancient wooden supports giving way to dry rot.

The blessing hidded in the delay may come in September., , according to Henderson. "More people should take more interest in Club activities in the months of Septemberand October as a result of the new building. Although there are still lots of golfers out after Labor Day weekend, many feel that it's time to pack up the clubs until next spring. Those two months are often the best for golfing." The new clubhouse should arouse more interst in the latter months of the season. And also for some years to come.

Latta Clinches Second Straight SHBL Title

Latta wrapped up its second consecutive South Hastings Baseball League pennant Saturday, with a 2-0 win over Plane's Concrete.

The Latta crew clinched first place on the strength of Dale Bamber's four hit pitching. The winning chucker whiffed seven and walked none. Larry Adams was tagged for the loss, giving up two runs on seven hits. He struck out five and walked three.

Damon Richardson paced the winners with a triple, while Stan Dafoe had a double and single. Jim Robb had two base hits for the losers, with Steve Moore and Bob Neilson each adding one.

In the other game played in the league on Saturday, Read edged Melrose 6-5, in a six inning game. Read got seven hit pitching from Ken Abrams, as he walked four and struck out one. John Pepper took the loss, allowing nine hits and two walks, while whiffing five.

Gerald Farrel led the winners with a double, while Peter Walsh, Burt Sherry, and Peter Vos each had two singles. Rick Meagher and Scott McLaren contributed a double and single each to the losing effort.

Shannonville upset Foxboro Merchants 3-1 in weekend South Hastings Baseball League action on the three-hit pitching of Bill Barberstock.

In the other league games Tuesday, Foxboro took out their frustration by defeating Melrose 5-2 and Read downed Deseronto 8-2.

Barberstock struck out six batters and walked none in the Shannonville victory.

The loss went to Ted Foster. He threw a six-hitter, issuing two walks and sending six batters to the bench on third strikes.

Wayne Sager had two safeties in the win, while Barberstock also came through with a hit.

The three Foxboro singles came from Ron McTaggart, Dave Chisholm and Greg Empey.

Foxboro was on the winning side in their next contest, with Ron McTaggart taking the win.

He gave up seven hits and walked four while fanning eight batters.

Ted Abrams and Terry McTaggart shared the 5-2 loss. They combined to strike out seven.

Dale Harrison homered and singled for the winners while Ted Foster had two singles.

Randy Pascoe had two singles for the losers.

Mike Walsh gave up just three hits to record Read's win. He walked five and had no strikeouts.

The loss was shared by George Kimmett and Steve Hefferman. The two combined for six strikeouts.

Carm Milligan homered for the winners while Bud O'Connor singled and tripled.

Hefferman hit a home run in the loss.

Pitchers Figure in Three Of Four BISL Awards

With the Belleville Industrial Softball League regular season at an end it is time to give credit where credit is due.

As in most leagues, the procedure is to present awards, and BISL has done just that.

The Most Valuable Player award went to Norm Lockhart of Post Office, the team's pitcher.

Lockhart's contribution to the Posties cannot be minimized. Not only was he their only pitcher, but he also was tops at the plate for them. Lockhart is presently proving just how good he is in the league playoffs.

The Most Gentlemanly Player Award went to two players, Ron Mitchell of Constellation and Al Colden from Brooke Bond. The award combines talent and good sportsmanship, and is voted on by reps from each of the league's teams.

It was a tossup for Most Valuable Pitcher, with a tie resulting between Ken Kerik of Constellation and Sonny Holoway, the hurler for Mead Johnson.

Kerik went on a 12-game winning streak early in the year and, for a while, was the hottest pitcher in the area. Holoway waited a little longer. He threw a no-hitter near the end of the year, and was one of the main factors in Mead Johnson's late season surge to third place.

The awards will be presented at the league's banquet to be held September 20th. Tickets can be obtained from club representatives.

Intell Has UIC On Ropes

An upset is in the works for The Intelligencer, as far as the quarter-final round of the Belleville Industrial Softball League playoffs are concerned.

The Intell is pitted against UIC, the team that finished first in the West Division, to The Intelligencer's fourth.

On Tuesday night The Intell defeated UIC 4-1 to take a 2-1 lead in the series.

Joey Edwards hurled a three-hitter for the victors. He walked one and sent seven UIC batters to the bench on third strikes.

Rick Sullivan was saddled with the loss. He gave up five hits and two walks while striking out two. Sullivan watched his teammates make four errors behind him.

Tony Goncalves led the winners at the plate with two singles, followed by other one baggers from Maurice Switzer, Ron Culloden and Kevin Joudwa.

Sullivan tripled for the losing squad while Bob Robb and Ron Embury singled.

Playoff action resumes tonight.

PELE WON'T PLAY

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Cosmos said Tuesday that Pele will not play in the team's final regular-season game Tuesday night against Boston but would appear in an exhibition game in St. Louis on Sunday. Pele has been hobbled by a strained thigh muscle since July 19 when he was injured in a North American Soccer League game in Toronto. The Cosmos are out of the NASL playoffs.

Local Archer Set for Olympic Trials

Usually you associate bows and arrows with Western movies or Robin Hood and his Merry Men.

Well, you can forget about the fiction, because Jean Mainland of Belleville is going for the real thing — The Olympic Trials for Archery to be held next June.

She will be one of only 15 women in Canada competing for a shot at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal. She is the only representative of this area, and it wasn't easy getting as far as she has.

To qualify for a shot at the Canadian Olympic Archery Team she had to shoot 1050 out of a possible 1440 points in three qualifying rounds.

The first two rounds were held in Ottawa, while the third was at the Canadian Championships, where Miss Mainland competed.

Shooting out of the Belleville Archery Club, she is definitely the top Archer in this area; the question now is, can she compete internationally?

"I'll have to be one of the top two women at the Olympic Trials to qualify for the Olympic team," she said.

"I plan to practice quite a bit, and put all of my concentration on the trials in June."

She gives lots of credit to her coach, Floyd Armstrong, whose name should be familiar to anyone concerned with archery here.

"Not many people know enough about archery, for instance, scoring," said Miss Mainland. "A bullseye is worth 10 points and then the color scheme on the targets denotes how many points your shot is worth," she added.

She has been an archer for five years now, starting her career at the age of 15, while still in high school.

She is presently working at Belleville General Hospital, and of course, cannot be sponsored, since she is still classed as an amateur for the Olympics.

It is quite a feat for smeone 20 years of age to go so far in only five years, and next June may place her even farther.

One thing is for sure, she has no reason to look back with a future like hers.

Elliott Motors Wins Series

Elliott Motors Tykes became "B" Division Champs of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association in a big way.

What they did to earn the title was defeat Trenton in a best-of-three series.

The locals tock the series two games straight with the second victory a 19-2 one.

Robbie Revoy struck out 11 Trenton batters enroute to the victory.

The loss went to Brad strikeouts.

Jim Cook homered and had two singles in the win. Revoy had a double and a single and Bradley Gray had two singles, to help take the series.

Yardmen Take PWSU Opener

The Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund couldn't have been matched with a more fitting or a much tougher team than the Oshawa McDonald's for their Provincial Women's Sofftball Intermediate "AA" playoff.

It was the McDonalds that won the first Belleville Yardmen Tournament here a short time ago.

This time though the Belleville team was on top, winning by a slim 3-2 score.

Sandra Claus was the winner. She was touched for only five hits and walked two. She struck out four.

Ellen Coe absorbed the loss, allowing 11 batters to reach base on hits. She walked two and struck out three Belleville players.

Shirley Gulliver was tops at the plate for the winners with a double and two singles.

Sheila Smith, Carol McFarlene and Sheila Alexander reached base twice on safeties.

Sally Foster and Coe doubled for the losers.

With Belleville holding a 1-0 lead in the series the second game will be played tonight at the Alemite at 8:30.

Sills Pounds Pair In Broadloom Win

Mary Anne Sills pounded two home runs in leading Belleville Broadloom to a 12-2 win over Lakeside Oxygen in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League play on Tuesday night.

Sue Fobert had no trouble in the win, allowing five hits and walking six. She struck out 10 batters.

Norma MacQuarrie was saddled with the loss. She struck out four Broadloom batters.

Linda Cole also helped Broadloom at the plate with three doubles and a single.

Chris Fyke doubled twice to add to the attack.

For Lakeside Nancy Sills and Leslie Best singled twice in the losing cause.

Belleville Yardmen scored eight runs in the first inning and never looked back on Mobil Chemical in a Belleville and District Ladies Softball League game played Monday night. The final score in the contest was 14-6.

Shirley Gulliver went the route for the winners, allowing 12 hits. She fanned seven and walked three. Aileen Barr was hammered for 21 hits in absorbing the loss, walking five and not striking out a batter.

Nancy Birch lead the slugfest for the Yardmen, banging a double and adding three singles. Sheila Smith had three doubles, while Gulliver rapped a double and two singles.

Ginny Irwin slammed a home run and single to pace the losers, with Barr adding a triple and single. Heather Sinclair and Bonnie McKeown had two singles each in defeat.

Take OASA Opener

The Belleville Downtown Merchants got off to a good start in the OASA Zone Four Bantam playoffs, defeating the opposition, Ottawa Parkwood Hills 14-12.

Tim Soule and Rick Tripp shared with win. They allowed 11 hits and four walks and struckout six.

Kirk Delaplante and Mike Bell were the losers.

Ward Morrison cranked a homer for Belleville and added two singles and three ribi's Paul Marineau and Ron Begley had a triple and two singles each.

Paul MacMillan homered and sigled for the losers.

KELLY MOVES TO WFL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Leroy Kelly, former star with Cleveland Browns of the National Footpall League, has been named offensive back and passing game coach of the World Football League's Philadelphia Bell, the team announced Tuesday.

Auger Makes Move In QFL Backstretch

As the season comes closer to an end for Quinte Fastball League clubs, Auger Men's Wear seems to be the team to reckon with.

The Trenton team hasn't given away anything of late and it has paid off. Tuesday night at the Alemite they shutout Howard and Robert 1-0, moving into third place in the QFL.

In the other game of the twin-bill, Devolin Motors defeated an improving Rorabeck Real Estate 4-2.

Bob Swan hurled the Auger victory, a one-hitter that saw him fan eight H and R batters and walk just one.

The loss went to Ted Baker. He allowed six Auger batters to reach base on hits, as well as walking one and setting down one on a third strike.

The winning marker came in the bottom of the fifth when singles by Al Ferguson and Dave Lott produced a run.

Other Auger safeties came from Bob McAlpine, Joe Theriault and Ted Cornell; all with singles.

The only H and R hit was a single by Paul Hall.

Don Holoway picked up his second win in as many nights at the Alemite, this time against Rorabeck.

The Devolin squad tightened their grip on second place with the 4-2 victory.

Holoway was touched for eight hits by Rorabeck batters. He walked three and fanned five players.

The loss was absorbed by Mark Sheridan. He allowed five hits, walked none and struck out six batters.

Rick Rosebush ran out an inside the park home run and also singled to lead the winning attack for the Motormen. Dave Horwood singled and Holoway doubled and singled to help himself to the win.

All of the Rorabeck hits were singles, including run scoring safeties from Hugh Holmes and Tom Lickers.

Local Peewees Advance To Brampton Tourney Final

TOURNAMENT indent en ma

Success was the story over the weekend for the Belleville Broadloom Peewees at the Brampton Peewee Tournament.

The Belleville squad took four victories in a row at the tournament, despite bad weather, Sunday.

The locals will play for the "A" Championship on Saturday at Brampton as a result of their efforts.

Things got off well with a 12-7 win over Haron Park on Saturday.

Sunday's games were rained out and on Monday Broadloom went into three contests, winning 4-3 over Oak Ridges, 4-3 over London and 8-4 in the semi-final over Hamilton.

That put them into the "A" Championships with Burlington.

Tony Parks and Glenn McQuaid shared the win over Haron Park, striking out 10 batters combined.

McQuaid was tops in the hitting department. He homered and had two singles.

Next were two 4-3 games where Belleville had to come up with extra inning surges to win.

The first one was over Oak Ridges, with three pitchers in on the win, Park.s Rory McLeod and Glenn McQuaid.

Brian Conkrite singled twice and Matt Whitley tripled to assist in the win.

The other 4-3 win was in the quarter-final against London. Broadloom pitchers Tony Parks and Glenn McQuaid were the winners.

All of the Belleville hits were singles in that match.

Again, Parks and McQuaid both pitched in the semi-final.

Mike Vani doubled and singled twice in the win, while Brian Cronkrite reached base three times on singles.

Lead Trenton 2-0

The Belleville Broadloom Peewees came up with a must win on Tuesday night when they defeated Trenton 6-1 in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play.

Trenton holds a two game lead in the best-of-five series.

Tony Parks and Glenn McQuaid hurled the victory, allowing just four hits along the way.

Steve Smith went all the way in the loss.

Rory McLeod was Belleville's main threat at the plate. He tripled and had two singles. Brian Cronkrite and Tony Parks both singled twice.

Bob Alexander had two singles in the loss while Mark Tice doubled.

The next game in the series will be played tonight at Parkdale, at 6:30.

When Philadelphia Gets The Ball They Go All the Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was first and 10 for Philadelphia.

Unfortunately for Chicago Cubs, it wasn't football's Philadelphia Eagles they were playing, it was the Phillies. And the game was baseball.

Bill Bonham started Tuesday night's game for the Cubs. He never knew what hit him.

What hit him, in succession, were Dave Cash, Larry Bowa, Garry Maddox, Greg Luzinski, Jay Johnstone, Tommy Hutton and Mike Schmidt.

There was no call for unnecessary roughness. The only call was for reliever Ed Crosby, who might well have been cowering in the Cubs' bullpen.

Johnny Oates, Maddox and Johnstone proceeded to hit him, too, and when the first-inning carnage was complete, the Phillies had 10 hits—the first eight in a row—and 10 runs. The other eight innings were academic. Philadelphia waltzed to a 13-5 victory.

MIKE SCHMIDT

In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-1, Los Angeles Dodgers shut out Atlanta Braves 5-0, Cincinnati Reds defeated San Francisco Giants 6-3, San Diego Padres edged Houston Astros 6-5 in 10 innings and, in a twi-night doubleheader, Montreal Expos blanked New York Mets twice by 7-0 scores.

Maddox and Schmidt were the biggest guns in the Phillies' arsenal. After Cash and Bowa singled, Maddox unloaded his third home run of the season. Then Luzinski singled, Johnstone doubled and Hutton singled them both home.

Schmidt's two-run homer finally sent Bonham to the showers and brought up Oates, who promptly singled. Phils' pitcher Dick Ruthven, adding insult to embarrassment, bunted Oates to second. Cash, up for the second time, drew a walk and, with two away, Maddox got his fourth RBI of the inning with a single. Luzinski walked and Johnstone singled for the final two runs.

The Cubs tried to make a game of it with four runs in the third inning, three on a triple by Rick Monday, but Schmidt put an end to their hopes with another two-run homer in the fifth.

Despite the offensive explosion, the Phils failed to cut into Pittsburgh's 4½-game lead in the East Division. Pirates Richie Zisk, Duffy Dyer and Bill Robinson made sure of that, driving in two runs apiece to beat St. Louis.

Like the Phils, the Dodgers came out on top but went nowhere in the standings, remaining 15½ games back of Cincinnati in the West.

Don Sutton blitzed the Braves with a five-hitter to chalk up his 40th career shutout and become the NL's first 15-game winner. Jimmy Wynn's 16th homer gave him all he needed.

Cesar Geronimo hit a tie-breaking single in the seventh inning and added an RBI single in a two-run eighth to beat the Giants.

San Diego's Bobby Tolan singled with two out in the 10th and moved to second on a balk before Fred Kendall hit a roller to shortstop Jerry Davanon, who fumbled it to let Tolan score the winning run against Houston.

Baltimore Blanks Boston On Jim Palmer's Two-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Palmer says he couldn't pitch any better than he did Tuesday night when his two-hitter led Baltimore Orioles in a 3-0 win over Boston Red Sox.

JIM PALMER

"I really got on top of the hitters tonight," said Palmer, whose major league-high 16th victory pulled Baltimore within 7½ games of the Sox, American League East Division leaders.

"I got everything u. the plate and made only a couple of bad pitches. I had both good control and good stuff. I also threw a lot of curves. I had to—those guys are fastball hitters."

In other American League games, New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, Kansas City Royals defeated Minnesota Twins 6-1, Cleveland Indians beat Detroit Tigers 8-4, Oakland A's beat Texas Rangers 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second, 15-2, and California Angels defeated Chicago White Sox 10-4 in the opener of their twin bill before dropping a 4-1 decision in the nightcap.

Palmer struck out eight and walked one to give the Orioles a sweep of their two-game series with the Red Sox. Palmer, 16-7, outduelled Luis Tiant, 13-11, who was tagged for nine hits and all three runs in seven innings.

Palmer, a 29-year-old right-hander, retired the first 12 Boston batters in order before walking Fred Lynn on a 3-1 pitch. Lynn was immediately erased on Jim Rice's double-play grounder but Carlton Fisk hit the next pitch off the wall in left-centre for a double to break up the no-hit bid.

Bobby Bonds' home run in the ninth inning carried pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter and New York over Milwaukee. Bond's homer, his 22nd of the season but only his first since July 20, helped New York's premier right-hander improve his record to 15-10. Hunter scattered nine hits.

John Mayberry hit his third home run in as many games, a two-run shot during a four-run fourth inning, as Kansas City defeated Minnesota behind Al Fitzmorris' two-hitter.

Rookie right-hander Eric Raich broke a personal three-game losing streak and Rico Carty drove in four runs, leading Cleveland over Detroit. Raich, 6-6, was staked to a 5-0 lead in the first two innings as the Indians sent eight men to the plate in each session.

JIM HUNTER

Carty drove in the first run on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly. Charlie Spikes followed with a single which scored Oscar Gamble from second and John Ellis drove in Boog Powell from second with another single.

In the second, the Indians again loaded the bases and Carty singled off loser Ray Bare, 6-6, for two more runs.

Dick Bosman and Rollie Fingers teamed for a two-hitter and Jim Holt hit a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the fifth inning, giving Oakland its opening victory over Texas.

Roy Howell hit two home runs, one of them a grand slam that highlighted an eight-run sixth, to lead Texas over Oakland in the second game.

Mickey Rivers collected four hits and Jerry Remy drove in four runs with a pair of singles to lead California over Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader. Jesse Jefferson and Rich Gossage teamed for a four-hitter and Pete Varney's two-run double highlighted a four-run sixth, leading Chicago's victory in the second game.

Run String to Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Scrappers extended their undefeated string to seven games on Tuesday, shutting out Toronto Globals 4-0 and 1-0 in their Ontario Fastball League doubleheader.

In other games, London Dukes snapped a six-game losing streak and defeated Kitchener Evergreens 5-2 while Oshawa Tonys swept their doubleheader with Burlington Ancaster-Provisioners, 1-0 and 4-1.

The Hamilton club, which has yielded only one run in its last four games, scored three runs in the sixth inning of the early game in Toronto.

Bill McNellis started on the mound for the Scrappers. He allowed four hits on the way to his eighth shutout of the year. Reg Martin (10-13) was the losing pitcher.

Wally Dick was credited with the win in the nightcap, his fourth shutout of the current season. Dick gave up just three hits.

The game's only run came in the top of the first inning on a throwing error by Toronto third-baseman Marty Tweyman.

Losing pitcher Luke Lefevre was pulled in the fifth inning because of a blister and replaced by John Young. It was Lefevre's first start for the Globals.

At London, the Dukes' Art Paquette hit his fourth home run in the last seven games. He now has five homers for the year, matching Jim Brown for the club lead.

Don Dominas pitched a six-hitter for the Dukes, raising his record to 8-6. Keith Wagler took the loss.

The first game in Oshawa was scoreless until the 10th inning due to consistent pitching by Oshawa's Barry Timbers and Burlington's Al Few.

Oshawa broke the tie in the bottom of the 10th when Jackie Sneddon hit a line drive to left field sending Paul Gibbons to third. Daryl Hudgin hit next to drive home the runner for the win.

Dump Mets by Identical 7-0 Counts

Expos Record Double Shutouts

NEW YORK (AP) — Another twi-night doubleheader has ended in a migraine for New York Mets. Small wonder their manager says he'd be content with a splitting headache.

"If we won only half of each of the doubleheaders we would be right up there in the race," said Mets manager Yogi Berra after his lineup dropped two games 7-0 Tuesday night to give Montreal Expos a clean sweep of their National League baseball twinbill.

That left the third-place Mets 9½ games back of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

"Doubleheaders are just our jinx," he concluded, and the figures don't disagree. The Mets have played 10 of them this season, losing both ends of six and sweeping only one for an overall record of 5-15.

But while the Mets seemed intent on setting new personal standards, the Expos were doing a little trail-blazing of their own.

"I believe this is the first time in seven years that Montreal has had two shutouts in a row in a doubleheader," said a beaming Gene Mauch, the Expos manager.

The Expos battered New York's pitchers for 25 hits in the doubleheader, getting 14 of them in the second game.

Don Carrithers pitched a five-hitter in the opener for the second shutout of his career. Dennis Blair and Woodie Fryman teamed to blank the opposition in the nightcap.

The Expos gave Carrithers, 1-0, all the support he needed in the first game when they jumped on Koosman for two runs in the first inning, then chased him with a four-run third.

Pepe Mangual walked to start the second game against Tom Hall, 4-3, and scored on a double by Tim Foli, who came in on Jose Morales' single.

The Expos scored in the fifth on a bases-loaded walk and then added three runs in the eighth against Rick Baldwin. Bop Bailey and Barry Foote homered in the opener and Pete Mackanin drove in two runs.

Miller Outlines New Proposals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Major League Baseball Players Association is asking for a 31 per cent increase in minimum salaries and significant changes in the reserve system, The Milwaukee Journal reported Tuesday.

The newspaper said that Marvin Miller, executive-director of the players- association, has sent players a list of the proposals that will be made in regard to the basic contract, which expires at the end of this year.

Proposals for changing the reserve clause include one in which a major league player would be eligible to become a free agent after five years of srvice in "organized baseball," th strey said.

The club would be unable to renew automatically the contract of a five-year player. If the player and club were unable to agree by Feb. 1, the player would become a free agent by serving written notice on the club within 10 days.

The proposals include a provision that a player with at least two years major league service could not be reserved by a minor league club, the newspaper said. If not given a major league contract by Dec. 15, the player would become a free agent by serving written notice within 10 days on the last club to own his services.

The newspaper said other proposals would establish a minimum salary of $21,000 in 1976, up from the current $16,000 minimum; schedule 154 games over 26 weeks instead of the current 162, and consider the possibility of inter-league play; allow refusal of a trade by a player with six or more years major league service, instead of the current 10-year minimum; and allow refusal of a minor league club by a player with two or more years of major league service, instead of the current five.

Canada's Reps Ready For Special Olympics

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (C) — Canada's 138 representatives for this weekend's International Special Olmpics leave for the United States today after completing four days of training Tuesday.

Ridley College in St. Catharines was the site of the first training village, headed by the Canadian Special Olympics Inc., which is responsible for mentally-retarded athletes who will participate in the games.

"Our practice sessions have shown vast improvement in the kids' ability already," said Bob Little, an organizer of the Canadian continent. "Our swim team has managed to improve its time from th first day and our four hockey teams have improved greatly as well."

The Games, to be held in Mount Pleasant, Mich., from Saturday to Monday, are sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation and involve 3,000 the story said.

Bounce B.C.

Douglas Directs Calgary Victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Willie Burden had an evening Tuesday many Canadian Football League running backs would be proud of, but he doesn't remember much about it.

Burden carried the ball 30 times, gained 180 yards and scored three touchdowns as he paced Calgary Stampeders to a 28-13 Western Football Conference victory over British Columbia Lions.

He took a pair of touchdown passes from Calgary quarterback Karl Douglas and added another on a one-yard plunge to pace Stampeders' victory. However, late in the game, B.C. linebacker Larry Cameron gave him a rap on the helmet that did little for his memory.

PETER LISKE

"You'll have to ask me about it tomorrow," Buren said when questioned about his performance. "I don't know how many yards I gained."

Although Burden might not remember much about the game, the Lions and 15,167 fans in attendance won't have much trouble remembering Burden and the Stampeders' defence. While the fleet running back was finding gaping holes in the B.C. defence, the Calgary defenders had almost all the answers for quarterback Peter Liske and the Lions' offence.

The Calgary defence limited B.C. to just three first downs in the first half of the game. Stampeders were ahead 21-4 at half time and didn't have much trouble as they moved into second place in the WFC, two points behind Saskatchewan. The Lions are mired in the cellar, winless in three starts.

Liske, standing in for Don Moorhead who was sidelined because he injured a shoulder last week against Calgary, completed 17 of 33 passes, despite a Calgary pass rush which kept him on the run throughout the evening.

"Our defence was embarrassed by the 313 yards they gained last week," Calgary coach Jim Wood said. "I think they had a little extra motivation last night."

The Stampeders had the edge in first downs with 25 to B.C.'s 14 and had 225 yards rushing compared with Lions' 107. The Lions passed for 227 yards on 17 of 33 completions by Liske while Douglas, traded to Calgary by Lions last year, completed seven of 17 passes for 71 yards for the Stampeders.

The Lions were counting on a strong performance by their linebackers to stop Burden's running game. But B.C. middle linebacker Ray Nettles went into the game with an injured hip and aggravated the injury early in the second half.

To make matters worse, B.C. defensive back Rocky Long hurt a leg and missed much of the second half after playing his strongest game of the season, picking off two Douglas passes in the first half.

Cyril McFall kicked three converts and pair of field goals with Gerald Kunyk booting a 53-yard single to round out the Calgary scoring.

Wayne Moseley got the only B.C. touchdown while Lou Harris adding a two-point conversion on a pass from Liske. John Wintermeyer kicked a field goal and two singles to account for the other B.C. scoring.

MONTREAL (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats had been winless at the 33,212-seat Autostade since Montreal Alouettes moved there in 1968.

But Tuesday night the Tiger-Cats, under the leadership of quarterback Jim McMillan, displayed good ball control when they needed it to score a 15-8 win over the Als, their first victory in three Eastern Football Conference games.

"It was kind of a challenge for me," admitted McMillan. "I heard we hadn't won here for a long time. I think the big thing to me was the fact we were able to control the ball longer."

McMillan and veteran flanker Terry Evanshen combined on a 20-yard pass late in the first half for the only touchdown in the game. Ian Sunter kicked two field goals, a convert and two singles to complete Hamilton's scoring.

Don Sweet had two field goals for the Alouettes and Sonny Wade had two singles.

Evanshen's touchdown gave him 64 in his career and tied him for the all-time Canadian Football League lead with Hal Patterson who, like Evanshen, played with Montreal before going to Hamilton.

"Sure it's a big thrill," said Evanshen. "But we won here and that's a big thing. Everybody was saying we didn't have a chance. I've been playing football for 12 years and this has to be one of my biggest wins. It was a team effort."

Hamilton had a net offence of 278 yards compared with 268 for the Alouettes. The Tiger-Cats completed nine of 18 passes for 107 yards while Montreal was good on 13 of 30 for 266.

Hamilton had 198 yards rushing to 87 for the Alouettes.

"They didn't have that much in total yardage," said Als coach Marv Levy. "But the big thing was their ball control.

"Giving up that touchdown late in the first half hurt us. The thing that hurt us on that late drive was that 47-yard run by (Andy) Hopkins."

The Alouettes played most of the game without star wide receiver Johnny Rodgers, injured returning a punt early in the second quarter. Rodgers had badly pulled muscles in his middle back. He was to be examined today for a further assessment.

IAN SUNTER

Linebacker Chuck Zapiec suffered torn ligaments in his right knee and offensive lineman Dan Yochum may have cartilage damage in his left knee. Zapiec will undergo surgery Monday and is lost to Montreal for the season, while further examination will determine the nature of Yochum's problems.

"At this stage, I can't say whether Johnny will be ready for our game next week in Ottawa," said Levy.

He said Rodgers had a spinal compression, causing trauma, but said he should know more today.

Both Hamilton and Montreal are 1-2 and trail leading Ottawa by two points. The Rough Riders play their home opener tonight against winless Toronto Argonauts in a game to be carried on the full CTV network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

Riley Has Bombers Prepared for Eskimos

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos go into their Western Football Conference rematch tonight well aware of shortcomings during their outing last week in Edmonton.

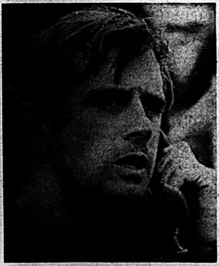
Winnipeg head coach Bud Riley, still smarting from a 28-22 loss on an Eskimo touchdown in he closing minutes of that game, has been working on pass defence and training his offence to handle the blitz.

Meanwhile, Edmonton head coach Ray Jauch also has been pondering his weaknesses and dropped a broad hint Tuesday night that some lineup changes could be in the works in the near future.

The Bombers had a distinct edge in the first half of last week's contest, but the Eskimos took charge in the second with a solid offence and a crashing defence that left the Bombers befuddled.

"It shook us up, but we still should have been able to adjust quicker to it," Riley said.

Fullback Stve Beaird has been added to the starting lineup tonight in hopes of getting more punch in the Winnipeg ground attack that has relied heavily on running back Richard Crump.



Tom Wilkinson – Poses Threat

BUD RILEY

On defence, veteran Dave Knechtel will start at end in place of John Bonk.

Riley also has been working on better pass defence in hopes of pinning down Eskimo quarterback Tom Wilkinson.

Jauch also has made two changes in his starting lineup. Pete Lavorato will start at safety in place of the injured John Farlinger. Stu Lang will replace Gary Lefebvre at flanker, and Lefebvre's punting chores will be taken over by John Beaton.

While the Winnipeg lineup is younger and less experienced, Jauch has spent the week working to eliminate mistakes—especially penalties—on his more seasoned team.

"Our people are smart enough to know we can be beaten by anybody in the league," he said. "Last year, the difference between first and fourth in our conference was five points."

The game is to be televised on the CTV western network beginning at 9:00 p.m. EDT.

Hayes Matches NLL Mark for Single Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Doug Hayes wielded the deadliest weapon Tuesday night as Long Island Tomahawks cut down Boston Bolts 22-14 in one of two National Lacrosse League games.

Hayes scored eight goals to tie a league record set last year by Larry Lloyd of Philadelphia Wings and matched earlier this season by Long Island's Dave Wilfong. Hayes also had two assists to assume the scoring leadership with 85 goals and 104 assists for 189 points.

In other action, Philadelphia clipped Maryland Arrows 15-13.

Al Lewthwaite scored three goals for the first-place Tomahawks, while Brian Davidson countered with four for Boston as Long Island held a 58-48 edge in shots on goal before 4,783 fans.

Philadelphia's win moved them into sole possession of third place in the standings. It was their 18th win against 17 losses and two ties for 38 points, two behind second-place Montreal Quebecois. Maryland is 17-21.

Jim Grady and Jim Rickbell each scored two goals and assisted on two others for the Wings, while Terry Lloyd set up four goals before 4,547 fans.

In the only game tonight, the Quebecois visit Quebec Caribous.

STILL SOME GOOD MAIN-COURSE BUYS

Even today, there are good main-course buys that you'll enjoy cooking for summer.

Use hamburger not only for patties, but for freeze-ahead casseroles, meat sauces and loaves to simplify home or cottage meals. Try tray-pack wieners to barbecue, slice into hearty soups, or use in sandwiches and main-course salads. Imported shoulder lamb chops are good on the grill or braised - and bologna chub is great for barbecuing and glazing.

Satisfy bacon lovers with thrifty bacon ends, cooked until crisp and crumbled into baked beans, omelets, scrambled eggs or over low-cost casseroles. Or slice your own bacon for a substantial saving over the pre-sliced kind.

THUNDER BAY WINS

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Thunder Bay moved closer to retaining its title Tuesday with a 4-0 victory over Montreal in the Canadian senior little league baseball championships. Graham Longley tossed a one-hitter and struck out 12 to keep the defending champions undefeated and on top of the double-knockout tournament. The losing pitcher was Michel Godin. In the only other game Tuesday, Calgary defeated Whalley, B.C., 6-2, and knocked the B.C. entry out of contention. Play continues today.

SOVIETS WIN

MONTREAL (CP) — Aleksandr Barkalov scored four goals Tuesday to pace the Soviet Union to a 10-5 win over Canada in a four-country, 18-game round-robin water polo series. In other action, Cuba downed Mexico 9-4 as Gerardo Rodriguez led the winners with three goals. Scoring the Canadian goals were Jim Ducharme with two, Steve Hart, David Hart and Rick Pugliese contributed the Canadian goals.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Barry Nye of Montreal has been re-elected president of the Canadian Amateur Wrestling Association (CAWA). Other officers elected at the association's annual meeting during the weekend include Mario Saleting of Montreal, eastern vice-president and chairman of the technical committee; Jim Trifunov, of Winnipeg, western vice-president and chairman of the public relations and awards programs; Bill Collings of Vancouver, secretary, and Bob McLeod, Fredericton, treasurer.

SALVAGES TIE

MISKOLC, Hungary (CP) — The Welland Junior B soccer club salvaged a 1-1 tie against the Miskolc juniors Tuesday during an exhibition goodwill match. It was the second deadlock for the Welland team on their seven-game, month-long tour, along with one win and two defeats. Paul Ireland scored the lone goal for Welland.

HARRAWAY RETIRES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charley Harraway, fullback for the National Football League Washington Redskins from 1969 until jumping to the World Football League last year, announced his retirement Tuesday. After the WFL's Birmingham team failed to meet financial obligations last season, Harraway, 30, became a free agent. The Redskins, who still held the NFL rights to him, dealt him to Miami Dolphins, but he never came to contract terms with that team. Harraway was a pro for nine years.

Palmer Says It's His Year

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer strode into the locker room at the Firestone Country Club, parked his golf clubs against the wall, shed a red checked jacket and got ready for another day at the office—the 57th National PGA golf championship.

"This is the old man's year," he quipped. "I feel like a kid. Maybe I've really got a chance in this one."

Palmer jetted in from Latrobe, Pa., in his private $870,000 plane. Two steps behind was Doc Giffin, who passed out a four-page document showing that Palmer had won 79 tournament titles, 61 on the tour.

None of them is the PGA. It's the big one that always got away.

"Now, I don't lie awake worrying about it—I don't think about a jinx," Palmer said. "If I was of such a mind, I would be more shaken up by the Opens I have blown."

Palmer's record shows only one U. S. Open crown—1960 at Denver. But he has lost three in playoffs—to Jack Nicklaus in 1962, Julius Boros in 1963 and Bill Casper in 1966. He was runner-up in 1967 to Nicklaus.

For Palmer, this 18th consecutive PGA follows a season in which he won the Spanish Open and the British PGA overseas, finished in a tie for ninth in the U.S. Open and fourth in the Canadian Open at Montreal.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Miller shot a 64 in practice Tuesday, but with the start of the PGA national championship two days away, he was more intent on fly fishing than on golf.

"I don't even know if there are any fish in here," said Miller, flipping his line into a lake on the Firestone Country Club's North Course.

The 28 year old Californian seemed unconcerned about the last of this year's Big Four golf titles which will be sought Thursday through Sunday on the Firestone South layout.

Miller has been saddled with a mid-season slump after getting off to a sensational start this year by winning three of his first four tournaments.

ARNOLD PALMER

MISSES PRIZE

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Joe Sacoman shot a hole-in-one in a golf tournament featuring a prize of a new auto for the feat. But he didn't get the car. Sacoman, an Omaha auto dealer, was a co-sponsor of the event.

He Always Beats Me Says Tony

Bardsleys Will Square Off in National

WINNIPEG (CP) — At least one match today at the Canadian national tennis championships will feature more than the usual amount of rivalry.

In one of eight men's singles matches, third seed Tony Bardsley of Vancouver meets his brother Bob, seeded 13th in the $12,000 tournament.

"He's too good," said Tony with a grin after narrowly defeating unseeded Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver Tuesday 7-6, 7-5. "He always beats me in practice."

Tony, runner-up to Puddicombe in the 1968 nationals, said adjusting to the clay courts at the Winnipeg Canoe Club will be a major concern throughout the tournament.

"I'm used to asphalt courts," he said. "It takes time to adjust to clay."

That assessment of court conditions was evident in his victory over Puddicombe that required a tie-breaker to determine the outcome. Several times, Bardsley semed assured of a win with deep volleys only to see Puddicomb offer returns with ease.

In other men's singles matches, top seed Rejean Genois of Loretteville, Que., advanced to the third round with a surprisingly tough victory over Bill Rennie of Cambridge, Ont.

Although the 22-year-old Genois was never in danger of dropping the match, his opponent made a strong showing with accurate serves.

Genois, feeling the strain of playing in 18 consecutive tournaments, said preparing mentally for each match is difficult.

Genois faces 14th seed Robert Bettauer of Vancouver in the third round of the tournament, which offers first-prize money of $2,000 for the men's singles champion.

In other men's singles matches today, defending champion Pierre Lamarche of Quebec City meets sixth seed Glen Booth of Winnipeg; ninth seed Don McCormick of Vancouver faces fourth seed Jim Boyce of Toronto; and unseeded Gabriel Rona of Quebec challenges second seeded Dale Power of Toronto.

In women's singles matches Tuesday, Susan Stone of Vancouver defeated Taffy Savard of Vancouver 6-4, 6-2 to advance to the final round. The number two seed faces seventh seed Pam Gollish of Toronto today in what was expected to be one of the day's better matches.

Mosport Meets All Demands

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute that might have caused cancellation of the Grand Prix of Canada auto race has nothing to do with Mosport Park's reluctance to meet the financial demands of Grand Prix racing teams, Mosport president and general manager Harvey Hudes said Tuesday.

"We yielded. Totally submitted," said Hudes. "Still, the are not coming. It's not a commercial argument."

Hudes said Mosport agreed last Saturday to pay what the Formula 1 Constructors' Association demanded a day later, the constructors announced they would not come to Mosport on Sept. 21.

They told reporters covering the German Grand Prix at Nuerburgring on Sunday that Mosport was refusing to pay normal expenses and they would not participate in the race.

Hudes said that under an agreeement made two years ago, combined prize money this year for the two North American racing events—Mosport and the United States Grand Prix at Watkins Glen—was to be $500,000 a year.

However, the F1 association asked for $565,000 plus transportation for Mosport and Watkins Glen.

Hudes told a news conference called to tell Mosport's side of the conflict that it has submitted the matter to rince Metternich, president of the Commission Sportive Internationale.

"As of this morrant th Grand Prix of Canada has not been cancelled," Hudes said. "We are hopeful that we can work out a solution."

He emphasized that the constructors association has no power to cancel an event.

Namath, Pele On Same Team

HEMPPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "Gee," said the National Football League's most celebrated quarterback, "I never thought I'd be playing catch with Pele."

But there was Joe Namath, at New York Jets' training camp Tuesday, tossing around a soccer ball with the famed Black Pearl as photographers and cameramen scrambled to record the moment for posterity.

The occasion was Pele's signing with a cosmetics firm of a two-year deal worth $450,000—not in the same league as the reported $4.5 million deal he signed with New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, or the $5-million long-term deal Namath signed a few weeks ago with the same firm, but still cause for a celebration.

The world's two most famous football players, meeting for the first time, compared, notes and exchanged some instructional banter.

Pele: "How far do you have to kick the ball?"

Namath: "It varies some. Some guys kick farther than others. I think the longest field goal in NFL history was 66 yards."

Actually, it was 63 yards in 1970 by Tom Dempsey of New Orleans Saints against Detroit Lions. But facts don't matter in such patter among the elite of athletes.

Next, some tricks for photographers, Pele dribbled a football on his head. Namath bounced a soccer ball on his. Then they did it together.

JOE NAMATH

Aferwards, Namath wandered off to practice. Pele disappeared into a waiting limousine with the cosmetics people.

And made a stop at the bank, no doubt.

More Kings Said Need Of World

LONDON (Reuter) — There are 100,000 optimists, if the International Monarchists League is right, who think they have the answer to the world's problems—more kings.

The league believes that crowned heads in every capital, complete with orb and sceptre but ruling through democratically elected governments, would end the world's political and spiritual troubles.

Founded in 1943 to help monarchs exiled by Hitler's onslaught, the league believes that the peoples of the world, tired of drab bureaucracies, brutal dictatorships or ineffectual republics, are coming around to their view.

The league is based in London, home of Europe's most durable monarchy, and claims that in Britain alone, membership rose from 95 in early 1960s to more than 4,000 at present.

The league says it has at least 100,000 members worldwide and flourishing branches South Africa, New Zealand and Tonga, a small Pacific island.

The last few years have not been good ones for monarchists. Their blackest day was the overthrow of Emperor Halie Selassie of Ethiopia and the end of a monarchy that had endured for thousands of years.

The monarchist league's "chancellor", Col. Julian du Parc Braham, said he plans to raise a mercenary army to restore Haile Sellassie and is at present trying to raise the necessary money.

"I would resort to using an army in all cases to restore the monarchical cause," he told Reuter.

There are today only 19 monarchs left in the world, and only a handful of those have regal power in their countries.

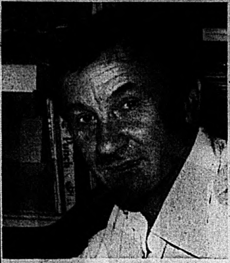
Many members of deposed and exiled royal houses are living in relative penury in such places as the south of France and the United States. These the league tries to help in any way it can.

Greece has seen the fall of the colonels — but not the restoration of iKng Constantine. The people, in a referendum, voted against this.

Events in Portugal have been a blow to the monarchists' hopes of seeing the Duke of Braganza, the aspirant, take the throne.

Hopes that glittering monarchies would be restored in a hundred countries, from the Soviet Union to Fiji, came no near fulfilment.

Nevertheless, the league sees possibilities in Spain, where Prince Juan Carlos is officially designated future king, and, oddly enough, in Italy.



Cartoonist

Ben Wicks, a former $75 a week Calgary milkman and now one of the highest-paid cartoonists in Canada, begins a new political strip in September. The Outcasts will run in the U.S. peopled by Americans such as President Ford and Henry Kissinger and the Canadian version will have Prime Minister Trudeau as the central character. (CP Photo)

Chinese Compass Predicts Future

HONG KONG (Reuter) — A small disc only a few inches in diameter and resembling a mariner's compass is said to be able to pinpoint a man's destiny, to tell whether a career is headed for disaster or success.

So if you're opening a business, buying a house or deciding where to be buried, you had better call in the Fung Shui man, believers say.

Although the disc is simple, it's an instrument only a Chinese specialist is said to be able to handle properly. It is called a "recticulated plate" or geomantic compass.

Fung Shui basically means the influence of wind and water. The belief, commonly classified as an ancient Chinese science, is widely adhered to by farmers and many professional and business people.

The geomantic compass is a wooden or baked-clay disc, yellow in color. In the middle is a small magnetic compass.

On the face are 16 concentric circles. The middle of the instrument is known as the "limitless circle" of the Chinese dual philosophy of Yin and Yang, or the male and female principles.

In modern language, Fung Shui is also a doctor who diagnoses abstract evil omens.

This specialist is summoned by believers when they are about to buy a plot of land, or open a shop or office.

He is also sought after by people anxious to know the causes of misfortunes suffered by them or the occurrence of a tragic accident in a family.

When the Fung Shui man is at work, he takes into consideration all the architectural aspects of a building, assesses and surveys the position of the residence in terms of its geographic setting, and even the velocity of the winds.

He uses the compass to chart the location of the residence and the needle automatically points to a sign or number marked on the disc's face.

The specialist then refers to a book to find out whether the site is harmful or beneficial to the occupants.

For remedial purposes, the Fung Shui man applies his experience and advice to a person wishing to alter the interior specifications of an apartment or house, perhaps to switch the bedroom with the sitting room or suggest that the position of a window be changed.

If he thinks a bad influence is coming from a window, the Fung Shui advises that a small round mirror be placed outside thz window to deflect the evil influence.

Wicks Starts Comic Strip

TORONTO (CP) — Ben Wicks, a waggish cockney with a light touch of acid at the tip of his cartooning pen, was explaining why his new political strip is set on a small desert island with a single palm tree as the only vegetatino.

"The reason I picked an island," said high-priced Ben, "is because I'm bloody awful at drawing.

"Then a desert island has no willows and no automobiles. It has no circles. I can't draw them.

"It just has one bloody palm tree. I'm very good at palm trees."

You may or may not believe all this. Ben, a smallish citizen born just below the south end of London Bridge 49 years ago, likes to laugh his way through life.

He saves his harpoons for the daily spear-throwing he has been doing in a one-column cartoon in 57 Canadian newspapers and others elsewhere adding up to 200.

Ben has been described as pixyish, elfin and various other adjectives, along with being Canada's highest-paid cartoonist.

All of which give him a large smile.

"My bank manager," he said, "read that stuff about me being the highest-paid, and he damn near fell off his chair laughing."

However, there's little doubt that Ben, who used to make $75 a week as a milkman in Calgary in the 1950s, is doing better now.

Asked about how much he makes, he just says:

"I dunno. I'm very well paid."

His new series is his first crack at a strip. It came about because the New York Daily News Syndicate, looking around for something to tackle the popular Doonesbury, asked him to go to New York to chew over the idea.

The upshot was The Outcasts, about people led by a politician who are stranded on this desert island with that one palm tree.

The only piece of architecture that turns up, and only occasionally, is a small two-holer outhouse that appears in a remote corner of the island.

"I'm not very good at houses and windows and that sort of stuff," Ben says apologetically. Somewhere along the line, he adds, the leader will be trying to get his crew to improve the amenities, though unsuccessfully.

"The strip is about people trying to get off the island," he explained, "but the leader fouls it up every day, so they never do get off."

Ben is doing two versions of the strip. The original idea was to have it peopled by American characters such as President Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger, which is the way it will run in the U.S.

A Canadian version will have Prime Minister Trudeau as the leader fouling things up, with the help of identifiable cabinet ministers.

The Canadian publication, distributed by the Toronto Star Syndicate, is due to begin Sept. 22. U.S. publication is set for January.

Explaining the philosophy behind the strip, Ben says that it's always been his idea that the running of a country seems more complicated than it really is.

"They drop into a language all their own," he says of the politicians. "But all they should be doing is running a country tidily the way you'd run a house or even a room in a house. So why not simplify things by dropping them on a desert island?"

"The idea is so good," he adds coyly, "that I must have seen it somewhere."

A new political cartoon strip, The Outcasts, will start publication in Canada during September. Created by Ben Wicks, the strip is about people led by a politician who are stranded on a desert island with one palm tree. The Canadian version will feature Prime Minister Trudeau with President Ford and Henry Kissinger appearing in U.S. publications. (CP Photo)

Black Lung Sufferers Plan Washington March

LOGAN, W. Va. (CP) — It might prove one of the strongest demonstrations Washington has ever witnessed: Thousands of wheezing, coughing, choking men parading up to Capitol Hill in a mass protest.

But that's exactly what the country's coal-miners are planning to organize unless Congress passes new legislation this summer to ease the plight of sufferers of black-lung disease.

Don Bryant, 51-year-old president of the local Black Lung Association in this southern West Virginia mining town, says: "If Congress doesn't act we can get together at least 10,000 men with Black Lung and get them to Washington in ambulances, trucks, buses and cars."

And, he adds, "There are a hell of a lot of men in the mine workers union who think it's time to strike and stay off the job 'til something's done."

Clarence McCoy, executive board member of the United Mine Workers (UMW) says the possibility of a strike is distant but real, adding, however, that "our colleagues in Canada don't seem to share our concern with Black Lung."

Black-lung disease, or pneumoconiosis, affects thousands of coal-miners and is caused by the inhalation of large amounts of coal dust.

In Canada, if a miner can show he is a serious victim of the incurable disease as a result of working in a mine, he becomes eligible for compensation up to $12,000 a year for life.

U.S. miners are afforded some protection and compensation under federal laws passed in 1969 and 1972. But compensation is not paid until a man is totally disabled and even then, bureaucratic red tape makes it extremely hard to obtain.

"All we're asking," says Bryant, himself a black-lung victim, "is that a miner shouldn't have to be on his deathbed to get compensation. He's more than just a disease statistic. He's a human being."

Bryant says the central demand which the UMW has made to Congress is that a miner should automatically qualify for full retirement benefits after he spends 15 years in or around the mines, even if he is completely healthy.

"When you consider the risks of Black Lung and injuries in the mines," he says, "that's not asking too much."

The miners also want to stop the practice under which federal labor department physicians have the right to overrule the findings of a local doctor who has determined that a miner has Black Lung and is eligible for compensation.

They want new legislation as well which will provide sickness benefits to a miner as soon as Black Lung is diagnosed instead of the present law which requires a miner to wait until he is totally disabled before he can qualify.

"Coal is back in fashion as a fuel," says Bryant, "and by God we're ready to use our strength for the people who produce it and too often are dying in the process."

Italy's NCOs Seek More Pay

ROME (Reuter) — After years of faithful service, Italy's armed forces are suddenly faced with an upheaval arising from a revolt by the men traditionally considered the backbone of the military—the non-commissioned officers.

What has been called the "sergeant's coup" has seen thousands of air force NCOs taking to the streets to back their demands for better pay, improved promotion prospects and benefits comparable to those of civilian life.

And almost before the movment had got under way, it produced its first martyr—a young Sardinian sergeant who was arrested for insulting two plainclothes carabinieri police officers photographing a demonstration.

Already Italy had seen the strange sight of uniformed service conscripts marching in extreme left wing deminstrations with faces masked and arms raised in clenched fist Communist salutes.

But the sergeants' revolt, which quickly spread through almost every air force barracks in the country, looks much more serious and appeared to take the authorities entirely by surprise.

The NCOs complain that their pay is ludicrously low by civilian standards, ranging from $248 a month to $483 at the highest grades, which take 26 years to reach.

More than half of this is made up of special allowances, so that if a man becomes ill the total drops dramatically to about $110 a month.

Pensions are based on this lower figure, and the sergeants also complain that there is no provision for severance payments if they are dismissed or leave the service voluntarily before serving a minimum of 20 years.

They say that as well as fulfilling the traditional function of linking officers and men in their fohrce particularly they do highly specialized technical jobs which are worth far more than they are paid.

The first, rather hesitant, protest came June 22, when about 200 sergeants in civilian clothes gathered in the centre of Rome and explained their problems to people passing by.

Four days later about 2,000 men turned out for a second demonstration, and it was on this occasion that the carabineiri, who act as military police, came along to photograph the participants.

The arrest of Sardinian sergeant, Guiseppe Sotgiu, had immediate repercussions throughout the country. After a series of meetings, the NCOs decided on a boycott of their canteens as the most appropriate form of mass protest.

Since then in almost every air force barracks, they have been filing silently into their canteens at meal times, taking their food trays, putting them on the tables and then leaving.

Sotgiu faced a possible seven-year prison sentence for gross insubordination to the carabinieri, but he was given a two-year suspended sentence.

However, this means his dismissal from the air force without benefits, and seems only to have widened the sergeants' protest.

Murmurings of discontent have also come from the navy and the army, in the form of messages of solidarity with the air force and signed letters to newspapers.

Whether the revolt will turn into a full-scale confrontation in the form of a strike which would paralyse air traffic control, but which would amount to mutiny, no one can tell.

ONTARIO RIDE

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Echo Ridge riding ranch in the Almaguin Highlands offers a series of horseback tours from May to September. The ranch here gives tours ranging from one-to nine-day rides. Participants pay $350 for the long tour which includes cost of the horse, food, guide, sleeping-bag and a round-trip ticket from Toronto to the ranch.

Made in the Shade

Operating a tractor beside Highway 401 near Toronto is hot work, so, Allister Beattie, 19, makes the most of his lunch break. He parks the tractor next to a shady tree, rigs up a hammock and sets an alarm clock to be sure he's on time when he gets back to work cutting grass for the roads department (CP Photo)

Home Away from Home Can Be a Railway Car

TORONTO (CP) — Buying a used railway car may not be the way to beat inflated housing costs, but for some Canadians it is a great way to capture history and charm.

Robert Post, Paul Weber and Jimmy Conklin have all bought railway cars that serve as homes-away-from-home.

Mr. Post, a retired CP Rail conductor living in suburban Etobicoke, bought a caboose for $1,500 a few years ago and uses it as his summer home.

Mr. Weber got a little fancier and bought the private car that belonged to one-time CPR president, Lorn Shaughnessy, for $1,500 back in 1968. He also uses it as a summer home at his Orillia-area hamburger stand.

Mr. Conklin, the Canadian National Exhibition' s midway chief, bought the private car that was built for Ontario premier Sir James Whitney, for "the price of a condominium."

He is the rare private individual who uses his railway car for travel and takes it to fairs in Barrie or Brantford.

At other times Mr. Conklin's canopied six-room car sits on the exhibition grounds as a second home when th fair is open.

A Canadian National Railways spokesman says a number of private cars are still for sale at prices of 25,000 to $40,000.

But railway car buffs like Mr. Weber warn that moving them is a costly venture.

Mr. Weber said he was forced to transport his 87-ton beauty six miles from Orillia to his Severn Bridge restaurant and it took three flatbed trucks at a cost of $3,990.

He said the CNR will hook your car up to a regular train for $50 and charge you 20 first-class fares for the distance you travel.

Mr. Weber still thinks his private car was worth the money and the bother of moving it.

"It makes an excellent home as there's a sense of luxury and it's so well built," he said.

But all three railway car owners agree the days of the private railway car are over, unless you're looking for a second home, of course.

Olympic Tower Costly Address

NEW YORK (AP) — "Let me tell you about the very rich,' " F. Scott Fitzgerald once wrote, "They are different from you and me." Ernest Hemingway added: "Yes, they have more money."

Now they've got something else.

It's called Olympic Tower, a 52-storey high-rise of bronzed glass next door to St. Patrick's Cathedral on the south and Rockefeller Centre to the east. Other neighbors? Take your pick: Saks, Tiffany's Cartier, Pucci.

Like the address? Good.

A one bedroom apartment could be yours for a mere $12,000, plus the monthly maintenance fee of $267. A little cramped, you say. Well, then, how about your basic duplex—nine rooms complete with wood-burning fireplace, a circular staircase (and an elevator if you're a bit bushed), and a sauna. Oh, yes: $850,000. You don't want to hear about the monthly maintenance just yet.

Think for a moment what that would buy in your town. But this isn't Omaha or Kalamazoo or even Poughkeepsie. It's the Big Apple. Not only that, it's Fifth Avenue at 51st Street, perhaps the most prestigious corner in the entire world.

Aristotle Onassis never was accused of thinking small. And half of this magnificent project was his brainchild through Victory Development Corp. The other half belongs to Arjen Realty and Development Corp., believed to be the country's largest publicly-owned real estate and development organization.

Several years ago a survey was taken. Who could possibly afford to live at such an address. Result: There are nearly four billion of us souls in the world today, and only 80,000 of them who can afford Olympic Tower as home.

So if you're one of them hurry.

The apartments are selling briskly, if not exactly like the proverbial hotcake. The sales office says they will be gobbled up by the end of summer, when the building is scheduled to open. Half to three-fourths are already sold, including most of the duplexes, the salesmen said.

The crowd that is buying—the superstars of capitalism—do things differently from you and me. Only eight per cent have financed these pads. The rest—or 92 per cent—simply pulled out their trusty little cheque-books and filled in the appropriate six digits. The identity of the residents are held in strictest confidence. So far, 27 countries are represented and just about any business you can think of from plantation owners to directors of multinational companies.

There are no big name entertainers as yet, although there are no restrictions. Except the green one.

"We're being selective only in that our prices are really out of the ball park," said Don O'Neill, a public relations man.

The nearly completed building features a block-long indoor park, a three-storey waterfall, two floors of the plushest shps, 19 floors of corporate office space, and 230 luxury apartments. There are only going to be about 210 owners since some people felt they needed two or three apartments. Goodby walls, Hello gigantic apartments.

The magnificently tiered waterfall, by the way, is cleverly built over the spot where the garbage trucks will drive in and out.

There's also a financial communications lodge, where residents can sit around and watch how their blue chips did that day, a health club, a sauna, and a private wine cellar for your special vintages. Temperature and humidity controls will be set to the wine owners' specifications.

Or if you want to watch the ticker tape in your apartment, you can have a system built onto your television set.

The real name of the price tag here will be service. Much of it will cost extra, beyond the charge for monthly maintenance. It will include three concierges, bonded maid service, a doorman, a hallman, elevator operators, 24-hour room service, 24-hour dry cleaning. Other amenities will be limousine service, helicopter service, yacht charters, jet charters. Just call the concierge and have the tip ready.

Or after a hard summer in Europe, when it's time to get back to the workaday world, just call ahead. The fridge will be stocked when you get there, the fruit and wine a-chilling, the liquor closet a-brimming and fresh flowers perfuming the apartment.

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.
Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.
For many of us this would be a calamity.

For the one we loved so well.

—Lovingly remembered by mother, sisters and brothers and families.

CARDS OF THANKS

At the time of the loss of a dear wife, Peggy Vermilyea, the thoughtfulness and expressions of sympathy by so many were deeply appreciated by her family. Her smile, gracious manner and devotion to her nursing career will continue to be a part of all those who knew and loved her well. Special appreciation is extended to the Ontario Provincial Police, Dr. Morgan, Bruce Swan, and the many Doctors, Nurses, Operating Room Staff, and Hospital Staff that so kindly paid tribute with their attendance at the funeral; Reverend Roy Vessey, the ladies Auxiliary of College Hill United Church, the Church Choir, and Allan Vanclief and staff of Grant Funeral Home; the many friends, relatives, and associates of the family who paid personal tribute to Peggy at the Funeral Home, who sent flowers, and made Memorial Contributions; the thoughtfulness of the Picton Elk's Lodge, the care given to the family floral arrangements by Janice Warkentin of Warkentin's Flowers, and the comfort received from the portrait provided by Dick Lumbers of Lumbers Studio, and the love and guidance extended by Doc and Edna Younghusband.

You are my friends, for you have smiled with me.
My help and hope in fair and stormy weather,
I like you for the joys you've whiled with me,
I love you fore the griefs we've wept together.

Blair Vermilyea, Morley and Georgina Frair, Farley and Vera Vermilyea.

The family of the late Aleatha Eggleton, wish to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness, floral tributes, cards, donations to the Heart Fund and Cancer Society, during the long illness and the loss of a dear wife and loving mother. Special thanks to the nurses and staff of the 4th level of extended care of Belleville General Hospital and Dr Dolan for their care and kindness. Also a special thanks to Rev. Leslie Dean for his comforting words, and to Rev. Peter Tett for his many calls and to the staff of the Thompson Funeral Home for their courteous and competent service.

Irvine Eggleton, Treneida, Leslie, Glenn and families.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to relatives, neighbors and former acquaintances for their thoughtfulness to me on my ninetieth birthday. Gifts, flowers, cards and best wishes were all very much appreciated.

Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, Moira.

NOTICE

THE EXPROPRIATION ACT

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER OF an application by the Corporation of the County of Hastings for approval to expropriate lands in Sidney Township, Village of Frankford, County of Hastings for the purpose of reconstructing County Road Number 4.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the lands describes in Schedule 'A' hereto by the Corporation of the County of Hastings for the purpose of reconstructing County Road Number 4.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing.

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

The approving authority is
The Council of the Corporation of the County of Hastings,
Court House,
Belleville, Ontario.
Carl E. Bateman
Clerk-Treasurer and Administrator
County of Hastings
Court House
Belleville, Ontario.

NOTES:

1. The Expropriation Act, provides that,

(a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General,

(b) the inquiry officer,

(i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his Counsel or agent, and

(ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200.00 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.

2. "owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;

"registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll.

NOTICE

Thanks to the thoughtful Thurlow Citizen who shot my dog, and left it to die. It makes a person wonder what type of people we have living in our neighborhood.

I know my dog was running at large, but within sight of our home doing nothing but what it was born to do, catching groundhogs.

I hope the guilty party will read this and feel real proud of himself, but sorry whoever you are, the dog will live and I will pay the Veterinarian and I hope you have nightmares.

BREAK UP FIGHTS

TORONTO (CP) — Police took about an hour to break up fights among fans following a Canadian Soccer League game Sunday between Toronto Homer and Toronto Macedonians. League officials said about 4,800 fans attended the game won 2-1 by Homer and many of them jumped on the field as soon as the game ended to attack the players. There were no arrests.

CHOOSES RIDERS

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Equestrian team has chosen five riders to represent Canada at the Pan-American games Oct. 12-26 at Mexico City. They are Norma Chornawaa of Midnapore, Alta., Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., Ian Millar of Ashton, Ont., Frank Sellinger of Calgary and Michel Vaillancourt of Montreal. Moffit Dunlap of Newmarket, Ont., is the spare.

DOMINATE REGATTA

TORONTO (CP) — Paddlers from Mississauga, Ont., dominated the weekend's Western Ontario division championship regatta at Centre Island's Long Pond, with the men taking eight of 11 races in the senior section while the women won all senior events except war canoe. Mississauga had 31 wins in 57 races for 344 points. Mohawk Canoe Club was second with 113, followed by North Bay with 103. Sudbury finished seventh with 55 points and Oakville, Ont., had 13.

DROPPED FROM TEAM

HALIFAX (CP) — Calvin Lawrence, Canadian amateur heavyweight boxing champion, was dropped Monday from the Canadian Olympic boxing team because he could not get leave from his job to keep up with the training program. Taylor Gordon, Atlantic technical director for amateur boxing, said Lawrence, a Halifax police constable, used all his 1975 annual leave to take part in competitions leading to the Canadian finals.

WINS RALLY

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — John Paul Perusse of Laval, Que., and navigator John Bellefleur of Downsview, Ont., Sunday won the 14th annual Lobster rally sponsored by the Moncton Winter Sports Club. The win also gave them the Canadian rally championship. They covered the timed sections of the 250-mile course in 53 minutes, 49 seconds in their Fiat 125 Abarth, edging five-time national champion Walter Boyce of Ottawa.

BEST RINGER

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Elmer Hohl of Wellesley, Ont., won his fifth world horseshoe pitching championship Monday, beating defending champion Curt Day of Frankfort, Ind., by two games. Hohl, who had a ringer average of 84.5, finished with a 33-2 record. Day, a three-time world titlist, wound up at 31-4 with an 81.9 ringer average.

Kids Create 'Jaws'

Audults who shiver at thoughts of the movie "Jaws" contrast with these Chicago youngsters who seem to have little fear of locsing their extremities to this sand version of the fearsome white shark which they constructed for a contest at Chicago's North Avenue Beach. The contest is sponsored by Chicago Mayor Daley's Neighborhood Summer Sand Modeling Jamboree. (AP Photo)

Japan Destroyed in TV Series

TOKYO (AP) Filming the destruction of Japan wasn't easy, and the television network that did it found it still couldn't get all the nation's TV viewers on the edges of their seats to watch.

Actually, the destruction went on for months until a TV news announcer appeared with tears streaking down both cheeks and composed himself long enough to tell a fearful nation, "Fellow countrymen· sayonara Farewell). . . "

The picture on the tube jumped as the studio was thumped asunder by a powerful earthquake and the TV screen momentarily went blank.

When the picture returned, a tableau of destruction and horror was laid before the viewers' eyes. One by one, each of Tokyo's landmarks, from giant skyscrapers to mammoth transmitting towers tumbled down, covering the streets with rubble and snuffing out the lives of millions of the people in this Japanese capital of 11 million.

What occurred next on prime time Sunday night television was an impossible act to follow — or even repeat.

The Japanese islands, ravaged, for 26 weeks by earthquake and fire, slowly slipped beneath the water and settled permanently on the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

And the television series called The Submersion of Japan came to an end this spring. It had not been a big success.

The network, one of five in Japan, had believed that bad news would be good business. Two years ago, Japan's novelists and movie-makers turned to themes of doom, and found an eager market among the nation's 110 million people, already melancholy over an economic downturn.

Submersion started out with 18 per cent of the Sunday evening audience. By the time Japan had become sunken property, however, only 13 per cent remained.

If the show's popularity wasn't all that Tokyo Broadcasting System had hoped for, one reason might have been the acting.

But the special effects were something else.

It took two days' shooting for two minutes of suitably shocking footage, said officials at Tokyo Broadcasting.

Each instalment was preceded and followed by a special announcement informing viewers they were watching a fictional account — not newsreel film — because the destruction looked chillingly authentic at times.

In one episode, powerful tremors struck the picturesque old city of Kamakura and its giant statue of Buddha shook and trembled before being swallowed up by the earth. The city's terrified residents tried to escape by boat only to be called back — too late — with news of an approaching tidal wave.

The Submersion of Japan TV series was adapted from a popular science fiction novel of the same name. The book sold more than 3.5 million copies and a feature-length film soon followd.

The movie ultimately became the biggest-earning Japanese film in 1974. It helped spawn a host of books, and After the Apocalypse magazine and another doom movie, this one about the end of the world.

But after the two-year media blitz, the Japanese seem to have lost interest in the theme. And Submersion lost the TV ratings battle to a historical drama of sex, violence and court intrigue in 17th-century Japan.

Showbiz Short

RENO, Nev. (AP) — It is difficult to break into the clown business today, and no one is sadder than droopy-eyed Weary Willie, known when the makeup comes off as Emmett Kelly.

"It's pretty tough for kids wanting to be clowns to get a break these days," said the 76-year-old Kelly, who has entertained millions around the world in his half-century career. "There's just no place for a person wanting to get into the business to try his act out and get his feet on the ground.

"It's sort of sad, I guess."

" . . . The most important thing the young boy has to learn, after the makeup is conceived, is to act," said Kelly. "Learn to act out your skit and believe in it. That's the key."

ODENSE, Denmark (AP) — American, Czech and Japanese films won the Golden Mermaid awards Monday in the first Fairytale Film Festival.

The festival was organized in this native town of Hans Christian Andersen to mark the centenary of the death of Denmark's great fairy tale writer on Aug. 4, 1875.

An international festival jury headed by Poland's film cartoonist Jan Lenica chose: best animated cartoon, the Legend of Paul Bunyan by Nick Bosustow, an Oscar-winning American film; best puppet film, Three Wanderers produced by the Trinka Studios of Prague; and best Hans Christian Andersen film, the Little Match-Girl, a puppet film by Kazuhiko Watanabe of Japan.

More than 12,000 children crowded into two local cinemas to watch a total of 58 cartoon or puppet films, with many Andersen themes, frm more than 20 countries during the 10-day festival.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Singer Kaye Stevens has reached an out-of-court settlement with the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel for injuries suffered in a fall at the hotel in 1971, her attorney says.

Mortimer Rosecan announced the settlement Friday following the fifth day of trial in a $650,000 suit against the hotel. He said it was a "substantial sum" but that both sides had agreed to withhold the exact terms of the settlement.

Miss Stevens, 36, was injured in a fall from a broken hotel chair after a benefit performance. She said the injuries had impaired her performing ability and decreased her income. She claimed the hotel negligently stored a larger number of broken chairs in a room next to her performing area.

To Your Good Health

Supplements Often Are Waste

By G. C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How is magnesium used by the body, and for what essential function? If magnesium is essential for the body, how much is recommended?

I was wondering if these magnesium supplements were essential to good health, or if too much of them could be harmful.—R.C.

Magnesium is one of the trace elements found in all human tissue, muscles and bones. It is essential to good health, and a deficiency (always rare) can produce problems in any of the structures mentioned.

But this is not to say that dosing yourself with supplements is necessarily helpful to good health. Consider the fact that human protoplasm is roughly 65 per cent oxygen, 18 per cent carbon, 10 per cent hydrogen and three per cent nitrogen. This leaves only four per cent of its substance made up of dozens of other minerals.

Of this remaining four per cent, magnesium is present in such minute amounts that it cannot be measured in ounces. We have to resort to grams and milligrams. The daily requirement of magnesium is thought to be 200 to 300 milligrams.

The average diet yields between 250 and 500 milligrams a day.

And, as I said, magnesium deficiency is rare. The tiny amounts needed are easily obtained, since such trace elements are available in just about all of the food we eat in a day.

As you may know, magnesium is used in some laxative preparations, so overdosage of supplements could result in diarrhea.

The important point is that such supplements are usually unnecessary to provide normal body levels, and excessive amounts are excreted in the urine and the feces. They should be used only when diagnosis shows a deficiency. Otherwise, it is, at best, an unnecessary expense.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19-years-old. Last year I went to a doctor because I had a vaginal discharge. He told me that there was nothing abnormal about this. However, recently I have had to urinate frequently. This comes and goes.

I was wondering if the two symptoms could be related. I get very nervous. Could this be a factor?—B.S.

Such discharges are common, especially in the early years of menstruation. However, frequency of urination is not.

The two may or may not be related. If there is a burning or other discomfort along with urination, then this may signal the existence of an infection in the urinary tract.

Your urinary frequency should be reported to your doctor on our next visit, so he can conduct appropriate microscopic examinations of both the urine and the discharge.

Nervousness, of course, can be a factor in the urination.

UBC Electric Car Still Set for April

VANCOUVER (CP) — They still need another $7,000 but 12 University of British Columbia students hope to finish building an electric car by next April, in time for the United Nations conference here on urban environment.

The students already have received $25,000 from B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, and a similar amount from other sources, including the provincial government, the Greater Vancouver Regional District, the university and private industry.

Basil Peters, project leader says electric cars would be comparatively cheap once in regular production, perhaps selling for $2,000.

Mr. Peters, who along with the other team members is a mechanical engineering student, built an electric two-horsepower motorcycle last year on an Opportunities for Youth grant. He says it still is running well.

He says operating expenses of electric vehicles are about a quarter of those of gasoline vehicles with virtually no maintenance costs and an electric motor that is good for millions of miles.

Mr. Peters and co-workers Jack Vander Star and Peter Van Der Bracht, said their vehicle would have several advantages over internal combustion vehicles.

For example, an electric vehice is pollution-free while internal combustion vehicles account for 60 per cent by weight of all pollutants found in cities. Also electric vehicles are silent and use few raw materials.

Mr. Peters ~~said~~ the approach being taken by his group is new because commercial electric trucks basically involve conversion of internal combustion engines while the UBC team is "starting from the ground up."

Mr. Vander Star said the four-seater sedan prototype would carry the equivalent of 16 lead-acid batteries, to supply about 100 volts. The motor would equal a 60-or-70 horsepower internal combustion engine, allowing the vehicle to reach more than 60 miles an hour.

Existing lead-acid batteries would be good for 50 miles at a speed of 40 m.p.h., but the students say the practicality of their vehicle comes with breakthroughs in new battery design.

Mr. Vander Star says a group called the Energy Development Association in the United States is working on a zinc-chlorine battery it hopes to manufacture by the end of the year. The battery has greater capacity to store electrical energy and would provide a range of 200 miles.

The students say another possibility is the development of cobalt-treated lead-acid batteries, which would provide a 100-mile range.

Mr. Peters said the owner of an electric car probably would recharge the batteries for six-to-eight hours every day at the cost of pennies. For long trips they could use an established battery exchange system with service stations accepting spent batteries and providing recharged ones.

The students plan to make the car's chassis from a reinforced plastic used in some aircraft and boat construction. They say it is strong, light, has excellent absorption in cases of crashes, and deadens even the hum of an electric motor.

In planning their car, the students have also taken into consideration possible adaptations to traffic patterns and routes the car might produce if widely accepted.

Had Them In Tears

LONDON (CP) — At a luncheon in her honor recently Dame Vera Lynn, the woman dubbed the "Forces Sweetheart" during the Second World War, broke into the nostalgic songs of the day including Wishing, White Cliffs of Dover and We'll Meet Again. "I just don't know how to express my feelings," she said, "so I'd better sing." Many of the stars attending the event wept with emotion.

Her Way Out

LEEDS, England (CP) — Jean Deighton, 27, was so appalled by her damp, rat-infested home she set fire to it, causing $4,625 damage. So the council re-housed her and her three children—next to a fire station. She received a suspended sentence of six months and a day for arson.

Some years back some unknown expert invented the phrase, "Rectify the count." You rectify the count by conceding a trick in order to develop a squeeze later. Needless to say, you can't afford to rectify the count when you are in a grand slam.

South looks over dummy and counts to 11 top-card winners. He notes that the 12th winner will be there if either clubs or hearts break nicely. Suppose neither suit breaks?

If each opponent controls one, South is going to pay off. If one opponent must try to guard both South can squeeze him, but he must go through the preliminary of rectifying the count.

How does he do this? At trick two he leads a low heart from either hand and ducks in the other.

After this start he wins the return and cashes his spades and diamonds to come down to a six-card ending. Dummy holds two hearts and four clubs, South three hearts and three clubs and East holds his head in agony.

He is forced to jettison either a heart or a club. A heart discard establishes South's small heart, a club discard makes dummy's fourth club good.

Ask the Jacobys

What if anything is your opening bid with ♠ J x x x ♥ A K x ♦ K x ♣ x x x?

The first part of our answer is that we definitely open. We have 15 high-card points, which is exactly one ace and jack above the average hand. When you pass that much in high cards you are playing losing bridge. Our choice to open is one diamond, but we would not criticize a club opening. We would really criticize a spade or notrump call.

Students Aid Small Firms

EDMONTON (CP) — Thirteen commerce students from University of Alberta are helping small businesses this summer.

Supported by a provincial grant under the summer temporary employment program, the students provide services while gaining practical experience.

Projects so far have included a feasibility study for a small manufacturing firm, a study for a pharmacy considering expansion, setting up a book-keeping system for a new business and the design of a management and financial information system for a small firm.

The students, ranging from second-year to graduates, work for a small fee or no fee at all.

They work in pairs. Two make a preliminary assessment and if they feel they can help, students are assigned to the project.

There is hope the plan will expand and possibly evolve into a credit-carrying portion of the commerce program.

Nuclear Plant Safe

Hydro Denies Shulman View Dynamite Could Cause Blast

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Ontario Hydro Tuesday denied charges that a fanatic with six sticks of dynamite could enter the Pickering nuclear generating station and kill the population of Metropolitan Toronto.

Larry Woodhead, Hidro's director of nuclear generation, said there is no way such an explosion could create a catastrophe or anything approaching a crisis such as one described earlier by Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP member of the legislature for Toronto High Park.

Mr. Woodhead told a hastily-called news conference that he lives near a nuclear generating plant and "there is absolutely no hazard of radioactive material being released."

Dr. Shulman told reporters he had entered the plant at nearby Pickering by an unguarded entrance last Friday, and gained access to the spent-fuel storage bay, a storage area for lethal radioactive material.

He said he was alerted to the security danger by an engineer from the federal Atomic Energy Commission.

"He told me one stick of dynamite would kill everyone from Ajax to Bay Ridges, a distance of about five miles, and six sticks, if the wind is blowing in the right direction, would leave no one alive in Toronto within two weeks," Dr. Shulman said.

Mr. Woodhead agreed anyone could gain access to the plant but said it is impossible to set off a nuclear explosion with any amount of dynamite.

He said the lone security guard on duty at the plant was adequate but that because of Dr. Shulman's statements, there will be an immediate review of security at the station.

Dr. Shulman said he walked through an unguarded door at the plant, about 30 miles east of Toronto, walked through the cafeteria and got to the spent-fuel bay "without seeing a soul."

In addition, he charged that non-radioactive hydrogen leaks were 2½ times as frequent as last year and so far this year have cost the province $13.5 million in energy losses.

He also said four more generators of the kind involved in the leak will be built without tender.

Dr. Shulman said he told Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell Friday of how he had walked into the plant.

Mr Timbrell was unavailable for comment Tuesday but his executive assistant, Ted Ball, said the minister ordered an immediate doubling of security at the plant after talking to Dr. Shulman and has asked for a full security report from Hydro by Thursday.

Dr. Shulman said the method he used to gain entrance to the plant is known to all employees and 1,000 construction workers at the site.

See No Need to Move Nuclear Waste Dump

OTTAWA (CP) — Some deposits at a waste dump of Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. near Port Hope, Ont. may have to be moved away from public areas, but the entire dump site need not be relocated, an Atomic Energy Control Board spokesman says.

The comment was made Tuesday to clarifying a summary issued last week of a board report on radiation levels at four disposal and storage sites used by Eldorado.

The report recommended surveys of a Port Granby disposal site to identify "high radiation fields" and that consideration be given to reducing radiation levels by additional covering of the waste "or by complete removal."

However, the spokesman said the removal option would not mean moving the entire dump site, as indicated in a Canadian Press story July 30.

He said arsenic and radium contamination from the Port Granpy dump site would be diluted to acceptable levels by the time it reached Lake Ontario. The CP story had said the contamination made the lake water dangerous to drink.

The AECB spokesman conceded the report was unclear in its references to the lake shore, which were intended to mean the dump areas fronting on the beach and not the lake itself.

The finding that arsenic and radium concentrations exceeded permissible drinking water criteria at several points had referred to "ooze" on the waste site and not to lake water.

Radiation levels at the Welcome disposal site ranged up to almost 250 times the acceptable level, the report said, although a person would have to spend 29 hours at the point of highest concentration before accumulating the maximum permissable dose.

Two company officers offered last week to drink any water sample from the Welcome disposal site to demonstrate its safety. Clement Baschenis, executive vice-president, and safety officer Stan Frost said water in ponds on the site is "impeccable".

The AECB spokesman said levels of contamination at the disposal sites exceed "the very safe limits," but that there is no real danger to the public. A person could absorb similar levels of radiation in a series of medical x-rays.

Prescott Lighthouse Tests Solar Energy

OTTAWA (CP) — Faced with mounting diesel fuel costs, the government is close to a decision on whether to switch to solar energy for many of its marine lighthouses, says the director of the transport department's marine aides pranch.

J. N. Ballinger said in an interview Tuesday that the department has been carrying out solar energy experiments at its Prescott, Ont., light station for some time.

"It is a good source of energy that we are all going to come to one of these days."

Normally run on diesel generators, the Prescott lights are powered by batteries which receive and store their charge from solar cells during periods of sunlight.

"We have to complete our economic assessment of the whole thing to see whether that's the cheapest and best way to do it," he said.

"The problem is to store what energy you can during periods of sunlight." The surplus can be used when skjes are overcast.

Mr. Ballinger, 55, is secretary-general of the ninth international conference on lighthouses and other aids to navigation which is being held here. About 400 delegates from 58 countries are attending the meeting.

The transport department has been experimenting with power sources like nuclear and solar energy for some years in hopes of finding a cheaper fuel, Mr. Ballinger said.

One beacon at Brockville, Ont., has been powered by a nuclear generator since 1970 and is capable of operating without refuelling for five years.

Mr. Ballinger said nuclear energy is expensive but may be useful in remote stations in the North because little maintenance and refuelling would be required. The generator is fuelled by radioactive Cobalt-60, producing heat which is converted into electricity.

Currently, Canada has about 260 manned lighthouses operated py 600 lighthouse keepers. However, the government plans to swith to electronically monitored lighthouses, moving personnel to shore-based jobs.

Toronto Carpenters To Get $348 a Week

TORONTO (CP) — Union carpenters in Metropolitan Toronto ended a 3½-week strike on Tuesday, accepting a settlement that will give them a $3.45-an-hour increase in wages and fringe benefits over a 30-month period.

More than 57 per cent of the union membership voted in favor of the new contract that includes an immediate wage increase of $1 an hour to bring the rate to $9.30, or $348.75 for a 37½-hour week.

Vacation pay will be increased by one per cent of income to a total of 10 per cent and a new apprenticeship and training fund will be established with the employers paying a cent an hour into the fund.

Fugitive's Rifle Believed Planted by Man with Pass

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The sound of gunshots in the bushland where prison escaper Donald Kelly, 36, is believed holed up brought a flurry of excitement Tuesday night, but a concentrated search by tracking dogs and a helicopter failed to flush him out.

Police believe the temperature, which was expected to go to almost freezing during the night, may force Kelly into the open. They also say he is not prepared for the blackflies and mosquitoes which infest the area.

Revelation that the rifle he first took on his escape Saturday apparently was planted by a prisoner out on a weekend pass, leads searchers to wonder if Kelly also has food and supplies hidden in the area.

A city police official said Tuesday that Kelly has threatened to kill six city policeman.

"He has said he has a score to settle with them," said Sgt. Ron Bailey.

Police in Edmonton, where Kelly was apprehended before being returned to North Bay for preliminary hearing on two murder charges, say he is seeking revenge against a city detective and a woman instrumental in his arrest.

The detective, Zane Kotyk, a 20-year veteran of the Edmonton force, and the unidentified woman had flown to North Bay to testify at the hearing.

Kelly has been charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the 1969 slaying of Carol MacWilliams, 20, and her brother-in-law, Jack MacWilliams, 27. James Lavin, 37, and Ian Rose, 26, also are charged in the murders.

William Wotherspoon, North Bay police chief, said Kelly is believed heavily armed and appears to be cutting across bush country in an attempt to reach Highway 11.

Chief Wotherspoon said Kelly, a hunter and fisherman, "is in his own back yard and knows it like the back of his hand."

A stolen car police believe Kelly used was found Monday on a side road just northeast of the city.

Thirty armed policemen in uniform and plainclothes were in North Bay provincial court Tuesday when Lavin and Rose were remanded one week for continuation of their preliminary hearing—contingent with Kelly's arrest.

A helicopter hovered overhead and several policemen and two tracking dogs waited outside the courtroom. In the courthouse a warrant was issued for Kelly's failure to show in court.

Police said 10 hostages were tied up at gunpoint Sunday in a nearby cottage by an armed man who said he had "nothing to lose" and "was not going back."

Police said the man was carrying a .303-calibre rifle and had a .22-calibre rifle taken from Bruce Morton of Toronto, the first person taken hostage. The man also was reported to have taken a .30-30 rifle from the home where he held all 10 hostages captive.

The man escaped in a stolen car while the hostages were trying to free themselves and radio police for help.

One hostage, a 20-year-old woman, said the man joked with them.

"At times it was even funny," she said." It was like being in a Dick Tracy movie."

Police said residents are apprehensive about Kelly being in the neighborhood but said there was no panic. Some area farmers are carrying shotguns as they go about their work.

Terrorists Take Off

Malaysia, Japan Give New Hostages

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Five Japanese Red Army terrorists today freed 15 hostages, including U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins, two other Americans and a Swedish diplomat, from an airliner at Kuala Lumpur airport.

The terrorists, who stormed a building housing the U.S. Embassy on Monday, were then joined on the plane by five other radicals freed from Japanese jails and four substitute hostages, and took off for Libya.

The Japan Air Lines DC-8 made a refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka, and then flew on towards Tripoli, where it was expected at about 4:45 p.m. EDT. The flight would cover 6,900 miles.

The four susbstitute hostages were Ramli Omar, Malaysian parliamentary secretary to the communications ministry; Osman Kassim, secretary-general of the Malaysian home ministry; and two senior Japanese foreign ministry officials—Ryohei Murata and Ochi Keisuke.

The 15 hostages were the last to be freed of a total of 52 persons seized in the drama that began Monday when the terrorists invaded the U.S. embassy building. Most of the others were released Wednesday.

The plane's take-off was delayed for a full day as the terrorists and Malaysians stumbled on new snags in the complex negotiations. These included the raiders' destination and whether they should be armed.

The terrorists had already secured their main demand—the release of five comrades imprisoned in Japanese jails. The five arrived in Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday and had spent most of their time since their arrival waiting in an airport building.

Earlier, two Malaysian explosives experts boarded the plane and came out with two hooded terrorists carrying some packets containing six homemade bombs. They drove in a car about half a mile down the runway, walked a short distance across the grass, placed the bombs in a hole and detonated them.

The explosion, which could be heard a mile away, sent smoke and debris more than 40 feet in the air.

Officials said the terrorists were allowed to keep their firearms, but the bullets were to be kept by the government officials acting as substitute hostages.

At every step of the drama, long drawn-out negotiations were required on such issues as handling of the hostages, where the terrorists would fly, whether they could take arms on the plane and the number of the plane crew.

Malaysian officials said the Japan Air Lines DC-8 would make the 7,000-mile flight to Tripoli with a refuelling stop in Aden. They said Aden was picked for refuelling instead of Karachi because permission could not be obtained from India for overflying its air space.

Officials said that Indonesia, Syria and Egypt agreed to let the plane fly through their air space, but Iran refused permission, threatening to shoot at the aircraft if it flew into Iranian territory.

Japanese officials in Tokyo said Libya told them it could not "formally" accept the landing of the plane but would permit it to put down at Benghazi as an "emergency landing."

The flight to Aden was expected to take about seven hours and the leg from Aden to Tripoli just over five hours.

The five terrorists seized the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur on Monday, capturing the U.S. consul and the Swedish charge d'affaires and 50 others.

To free the hostages, Japan agreed to free five Red Army men held in Japan and fly them to Malaysia, and provided a plane to fly all 10 of the radicals out of Malaysia.

The 15 hostages were moved Wednesday from the U.S. embassy building in downtown Kuala Lumpur to the airport. The others were released.

U.S. Prices Jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government reported today that higher costs for food and fuel resulted in the second sharpest jump of the year in wholesale prices during July, offering fresh evidence of a resurgence of inflation. The labor department said its wholesale price index climbed 1.2 per cent, reversing a decline of one tenth of one per cent in June.

Death Penalty Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Municipalities of Ontario voted Wednesday to ask the federal government to reinstate the death penalty for premeditated murder and murder committed during a robbery.

Tax Rebate Opposed

TORONTO (CP) —A Toronto secretary, Beverley Phillips, who bought a Toyota last month, is seeking to have declared null and void an Ontario regulation providing a rebate of provincial sales tax to 1975 buyers of North American built cars. The rebate was introduced in July by the provincial government to increase auto production in Ontario.

Blast Destroys Plant

CHATEAULIN, France (AP) — A violent explosion ripped through a state owned explosives factory here today and first reports said many persons were feared killed or injured. More than 600 persons are employed in the Pont de Buis factory near the tip of the Brittany peninsula. The blast damaged houses more than a mile away from the factory.

Astronauts OK

HONOLULU (AP) — An unscheduled Hawaiian vacation ends tonight for the Apollo astronauts. They have been given a tentative clean bill of health in their recovery from breathing poison rocket gas two weeks ago. Astronauts Vance Brand, Thomas Stafford and Donald Slayton will meet reporters in Washington, D.C., Saturday morning to discuss details of the mishap in the command module as they returned to earth.

Kingston Proposed As Regional City

LONDON, Ont. (CP) The Free Press says a secret Ontario government planning report states the province should decentralize its concentrations in the Toronto area and distribute them among four widely-separated major regional centres.

The suggested cities are London, Kingston, Sudbury and Thunder Bay.

The newspaper quotes the report as saying:

"As a general rule, these four cities will be favored in the stimulation of economic growth and in the sub-centralization of economic operations in their respective regions.

A number of "sub-regional centres" also would be encouraged to develop to serve their surrounding areas.

They are Windsor, Kitchener-Waterloo, Cambridge, Hamilton Townsend (a new city in Haldimand-Norfolk), St. Catharines-Welland-Niagara Falls, North Bay, Timmins and Sault Ste. Marie.

The Free Press describes the document as a draft report prepared in the ministry of the treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs and marked: "Draft: for discussion purposes only."

Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said in a telephone interview with the newspaper he is studying a third draft of the planning study and the cabinet will examine it thoroughly before acting on it.

"I'm not satisfied with it yet," he said, adding that several changes are likely before it is made public.

The minister described it as "a very major statement of policy by the government."

The treasurer said there is only one copy of the third draft—"and that's on my desk"—and he declined to tell The Free Press which draft it possessed.

The Free Press said its draft recommends that the government undertake a comprehensive review of its planning apparatus and legislation; take a stronger part in planning Ontario's future and ensure that the policies of other levels of government coincide with its priorities.

Extravaganza Slated For Millhaven Prison

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer David Cole says there will be a "special extravaganza" at Millhaven maximum-security penitentiary near Kingston this weekend.

Mr. Cole, lawyer Paul Copeland and a member of the British Columbia Prisoners' Union Committee will announce details Friday.

Millhaven's 294 prisoners have refused to leave their cells since July 31 except for meals, visitors, sick parade and showers. Their refusal to work in the prison's shops or on maintenance duties started as a support move for a similiar demonstration at the British Columbia penitentiary.

In both situations, prisoners have asked federal authorities to allow them to form a union that would channel grievances to officials.

The work stoppage at Millhaven is to end Aug. 11 with a one-day hunger strike to coincide with the anniversary of the death of prisoner Edward Nalon, who committed suicide in the prison last year.

Wednesday prison director John Dowsett said the institution was "exceptionally quiet."

Air Canada Cuts Fares

MONTREAL (CP) Air Canada announced today sweeping fare reductions to stimulate lagging air travel within Canada, effective Sept. 8.

The airline said it will slash both long-haul and short-haul excursion fares for travel within Canada by up to 35 per cent. Foreign travel will not be affected.

A revised youth standby fare will also be introduced offering a 50-per-cent discount compared with the present 20-per-cent reduction. Senior citizens and groups of 15 or more will continue to receive current fare discounts.

Two Bridges Proposed By Prince Edward MPP

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A two-phase program, to replace the Bay Bridge immediately with a modern structure at its present location and later consider the need for a second new bridge with more direct access to Highway 401, has been proposed by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox.

In a telephone interview Wednesday Mr. Taylor said he has made a presentation to the ministry of transportation and communication concerning his proposal for two bridges and is seeking response from transport minister John Rhodes.

Mr. Taylor termed the Bay Bridge "obsolete for modern traffic" and added it is too narrow and is incapable of properly accommodating the water traffic.

He observed that when Mr. Rhodes last year announced in Belleville that a new bridge would be built, he considered it "a significant achievement". After the committment was made, an in-depth study was planned regarding location of the proposed new bridge and the most suitable type of structure.

"I've never taken a stand on the site as I wanted to hear from all organizations, interest groups, municipal councils and county council," he said.

Mr. Taylor noted many briefs have been submitted on the bridge and he has concluded that the existing "archaic structure" should be replaced by a modern bridge that is wider and higher, with a relatively low profile that will lend itself to the geography and environment of the present site.

"It would be an improvement and it would not disjoint the existing traffic pattern or erase a section of a provincial highway. That highway system should be maintained or there might be all kinds of problems with dislocation of communities," he commented.

Mr. Taylor said it is time to stop spending money on maintenance of the Bay Bridge. A new bridge should be built with plans to ensure that Rossmore and Zwick's Island Park are not dislocated through an "aesthetically obscene" structure.

He said phase one would be to maintain the "status quo" by facing facts and replacing the present bridge.

Phase two would involve a continuation of the present study to determine the long range need of a mdern transportation corridor for commercial and industrial traffic and for motorists seeking a more direct route to Highway 401.

"I'm calling for a structure that may be a high level crossing in an area that would not damage the landscape and would take into consideration the land use planning in Prince Edward County and the Trenton-Belleville part of the province," he commented.

Mr. Taylor predicted that with the further development of urbanized roads and the servicing of some Prince Edward communities, there will be growth in Picton, Wellington, Bloomfield and parts of Hallowell township.

With more intensive development there will be a greater attraction for industry to locate.

In Prince Edward more commercial and industrial development is needed "in terms of clean commerce and industry that fits in with out landscape and has minimum impact on our environment," says Mr. Taylor.

This type of development will generate job opportunities to ensure that Prince Edward develops with the rest of Ontario in economic strength and incomes.

When asked about the cost of two bridges as opposed to the cost of the single structure proposed last summer, Mr. Taylor said "Although costs seem high now they may never be lower than they are today."

He added that growth in the Quinte area will generate economic activities that will finance, through prosperity, the cost of this type of service.

"With economic activity you generate revenue as well."

"I'm not one to advocate extravagance but we must plan for our needs and when the need is demonstrated, proceed."

The MPP said when the need for a second bridge and a location have been established, then it is time to plan for it.

Border Fighting Is Continuing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli commandos demolished a house in southern Lebanon early today and Lebanon reported an artillery duel across the tense Israeli border in the fourth night of fighting reported in the area.

Israel and Lebanon gave differing accounts of the night's action. Neither listed any casualties.

The Israeli military command said its troops infiltrated the central part of the border on "combing operations for terrorists." It said the raiders blew up the house of a known guerrilla collaborator in Hanine village and also searched Talloussa village, 11 miles away.

A communique issued in Tel Aviv said Arabs inside Lebanon fired bazooka rockets at Israeli patrols in western Galilee and at an Israeli border settlement.

The Lebanese defence ministry said the Israeli raiders blew up a house and took a Lebanese villager prisoner. A communique issued in Beirut said the attack touched off a 20-minute artillery exchange across the border.

One Lebanese forward position also came under heavy mortar fire while "enemy gunners kept up an all-night barrage on adjacent valleys," the ministry said.

Sidney Barn Gutted

Sidney Township volunteer fire fighters worked into the night Wednesday containing a fire that gutted a barn owned by Glen Hogle three miles west of Belleville on Highway 2. Department chief Doug Scott said today he has asked the Ontario Fire Marshall's Office to aid in the investigation of the fire's cause. For story see first page, second section.

Northern Riots Continue

Portuguese Premier Has Formed New Government

LISBON (Reuter) — Gen. Vasco Goncalves has formed a new Portuguese government to replace the one which fell last month when the socialists and centre-left Popular Democrats resigned, his office said here today.

The spokesman could give no details of the composition of the government. Goncalves' original plan was an administration of military men, Communists and unaffiliated Marxist technocrats.

As the new government was announced, violence continued unabated in northern Portugal where crowds of anti-Communists have been besieging Communist offices for the last several days.

In fresh fighting today, Communists were reported to have opened fire on the anti-Communist demonstrators, wounding five.

President Francisco da Costa Gomes announced a week ago that the government was formed and that it would be announced in two days' time. But it failed to materialize because of opposition from Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

Carvalho is a revolutionary Marxist, but rejects any allegiance to the Communist party, with which Goncalves is identified.

Goncalves, Carvalho and Costa Gomes make up the supreme triumvirate which has powers to rule and legislate on its own.

In northern Portugal, Communist militants besieged in their offices in a small town near Oporto today opened fire the demonstrators outside, eyewitnesses reported.

Anti-Communist violence in Oporto and other parts of conservative northern Porugal has reached a "state of pre-insurrection," a senior military source said.

Portugal's military commanders have ordered all units to repress severely any further disorder.

Neurotics Anonymous Helps People Cope with Day-to-day Stress

Have you ever told yourself if everyone was like you it would be a fine world?

If you have, Neurotics Anonymous says you are taking one of 12 steps to being insane and can use their help.

If you are nervous, depressed or afraid there's help through the group which meets every Wednesday evening at the Holloway Street United Church.

The group, which originated in Toronto 11 years ago, first began meetings in Belleville in 1970, and is based on the alcoholics anonymous system whereby individuals gain strength to overcome their problems through a group structure.

"Everyone knows what caused our problems" said the chairman for the session Wednesday. "It was an inability to love others and ourselves."

The group has no religious affiliation, all the members stressed, but rather a spiritual society where each individual chooses his own higher powers to aid in his recovery, whether it is a god, society or the group itself.

Violent emotion is the definition given by the group as insanity.

"Any emotion that doesn't allow a person to function within society is violent, whether it is anger, fear, hatred or self-pity one member said."

The meetings begin and end with a group recital.

"They realize they are not the only people in the world with emotional problems," said one member.

"Part of the fear and inability to cope with the problem is thinking you're alone in the world, she said. "This adds to the heavy burden society puts on troubled people by making it uncomfortable for a person to admit publically they might need emotional help."

The only requirement for membership in the group is a ddesire to recover from an emotional problem, she said.

It is non-profit, apolitical and unstructured to the point where no one has to speak if they don't want to.

CN Fighting To Hold Own

Canadian National Railways expects to take passengers more than one million miles this year generating a revenue of about half a million dollars.

While these figures represent only a shadow of the record passenger business done by CN in Canada's centennial year, the outlook is good "considering the country's economic climate" a CN spokesman in Toronto said Wednesday.

John Noel, CN public relations officer, said during an interview, "despite much lower economic activity and reduced tourism, CN has managed to hold its own".

"We have probably stayed up better than the tourist industry in general," said Mr. Noel.

Even so, this year is something of a disappointment.

"It is not shaping up as the year we thought it would be," said Mr. Noel. "Last fall we were predicting more business. Now we find that the business has levelled off more than it has increased."

Local passenger sales superintendent Frank Becker said Wednesday, increases in numbers of passengers and increased fares have both led to CN reaching the half million dollar mark in passenger revenue.

He said particularly in Belleville where substantial community growth is taking place, CN is feeling an increase in business.

FARMERS COMPETE

Hastings county junior farmers will be represented by three athletes from Roslin at the annual Provincial Summer Games Aug. 10 at the University of Guelph.

Barry Ray will compete in the mile and 800 metres, Laurie Sills in the long jump and 100 metres and Colleen Lott in the shot put and softball throw.

Rewording of Bill Pleases Runacres

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The rewording of strike definition in the new legislation covering board-teacher negotiations has temporarily ddefused a dangerous situation, says Eric Runacres, director of education with the Hastings County Board of Education.

During the second and third reading of Bill 100, the controversial act which gives teachers the right to strike, the government removed a clause which said strike action could be interpreted by a withdrawal of curricular and extra-curricular activities.

Mr. Runacres, along with other educators, has said the original legislation would have been destructive to both students and teachers. Hisorically, extra-curruсular activities, including clubs, coaching, drama, orchestras and special events, have played a large part of school life for students.

If the original legislation had been passed teachers would have been reluctant to take on these activitis bcause if they decided to later drop the activity it may be interpreted as an illegal act.

However, the new legislation still leaves the matter up in the air. The ministry of education has substituted the phrases "work to rule" and "any withdrawal of services".

Mr. Runacres explained that it depends on how the board defines "withdrawal of services". He said that for years now the public has expected teachers to provide this voluntary service although it has never been written into contracts.

Mr. Runacres said the elimination of this clause has temporarily solved the problem but the ambiguity of the new phrasing may yet cause some confrontations between boards of education and teachers.

He speculated that teacher federations will caution their members to beware of over extending their time with extra-curricular activities. "The whole question will need clarification and it may have to come in contract talks," he added.

Mr. Runacres praised the teachers in Hastings County for their contribution to these activities. He said teachers in all areas have devoted their time and energy to hundreds of volunter hours.

He said he hoped that teachers in Hastings County would continue to make this contribution because it's good for school spirit and for the students.

Summer Jobs Scarce For Many Students

TRENTON — Placement of students in jobs a week or less in duration during July doubled the June total and more than tripled July, 1974 figures, say Canada Manpower officials in Trenton.

But regular placements, the key category for students wanting work to finance this year's studies, fell substantially compared to June, this year and July, 1974, the two months for which comparisons were made.

Manpower student placement officer Shirley Post said Wednesday 159 students were placed in jobs classed as regular — those lasting more than a week.

July placement figures, revealed in a month-end report, are below June's by 114. The drop indicates an end to a three-month trend towards rising student hiring in the Trenton area in the regular category.

In 1974, 230 students were placed in jobs of more than a week's duration during July.

The placement officer attributed the dramatic drop to a tightening of the job market. She said visits to area employers drew comments that either they weren't hiring at all, or that they were too small to need extra help.

She said employers hiring relatives or sons and daughters of friends before consideration is given to hiring an unknown student.

She attributed increases in casual placements to the accumulative effect of advertizing through the media, and praise of student work by word of mouth.

"Homeowners are becoming aware of the service," she said.

Use by households of students for babysitting and around-the-house chores has doubled over last year in July. Casual jobs offered by small business are down slightly.

Student Manpower offices recorded 82 casual placements this July compared to 42 in June, 1975, and only 24 in July, 1974.

Indicative of the difficulty in finding work is a large registration with Manpower offices last month. Last year, only 93 new job-seekers registered. In 1975 in July, the number climbed to 305, bringing to a total 1,849 students who wanted summer jobs (1,546 in 1974 July).

Councillors Endorse Whytock Master Plan

A special meeting of the Madoc Village Council was held recently to discuss a master plan for the Whytock Conservation Area here.

The Plan was completed by the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki.

Reeve T.C. Barton, Deputy Reeve Clayton Smith, and Councillors Watson and Deline, Authority Chairman Guy Hughes and Authority Vice Chairman Harold Thompson were in attendance.

The proposed plan shows a camping area on the west side of the property with access from St. Lawrence's A picnic area and playground that includes a tennis court, swimming area, and ball diamonds, is proposed for the east side, with access via Queen Victoria St.

Walking trails and additional planting of trees are to separate the various activity sites throughout the whole property. A concession centre is to be built near the entrance at Queen Victoria Street and other attractions, such as horticultural displays, a farm animal zoo at the Blue barn, a look-out tower, and an amphitheatre were also suggested. It was emphasized by the consultants that this development would be phased over several years.

The question of the possible sale of the Whytock house and several building lots on Whytock St. was also discussed without a decision being reached.

On motion of Deline-Smith, it was resolved that the council approve in principle the Plan.

Madoc High School Plans First Reunion

MADOC — A group of former Madoc High School students has established a committee to bring back memories of the good old days in the form of a reunion.

The committee includes Mel Caverly, Kel Kincaid and Ken West of Madoc, Jack Kincaid of Hagersville, Allan Ross of Brantford and Earle Elliott of Belleville. They have set aside Saturday Sept. 27, for the first Madoc High School reunion to be held in conjunction with the annual Madoc Fall Fair.

Everyone who attended Madoc High up to and including 1940 are invited. There will b a registration tent on the fair grounds, where there will be an opportunity for all to visit with former schoolmates and relive the good old days. Old acquaintances can be renewed while the families enjoy the fair.

A special reception will follow at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre.

Letters are being sent out to all those with whom the committee has contact.

And Here's How

Trenton recreation supervisor Heather James demonstrates the proper method of donning a life preserver before taking a group of youngsters, aged 10 to 14, down the Trent River on a canoe trip from Frankford Wednesday. Dump Prompts Complaints

MARMORA — "The ministry of environment inspector always seems to pick a bad time to visit the Marmora waste disposal site" ounciCllor Joe McGrath, sanitation committee chairman, commented at a recent Marmora and Lake Townships Council meeting.

A letter from John Tooley of the ministry's office in Kingston said he found the gate to the disposal site unlocked on the day of his visit, July 14, that segregation of material was not adequate and compaction not as complete as it should be. He asked for a report that his criticisms had been corrected.

Council directed clerk-treasurer Mabell Gawley to advise Mr. Tooley that the day in question was a collection day for the townships but the gate should not have been left open and the contractor will be advised of that. Steps are also being taken to remedy the other situations and a new trench has been opened, the letter will inform the inspector.

Reeve Ritchie Wells reported that ownership of a large amount of garbage deposited at the gate of the disposal site had been traced to a Madoc resident and the people involved had been ordered to correct the situation.

Three-car Mishap Causes $1,400 Damage

PICTON — Town police today are investigating a three-car collision that occurred early today at the intersection of Union and Church Sts. causing as estimated $1,400 damage.

Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher said the collision occurred when a car driven by Douglas Ackerman, 24, of Picton, pulled out to pass a vehicle driven by John Blemkie, 17, of RR 2 Picton after the lead car had given a turn signal.

Both were eastbound.

After coming into collision with the Blemkie car, the Ackerman vehicle then struck a parked car owned by James Harrington of 17 Union St.

The Ackerman vehicle received damage estimated at $700 while damage to the Blemkie car was set at $400. The Harrington vehicle received $300 damage.

Riding Instructor Places Stress on Sound Training

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

NORTHPORT — School is always in session for teacher Mary Leversedge, who instructs pupils throughout her summer vacation.

For 10 months each year she teaches at Queen Elizabeth School in Picton, then holidays at Mar-A-Thon, a horse farm where she offers riding lessons during July and August.

Located on the Northport Rd., just off Highway 49, Mar-A-Thon is a 100-acre equestrian centre developed by Mrs. Leversedge and her husband, Tony, who enjoy riding and training a small stable of show horses.

Mrs. Leversedge who owns a purebred Arabian stallion named Kahbari said she hopes to expand her stables with more horses of this breed.

This summer she is instructing a number of children and teenagers as well as adults in English riding. Western riding lessons also are offered on request.

For the lessons she does not offer the splay-footed "nags" so often depicted in riding stable cartoons.

Instead, her students learn a proper seat aboard Ginger Beer, a registered quarter mare or Whiskey, a saddlebr'd - hackney cross.

Mrs. Leversedge stressed it is important for beginners to take lessons on sensitive, well-mannered horses with the basic good conformation that ensures a proper way of going.

Pupils started on sluggish, poorly-trained animals will not be able to learn as much about riding or showing as the students who receive good mounts.

For her younger riders, Mrs. Leversedge offers a pony called Junior who has been fully trained.

Mrs. Leversedge observed that the horses she has selected for her stable remain calm with beginners yet provide an enjoyable ride for the more experienced horseman.

"I do everything slowly and sequentially and each rider receives a great deal of personal attention," she added.

Mrs. Leversedge herself received riding instruction at an academy in Richmond Hill for 10 years. In this period she also worked as an assistant.

For three months she received lessons with the Eglinton Pony Club under an assistant instructor from the Spanish Riding School.

Since moving to Prince Edward County several years ago she has competed in many local shows.

"I fell when people are looking for a riding instructor they shoudl be very selective and find someone they trust," she emphasized.

"It's a shame that there are not more outlets for riding instruction in the county," she added.

Mrs. Leversedge noted children often think a horse just as "something to bomb around on" and fail to develop their riding potential.

Similarly, horses and ponies with potential may never receive valuable training.

"The world of riding is still relatively new as a profession," she commented.

Mrs. Leversedge feels there are many opportunities for young persons interested in careers with horses. When school starts next month, the riding instructress will continue lessons with her students on a weekend basis. Also, evening riding is possible by use of a flood-lighted area near the stable.

Plan Approved

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Township council has approved an amended Hastings County official plan. Reeve Ritchie Wells told council that one of the amendments reduced to one acre the requirement for a building lot in rural areas. The original recommendation had been for 10 acres. "This is one of the things we have been fighting for," deputy-reeve John Wilkes said.

Resort Angers Residents

MARMORA — A plan by Charlotte Properties Ltd. to develop an area in Lake Township as a year-round tourist resort will be fought by a citizens' association in the area. Members of Marmora and Lake Township council have agreed to attend a meeting Sunday to discuss formation of the citizen group.

Dam Study Cost Okay

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Township's payment toward an engineering study on the Marmora dam has been approved by council. The township's sare is $2,243.63 of a total cost of $23,235. Contract fon the study has been awarded to the Dillon Engineering Co. by the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority.

FANKFORD — The Deckhands Puppet Theatre will stop to give a show at the Frankford public liebrary amid their current tour of Bay of Quinte libraries. Show time is 5 p.m. next Wednesday, Aug. 13.

Marmora Studies Program

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships Council has decided to give further study to the Home Renewal Program proposed by the Ontario Government. because Councillor Ted Bonter said he feels it might be of benefit to someone in the minicipality.

Reeve Ritchie Wells said at a recent meeting a government official had outlined the County would be administer-plan at Hastings County Council recently but most of the reeves had decided it would be too big a headache to undertake, even though the ing it on behalf of the municipalities.

When it was pointed out that Marmora and Lake Townships would only receive $30,692. it was felt that the amount would be too small to be of much use and would involve council in judging the merits of each application.

"I think our township people are more resourceful than that and don't have to depend on the government for money to make home repairs," Reeve Wells commented.

The Fruits of Monetary Irresponsibility — a Long and Painful Hangover

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — This country and our province have been and are on a binge.

And we have been given warning that the hang-over could be long and probably painful.

The binge has been in our ever-increasing rises in wages and salaries.

And the warning comes from the Bank of Montreal in its July business review.

It says that it appears that the United States is now entering the first phase of recovery from decline but that Canada, which went into recession at a later date, will also come out of it later.

And at that the bank doesn't go into the full story, which really is just what are our hopes for recovery and how strong can it and will it be.

The federal labor department provides pertinent figures on this question.

They show that in wage and salary increases we have been steadily outstripping the U.S. and we may through this, if we haven't already, priced ourselves out of our major market.

One statistic tells the story.

In Canada in the second quarter the average (and remember these are averages) settlement was for an 18.8 per cent increase while the average for one year settlement was a whopping 24.5 per cent.

In the U.S. the average second quarter settlement was for 9.8 per cent.

Already the wage factor in our production is higher than that in the U.S. So what will the disparity rise to if this trend continues?

Labor leaders argue that wages are not the major factor in inflation. In doing so they are talking so much hot air.

Sidney Handelman, of consumer and commercial relations, an economist and very practical man said flatly a short while ago that wages and salaries were the significant cause in inflation.

And few close to the picture, or able to take a detached view, will disagree with him.

Accepting his premise, what is to be done about it?

Any solution rests with two major interests.

The first is government.

It should be giving leadership. But it has been the reverse, both at Ottawa and here.

Rather than trying to impose restraint, government has been leading the way in the increases it has been granting. (So much so that a leading spokesman has said that industry no longer can afford to compete with government in salaries).

The second is labor leadership.

Some statesmanship simply has to be uncovered in its ranks.

It must consider the welfare and future of the country rather than concentrating on the buck.

Perhaps a good first step would be to dump the majority of present labor leadership in some handy lake and start afresh.

As for government, the party in the coming election here which promises practical restraint on wages will get my vote.

A Satisfied Teacher!

Teachers as "Middle Class Rich." That's the word from Globe and Mail columnist Scott Young who quoted some revealing salary statistics recently.

Coming from a member of the teaching profession, they are at once a commentary on good financial management and, somewhat bemusedly, on the shrill protestations of some teachers that they are badly done by.

The message then, as Young puts it, "from a member of the Middle Class Rich."

It goes like this: "I am a school teacher, 10 years experience, salary $11,900 plus $600 specialist's allowance plus $800 cost-of-living bonus. Grand total: $13,300. Wife's income: nil. Two small children. A sampling of one year. Two holiday weekends in Lake Placid, one in the Laurentians. Countless jaunts to Ottawa, Montreal, Brockville, Arnprior. Memberships in two tennis clubs, and one golf club. We own two full-sized eight-year old cars. Total mileage 292,000. Our kids are not deprived and our living accommodation is more than adequate.

"Today we have . . . $3,000 in the bank and we haven't borrowed a dime nor do we owe one. How come? We don't have credit cards. We rent (can't afford to buy). My wife is the sort of woman you only read about in Bible stories. We don't cave in to every 'get-it' impulse that comes along. Now they want to pay me $17,000 for next year. Somebody's really gotta be kiddin."

Columnist Young acknowledges that living in a small town, as this couple does, accounts in part for their good fortune, but even at that here is one teacher who is satisfied with his lot. It might be said, with a nod toward inflation and high housing costs that $17,000 would help toward purchase of a home, but then too so would cutting down on those many jaunts in the car and club memberships.

In any event, here is a lesson in economics and in the art of making do. How many teachers, or members of other professions are managing on cars that are nearly a decade old? It's one way to save, provided the car is in reasonable shape. There's no "impulse-buying" either and that helps too. In short, it's the old and all but extinct of business of living within one's means. And not inconsiderable — and about to increase — means at that.

Anybody else complaining?

East and West At Helsinki

"One must have faith."

That was Prime Minister Trudeau expressing the hope that East Germany would follow through with its undertaking to permit reunification of families.

Mr. Trudeau spoke personally with East German Premier Honecher, and with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev in connection with over-fishing of North Atlantic waters to the detriment of the Canadian industry.

The meetings took place in Helsinki where world leaders had gathered for the biggest international summit in more than a century.

The key to the discussions was detente — in effect, live and let live. Some observers, notably dissident Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn, believe that east-west detente is simply wishful thinking, and cautions the west to keep up its guard.

The western world might well do just that, Time of course will tell. Ten . . . twenty years from now who knows what the years will bring? This is a competitive world, and where two powerful and diametrically-opposed systems face each other friction of one kind or another is inevitable. For the time being though, any semblance of peace and world order is better than none.

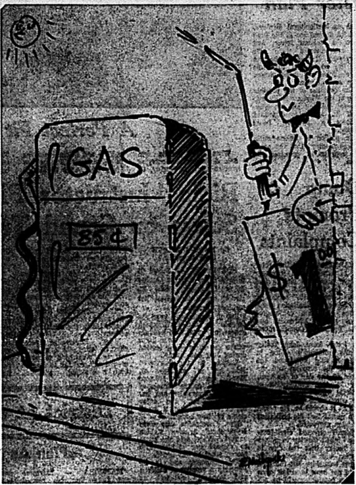
Sharp Boost in Rent

Word of the establishment of rent review boards in Ontario this fall is welcome enough, but while we await them, it increases further the vulnerability of citizens who are renting homes and apartments.

A case in point: a Belleville widow who moved into a new apartment complex last fall informs us her rent has just been increased from $201 to $244.

She says there are others like her, on fixed incomes. Understandably, an increase such as this one of about 20 per cent will increase the financial difficulties of those in such circumstances.

Will other landlords seize this opportunity to follow suit? As it is, the review boards will have no power to amend rent increases. An aroused public might be effective though. Aroused tenants moreover might band together and try legal action. Meanwhile, if other landlords are pleading inflationary pressures they should at least exercise moderation, which cannot be said in the case referred to above.



Argus Replacement and Canada's Lackadaisical Aircraft Industry

By JOHN HARBRON

The long and unresolved decision of a replacement aircraft for the now very old Argus Long Range Patrol Aircraft (LRPAs) of the Canadian Armed Forces, now involves two international aviation companies.

These are Boeing Aircraft Corporation of Seattle-Tacoma, Washington, and Lockheed California. While the nod, if ever given by Ottawa after two years of procrastination and delay, might go to Lockheed for their Orion LRPA aircraft. Boeing Aircraft displays an aggressivness in foreign aircraft sales which dismelly, our own industry hasn't displayed in a good long time.

Yes, wa have the de Havilland DHC-7 Short Landing Take-Off, latest brother to the earlier successful Beaver, Otter and Caribou STOLs which have been sold to over 100 countries.

But the big STOL has been literally stalled by local crusading environmentalist and Ottawa's running-off in all directions where civil aviation's future in this country is concerned.

Again coming back to Boeing, it had no God-given assurance of more foreign markets after the 25-million Jumbo Jet 747 had been bought by most of the world's airlines; even less so after former president Nixon junked the SST project of a supersonic Boeing jet for the 1980's.

That decision temporarily turned Seattle into the most unique depression-bound city in the United States with 40,000 a year aeronautical engineers and top management literally on the bread lines.

Yet the company had manufactured 1,200 of the medium-size Boeing 727s since 1962, making it the widest-used commercial jetliner, including customer Air Canada which has bought 11 of them.

Perhaps equally impressive is the fact Boeing is in world markets in a big way by selling to countries with whom the United States has no diplomatic relations and considers ideological opponents in global power politics.

Boeing sold 10 707s to the State Airline of the People's Republic of China in 1973, complete with crew training programs in Seattle and Shanghai and 100 per cent main engine replacement.

Though 25 per cent engine replacement is normal in the industry, the Chinese insisted on complete replacement because the Russians left them in the lurch technologically after the Sino-Soviet split of the early 60s.

Today the Boeing 707s of the CAAC, (Civil Airline Administration of China), fly into Karachi, Tokyo, Paris and soon may include Vancouver and perhaps even some day Seattle where they were built, if the U.S. and China ever open full diplomatic relation .

Last spring Boeing pulled off another sales coup, this time with Iran, not a Communist nation but in the pro-Soviet camp of the Arab nations and relying on the U.S.S.R. for its military jets.

In an Iraqi policy of "technology first, politics second," Boeing won a similar kind of contract, aircraft plus spares and an outlay by the firm to train Iraqis not only in mainteannce but flight scheduling, advertising and finance.

The overall Boeing sale to Iraq included two Jumbo jet 747s, three Boeing 727-200s and one 737. Meantime Boeing's sales teams are on the trail in China again trying to sell some of the ubiquitous Boeing 727s.

It's a foreign sales league our aviation industry left many many years ago, in the era of the doomed Avro jetliner, in fact.

Sixty Per Cent of Working Citizenry Are in Firms With 100 Persons or Less

By JOSEPH DUPUIS

CP Business Editor

Once again, it may be time to offer a prayer for the small and medium-size business firm.

Canada's mini-entrepreneurs, like small operators everywhere, have always suffered a basic flaw—lack of market punch to deal with pressures from big government, big business and big banks.

They usually suffer most from inflation or recession and have had it especially tough in today's economy of high costs and rising unemployment.

Their importance to the economy, however, cannot be underestimated considering that 60 per cent of all working Canadians are employed by firms with 100 workers or less.

"We're a vital majority in this nation, and that cannot be ignored," John F. Bulloch Jr., president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said in an interview. "Big government and big business cannot provide all the jobs no matter what policies they adopt."

The federation represents 28,000 firms, 40 per cent of them in the retail business—the area usually hardest-hit by recession.

Small businessmen are more sensitive to changes in market conditions.

A rise in minimum wages can put marginal firms out of business. When cost-of-living increases—the so-called COLA clauses in contracts—were awarded last week to 35,000 construction workers in British Columbia, there were immediate cries that many small contractors would be forced into bankruptcy.

Government intervention—such as imposition of pollution controls—may have only a minor impact on a big firm but can cripple a small one.

Risk capital is generally more readily available to the large, established firm then to small companies, even though they may be well run.

John D. Thompson, president of RoyNat Ltd., a major source of development capital for the small owner-manager, says working capital still remains a problem for the small entrepreneur.

"He never has enough, and when sales plunge and fixed costs continue relentlessly, he faces almost immediate trouble," Mr. Thompson said in an interview. "Getting working capital under these circumstances is difficult, if not well night impossible."

Most observers agree there is no shortage of conventional working capital, but the problem for the small businessman is getting money at rates he can handle. A major complaint is that he can get term financing, but only by paying 10 to 12 per cent interest.

A businessman seeking a loan of $125,000 to $150,000 usually can dicker for good terms. It's the fellow trying to borrow $50,000 that has difficulty.

Mr. Bulloch says big banks shy away from risk investment of this type and refers to what he calls the lack of response from the major banks to the federal Small Loans Act.

Under the act, loans are available at eight per cent, but Mr. Bulloch says the banks have deliberately refused to support the legislation.

"The banks won't make loans like that unless they are coerced."

Mr. Bulloch and others believe that the spread of government bureaucracy poses the most serious threat the small businessman has ever had to face. His federation carried out a survey of member firms which confirmed that the paper work from increasing government regulations is the most serious concern for small businessmen today.

The survey also showed that small businessmen consider the quality of labor as their second major concern, followed by inflation, availability of capital and labor costs.

Mr. Thompson of RoyNat is more optimistic than Mr. Bulloch, saying the number of business failures in Canada won't match that of the United States, which last year reported a record rate of bankruptcies.

"One reason the outlook is not so grim for Canadian companies is that there are not so many companies in a given industry and therefore, the competition is not fierce," Mr. Thompson said. "We haven't had the price cutting here that has sent so many U.S. companies to the wall, for example."

Mr. Thompson believes well-managed small-business firms can do well in almost any kind of economy.

"If a recession of the current magnitude can be said to have a bonus side, it is that the inefficient firms which only survive in boom times go out of business."

Mr. Bulloch retorts that bankruptcy rates don't give a true picture. He says 70 per cent of new enterprises fall in the first year but the majority "who start again a second time are successful."

He thinks that any recovery in the Canadian economy will come only in the resource industry area, not manufacturing. "In the last three years, our own wage costs got so out of line that the small manufacturer has been threatened. They won't see any recovery and, in fact, a lot of them will go out of business, or get into importing, or transfer their production to the U.S."

"What we see happening," he said, "is continuing high unemployment because there isn't going to be any recovery in manufacturing."

Angola Faces Chaos

The Guardian (U.K.)

The country which should have been the main beneficiary of Portugal's decision to quit Africa is now on the point of civil war, if the war has not already begun. Angola is potentially a rich country. It is due to become independent in November, 14 years after the war of liberation began. But as the prospect of independence draws closer the military nationalist movements are contesting the prize even more fiercely.

. . . Only two ways of preventing a worse slide into fratricide now seem possible. One is to postpone the date of independence long enough to allow an election to be held under Portuguese or international supervision. The other way is for the three leaders to make another attempt to agree, even, in the worst possible case if their agreement involves their accepting "spheres of influence' in Angola.

Insurance Bureau Reveals Cost of Car Repairs is Outstripping Inflation

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

If you are driving far this summer, here's an extra reason to keep out of trouble.

The cost of car repairs is rising much more rapidly than the over-all inflation rate.

The increase was 13 per cent in the first half of this year, and 27 per cent since the beginning of last year, according to a study prepared for the Insurance Bureau of Canada, (IBC).

Since January, 1974, costs of parts have increased 32 per cent, while labor costs have gone up 3 per cent.

Costs of other services—towing, replacing glass, straightening frames and so on—are up an average of 15 per cent over the past 18 months.

The IBC points out that these comparisons are based on costs in Toronto, where body-repair shops' hourly labor charge is $14 or less. That's one of the lowest rates in Canada, although it's double the going rate of just six years ago.

In Thunder Bay, the charge-out rate for body-shop labor recently rose to $20 an hour, and in British Columbia it goes as high as $22.50.

The IBC survey showed that the worst part of the increase in labor costs occurred in 1974, with a rise of 29 per cent. According to the survey, those costs went up only another 1.3 per cent between January and July of this year.

The opposite is the case in repair parts. Their prices remained fairly stable throughout 1974, but jumped 28 per cent in first-half 1975.

In making the survey available, the IBC is no doubt seeking to justify the continuing substantial increases in auto-insurance premiums.

But the figures also help to alert car-owners to the necessity of shopping carefully for car repairs.

The car-service industry is chronically short of competent mechanics—a shortage that extends to a great many other industries, from typewriters to tape recorders.

If you have a reliable garage and mechanic, you're lucky. Don't switch.

But if you have to look for a new one without the benefit of advice of friends or neighbors—as, for example, when you are away from home—you may feel it's a jungle.

There are reputable repair people, however, and here are a few techniques that might help you find a place that will do a proper job at a reasonable price:

—It's usually a good sign if there are customers' trucks at a service shop. Truck-owners know where to go for quality work.

—If your car needs body work and you are getting estimates, make sure that the interior of the car is untidy and that you don't wear your best clothes. It's sad but true that many dealers charge as much as the traffic will bear.

—If the shop, on the other hand, is reasonably tidy, it's probably an efficient operation.

—Ask for estimates, and be on guard if they vary widely. You are entitled to ask how the estimate was arrived at, and to see the shop's flat-rate manual.

—Consult your own instincts about a repair shop. If you feel that you are being taken for a sucker, then perhaps you are—or perhaps the shop just can't be bothered communicating with its customers.

It doesn't help to approach a garage with a chip on your shoulder. Plenty of garages—including some disorganized and uncommunicative ones—will try to solve your car's problem reasonably.

Others, unfortunately, may be inefficient, dishonest or both. At today's prices for service, the carowner must shop more carefully than ever.

Gandhi Bars Court Action

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government pushed through sweeping constitutional amendments today curtailing the right of the courts to pass judgment on her emergency decrees.

The amendments in effect removed her legal problems—conviction on electoral abuses charges—from Supreme Court review and gave her power to maintain emergency rule indefinitely, including police power to arrest political dissidents without trial.

The amendments marked a new departure in consolidating Mrs. Gandhi's authoritarian rule. They also represented the first substantial changes in the parliamentary democracy willed to India by its former British colonial masters.

Under the amendments, Indian courts will no longer have power to hear cases brought by persons arrested under the June 26 emergency crackdown.

Mrs. Gandhi had suspended the right to appeal such arrests to the court. Her amendment now removes this right from the constitution, giving her permanent power to make arrests without court review.

Some 12,000 persons have been arrested under her emergency rule in the last six weeks, according to conservative estimates. Other reports place the figure much higher.

The amendments, introduced by Law Minister H. R. Gokhale to table-thumping approval from benches of the ruling Congress party, also have the effect of barring court review of changes in the Indian electoral code passed earlier this week to make retroactive changes in the laws under which Mrs. Gandhi was convicted June 12.

The 57-year-old prime minister thus is protected from an adverse judgment in her Supreme Court appeal from two sides: she has had the law rewritten to remove the offenses of which she was convicted and she has had the constitution changed to render the Supreme Court powerless to rule on her case.

Carolina Charge Reduced

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) Joan Little's chief lawyer says reduction of the charge against the 21-year-old black woman accused of killing a white jailer indicates the state's case against her has been weak.

And lawyer Jerry Paul also held out the possibility on Wednesday, after the prosecution rested its case, that the defence would offer no evidence in the trial.

The state brought 18 witnesses to the stand during eight days of testimony.

Miss Little is accused of killing 62-year-old Clarence Alligood during an escape from the Beaufort County jail at Washington, N.C., last Aug. 27. She claims Alligood was trying to attack her sexually, that she stabbed him with an ice pick in self-defence and then fled the jail in fear of her life.

Judge Hamilton Hobgood reduced the charge against Miss Little to second-degree murder from first-degree murder Wednesday, then denied a defence motion for non-suit on all charges.

The reduction of the charge means Miss Little no longer faces the gas chamber if convicted. A first-degree murder conviction would have meant a mandatory death penalty. The maximum penalty for second-degree murder is life imprisonment.

William Griffin, Beaufort County district attorney, the chief prosecutor, blamed widespread publicity about the case for reduction of the charge.

In arguments to dismiss all charges, defence lawyer Marvin Miller said the state failed to prove the cause of death or who caused the death if it was unlawful. He said the state had not presented evidence to show the death was not justifiable.

Meanwhile, Morris Dees dropped a federal suit asking for reinstatement as a defence lawyer for Miss Little. Dees took the action as a Raleigh prosecutor agreed to drop a charge that Dees attempted to get a prosecution witness to commit perjury.

B.C. Forest Industry Waits Judge's Report

VANCOUVER (CP) The bell sounds Tuesday for the next round in a forest industry dispute that may determine whether the British Columbia economy will receive a staggering body blow or if the protagonists will continue sparring to a decision.

Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court is to bring down his non-binding recommendations on the dispute after being appointed special mediator by the government a month ago.

While the labor situation has slowly deteriorated, it is difficult to gauge the success of Mr. Justice Hutcheon's mediation efforts.

The latest jabs in the dispute came Tuesday from Art Gruntman, western vice-president of the Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU), who said he does not share the optimism of other forest union leaders that progress is being made.

"The forest companies still have the same hard-nosed attitude they've had since June," said Mr. Gruntman, whose union, along with the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers (PPWC), rejected a plea by Labor Minister Bill King to keep working during Mr. Justice Hutcheon's appointment.

Reg Ginn, president of the PPWC, and Jack Munro, western regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), had earlier expressed optimism about the mediation effort.

The 12,700 pulp workers have closed all 20 paper mills in B.C. since July 16. Ten mills had been closed before the strike deadline six due to strikes, three by scheduled maintenance and one by a strike-lockout dispute.

So far, the effects of the strike have been minimal, although closure of the pulp mills has resulted in layoffs for about 15,000 IWA members. PPWC members Wednesday expanded their picketing of Vancouver Island forest operations employing IWA members.

Many of the closures have been expected as the pulp companies announced planned shutdowns before the strike to run down massive inventories which built up because of soft markets.

While the pulp mills are not expected to suffer for about a month, lumber companies are starting to feel the pinch as the market for wood chips is cut off. A strike now would come just as the lumber markets are showing tentative signs of recovery.

Mr. King has said the government will not accept a closure of B.C.'s major industry which would result if the pulp and woodworker unions struck together for the first time.

A strike would be "tantamount to a general strike" which could bring the provincial economy to its knees, the minister said.

The unions began saying that only government intervention could avoid a total shutdown after the industry made its offer: continuation of a cos-otf-living clause that provided increases totalling 24 cents an hour during the last year.

The 30,000 coast IWA members and 7,000 more in the southern interior of the province want a one-year contract with an increase of $1 an hour on a salary scale that ranges from a base rate of $5.10 an hour to $7.50 for top tradesmen.

The pulp unions want an increase of $1.50 an hour on the same base rate. Their contracts expired June 30, the same date as that of the IWA in the southern interior. The coast IWA contract expired June 15.

FBI Questions O'Brien

Hoffa's Son Demands Foster Son Take Test

DETROIT (AP) Jimmy Hoffa's son says he believes Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, knows what happened to the ex-Teamsters union president. He demands that O'Brien take a lie detector test.

O'Brien, the 41-year-old union organizer raised by Hoffa from the age of three, said he had no knowledge of Hoffa's whereabouts. He talked with James Hoffa, Hoffa's son, who demanded O'Brien take a polygraph examination.

"He hemmed and he hawed and he said he would have to consult his attorney," the younger Hoffa said. "I construed that to be a refusal."

O'Brien emerged Wednesday from several days of seclusion and was interviewed by the FBI for 3½ hours. He is expected to be questioned again as the FBI continues its probe into the disappearance of Hoffa last Wednesday.

"I think he has knowledge of what happened," James Hoffa, a Detroit lawyer, told The Associated Press Wednesday night." He said O'Brien's FBI interview generated "some interesting leads.

O'Brien would not comment. James Burdick, O'Brien's lawyer, told The AP that O'Brien was not involved in Hoffa's disappearance.

Jimmie Hoffa called home last Wednesday to say Detroit Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone hadn't shown up for a luncheon date. The 62-year-old former labor leader hasn't been heard from since. Giacalone denies he had planned to meet Hoffa, a longtime friend.

O'Brien provided corroboration of Giacalone's story that he was at a Southfield athletic club at the time of the luncheon meeting.

Friends say Hoffa said the meeting also was to include former Teamsters vice-president Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano and a Detroit labor figure, Leonard Schultz. Both denied the appointment.

The Hoffa family has received no ransom demands, but believes Hoffa was kidnapped. The FBI said it is operating under the assumption he still is alive.

Hoffa's lawyer, Leonard Boudin of New York, said he thinks Hoffa was kidnapped by opponents who feared he would win a key court case, opening the way for a challenge of current Teamsters leaders.

It was speculated immediately after it was learned Hoffa was missing that his opponents decided to get rid of him so he could not run against incumbent Frank Fitzsimmons for the Teamsters general presidency.

The case involves Hoffa's appeal of a clemency order issued by then President Richard Nixon releasing Hoffa after he served 4½ years of a 13-year sentence for mail fraud and jury tampering.

American Bar Association Holding Parley at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian lawyers are preparing to meet their United States counterparts, hoping to find some common basis for discussion during the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

More than 6,000 delegates are expected here for the convention, among them four U.S. Supreme Court associate justices and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Among Canadians, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, and some of the best minds at the country's law faculties are expected to attend.

Except for a few cases where work is cut out for them—there is, for example, a programmed panel discussion on foreign investment in Canada and another on securities problems as they relate to United States and Canadian business transactions—lawyers here are asking what the terms of reference will be in bilateral contacts.

The ABA has organized a series of joint sessions given over to its "Canadian brethren."

Panel discussions include a comparative look at problems in legal education, running concurrently with a panel discussion on legal planning for the arctic gas pipeline.

Sitting on the academic panel are the deans of the law schools at Laval University, Quebec City; York University's Osgoode Hall, Toronto; the University of Victoria; Montreal's McGill University and Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Participants in the arctic energy discussion are Vancouver lawyer D. M. M. Goldie, Pierre Genest, a Toronto lawyer, and W. W. Brackett, vice-chairman of the Alaskan Arctic Gas Study Co.

G. E. Creber, the Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd. vice-president and general counsel, is to act as moderator.

Helen LeBel, vice-chairman of the Labor Relations Board, is to act as moderator at another seminar on strikes in the public sector—the Canadian view.

Perhaps He Arranged To Vanish

DETROIT (Reuter) Former Teamsters union president Jimmy Hoffa may have arranged his own disappearance last Wednesday to avoid testifying before a federal grand jury, a U.S. justice department official said Wednesday.

"We may have another Joe Bonanno case here," the official said.

In New York City on October 21, 1964, Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno was reported kidnapped by armed men, shortly before he was to appear before a federal grand jury investigating racketeering.

Bonanno, then 57, said to be chief of an organized crime gang, showed up to testify 19 months after his "kidnapping."

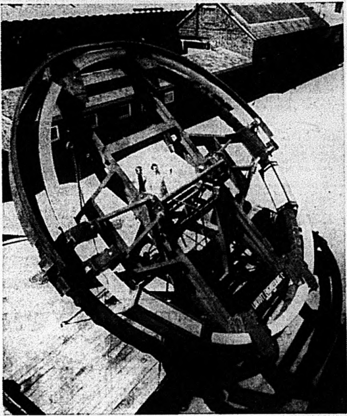
Hoffa was called before a federal grand jury investigating irregularities in the handling of funds by a Teamsters local in Detroit. He refused to answer most questions.

Investigators speculate he may have been involved in Hoffa's disappearance—perhaps with Hoffa's co-operation and had returned the car to the parking lot early Thursday.

Festival Success

OTTAWA (CP) More than 44,500 ticket-buyers attended shows at the National Arts Centre during its July Midsummer Music Festival, with highest ratings going for opera and symphony concerts.

G. Hamilton Southam, director-general of the centre, said the fifth year of its July festivals has been its most successful, and opera and music are the keys to the success.



Energy of Future

A giant electro-magnet coil rests on a cradle ready for shipment from southern England to the Max-Planck-Institut fuer Plasma Physik in Munich, Germany. The coil, possibly, one of the largest ever made, will be used in research into controlled thermonuclear fusion, which has been described as the "big white hope" of electricity production for the 21st century. Nuclear fusion is a relatively clean way of producing energy and it can use sea-water as its basic fuel, making the supply of raw material for this type of energy practically inexhaustible. Anti-Communist Violence At Pre-insurrection Stage

LISBON (CP) — Anti-Communist violence in the north of Portugal has reached a state of pre-insurrection, military sources say.

The assessment was made privately by moderate members of the 30-man Military Revolutionary Council, which heads the country's ruling Armed Forces Movement.

After five days and nights of near-anarchy in the traditional conservative north, where demonstrators wrecked Communist offices and apartments in a wave of looting and burning, tension relaxed somewhat today as no new clashes were reported.

However, 140 marines, with a left-wing reputation, have been sent north to help curb the trouble. And the Copcon military security force has ordered all units to repress firmly any fresh disorders.

About 5,000 leftists demonstrated outside the Oporto military headquarters Wednesday night, protesting the violence. The pro-communist military commander, Brig. Eurico Corvacho, told them he was sure the underprivileged classes would sacrifice their lives if necessary to protect the revolution.

But the turnout for that demonstration was far less than the last major rally in Oporto—held by the socialists just after they pulled out of the government last month.

Then 80,000 persons packed a football stadium to hear party leaders condemn the increasing influence of the Communists.

Picket Signs

Picket signs crowd the fence surrounding an asbestos mill at Thetford Mines, Que., after mines and mills were shut down following a strike by 3,500 workers on March 18. The strike has tied up 60 per cent of Quebec's asbestos production, valued at more than $250 million in 1974. (CP Photo)

Thetford Mines Air Clean As Strike Keeps Mines Idle

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — The air in Thetford Mines has rarely been cleaner.

The dust-spewing asbestos mills and open-pit mines have been shut down since March 18 by a strike of 3,500 workers and indications are the conflict may go on much longer.

Although the mines and mills are the lifeblood of this community of 22,000, the economic hardship brought on by the strike is taken in stride.

Housewives no longer need to dust daily to keep the furniture polished and the clothes on the line are drying cleaner than they did only last summer.

The awesome craters that form a half-circle around the town are silent and the mountains of greyish waste standing in naked contrast between them have stopped growing.

"Tourists stop here to eat on their way to Quebec City and they quickly leave," says the owner of the Plaza restaurant.

"They look at the waste and wonder how anyone can live here."

But the mining tradition here is strong and the clean air the men on the picket lines are savoring has symbolic overtones.

Although health conditions in the mines have improved over the years the strikers cannot overlook the vicious circle that dominated their lives only a short time ago.

In order to make a living a man had to work in the mines and mills—at the risk of contracting fatal lung disease. However, he didn't dare go to a doctor because if the condition was confirmed he would lose his job and be unable to support his family.

Until only a few years ago, doctors in company-operated clinics did not recognize asbestosis, an often-fatal lung condition caused by the dust the men breathe every day.

For years the government and the companies played down the health risks, even though a miner who has spent 25 years exposed to asbestos dust now is deemed fortunate not to be spitting blood every morning he wakes up.

But a joint study by the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) and Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York released before the strike shocked even the miners.

A medical team headed by Dr. Irving Selikoff determined that of 1,200 Quebec asbestos miners with 20 or more years of experience, 61 per cent showed lung abnormalities.

The study also revealed that dust levels in Thetford's mines and mills were 10 to 25 times higher than permissible levels in the United States and Britain.

But since the strike began last spring the provincial government has legislated better working conditions.

Companies have three years to meet new air-quality standards that set the maximum level at five fibres of asbestos per cubic centimetre of air in working areas. Although the new Ontario standard is two fibres, union leaders welcomed the new levels and urged the government to match Ontario in the long-term.

What the strikers describe as their most satisfying victory was scored in the Quebec national assembly in late June when a compensation formula for asbestosis victims was approved.

Under the plan, a worker who has contracted asbestosis will receive a lump-sum indemnity and a pension equivalent to 90 per cent of his take-home pay until retirement age.

"We don't know how much it's going to cost us, but we know it'll be expensive," a spokesman for one of the strike-bound companies said in an interview.

"However, we don't think there are as many cases of asbestosis as the unions claim."

Union sources estimate that between 500 and 800 men in Thetford are eligible for compensation.

Meanwhile, the struggle goes on for higher wages while ironically everyone involved goes deeper into debt.

The 2,500 CNTU members are getting strike pay of $30 and $50 a week respectively for single and married men while their 1,000 counterparts who are members of the United Steelworkers of America are getting $25 and $40.

Mortgage and car payments have been suspended by banks and finance companies for the duration of the strike but interest has been accruing.

A province-wide campaign to support the strikers has been launched. About $170,000 in cash has been collected while food and clothing valued at $25,000 has been donated.

Called Operation Second Breath, the campaign is being operated by a group called the Central Committee for the Support of the Strikers and includes union and non-union members.

At first most of the money came from other unions across the province, but lately the committee has operated "road tolls" and bank collections with much success.

To operate a road toll the organizers, with permission from local authorities, set up barricades on the highways around a town, often manning them with wives of miners. Motorists are stopped and asked to contribute to the strike fund.

The bank collections have been operated exclusively in nearby Asbestos, where workers at Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd., Quebec's largest asbestos producer, accepted a two-year agreement rejected by the Thetford unions.

The strikers contend that recent government legislation was inspired by the Thetford strike, and since the Johns-Manville employees also benefit, they have an obligation to support the strike financially.

Every Friday, the support committee is present at the local bank to ask for contributions from the Johns-Manville workers when they cash their pay cheques.

During the first two attempts $1,100 was collected on each occasion. The third time the workers in Asbestos contributed $1,500.

The Thetford economy has suffered from the strike but there are no signs that anyone is leaving town.

Asbestos Corp. Ltd., the largest strike-bound employer, alone spends $22 million annually on wages and another $18 million in contracts to local suppliers.

Department stores have cut their staffs to a minimum. One major chain store gave the unions a $100,000 interest-free credit to maintain its sales volume.

Grocery stores are offering bargain prices for staples and "solidarity specials" are in evidence everywhere.

Thetford Asbestos Workers Are Enduring Long Strike

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — The snow still was on the ground when the 3,500 asbestos workers in Thetford Mines went out on strike last spring. Now the townspeople wonder whether the seasons will complete a full cycle before the conflict is resolved.

Negotiations have been at a standstill. Choosing not to make a counter-offer to the latest company proposal, union leaders have profited from the impasse to go away on holidays.

It may be an indication of the long-term prospects that a local poultry distributor has already promised to donate 20 turkeys to the strikers next Christmas if they are not back at work.

The walkout has temporarily halted the cancerous open-pit mining process that has deformed the scenic Eastern Townships landscape with yawning craters and man-made mountains of waste.

And the men who work the mines and mills have had time to bask in the sun and contemplate the hazards of an occupation notorious for ruining a man's health.

"We can no longer go on risking our lives to make a living," says the banner on a union strike pamphlet.

The stalemate has also tied up 60 per cent of Quebec's asbestos production, valued at more than $250 million in 1974. Before the strike the province was the largest world producer of raw asbestos, accounting for about 35 per cent of output.

Twenty-six years ago Quebec's asbestos workers walked out in mid-winter in a bitter and violent strike. It took a bloody thrashing at the hands of provincial police and strong-arm men to force them back to work.

Along the picket lines the general feeling is that this time around they can win a substantial wage settlement.

"We won't crawl back like last time," said a slight, pale man who lived through the 1949 ordeal.

A burly young man in his early 20s quickly added: "This time we're prepared to wait as long as the companies to get a just settlement."

About 2,500 of the men belong to the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) and the other 1,000 are members of the United Steelworkers of America.

Although the Steelworkers are affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor, a bitter rival of the CNTU, the two federations have cast aside their differences to wage batle against the multinational corporations who operate the mines and mills.

When Quebec's asbestos workers walked out 26 years ago, the late Premier Maurice Duplessis used the strike as a test of will between the government and an infant union movement.

Unions were seen then as an impediment to industrialization and the government wanted to encourage potential investors. Non - union workers were brought in to continue production.

The men on the picket lines suddenly found themselves defending unionism. A historic struggle unfolded, with the Roman Catholic church supporting the strikers morally and financially.

But force won out. In mid-May, 1949, a mixed squad of provincial police and company-hired strong-arm men moved in and literally beat the strikers into submission.

A few days later the men returned to work after nearly five months on strike with little to show for their efforts.

However, their resistance served as an example to other workers and gave a new impetus to unionism in Quebec.

During the next decade, asbestos workers gained wage settlements which left them among the highest-paid miners in Canada.

That is no longer the case. The unions contend that asbestos workers dropped from third to 68th position on the list of Canadian industrial wage earners by the end of their last contract. The basic rate when the strike began last March 18 was $3.73 an hour and the average annual earnings stood at $9,000.

Unlike 1949, the workers in Thetford are mainly fighting alone this time.

In nearby Asbestos, 40 miles away, the 2,200 employees of Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Johns-Manville orp. of Denver, Colo., agreed to terms before the Thetford strike began.

In 1949, the workers at brunt of the beating.

As long as anyone can remember, the multinationals who own the rich asbestos deposits have taken turns hammering out agreements with individual unions. The first settlement becomes the pattern for the rest of the industry.

The Johns-Manville employees, members of the Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques (SD), accepted a $1.09-an-hour increase over two years, most of it in the first year. The basic hourly rate in the second year will be $4.82.

They also received an $800 lump-sum payment for loss of purchasing power during their last contract.

The Thetford workers rejected a similar contract with a 97-per-cent majority despite the precedent set two days earlier by their counterparts at Johns-Manville, Quebec's largest asbestos producer.

We don't have to follow the pattern set by Johns-Manville," said J. G. Mooney, chief negotiator for Asbestos Corp Ltd., a subsidiary of General Dynamics Corp. of New York and the largest employer affected by the strike.

"We're waiting for a realistic counter-proposal and a sincere attempt at negotiation."

Mr. Mooney said the union demand for a $2.95-an-hour increase over two years is high and the company still is waiting for a reply to a wage package it offered May 21.

Asbestos Corp. initially tested its employees with an offer of 87 cents over two years, a proposal which created much bitterness among the CNTU and the Steelworkers.

But the May 21 offer of a 44-per-cent increase in a three-year contract has not tempted the CNTU either.

Under the proposal, the basic rate would rise to $4.84 hourly in January, 1976, only a shade better than what the CSD got without going on strike and without the $800 cash settlement.

However, the offer would give the Thetford workers a $5.33 minimum and $6.73 maximum on June 1, 1977.

The smaller companies involved in the negotiations insist they cannot exceed the settlement at Johns-Manville for purely economic reasons.

But the men in Thetford are determined to buck the pattern agreement.

"We've been ready for this strike for over a year," Yvon Parent, a member of the Steelworkers strike committee, said in an interview.

"We'll show the guys in Asbestos we can do better than they did."

Since the conflict began, the unions have not budged on monetary demands.

"If we do anything we'll increase our wage demands," said Mr. Parent.

Auto Exhaust Fumes Blamed for Crashes

LONDON (Reuter) — Exhaust fumes in stop-go traffic jams may do more than just give you a headache—they may well be the cause of some car crashes.

It now is suspected that the foul-smelling smoke belching from cars may slow down a driver's co-ordination by just enough to make a difference when he needs it most.

It's only a theory at the moment, but experts are worried enough to have started tests of drivers' reactions in a sort of gas chamber at the government's transport and road research laobratory.

The findings, if confirmed, will give extra ammunition to lobbyists on both sides of the Atlantic pressing for cleaner exhaust standards, and to those who want to bar cars altogether from the inner cities.

The chances are, the experts argue, that you will not know how badly you're affected unless you're confronted with a "stress situation," such as an imminent crash. And then it may be too late.

In the same way, a person can drive along with three times the permitted level of alcohol in his blood and feel perfectly in control, night after night, until a tire blows and the reactions are too slow. Supporting the theory are two facts.

—When you breathe even a small amount of exhaust fume, it upsets the body in a way that is similar to depriving it of oxygen.

—And tests on airline pilots have shown that oxygen starvation needs to be only slight to cause a significant drop in ability to learn unfamiliar tasks, the experts say.

The danger is that a car driver may have the same problem when suddenly called upon to perform an unfamiliar task such as avoiding a pedestrian.

What puts exhaust fumes in the same category as oxygen starvation is that carbon monoxide in the emissions interferes with the body's mechanism for transporting vital oxygen from the lungs to the various organs.

As a result, driving a car thdough London's congested streets can have the same effect on the body's system as flying without pressure at 4,000-feet where the oxygen is slightly less than at ground level.

The researchers at the laboratory stress that this is no problem under normal conditions and the tests will establish whether the risks for drivers increase under stress.

A more insidious type of pollution from traffic, especially heavy vehicles, is noise. The din from cars and trucks has already made life miserable for eight million Britons living near busy roads, according to a recent government survey.

If nothing is done, the numbers subjected to these unacceptable noise levels would incdease to 29 million within five years.

In an attempt to stop things deteriorating to this level, researchers at the transport laboratory have taken some heavy trailer trucks and succeeded in halving their noise by existing technology.

They did not put in silencers and extra insulation, as the idea was to cut the din at source. By determining, for example, that a specific noise was caused by the vibration of a certain component, it was possible to quiet it by repositioning the part.

The laboratory hopes that these techniques will be adopted by car and truck makers.

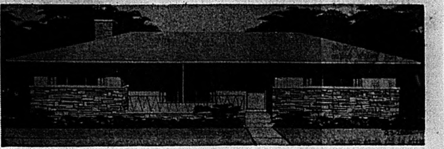
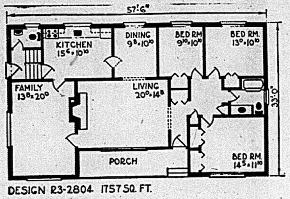
Home Of The Week





DESIGN R3-2804 1757 SQ. FT.

A split level rear entrance that provides easy access to the basement family room and powder room, is only one of several interesting features in the home illustrated above.

No garage is shown but, if lot size permits, any builder could extend the house to the left to include a one-or-two-car garage. This could be made the full depth of the house to provide very generous storage space or perhaps about 23 feet deep with a proch or covered patio behind it.

The main portion of the house is designed with a minimum of hall space but access is still easy to all bedrooms.

The fireplace shows in the living room but it could just as well be built to face the family room or could be double sided to serve both rooms.

The recessed entrance and wide covered porch are attractive features.

The design shows brick veneer with vertical siding accents on the front and the other three sides are in brick veneer. The design is suited to any type of heating and the basic rectangular floor plan should allow it to be built for a minimum cost per square foot.

Plans for Design R3-2804 cost $35 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail. New second editions of two books, "Home Designs for Canadians" are available at Home Planning 40 Jarvis St. Toronto for $1.50 each or by mail. Book one presents 95 designs for homes up to 1,600 square feet for one storey and split level, 1,850 square feet for one and one half and two storey. Book two shows 91 larger homes. Elderly Students Enjoying Courses

CALGARY (CP) — George Prieur is enjoying university even more than when he took his first degree more than 30 years ago—and he doesn't miss a lecture.

Dr. Prieur is one of five elderly students taking advantage of University of Calgary's free tuition policy for seniors which started in January.

He already has a medical degree, but after a lifetime of reading scientific materials he is ready to indulge his other passion—history.

"I think senior citizens should make good students," he said, "since they're going for enjoyment, not because they have to. And there's no pressure."

University officials have no figures but they think quite a few over-65 citizens are taking courses and paying for them, possibly because they don't know of the fee waiver or they feel they should pay their own way.

"I think a lot of senior citizens would probably be interested but they don't know about it," said Dr. Prieur.

Phyllis Lindell, 65, said students and faculty accept seniors well. However, she gets exasperated trying to explain why she is taking children's creative drama when she has no intention of returning to teaching.

"I don't know why university people can't understand why you shouldn't be opening your mind to the future and keep growing," she said.

Wouldn't You Weep Buckets If We Had a Tearatorium?

There's nothing like a good cry to clear the clogged drains of the mind.

Tears relieve tension — like the bursting of a floodgate, like the thunderstorm ending a humid spell — and you can't help but feel better afterwards.

If you've had a Good cry, that is (the kind where you sob full-steam ahead without inhibition). And unfortunately for human health and happiness, that doesn't happen very often.

There are really very few acceptable opportunities for adults to shed tears. We seldom cry in front of each other, and when we do there's alarm and embarrassment all round.

Men are compelled by custom to quell their quivering chins at the first sign of tears. And women, too, suffer society's ban on weepers — mascara-streaked cheeks are in the same class as halitosis.

Now I'm not going to argue that we should cry in public. But I do believe we'd be better off if we expended tears regularly — and I mean something more high-powered than sniffling at the end of "The Waltons" ~~every week~~.

What we need is a special place to cry. Why not?

We have amusement arcades, surely we deserve to have their equivalent; a local Tearatorium.

A Tearatorium would seve body and spirit in much the same way as the steam bath, the handball court, the movie house or the beer parlor, by offering relief of pressure in an easily accessible way.

A Tearatorium would be a depressingly grey building, where fountains of salty water would drip sadly in the gloom. When you first entered, you'd be interviewed by a mournful lady dressed in hankies, who'd make notes of all those things that make you feel like crying — reading romantic poetry, peeling onions, stubbing toes, losing arguments, thinking about death, or debts, or doubts.

Your information would be fed into computers that would arrange it into categories of quality and quantity — the snivel, the sob, the weep, the wail, the hysterical hiccup and the full-scale misery.

Once every week or two, when you needed a tearful time, you'd book into the Tearatorium for a half-hour session Escorted by a cheerless guide, you'd be led through corridors of the Vale of Tears into your private cry-room equipped with fluffy pillows for howling into.

Depending on what kind of cry you felt like, into the room would be projected the sounds, sights or smells guaranteed to procuce the desired response. One day perhaps the death scene from "Love Story". — on another, the voice of your husband rasping, 'Turn left! Your signal, turn on the signal! The brake, the brake!" — or perhaps the sight of your grade school report card covered with low marks and chiding comments — or the favorite song of the lover who jilted you years ago — or the news that your house has burned down.

After this bombardment with surefire tearjerkers, you'd go ahead and cry in your private, soundproof chamber. No friend or family to interrupt to ask if you're "okay", to try to make you feel better, to peer in the door nervously every three minutes so that you have to pull yourself together far before you're ready. At the Tearatorium you'd get a Good cry for your money.

Not only that, but you'd exit through a cooling-off centre where ice water would be applied to puffy eyes and swollen red nose, until you'd look as if you'd never dropped a single tear.

Doesn't it sound glorious? It just makes me want to weep that a town this size doesn't have a Tearatorium.

Do you think city council could be persuaded?

Coffee Cost Not Up Yet

News last week brought word that this year's coffee crop failure in Brazil may cause a severe price increase The response by Belleville shoppers has been predictable, and in the words of Mike Amodeo, manager of Amodeo's Super Save Market, "ridiculous."

Buyers at his store are purchasing six or seven jars of coffee at a time, he says, just the kind of panic buying that raises prices even higher.

"There are stockpiles of coffee in Brazil, "he says, "so that this failed crop won't affect us now anyway. If people would go to the trouble to learn all the facts, they wouldn't scare so easily.

"And if people would learn to drink just half a cup, instead of downing two cups 'now, while they can', it would keep the market more stable. The price has got to go up if a product starts to sell twice as fast."

Mike Flesch, on the floor at Loblaw's, says that another reason that shoppers are foolish to stockpile their own ground coffee is that bags only have a shelf life of approximately six months. He explained further that some brand supplies are low because of a strike at General Foods ,that has nothing to do with the future coffee situation.

Marg Hamilton at the Sidney Inn, and Bill Marcenko, of Bill and Erma's Grocery, both state that their shelves have not been hit by over-eager buyers yet. Most smaller, independent stores in Belleville still have plenty of coffee in stock, and like the large chain stores will not be raising prices until they are forced to pay more themselves for future shipments.

Outside the city, however, at the Foxboro Grocery, owner Carl Madden has found that his coffee — both instant and ground — is dwindling. "And the problem is that the shelves at the wholesaler's are even more bare than mine," he says. "At this point our prices are steady but we're not sure what they'll be when new shipments come in.

Mike Amodeo reckons that at his store it will be at least a couple of weeks before there's a price increase on some brands, and as much as six weeks on others. He suggests that buyers try lesser-known brands — "just as good coffee if you make it properly," he says.

Coffee, particularly ground coffee, is getting tough to get your hands on. That, at Least, was Julian Brown's reaction when he reached into Loblaw's coffee shelves. With him is his grandmother, Phyllis Brown. A spokesman for the store said supplies are expected soon and that prices would not go up until the store receives head office notification.

Ann Landers

Acupuncture for Arthritis?

Dear Ann Landers: My sister has a bad case of arthritis. She suffers a lot and has tried everything from cortisone to gold shots.

A friend of hers who also has arthritis told her she obtained wonderful results from acupuncture. Please tell me, does it work or not?—Wannahelp

Dear Wanna: I'm no doctor but here is what Drs. Mary E. Moore and Stephen Burke of Temple University School of Medicine in Philadelphia said at the June meeting of the Arthritis Foundation.

"In our controlled studies we could find no evidence that acupuncture helps arthritis."

Because of the severe and unrelenting pain, however, arthritis victims are willing to try anything. Most authorities believe that patients who insist they've been helped are hypnotic-suggestible types who want so desperately to get relief that they psych themselves out. Most of them discover after a while that the relief was temporary. They then go back to the conventional treatment which is safer and cheaper.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18-years-old and engaged to a wonderful man of 20. We will be married next year. I love Tommy very much but I have many problems I can't deal with.

Last year I became pregnant. I wanted the baby but Tommy's father insisted on an abortion. To keep peace in the family I agreed. Later, I learned that my pregnancy was twins. I became very depressed and even considered suicide. Slowly I emerged from the depression but whenever I see a pregnant woman I hate her, even thoufh she's a stranger on a bus.

Now my sister-in-law is pregnant and I keep hoping she will lose the baby. How can I get over these ugly feelings? I will do whatever you say.—Death Wisher

Dear Friend: You need professional help. And before you say I'm copping out, please read the next letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago I wrote to you about a problem that was plaguing my life. You told me to get professional help. I figured that was your way of saying, "I don't know the answer."

As time went on, the problem became more severe. My marriage was deteriorating and I was getting all sorts of physical symptoms. I swallowed my prejudices six months ago and DID seek professional help. Thanks to God and my therapist, I am finding my way back.

I am writing to tell your readers what professional help is because I'm sure many of them think as I did, that it means paying a psychiatrist $50 and hour.

Your county mental health society can suggest counselling of high quality which is geared to your ability to pay. What's more, these people really care.

Through therapy I learned I was ashamed to admit I couldn't handle any problems that came my way. I also learned I was trying to block out everything that bothered me as if, by ignoring it, it would go away. So, even though I have 20 years of hang-ups to deal with, I'm thrilled to report I'm making it.

I owe you an apology. What's more, if I had listened to you four years ago I would have been that much further ahead.—Seen The Light

Dear Light: Thanks for turning yourself on. I hope you turn others on, too.

India's Communists Enlist Women

BOMBAY (CP) — India's Communists have launched a vigorous drive to enlist female support for their ideology during the current International Women's Year.

The pro-Moscow Communist Party of India (CPI) and the pro-Peking Communist Party-Marxist (CP-M) have deployed thousands of party workers all over India for propaganda work among women.

The campaign includes door-todoor visits to explain to housewives the position of women in the Soviet Union and China, conferences and seminars to highlight the special problems of Indian Women and peaceful demonstrations.

Hundreds of working women attended a CPI-sponsored two-day conference in Bangalore, capital of the southern state of Karnataka.

The speech delivered by Parvathi Krishnan, a prominent CPI MP, at the Bangalore conference is typical of the party line during International Women's Year.

Said Mrs. Krishnan: "It is no doubt a matter for pride to all of us women that a woman is the prime minister of our nation. But Mrs. Gandhi does not symbolize the status and condition of the women of India who are yet to achieve equality."

The veteran Communist politician then added: "On the other hand, Valentina Tereshkova, the Soviet Union's woman astronaut, is a real symbol of the equality that the political and economic sysem of that nation provides its women."

At a women's rally in Madras city, a CPI worker said: 'Women can achieve real equality only under communism. The Soviets have shown the way for women everywhere."

Interestingly, there is not much praise for what China has done for its women at the rallies organized by pro-Peking Communists. Nor are any references made to Chairman Mao. This is apparently because of the strained relations between New Delhi and Peking.

But leaders of the CP-M are also stressing the point that only under a Communist system will real women's emancipation be possible.

Indian Communists are also conducting 'political schools' for women during the International Women's Year.

One such school in Hyderabad, capital of Andhra State, was addressed by top leaders of the CPI including Rajeswara Rao, its secretary-general, and Rajaskhar Reddy, secretary of CPI national council.

"The CPI is the true champion of women's rights," the two Communist leaders told the participants.

Not unexpectedly, the two Communist groups often denounce each other at these meetings. At one CPI-sponsored women's conference in West Bengal state, the delegates were told about the 'sad plight' of Chinese women which was attributed to "Mao's failure to implement true Marxism."

Children Hurt by Divorce Need Special Counselling

EDMONTON (CP) — Children have long been the neglected victims of divorce cases.

"Too many people are overlooking the fact that these children are going through traumas," says Harry Lutgen, senior counsellor with a project aimed at helping these children.

"The child has lost an important part of his everyday life when his parents divorce," he said in an interview.

Three years ago an Alberta judge, Marjorie Bowker of the provincial family court, spearheaded local concern for children of divorced parents by initiating an in-court counselling project.

The only project of its kind, the Edmonton Family Court Conciliation Project is funded by a three-year grant from the department of national health and welfare.

Couples seeking divorce are given on-the-spot counselling to see whether the marriage can be salvaged and, if not, to guide the couple through the divorce and towards a healthy parent relationship with their children afterwards.

Divorces in Edmonton, capital of the province with the highest divorce rate, is more than 2,000 a year.

With undisputed divorces being dispatched at an assembly-line rate of one every seven to 10 minutes in the Supreme Court Building, no time was being taken to consider the children being displaced in the process.

Project director Judge Bowker has expressed confidence the provincial court system will take over the project when the federal grant runs out.

"We have proved that judges and lawyers do use it and with very beneficial results both for couples who divorce and the ones who stay married."

Even if you just want to browse and see some exciting new ideas in bathroom decor, be sure to stop into Decor Studios. Lovely designs in shower curtains with matching window curtains can be coordinated with toilet seats, bowl and pitcher sets, tumblers, soap dishes and toothbrush holders. Compliment the room with your choice of ceramic tile and an appropriate floor covering of either cushion floor or carpeting. Choose a wall paper to give your room the finishing touch. You'll be thrilled with the great new ideas at Decor Studios.

Enjoy An Evening At The Four Seasons

The Four Seasons Hotel is announcing their third lobster night on Wed., August 13th. The previous ones have been such a success that you'll want to make your reservations early, by calling 968-3411. Do it now so that you aren't disappointed. The fresh Maritime lobsters are one and a quarter pounds each and with it you get potato and salad. Try some of their specially priced, specially selected wines with your meal to give it just the right finishing touch. Visit the Terrace Bar sometime this week for the cocktail hour, from 6-8 p.m., and enjoy the fantastic folk guitar of Jacky Findlay as she vocalizes some of your favorite songs. Enjoy the good times at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Sorry For Any Inconvenience

The staff of Trenton Optical would like to apologize for the mess around their building at the present time. They are in the midst of a major "sprucing-up" and in another two or three weeks their premises will again be presentable. All the old paint is being removed from the brick with paint removers and sand-blasting. Their sign has been taken down but if you're looking for them, they're at 54 Bridge St. E., right across from the Intelligencer building. Don't forget to check Trenton Optical for all your optic needs. Renovations or not, you'll get the same friendly, expert service and always at reasonable prices.

Great Carpet Buys

Wray's Home Furnishers are having their annual August carpet clearance. Now is the time to purchase the carpeting you've been meaning to buy. You will find tremendous savings in all types of carpeting, ranging in price from $4.95 to $19.95 a sq. yd. And to add to your savings, during the carpet sale there is also a special price on the installation of your new carpet. Highly trained and competent workmen will install your new carpeting professionally. So, make your choice from short shags, hard twists, sculptured and carved carpets, colorful tweeds, printed designs and velvets. You won't realize what a great selection they have in carpeting until you visit Wray's at 306 Front St.

It's Time To Stay Cool

Ruddy Electric Consumer Division still have a few air conditioners left in stock. If you've been left limp and tired from the stifling heat wave, you'll be ecstatic over owning your own air conditioner made and guaranteed by Canadian Westinghouse. You'd better make inquiries now though because many dealers are completely sold out and Ruddy Electric, 291 Coleman St., have just a few models left at 6000 B.T.U. and 8000 B.T.U. You will also be able to buy a Westinghouse dehumidifier which will make your home ever so much more liveable. A dehumidifier takes the excess moisture out of the air, and therefore you won't feel so damp and sticky. Inquire today before their supply is gone.

A Check-Up For A Friend

Here's news for your poor old neglected vacuum cleaner. For one week only, Gibbs and Son Vacuum Specialists, 37 Albion St., have a special price on vacuum check-ups. Now would be a good time for you to have your vacuum completely gone over by the vacuum experts so that it doesn't let you down sometime when you really need it. Their regular price is $9.95, but for this one week you can have it done for just $6.95. A complete overhaul on your sewing machine will be $9.95. There is a 30 day written warranty on all work. And for your added convenience, they have a free pick-up and delivery in the Belleville area. Phone today, 968-5384.

Don't Be Fuelish!

The best way for you to look after your furnace is to buy a Parts Replacement Plan from Moira-Schuster Fuels. This plan will only cost you $39.60 a year and covers the replacement of all parts of the oil burner and related controls. It also includes one furnace cleaning a year with the replacement of air filters and oil filter. And here's an important point. It includes 24 hour emergency service which can prove to be pretty costly if you don't have the plan. Remember a clean and well running furnace is saving you money as it burns less oil. You aren't just doing yourself a favor, but you're also during your country a favor. Don't be fuelish! Contact Moira-Schuster Fuels at 962-4504.

Take A New Car On Your Holiday

If you haven't had your holidays as yet and are worried about making a trip in your old car, consider buying a new or used car from Vader's Car Sales. With the price of gas being so high, you'll be pleased to own an economy car. Right now Vader's have a good selection of late model economy cars on their lot which are ready to drive away. Also for the holiday minded. They have a good selection of new Datsun station wagons and hatchbacks. Both vehicles are extremely versatile and have lots of room for baggage. So, make your dollars go further. Invest in an economy car that has "more spirit per gallon". See them at 21 College St. W., Belleville.

Vancouver Police Seeking Contacts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Are policemen becoming social workers? Deputy Chief Constable Ted Oliver of the Vancouver Police Department doesn't really know the answer, but he says police perform a lot of social service work.

Until recently, said Deputy Chief Oliver, the public viewed the police as "just faceless people driving by in a car."

"Thirty years ago, police knew the community and the people's problems. Police couldn't necessarily solve these problems, but they knew what they were.

"Then the city spread out, the population increased and we became a response service organization. We didn't get to know the people.

"We lost contact, withdrew from the public, and when people hated the establishment, we were the targets.

"We were developing policemen who were some kind of animal—who really didn't care for people—who were hidden away in corners, not talking, not understanding what the demonstrations were about."

It took a riot to change all that. In the summer of 1970 a peaceful gathering in Vancouver's Gastown area turned into a confrontation between policemen and pedestrians.

Located near the waterfront, Gastown is one of the oldest parts of Vancouver. It was destined to degenerate into little more than a slum until urban renewal restored its turn-of-the-century charm. It is a popular tourist spot with its many boutiques, but is also a high crime area with much hard-core drug dealing.

After the riot the need for a change in policemethodsw as change in police methods was fully realized. Crime had risen at the rate of 15 per cent a year, an increase of 79 per cent between 1962 and 1970.

"We figure that pre-crime contact with people is better than post-crime contact. We recognized that we had to ge out and talk to the people, find out what was going on and why," said Deputy Chief Oliver.

Superintendent Ted Herdman said investigation and prevention units were then set up, with orders to "go out and do prevention work."

"But we didn't know what (that kind of work) should ideally be, so we fell back on things we used to do 30 years ago, such as talking to people."

"We looked at in what areas people who commit crimes were living, starting with the juvenile level, because their addresses are more static.

"We weren't so concerned about getting people into jail as with keeping them out of jail."

hey keep in touch with social agencies because "we need input, identification of problems in the community and a common approach to those problems," said Superintendent Herdman.

Without local contacts, police services will cause friction in a community, he said.

Gastown social worker Tony Mears said his job has become "'a hell of a lot harder since I am no longer a policeman.

"'Police should not be social workers but they are more available. Social workers aren't available at night or in crisis situations. Police, because they are available, have to do social work. But police see themselves as a disciplinary body within the community."

But there are problems with mental patients and juveniles that police can not handle, said Mr. Mears.

Police must wait for people with mental problems to commit crimes so they can be charged and dealt with by the courts.

"'Closing down on institutions means that many of those who have been institutionalized—mental and juvenile cases—have gravitated to Skid Road and because the policeman is available he deals with such problems as best he can."

Charge Laid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Film director Sam Peckinpah has pleaded not guilty to a charge of battery for allegedly hitting an airline employee at Los Angeles International Airport.

Peckinpah, 53, a resident of Mexico City, entered the plea Tuesday and will go on trial here Aug. 26.

Peckinpah, director of such films as The Wild Bunch and Straw Dogs, was involved in an altercation last June 20 when he was asked to leave a Continental Airlines flight to Hawaii.

Police said Peckinpah became angry when the airline refused to take his luggage off the plane because it was too close to takeoff time.

He allegedly hit Steve Jackson, 28, a passenger service representative, who was treated at a hospital for cuts.

Epstein Planning Mammoth Fountain

TORONTO (CP) — Artist Max Epstein is building what he calls the "largest indoor kinetic fountain sculpture in the world."

He plans to put his $130,000 creation in a massive property development, projected over the next two years.

Max Epstein said the drawing board phase of his creation took 18 months. The fountain will be cast in clear plastic and assembled in Montreal.

"Suddenly, I'm a wanted commodity again," he said.

The artist's career has had its ups and downs.

Born on a ship in 1932, his parents were returning to what was Palestine from a visit to relatives in Russia.

When Hitler came to power, he decided to join the navy.

"I added five years to my age 12 by altering my birth certificate," said Mr. Epstein. "I volunteered for the British navy — and amazingly — was accepted."

After demobilization in 1946, he joined the coast guard in Palestine. Later he joined the underground movement that was smuggling Jewish refugees from Europe through the British blockade.

Wounded in an Arab raid, he was flown to Paris for an operation. There he joined the world of art.

"My artistic aptitude was only discovered through an Arab grenade," he said. "I'd never even considered art before, but almost immediately knew that was what I wanted to do with the rest of my life."

For two years he lived a Bohemian student life in Paris, supplementing a small allowance from a Jewish social agency by selling his paintings to American tourists.

"I'd sign my work with French names I found on wine bottles. Americans liked French names. After a sale, I'd live like a king for a week, but there were times when I was kept alive only by the kindness of an old lady who sold snacks from a pushcart."

His decision to emigrate to Canada in 1950 was made on medical advice—the cooler climate was better for his head wounds.

"Between 1967 and 1971, I had 10 one-man shows and shared in 12 others," he said.

But in 1971, business dabblings in a pet store left him deep in debt and the sheriff tried to seize paintings and sculpture he valued at $100,000.

"Rather than have my work sold like fish in a marketplace, I took an axe to them. One of the sheriff's men cried like a baby to see such destruction. I thought it was the end of the world."

Max Epstein decided to rebuild his career by piecing together some of the debris and make collages from them. He called the show Resurrection and inched himself back into art.

"Canada is my country," he said. Before I die, I want to put something back—buy a few acres near here and create a sculpture garden where persons will be free to visit. We need such things. We must justify our own existence."

Psychic Mysteries Studied

Written for CP
By PEGGY TRACY

Psychical research in Canada, including the creation of a ghost by committee, is cautiously but colorfully outlined by Dr. A. R. G. Owen in his newest book on the occult, Psychic Mysteries of Canada.

Dr. Owen, a lecturer in mathematics and genetics at Cambridge University until his arrival in Canada in 1970 has been investigating the paranormal for some 20 years.

He became interested in the Canadian psychic scene when he was invited to come to this country as executive director of the New Horizons Research Foundation. Since then, working with the foundation and the Toronto Society for Psychical Research, he has gathered a remarkable collection of psychic literature, and taken part in some unique experiments.

Starting with a history of the psychic beliefs of Canada's early Indians, the book includes section on poltergeistery—ghostly manifestations—extrasensory perception, reincarnation, healing, pyramid power, water divining and auras (tests on a toy panda named Hopewell seemed to prove that rim auras were an optical illusion).

Astral projection is also dealt with, as is an account of a visit with Uri Geller, the controversial Ihraeli psychic, when he was in Toronto in 1974.

Geller's pyschokinetic abilities, in fact, tied in with the work the society was then doing on its Philip project. In an attempt to investigate PK phenomena—movement of objects without physical contact or known physical forces—the group researched the legend of a 16th-century English ghost named Philip. After considerable endeavor they succeeded in receiving ghostly rappings on a table, over a period of time, presumably from Philip, and at one point the table turned upside down.

This experiment, together with others by Canadian physicians on measuring the effect of telepathic messages on the brain with electro-encephalogram techniques, Dr. Owen regards as major Canadian breakthroughs in man's ongoing study of the paranormal.

Early Days In Saddle Recalled

CALGARY (CP) — In 1906 Bud Cotton heeded the call to "go west, young man."

"I'd always been intrigued by horses and western stories," he recalls. "So I came out from Quebec to see the west myself. I've never regretted it."

H started out riding for Pat Burns, one of Alberta's big ranchers. Now, a slim white-haired man, his hobbies are wood-carving and writing stories about his long years in the saddle.

"Riding was work for us in those days," he said in an interview. "Sometimes we'd be on duty 24 hours a day, so you got pretty saddle-sore until you toughened up."

"I took part in the 1912 Stampede, riding bareback. There aren't many of the boys left who rode in that one. They were mostly real cowboys except for a Wild West show Guy Weadick brought in."

From 1913 to 1947 Bud rode herd on a buffalo reserve near Wainwright, Alta. The herd had to be kept down to about 8,000 head and since they multiplied quickly they had to be thinned degularly.

He is the only living man in the world to run a round-up crew for buffalo.

"We weeded out between 4,000 and 8,000 every fall," he said. "The meat was shippd across Canada and into the States. The hides went to Calgary, Elmonton, Winnipeg and Montreal for winter coats for Mounties and regular policemen. The heads were in great demand in the States for mounting."

Live buffalo were shipped all over the world and Bud would travel with them across the country.

"One time I had a shipment going to Dublin. When I got to the East Coast I found the boat was already loaded with a bunch of race horses heading for Ireland."

"Well, when he herded those buffalo on board, there was quite a ruckus. As soon as the horses smelled the buffalo they panicked and began kicking and snorting. That set the buffalo going. There was quite a turmoil, I'll tell you. But they all got across the ocean in one piece."

Bud began whittling to fill the hours of the long, cold winter. He has many pieces displayed and has won prizes at the Calgary Stampede for his work.

He also writes stories about his own experiences in the old west. His first story, One Spot, a yarn about an unusual buffalo, was published by Century magazine in 1970.

Bud now lives in Calgary.

Smoking Pot in Cold No Way to Grow Old

OTTAWA (CP) — Everyone knows drinking and driving seldom mix but research now indicates smoking cannabis and winter sports don't mix either.

The danger, warned Dr. Ian Henderson, chairman of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) committee on pharmacotherapy, is that cannabis seems to impair the body's ability to adapt to the cold.

"We know it affects the hypothalamus, a part of the brain which controls most of the body's glands and the shivering reflex as well," he said in an interview here Wednesday.

"Without shivering the body tends to take on the ambient temperature, the temperature around it, and this could have disastrous effects," he added.

One effect is hypothermia, excessive cooling of the body, which can lead to an irregular heart beat and death.

However, research so far has been done only on animals, not humans, and the results are not conclusive, Dr. Henderson said.

"Cannabis has traditionally been heavily used in hot countries like India and the effect of cold and cannabis on humans has not really been documented."

In experiments on cats, a

In experiments on cats, a dose of one to two milligrams per kilogram of delta 9 THC (the active chemical in cannabis) reduces body temperature by as much as six degrees Celsius.

"It's hard to give an exact equivalent of this dose for humans, but it's probably equal to smoking three good-sized joints, marijuana cigarettes, in quick succession."

People in the far north or people engaged in winter sports or sports where they are exposed to extreme cold—skiing, snowmobiling, skydiving or diving in cold water—should be careful, he warns.

'What happens if your snowmobile runs out of gas and you're stuck out someplace in the snow, unable to shiver to keep yourself warm?" he asked.

You've got to be realistic and admit that many young people have probably smoked cannabis and done these things with no trouble, but there's still a good chance of danger."

He said research on animals indicated that a small dose of cannabis stimulated body temperature slightly, but larger doses caused drastic temperature drops.

Father Disciplining Children Is Mistaken for Fugitive

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — For two tense hours Wednesday night police thought they were moving in on suspected killer Donald Kelly.

The provincial police tactical-and-rescue team, armed with high-powered rifles and wearing bullet-proof vests, closed in on a house and trailer where police believed Kelly was hiding.

But when they opened the door of the house, they found a man who fit Kelly's description and his two children. They apparently had been too frightened to answer police calls.

Earlier a person had called police to say a man had been threatening children with a gun.

Later investigation revealed the man in the house had been disciplining his children by pointing a gun at them, saying: "Which leg do you want me to shoot, the left or the right?" and "Smarten up or I'll blow your head off."

While police had the house and trailer surrounded, no vehicles were allowed to drive through the area unless absolutely necessary and then only with a police escort.

However, late Wednesday night police still were concentrating their search in the same general area about 10 miles northeast of the city.

Kelly, 36, broke out of North Bay district jail Saturday in what police believe was a well-planned escape. He, along with James Lavin, 37, and Ian Rose, 26, has been charged in connection with the 1969 slaying of Carol MacWilliams 20, and her brother-in-aw, Jack MacWilliams, 27.

Police are puzzled by the fugitive's movements in what they call his "old stamping grounds."

"We can't figure it out" said Supt. C. G. Wilkinson of the North Bay district of the provincial police. "He's had all kinds of chances to leave. Does he want revenge?"

A city police official said earlier that Kelly has threatened to kill six city policemen and Edmonton police say he wants revenge on an Edmonton detective and a woman who were largely responsible for his arrest in that city.

On Wednesday, the Ontario government and city police commission jointly offered a reward of $5,000 for information leading to Kelly's arrest.

The current manhunt for Kelly is similiar to a situation in 1922 when Leo Rogers, 21 shot and killed two policeman and terrorized this community for two weeks. He eventually was killed by police in a shootout.

Meanwhile, Police Chief William Wotherspoon has called for a public inquiry into theft of exhibits to be used in Kelly's preliminary hearing.

Chief Wotherspoon said he was "far from satisfied" with security at the courthouse and said the stolen articles include "valuable" photographs and bullets.

Four Quinte Students Off to Germany

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Sprechen Sie Deutsch?

After studying German for the last seven months in a crash program at Loyalist four area students hope the answer to the question of whether they speak German will be Ja, or yes, when they reach Germany.

The four secondery school students, chosen from 30 applicants will spent the next year in Lahr, Germany, Belleville's sister city.

They will live with the families of German exchange students who will be coming to Belleville and living with their parent.

The group leaves from CFB Trenton tonight, for their overseas trip.

This is the third year local students are making the exchange and the first year there will be only four in the group.

"We are dependent on the department of national defence DND for the very existence of the program," one city official said, "Without their help providing free transportation there would be no trips."

"This year we had to send a smaller group of student because of the limited space available," be said. "The DND had other commitments for the seating space."

The German exchange students should be arriving in Belleville on or near August 27 to assume residence with their Canadian families.

No Schedule, But Realtor Commission Rates Unchanged

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The cost of selling a house through a realtor hasn't changed even though there is nothing in the regulations of the Quinte District Real Estate Association stopping a realtor from charging whatever he wants.

Six months ago the Quinte District Real Estate Association erased fee schedules from its set of association regulations — theoretically opening the way for realtors to set their own price for selling a house.

But, no changes have yet been made and Quinte area realtors are treating the old fee structure as an unwritten law with no variations, says Gerry Joyce, past president of the association and current vice-president of the Ontario Real Estate Association.

In January, the local association was told the federal government had given second reading to a bill that would forbid associations of all sorts from setting fees among themselves — a document that if and when passed would work hand-in-hand with the Combines Act.

In preparation for the final reading of the bill, the association voted unanimously to erase fee structures.

The once-written fees were four per cent for the sale of a new house, five per cent a resale and six per cent for a house sold through the multiple listing service.

"Even though its not written down, it's the going rate and I haven't been notified of any change," said Mr. Joyce.

But, this is not to say commission rates will not escalate.

When the bill was first explained to the association, regional vice-president Bill Lowry said, "now realtors without the minimum standards will be able to charge whatever they want."

Mr. Joyce at that time said "it has been the trend in the United States and in British Columbia (where similar acts are in force) that commission rates have gone up."

Two Break-ins Reported

Thieves broke into two Belleville businesses Wednesday and got away with little more than a cigar and two cases of pop.

Break-ins were reported to city police Wednesday morning at two Albion St. locations, William Beich and Sons, Belleville contractors, and a storage shed owned by National Grocers Co. Ltd.

A police spokesman said thieves entered the construction company at 32 Albion St. sometime early Wednesday morning and went through company offices. A cigar and 60 cents were stolen from the scene.

Apparently, the thieves then went across the street to the storage shed and stole two cases of pop, owned by National Grocers. There was some damage reported.

Blaze Destroys Barn

Sidney Township volunteer fire fighters kept watch into the night Wednesday over the smouldering ashes of a barn owned by Glen Hogle after noon hour fire gutted the building on Highway 2, three miles west of Belleville.

At the peak of the blaze, a thick column of inky smoke was clearly visible in Belleville.

Most of the volunteer brigade responded to the call bringing the department's three trucks. Fire spread rapidly through the structure consuming several pieces of farm machinery and a stock of hay. Fire fighters could only contain the blaze and limit its spreading to nearby homes.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined and no dollar loss has been estimated.

A spokesman for the Ontario Provincial Police said vandalism is being considered as a possible cause. The Hogle farm has been a target of vandalism recently.

Firemen were at the scene for more than 12 hours to make sure the fire did not re-kindle itself.

Driver Charged

CHERRY VCALLEY — A Demorestville woman escaped injury Wednesday night when her car left the Cherry Valley Rd., crashed through a fence, and landed in a field.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Judith Juby, 25, of RR1, Demorestville, failed to negotiate a turn. Her car then crossed the centreline, striking a fence.

She has been charged with careless driving.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $700 and damage to the fence at $200. The collision occurred at 6:45 p.m.

Second Half Tonight

TRENTON — Trenton businessman and declared candidate for the Quinte riding Progressive Conservative nomination Doug Whitley will hold a wine and cheese reception at the Trenton Country Club, tonight, similar to his reception in Belleville Wednesday.

The reception at 8 p.m. is being held for delegates and alternates to next Monday's convention from Trenton, Frankford, Batawa and Sidney Township.

Alarm Box

— smoke investigation at 156 Hastings Dr., someone thought he smelled smoke in the area, nothing found.

Race Battle to the Wire Says Riding President

The scales are evenly balanced between Belleville's Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley as Tory delegates try to weigh their vote on which candidate to send into the next provincial election.

Quinte riding president Gerry Brennan said during an interview Wednesday, "all the way down the line, both candidates are even."

"Both are good Conservatives, hard workers and have political expertise," he said. "These factors are making it a very tight race."

Fairly confident that the Conservative party will continue to represent the Quinte riding, most party members at a social gathering Wednesday were of the opinion that the real election is taking place now as both work at lobbying the delegates votes.

Mr. Whitley entertained about 50 Belleville delegates and their spouses at a wine and cheese party at the Legion Wednesday.

About 380 delegates from across the riding will attend a nominationg convention in Trenton High School next Monday to cast ballots.

Unlike the full blown provincial election filled with razzle dazzle and hoopla, this mini campaign is quiet and conducted on a personal basis, said Belleville association president Fred Deacon.

"It's pretty well assured that Doug will get Trenton fairly solidly and Robin will get the majority of Belleville — but the whole thing is going to be decided out in Sidney Township," said Mr. Deacon.

ANADIAN AIR CADETS

Ready for Takeoff

Flying instructor Mac McFarlane checks out instructor and student in one of six gliders flying out of Mountain View air station during six-week Air Cadet glider training program. At the end of the training scheme, 48 cadets will be fully qualified and licensed glider pilots. After flying with instructors, the cadets get in as many solo flights as they can in the seven-day-week program. In addition to the gliding course, 174 other cadets from various Ontario squadrons are being trained in other aspects of flying and leadership at CFB Trenton.

Soaring High Above County Daily Fare for 47 Air Cadets

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

MOUNTAIN VIEW There you are, almost half a mile above Prince Edward County, a panorama of green and golden fields, ponds, lakes and bettle-like cars beneath you. All you can hear is the sighing of the wind and the odd gentle creak as the controls of the glider and adjusted.

How do you get there? The easiest way, if you're between 13 and 18, is to join the Air Cadets. Boys and girls are welcome.

This year 47 boys and one girl, Susan Horvath of Toronto, will be qualified, licensed glider pilots when they complete an intensive, seven-day-a-week glider pilot training program this summer.

Of a total of 222 cadets based at CFB Trenton, the 48 on the glider course spend most of their time at Mountain View, where glider launches occur about every five minutes. Chief flying instructor is Maj. Garry Lees, assisted by civilian instructor Mac McFarlane, of Cobourg.

During these final two weeks of the course, the young flyers will be in the air whenever possible, weather permitting. Drivers on Highway 14 can see them in action anytime during daylight hours.

The cadets billeted at the Trenton camp are also involved in various activities. While some concentrate on glider training, others are taking courses in powered aircraft piloting, orienteering, band, first aid and leadership.

Cadets from all parts of the province are at the camp this summer, most of them taking glider training. A regular force staff, complemented by civilians, mainly ex - service personnel, looks after the needs and assists with with the instruction of the cadets.

Hees Backs Whitley In Nomination Race

Federal MP for Prince Edward — Hastings George Hees Wednesday night endorsed Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley as the candidate to carry the Toyr colors for the Quinte Riding in the next provincial election.

Speaking at a social function sponsored by the Whitley organization aimed at Belleville nominating convention delegates, Mr. Hees said he "fully endorses" Mr. Whitley.

"He'd make a first class member."

Mr. Hees' endorsement marks the first such move by a standing politician on behalf of either Mr. Whitley or Robin Jeffrey.

Mr. Whitley has been federal election campaign manager for Mr. Hees in the last two elections.

Quinte MPP and minister of correctional services Dr. R. T. Potter did not attend the function and has stated he will not support any candidate until after the nominating convention.

About 50 of Belleville's 220 delegates accepted the written invitation to attend the function.

Mr. Hees commented during an interview that it is shaping up as a tight race between Mr. Whitley and Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey. "They're both good people . . . running a very clean, aboveboard campaign" to win the supporrt of the delegates.

Mr. Whitley spent the majority of the evening "geting to know" the Belleville delegates personally during hand shaking exercises and made only a brief speech to the gathering.

In it be pointed to the speedy construction of a new bay bridge as a "top priority" and that the bridge "ought to be re-built exactly where it is".

Ellis Attacks Hees For Vote of Support

Hastings MP Jack Ellis said today George Hees, MP for Prince Edward — Hastings reneiged on a previous agreement Wednesday by publicly supportint Doug Whitley in the race for the Tory nomination for Quinte riding in the upcoming election.

Mr. Ellis, from his Ottawa office, said today "I met with George about a month ago and at that time be suggested we both stay out of it until the riding delegates chose a candidate.

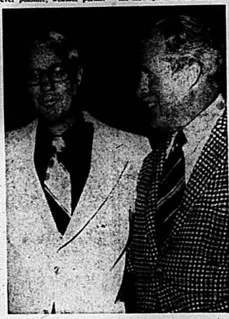
"I don't think federal members have any business getting involved in the nominating convention," said Mr. Ellis. "Once the candidate is chosen I'll be jumping in with both feet to give support."

Commenting on Mr. Hees' endorsement of Mr. Whitley at a wine and cheese party Wednesday night in Belleville, Mr. Ellis said "It's not the correct thing to do."

"Naturally I'm supporting Robin Jeffrey but I'm going to keep my end of the promise and not work publicly for her before the nominating convention Monday," said the Hastings member.

Mr. Ellis said be would not have made any announcement concerning Mayor Jeffrey, "if this situation had not come up".

"You're leaving yourself wide open to alienation," by endorsing someone before the convention, said Mr. Ellis.



Campaign Buddies

For the two federal elections George Hees has entered and won in his bid to represent the riding of Prince Edward-Hastings, Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley has been at his side as campaign manager. Wednesday night at Belleville's Legion the two were back together — this time to work at getting the Quinte riding nod for Mr. Whitley. Mr. Whitley is seeking the conservative nomination in preparation for the next provincial election.

Jobs Rare Here for Local Bands

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

Music in the area has been changing, not only in style of music, and with different groups, but also in the way the music is presented.

One of the local bands is called Benjamin. The group, currently made up of Ralph Woods, Vitas Slapkauskas, Bob Watson and George Bertok, has gone through many changes in the last three years of playing.

"None of the original members are left. I guess I'm the oldest remaining member of the group," said Ralph, who plays drums.

For the last month Benjamin have been practising with a new guitarist Bob Watson, after their last one left.

"During the summer, business is really slow, but the longest we've been out of work has been three weeks," said Vitas, the bass player.

In Belleville, the only place which a band for the youth can play is the Mad Mechanic, said Ralph, but it takes a right manager.

Not being exclusive with one managder, Benjamin has workod with a variety of managers to take tours in southern and northern Ontario and this past spring on a trip through Newfoundland.

On their trip through Newfoundland, Vitas said he found the people just "great".

"They were really receptive; they made you feel like a rock and roll star."

The hardest thing in the formation of the band has been finding the musicians with the "proper personality" said Ralph.

The last guitarist was really good, but we just could not work things out, said Ralph.

Benjamin is currently waiting for confirmation of a tour engagement through Northern Ontario.

"Our wives (three of the members are married) accept the fact that we're musicians and no real hassles have ever come up," said Ralph.

Disc Jockeys Making Inroads

Taped and recorded music has started to come into its own in that last year, as another form of musical entertainment.

Ken Williams of Disc Jockeys Unlimited spins the turn-tables and the tape reels at a variety of occasions.

In operation since January, Ken said of all the jobs he has had only one has not been a wedding.

"We try to cater to people providing all types of music," said Ken.

"I've got tapes of everybody, at least 100 hours of tapes alone."

Because of the increased popularity of disc jockeys, it has come under criticism from the musicians union, said Ken. But Ken pointed out that disc jockeys "don't play high schools and lounges, and it is more economical for people holding a wedding."

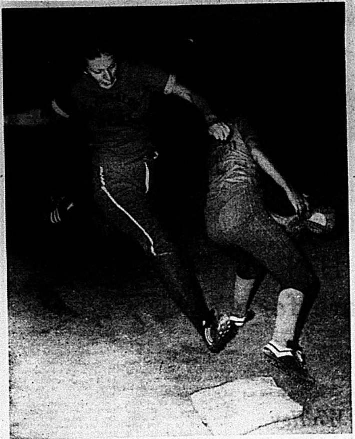
"I don't know any three musicians who will play for three or four hours for the same rate of pay," said Ken.

Starting around three or four years ago in England, disc jockeys have slowly arrived to Canada said Ken.

Ken states disc jockeys provide not only music but skits and jokes.

"We try to know who we're playing for, in order to plan the engagement properly," said Ken.

Intelligencer Sports



Sally Foster is out by just half a step as she runs out an infield hit at the Alemite on Wednesday night. Foster may have been out, but her team, the Oshawa McDonalds, defeated the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund 21-5 in their Provincial Women's Softball Union playoff game. Joyce McFarlane made the play at first base but it didn't happen enough for the BYBF team. The series is now tied 1-1.

Two Series Pushed to Wire

Two teams kept their playoff hopes alive Wednesday night when they earned quarter-final victories in the face of elimination.

Constellation defeated Brooke Bond 5-4 to tie their series 2-2 and Mead Johnson shutout Post Office by a 3-0 count.

Ken Kerik was the winner for Constellation. He allowed five hits and one walk and sent seven batters to the bench on third strikes.

The loss was absorbed by Tom St. Jules, touched for seven hits and striking out two.

Two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning gave Constellation a one-run edge and the victory.

Bob Reid cracked a triple for Constellation, Kerik singled and doubled and Wayne May, Ron Mitchell, Neil Goyer and Blaine Mullins each singled.

Al Colden tripled in the Brooke Bond loss. Singles were added by Lou Rivers, Ron Stratton, Dave Middleton and Jack Walsh.

Sonny Holoway came through in the clutch for Mead Johnson, hurling a three hitter. He issued four walks and had five strikeouts to square the set at 2-2.

Norm Lockhart was saddled with the loss. He gave up nine hits, two walks and struck out six.

SONNY HOLOWAY

Jim Wood singled and tripled to help make the difference for Meads. Dave Dolan doubled.

Gord Campbell doubled in the losing cause.

League playoffs resume tonight with The Intelligencer going against UIC.

Oshawa Wallops Yardmen 21-5

The roof caved in on Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund when they met Oshawa McDonalds in the second game of the Provincial Women's Softball Union Intermediate "AA" Playoffs at Alemite Park, Wednesday night.

The final score was 21-5 for the visitors and that evened the series at 1-1.

Oshawa pitcher Sandy Cochrane gave up nine hits and two walks to the BYBF team. She came away with four strikeouts.

The Belleville loss was shared by Sandra Claus and Shirley Gulliver.

Cochrane also led her team at bat with a single, a double, and a triple. Cathy Fertile had two singles and a triple to add to the Oshawa attack.

Shirley Gulliver doubled and tripled but it wasn't nearly enough to put Belleville in contention with the Oshawa club.

Legion Edges State Farm

Belleville Legion 99 got off on the right foot on Wednesday night against Trenton State Farm in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Bantam B playoff series.

The 7-6 win gives the locals a 1-0 lead.

Peter Manderville hurled the victory, picking up 14 strikeouts along the way.

The loss went to Chris Walsh, who threw 13 strikeouts.

Ken Revov had two singles and Bruce Bell doubled in the Belleville victory.

In the Peewee playoffs Belleville Broadloom won 13-7 over Trenton to tie their series at 2-2.

Rory McLeod was the victor. He had three strikeouts.

Bob Alexander, Steve Smith and Barry McIntosh all toiled on the mound for Trenton.

Matt Whitley tripled and singled and Brian Cronkrite had two doubles in the win.

The deciding game will be played in Trenton tonight at 6:30 p.m.

New York Gives Berra the Boot

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy McMillan, new manager of New York Mets, will make his presence felt in the clubhouse, if not in the headlines.

McMillan, a second-stringer in the managerial ranks until he was named to replace the fired Yogi Berra, laid it on the line to his players in a team baseball victory over Montreal Expos.

"Yogi was a little closer to the players," said Mets third baseman Joe Torre, "but Roy lets everyone know just who the manager is.

McMillan, 46, has been with the Mets as a coach under Berra since 1973 after managing the Mets farm team in Visalia, Calif.

"It's hard to say what I think," said outfielder Gene Clines, acquired in before the season from Pittsburgh. "It's my first year here. For most guys, it takes time to form an opinion.

YOGI BERRA

"But one thing," Clines added, "there didn't seem to be any communication between the players and Yogi. Maybe when be benched a guy, he should have taken him aside and had a little chat."

The squat, 50-year-old Berra is only the second manager to win pennants in both major leagues. But this year, after 3½ years as the Mets' manager, Berra had guided New York nowhere. After ending a five-night in which they had gone through 55 scoreless innings, the Mets still were mired 8½ games behind Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Yogi's job apparently had been in jeopardy since last season, when the club wound up in fifth place. "This whole thing is to a degree a hangover from last year," said Mets chairman of the board, M. Donald Grant.

Second baseman Felix Millan was the most outspoken in his support of Berra.

"Like I've told everyone," he said, "it's sad to see Yogi gone . . . he was wonderful to me and to verybody.

McMillan said he felt his chances of continuing as manager next year were as good as anyone's. "That's what I was told," he said. "Of course, I assume a lot would depend on the next two months."

Berra, who signed with the New York Yankees in 1943 and played 17 years with the team, came out of retirement in 1965 to become a player-coach with the Mets. He had a lifetime batting average of .285 with 358 homers. He appeared in 14 World Series with the Yanks and was on 10 world championship teams, both records.

Mets Beat Expos 9-6

Yogi Just Didn't Know When to Bring on the Rain

NEW YOPK (AP) — The New York Mets were ahead 9-6 in the top of the ninth inning. Montreal had the bases loaded with no outs, and the rain began to come down. That was the end of it.

The game was held up for one hour and 15 minutes while new manager Roy McMillan was faced with the possibility of a Montreal home run that would have put the Expos ahead.

But he knew, as did everyone else, that the game would never be resumed, and it never was, giving the Mets a 9-6 victory.

MacMillan, managing his first National League baseball game for the Mets after the firing Wednesday of Yogi Berra, was asked what he did during the delay.

He responded: "I took a nap."

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for the Mets, a streak during which they had gone scoreless for 25 innings. Montreal swept the first three games of the series, 4-3 on Monday and a pair of 7-0 shutouts in Tuesday's twi-night doubleheader.

Things looked bad again through the first three innings Wednesday night.

Montreal scored once in the second on Pete Mackanin's homer and three times in the third on Pepe Mangual's homer and a two-run double by Jose Morales. The Mets were held scoreless despite two singles, a double and a triple.

The Mets finally broke open in the fourth inning on Wayne Garrett's two-run homer, then erupted for seven runs in the sixth inning on consecutive doubles by Del Unser, Felix Millan and Ed Kranepool, who raised his average to .360 with three hits in five trips.

There also were five walks and a hit batsman in the inning by three Expos' pitchers.

Montreal came back in the top of the ninth to score twice on Mike Phillips' throwing error at shortstop, and a bases-loaded walk by Bob Apodaca, who relieved winner Hank Webb, 4-4.

Reds Continue Runaway With NL West Division

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds are laughing all the way to the National League West Division baseball pennant.

"We're using all our players these days—it keeps everyone happy," said manager Sparky Anderson after his Reds beat San Francisco Giants 12-5 Wednesday.

One of those happy spares that Anderson used against San Francisco was Darrel Chaney. Subbing for Dave Concepcion at shortstop, Chaney collected three of the Reds' 20 hits and embellished his reputation as a Giant killer.

"I've got more than half my hits this season off Giants' pitching," said Chaney, who is batting .409 against San Francisco. "I've played more games against the Giants than anyone else, but I think that's just because of the circumstances, not because of the way I've hit against them."

Coupled with Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-4 loss to Atlanta Braves, the Reds improved their lead in the West to 16½ games—their biggest of the season.

"They're the best club I've seen in some time, probably the best in this league since the Dodgers had Sandy Koufax (in the early 1960s)," said San Francisco manager Wes Westrum.

In other National League games, New York Mets beat Montreal Expos 9-6 in a rain-shortened affair, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and San Diego Padres beat Houston Astros 6-1. The Chicago-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Chaney knocked in three runs with two doubles and a single and Cesar Geronimo hit a pair of triples to lead Cincinnati's high-powered attack.

The Reds, who swept the three-game series with the Giants, had nine extra base hits in their offence. All nine starters collected at least one hit and drove in at least one run as the Reds won their fifth game in a row and the seventh in their last eight.

Rowland Office and Dave May hit run-scoring singles in the ninth inning to give Atlanta its victory over Los Angeles.

Buddy Bradford hit a home run and Ken Reitz tripled to lead a three-run St. Louis fifth inning against Pittsburgh. St. Louis starter John Denny, 6-3, surrendered only two singles to the National League Eastern Division leaders before running into trouble in the eighth inning, when the Pirates scored their only run.

Left hander Randy Jones pitched a two-hitter and posted his 15th victory as San Diego defeated Houston. Jones, 15-6, a 22-game loser last year, lost his bid for his seventh shutout of the year in the third when Bob Watson led off with a triple and scored on Cliff Johnson's infield out.

The Padres raked Houston right-hander Larry Dierker, 9-12, for four runs in the first inning after Johnny Grubb doubled and took third on Tito Fuentes' single.

Pennant Races Back on in AL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What used to be called a couple of locked-up pennant races in baseball's American League are suddenly being threatened by Kansas City Royals and Baltimore Orioles.

Just a few days ago, Oakland's three-time world champion A's were running away from Kansas City and the rest of the West Division with a 10-game lead.

Likewise, Boston Red Sox owned an imposing 9½-game lead over Baltimore in the East.

Today, though, those runaways have been slowed to a crawl and both the Royals and Orioles are putting on charges.

Oakland's potent bats were all but muffled Wednesday night by Gaylord Perry, who gave up just seven hits and Texas Rangers rode Dave Moates' three runs batted in to a 5-2 victory over the A's.

That, coupled with Kansas City's 4-3 triumph over Minnesota—compliments of Tony Solaita's three-run homer that capped a four-run fourth inning—slashed Oakland's lead over the Royals to 6½ games.

Boston, coming off two consecutive losses to Baltimore, seemed on the verge of taking it on the chin again in Milwaukee, trailing 2-1 in the ninth inning. But a four-run outburst capped by Jim Rice's two-run single made the Red Sox 5-3 winners.

Nevertheless, they still saw their lead over Baltimore trimmed to seven games. The Orioles jumped all over Detroit, sweeping a twi-night doubleheader 4-2 and 8-2, extending the Tigers' losing streak to 11 games.

In the other two AL games, Cleveland Indians beat New York Yankees 5-3 and Chicago White Sox beat California Angels 11-1.

Where Would Russ and the Boys Be Without the Golden Boot of the Big Z?

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto Argonauts won their first Eastern Football Conference game this season the hard way Wednesday night, without scoring a touchdown and with no time left on the clock.

ZENON ANDRUSYSHUN

The clock showed all zeros as Zenon Andrusyshyn's field goal from the 12-yard line sailed through the uprights to lift the Argos to a 16-14 win.

The Big Z produced all of Toronto's scoring with field goals of 53, 51, 47, 12 and nine yards and a 34-yard single off a wide field goal attempt.

For the second straight game, the Argos were unable to drive across for a major score, even though they had five consecutive tries from within the Ottawa five-yard line in the fourth quarter.

But Argos head coach Russ Jackson was satisfied with Toronto's performance, which gave the club a 1-2 won-lost record and a tie with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes in second place in the EFC. Ottawa is first with a 2-1 mark.

Jackson said the Argos played well and did not fold when the Riders went ahead 14-13 with 78 seconds left. "We ran the ball quite well and we did what w wanted to do."

But Jackson was miffed with the lusty boos from the crowd of 31,023 when Ottawa's Rod Woodward was penalized for interference on his six-yard line with 20 seconds to play.

The boos made it impossible for the Argos to hear quarterback Bill Bynum's signals and Toronto had to settle for the field goal.

Riders head coach George Brancato glowered but restrained himself when talking about the penalty. He questioned the call, coming late in the game when Argos end Peter Muller had little chance of catching the pass. But the official "saw it better than I did."

Gerry Organ led Ottawa's scoring with field goals of 48 and 42 yards and the conversion of wide-receiver Moody Jackson's touchdown on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Condredge Holloway. Punter Dick Adams booted a 58-yard single.

Toronto led 7-1 at the half but Jackson's score edged Ottawa ahead 11-10 going into the final quarter. Then came Andrusyshyn's field goal after the Argos failed to score on their five close-in tries for a 13-11 margin.

The Toronto defence kept Ottawa at bay until tight-end Tony Gabriel caught a pass that the Argos said hit the ground first. Organ kicked his 48-yard field goal that just made it over the crossbar with 78 seconds left and Ottawa fans sensed a victory until Woodward was called for interference.

During the lineup introductions prior to the start of the game, Jackson received almost a two-minute ovation from the Ottawa fans as he trotted across the field to the Argos bench.

Jackson guided several Rider teams to Grey Cup wins before the gifted quarterback retired in 1969.

Riders got some bad news when veteran linebacker Wayne Giardino suffered what was diagnosed as a broken left wrist but team officials did not know if he would miss any games.

Last Minute Victory

Rookie Brings Bombers Back

WINNIPEG (CP) — Backup quarterback Ralph Brock came off the bench in relief of Chuck Ealey in the second quarter to guide Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a last-minute, 17-16 victory over Edmonton Eskimos in Western Football Conference action Wednesday night.

The 24-year-old sophomore from Jacksonville State had trouble getting the Bombers moving at first, but tossed two touchdown passes to Tom Scott in the second half, one with only 31 seconds left on the clock.

Bob Macoritti added the winning convert and also booted two field goals and a 62-yard single to help avenge the Bombers' 28-22 loss to the Eskimos last week.

Dave Cutler was the leading Edmonton scorer with three field goals and a convert. Edmonton's lone touchdown came on a keeper by quarterback Tom Wilkinson late in the third quarter.

Winnipeg head coach Bud Riley predicted Brock would become one of the outstanding quarterbacks in the league, while Edmonton's Ray Jauch said he was surprised the Bombers hadn't used Brock more in the past.

The win gives the Bombers a 2-1 record for the season and a tie for second place in the conference with Calgary Stampeders. The Eskimos dropped to fourth place with a 1-1 record.

Edmonton jumped into a early lead on a pair of field goals by Cutler from the 20 and 45 in the first quarter. The most the bombers could muster in the first half was a single after Mark MacDonald watched a touchdown pass slide by his fingertips.

Brock went to work in the third quarter with a touchdown pass to Scott, set up by a 24-yard run by rookie fullback Steve Beaird. A two-point conversion attempt was foiled when Edmonton knocked down the pass.

Wilkinson scored after the two teams exchanged third-quarter field goals, but penalties and a missed field goal stalled the Edmonton offense in the fourth. Winnipeg struck for their second touchdown in the dying moments on another Brock to Scott combination.

Wilkinson completed 15 of 25 passes for 195 yards, while Edmonton rushers gains 158 yards for a total offense of 281 yards. Brock and Ealey threw for a total of 119 yards, while Winnipeg gained 162 yards on the ground for a total offenseof 281 yards.

WFC action resumes Sunday with British Columbia Lions meeting Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Tom Weiskopf Ready for PGA

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Weiskopf shrugged off the galling memory of his $50,000 disappointment at Westchester and put himself high today on the list of a half-dozen men he thinks capable of winning the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

"I have forgotten the tournament last week." said the temperamental Weiskopf who blew a seven-stroke halfway lead last weekend in one of the world's richest events. "You can't let a thing like that bug you."

"I don't feel I gave it away. After all, Gene Littler had to sink a hole-in-one to win it. I didn't play a loose shot."

The 6-foot-3 Weiskopf, who only a week earlier had beaten Jack Nicklaus in a playoff for the Canadian Open, is one of the strong advance favorites in the field of 138 touring and teaching pros who tee off in their family event today over the Firestone course, a 7,180-yard test playing to a par 70.

"There is nothing subtle about this course," Weiskopf said. "It is blast, blast, blast. You just get out there and slug. That's the reason I think you can limit the real contenders to a handful.

"Nicklaus, of course. Lee Trevino because he drives so straight. Johnny Miller, streaky but tremendous. Arnold Palmer, still as good a driver as there is in golf. And Hale Irwin, with those good long irons and playing very confidently."

And, it goes without saying-Tom Weiskopf.

TO HOLD CHAMPIONSHIP

TOKYO (AP) — What sponsors called the first world championship of golf will be held in Japan in November, 1976, a spokesman said Wednesday. Zenya Hamada, president of the St. Andrews Golf Club in Japan said only 24 pros will compete each year for the $75,000 first prize in the $260,000, 72-hole tournament. Those qualifying include the U.S., British and Japan Open champions; U.S. Masters, PGA and Tournament Players' Division champions; Japanese PGA champion, and World Cup champions.

Tennis Nationals

If It's Not One Thing It's Another

WINNIPEG (CP) — Just when competitors in the Canadian national tennis championships were becoming accustomed to clay courts on Wednesday, another factor appeared.

Winds, with gusts to 35 miles an hour, whipped over the eight courts at the Winnipeg Canoe Club, playing havoc with shots and unsettling players.

Fourth seed Jim Boyce of Toronto, after defeating veteran Don McCormick of Vancouver in a men's singles match 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, said "The wind was blowing the ball all over the place."

That assessment was echoed by most of the players as the field was trimmed to eight players for today's play.

"Serving becomes less relevant in the wind," said Winnipeg's Glen Booth after upsetting defending champion Pierre Lamarche of Quebec City 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Rejean Genois of Loretteville, Que., top seed in the tournaplayr in Canada, said wind conditions were a major factor in his match against Robert Bettauer of Vancouver. The 22-year-old Genois rallied for a 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 victory.

In men's singles matches today, Booth meets third seed Tony Bardsley of Vancouver. Bardsley advanced to the quarter-finals of the $12,000 tournament after defeating his brother Bob, also of Vancouver, in surprisingly easy fashion, 6-2, 6-3.

Genois is scheduled to meet eighth seed Richard Legendre seed Dale Power of Toronto faces David Brown of Toronto.

Women's singles matches, not held Wednesday, resume today.

Booth, after losing the first set to the veteran Lamarche, rallied for a hard fought triumph in the premier match Wednesday.

The 20-year-old Booth, hampered by calcium deposits in his right shoulder that severely reduced the velocity of his serves, held a 4-1 advantage in each of the three sets. Lamarche won all five of the remaining games in the first set for a 6-4 victory, but Booth held on after holding exactly the same lead to win the final sets 7-5, 6-3.

The tournament continues until Sunday.

Olympics Have Good Shot At Premier League Title

The Belleville Olympics are on their way to a league championship, claims coach John O'Neill.

"I'm confident the team can win the league title, but the defence must improve," O'neill stated.

The Olympics have had a month layoff from Premier Soccer League action, to play in tournaments. The rest did them good, as a number of injuries had time to heal.

One solution coach O'Neill has found to his problem is to move former National Soccer League player Eugene Courtney from his attacking role to a defensive post. Two players who will be missing in the Olympics next contests are midfielder Bruce Mohr (gone to RMC in Kingston) and Thomas Maxwell (returned to Bermuda).

To stay in contention for first place the Olympics will have to win their next two games, both with the Toronto Ferma.

If top goal scorer Zdravko Fundic can keep up his production the team will be in pretty good shape. So far he has carried much of the offense.

In an effort to replace the lost players, O'neill has two English prospects who have recently arrived from Britain and he also is talking with Scottish player Eric Hendry.

The Olympics have only lost two games this year, both by one goal.

With five games remaining in the year, four of them here in Belleville, they are shooting for the top.

Orr Looking For $10 Million

TORONTO (CP) Boston Bruins may have to put up $10 million if they hope to keep superstar defenceman Bobby Orr from jumping to the World Hockey Association, says Orr's lawyer Alan Eagleson.

Eagleson, executive-director of the National Hockey League Players' Association, said he doesn't care whether the NHL Bruins pay Orr $5 million each year for a two-year contract, $2 million each year for a five-year contract, or $250,000 a year for the next 40 years.

"That's the type of structure Bobby would have to look at," Eagleson said. "I want to make sure Bobby is set for life when he signs his next contract. It could be with the Bruins, or it could be with any other club."

Minnesota Fighting Saints hold Orr's rights in the WHA, and they are reported to have offered Orr a $8-million contract to sign.

Eagleson also said that Mike Murphy had signed his contract with Los Angeles Kings of the NHL and that Tim Ecclestone has reached agreement with Atlanta Flames.

"You can also safely say Toronto Maple Leafs are close to signing centre Pat Boutette," Eagleson said.

Boutette, a native of Windsor Ont., who played college hockey at the University of Minnesota, played last year in Oklahoma City for the Leafs' Central Hockey League team.

Red Shark Still Rolling

Red Shark continued their winning ways in the Bantam division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association with a 25-6 victory over Shell Car Wash.

Randy Smith, Ray Ellis and Bob Dall all had a hand in the win. Dall not only pitched, but he pounded three home runs for the winners.

In Tyke play, Town and Country turned it on at the plate to defeat Ellis Painters 37-11.

Dale Richardson homered for the winners, while Burke Brodie went five for five at the plate.

Mike Sampson hit three, four-baggers in the losing cause.

Squirt action saw O'Neil Stationary put it all together to defeat Eastern Business 20-6. Joey Parker hit a grand slam homer for the winners to account for four of the runs. He also doubled.

Ernie Tuck Appliances just got by Sidney Inn 15-12 with Jody Millars 13 strikeouts the key to the win.

Scott Hannah had two triples and three singles to aid in the victory. Scott Rose homered and Tim Tuck had three singles.

For the losers Terry Devries and Al Bunnett had two singles each.

Belleville J. Goode Painters defeated O'Brien's Tree Service 9-5 in Wednesday night's Prince Edward North Shore Softball League action.

In the other game no results were available.

Perry Soule took the win. He struck out eight batters with relief help from Sonny Holoway.

Rick Goula absorbed the loss. He had one strikeout.

Larry Waite tripled and singled in the Belleville win. Reg Bennett and Ken Kerik doubled.

Greg Scarlet had a triple and a single in the loss.

Ellis Gains Sole Possession of Fourth

Ellis Construction solidified their position in fourth place in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League by defeating Lakeside Oxygen 10-5, Wednesday night.

The win puts them two games in front of Mobil Chemical in the battle for the last playoff spot.

Heather Barberstock and Donna Brant shared the win. They struck out six.

Norma MacQuarrie was the loser with two strikeouts.

Judy Rappel reached base twice for the winners on safeties to help in the win.

Bonnie Goodfellow was the leading batter for Lakeside with a pair of safeties.

Yardmen and Ottawa Swap OASA Squeakers

Tight squeezes have been the trend for games between and Ottawa Parkway Hills in their playoff series.

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association Midget series stands at one game apiece, as Belleville won the first game here 3-2, then lost 6-5 in Ottawa on Wednesday night.

Paul Murphy defeated Belleville, giving up just three hits and striking out three.

The loss went to Dan Vance He allowed nine hits, walked two and struck out five.

Terry Pearce homered in the Belleville cause, while Tim Duval, Marty Lowery and Dale Vance all singled.

Goalies Duel in B of Q

Goalies stole the show in a of Quinte Soccer Association.

The game, at Brighton, Wednesday night, ended in a 1-0 win for the home squad.

Shawn Hamilton registered the shutout and got all the offence he needed for the victory from Chuck Wolters.

Henry Sonnerveld was most impressive in the Trenton nets, despite the loss.

In the other league contest Italo Canadian trounced CFB Trenton 6-0. Joe Romano scored four times for the winners and Nick Del Grosso added a pair to account for the Italo markers.

Scrappers Make it Eight Straight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two runs in the top of the 12th inning gave Hamilton Waxman Scrappers a 3-1 win over Kitchener Evergreens Wednesday and extended their winning streak to eight consecutive games.

In other OFL action, Bob Domik pitched his 19th and 20th wins this season as Newmarket Rays dumped Woodstock Warriors 2-0 and 2-1.

Play resumes tonight with Kitchener visiting Newmarket and St. Catharines Mr. Jackets meeting Burlington Provisioners in a doubleheader.

Hamilton pitcher Bill McNeils who has won 12 of 17 decisions struck out 13 and walked one. Kitchener's Terry Gallamore struck out 11 and walked one.

Hamilton scored first in the second inning on a triple by Ted Deuiter and a sacrifice fly by Jim Thompson.

Playing on its home field, Kitchener tied the game in the bottom of the fourth inning on a walk, then a double by John Hagey.

In the 12th, singles by Cookie Appleby and Ed Neudorf and a fielders' choice set the stage for Dick Rosker's second hit of the night—a two-out double.

DeRuiter also had two hits for the winners who collected eight, all off Gallamore.

Dafoe Gives Y's Men Victory

It was a tight squeeze, but two goals by Don Dafoe gave Y's Men a 4-3 victory over the Quinte Mall in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Associations Tyke-Novice Division.

Goals for Quinte Mall came from Paul Brannigan, Karen Duffy and Neil Graham.

Esso Car Wash had little trouble defeating Dairy Queen with a 9-1 score to their credit.

Peter Little and Jim Thompson shared the goal scoring for the winners, Karl Wedderburn had the losers only marker.

In Midget-Juvenile play it was a close one between A and D Esso and Local 183, with A and D Esso coming out ahead 12-10.

Roger Chapman had five goals and two assists for the winners.

Bantam action witnessed Cornerstone trounce Bob's Sports 10-2, on the five goal performance of Steve Slaughter and Paul Chapman hat trick.

Ken-Yen-Geh defeated Bud Gill 7-1 on two goal nights from Brian Maracle and Wes Bardy.

Brian Slaughter shutout Dairy Queen in a 3-0 win for Ponderosa in the Peewee Division. Helping him to the win were Bryan Hartlens two goals.

Goalies were hot in the Peewee division, as goalie David Levinets shutout Woodland Cleaners 7-0. The Police Association win was aided by Steve Molaski's five goals.

FIGHTS MAYOR

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is scheduled to square off in a three-round exhibition bout Friday night with Benton Harbor mayor Charles Joseph. Joseph said Ali also will go three rounds with one of his sparring partners.

Three in SCLA

Belleville Novice Scott's Colonels fought it out with Gerard Road Novices and came away with a 7-5 win in South Central Lacrosse League play.

With five minutes to go in the game it was all tied up 5-5 then Jim Thompson put one in for Belleville and they took the victory.

Thompson had a four goal total for the game, while Randy Uens scored twice and Peter Little added the other marker.

In exhibition play, the newly formed Belleville Tyke team experienced their first taste of victory, winning 8-2 over Gerrard Road.

Randy Uens scored five times and Doug Burley had a hat trick in the victory. Jamie Mills did a good job in the nets.

The Belleville Lions Club Peewees were also successful in their recent hookup. They defeated Kingston 5-3 with Ken Donaldson scoring three times for Belleville.

PARKIN — Herb and Sooze are pleased to announce the arrival of Trevor Herbert Andrew at Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster, B.C. on July 17, 1975. A brother for Toby.

LOVETT — Ron and Irene Lovett are pleased to announce the arrival of Sheri Barbara on Monday, July 28, 1975 at Belleville General Hospital. Weight 7 lbs., 15¼ ozs.

IN MEMORIAM

RUSTON — In loving memory of my dear wife Beatrice Ruston who passed away August 7th, 1971.
The dearest wife, the kindest friend,
One of the best whom God could lend,
Loving, thoughtful, gentle and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
—Love to remember by her husband Robert Ruston and his second wife Annetta Ruston.

COOK — In loving memory of a dear wife Evelyn Cook, who passed away August 7, 1973.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Ever remembered by husband Blake.

OLIPHANT — In memory of a dear mother, Eileen, who passed away August 7, 1970.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how I often think of you,
Friends are friends if they are true,
I lost my best friend when I lost you.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter, Betty.

COOK — In loving memory of a dear mother Evelyn Irene Cook who passed away August 7, 1973.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps her memory ever dear.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Betty, son-in-law Ray and grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to our neighbors of the 3rd and 4th of Thurlow for their gift of money, to the Wallbridge Community for their shower and our friends from the Bethel Chapel and Wesleyan Church congregations for their presentations on the occasion of our marriage. We really do appreciate each one of you.
Stephen and Helen Elliott.

I would like to say "thank you" to all of my friends, neighbors and relatives for the cards, gifts, flowers and calls while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. A special thanks to Dr. Fry and Dr. Parkin and the staff and nurses on the fifth floor for their excellent care.
Leda McKeown.

I wish to sincerely thank my neighbors, friends and relatives for prayers, cards, flowers, treats, personal calls and enquiries while I was in hospital and since my return home. A special thank you to Dr. T. G. Monaghan, Dr. P. Briggs, Dr. Hui, Mrs. Donna Kennedy, the orderlies, nurses and staff of emergency and 5th level at B.G.H., Grace Chapel, Stirling, and to all who were so kind to me and my family. May God bless you all.
Fred Sutherland, Sr.

New Cars and Trucks have sold so rapidly that we are over stocked on the Cleanest Used Cars in the Hastings County. Rather than wholesaling these extra clean units to other Dealers we at BERT JONES LTD. have decided to pass on tremendous savings to you. A written warranty goes with every reconditioned used car.

These Astre Hatchbacks, all 1974 Models are equipped alike with the 2-barrel carburator, the large 4 cylinder motor to go with the 3-speed automatic transmission. — Hatchbacks are like semi-station wagons with fold down rear seats, priced new at $4,180. We offer you great savings on these dressed up units at only $2995.

Remember — Only 2 to choose from. All low mileage, one owner bought new from us.

Poetry Engrossing

By JANET FINE
The Canadian Press

The cover is grey, stark. It is a misty door with the words Ghost Towns springing out.

It conjures up spirits and fading photographs.

That is the poetry of Florence McNeil. Her lyrics are often haunting as she goes from theme to theme.

The aura of her father and his death in the war surrounds the poetry. The war, flying in airplanes, family; all weave in and out of hr poetry. These observations and impressions of life ultimately lead to her surprising discovery of love.

Author McNeil, in her 30s, was born in Vancouver and now teaches English at University of British Columbia. Her husband, David McNeil, also teaches there Previously, she has published three books.

Ghost Towns is engrossing. The poems form a lyrical surrounding of her life-history.

Exploring herself through her father, she says: "Sometimes my own face looks out through my father's brown bewildered photograph (When I least expect it) . . . ."

Her poems are almost images to imagine but not to hold too tightly. Sometimes she is humorous, recalling her childhood.

In the poem, "And Happy Things . . . ," she writes:

As a freshman I read the Romantics visualized the sad ethereal faces saw my own and went disconsolate to a counsellor to be told abruptly that I was basically happy.

Ghost Towns, Florence McNeil; $3.95; 80 pages; McClelland and Stewart.

Designers Like Songwriters: People Rarely Remember Names

NEW YORK (AP)—Costume designers are like songwriters. People are always asking where they get all those fresh ideas.

On the other hand, they are different. The public rarely remembers their names from hit to hit.

Patricia Zipprodt, one of the theater's leading designers, regards such craft hazards with cheerful fortitude.

"I know creative people are supposed to say they are never satisfied," she said, "but sometimes I really am."

As a specialist in the tricky task of converting "the director's vision" into visual reality, Miss Zipprodt has scooped up Broadway Tony awards for her contributions to such landmark events as Fiddler on the Roof and Cabaret. She has other prizes for Zorba and 1776.

There also have been top TV and film stints.

Looking back over a 19-year career of providing widely diverse garb for more than 70 shows, operas and ballets, she is wont to quote Pablo Picasso about where the essential creativity comes from.

"Picasso," she recalls, "said 'I don't get my ideas, I find them.' Every time out it's a long, searching process."

The toughest job is facing that first blank sheet of art paper.

"Nobody likes to work," she philosophizes, "but human beings aren't meant just to sit around."

The past season was busy for the Zipprodt studio, which turned out costumes for Mack and Mabel, All God's Chillun Got Wings and the current SRO musical Chicago.

"For that one," she pinpoiGnted challenge. "There seemed to be thousands of roles and just 13 people in the chorus.

"How did we solve it? I knew I needed basic costumes which with the addition of a little this, that or other could conver with minimum trouble and maximum syle into other images."

The result was a bizarre, sensual extravaganza of Art Deco trimmings for the heady fable of gangland Chicago in the 1920s.

After the musical she dressed The Leaves are Fading, an Anthony Tudor work which has just had it's world premiere with the American Ballet Theatre.

The Zipprodt name first appeared among production credits on The Potting Shed in 1957. She got the job after a display of feisty tenacity at producer Carmen Capalbo's office.

"In this business," Miss Zipprodt summarized, "you have to know a lot of things in addition to being able to draw. You have to know all abut textiles, how color dyes will look under lighting. You must co-ordinate closely with the scenic designer. You have to be a psychologist and a cost accountant, too."

Oddly, however, she never asks what the costume budget is until after completing her designs.

The performers who wear her creations sometimes cause problems, which she has deftly learned to minimize in advance.

"I always ask an actress what color she loathes and what neck-line she abhors. It would be awful to bring in a yellow dress with a square-cut front for a lady who hates that combination."

She has a different conciliatory device for actors — "I always take an assortment of ties which are satisfactory to me, and let them pick out which will be worn."

UPCOMING ON TV

European actor Franco Nero will portray the silent screen's great lover Rudolph Valentino in Valentino, a two-hour television movie that will air in the coming season on ABC.

IN HORROR FILM

Betty Davis, Karen Black, Burgess Meredith and Oliver Reed have been signed in a contemporary horror film Burnt Offerings.

Sylvia Tyson Moves Out For Own Solo Show

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Sylvia Tyson is not exactly a new name on the musical entertainment scene, but during a decade and a half of live, televised and recorded performances it's been mostly second-billed after her husband Ian's.

Now appropriately enough in International Women's Year, the name of Sylvia Tyson is rapidly gaining recognition as that of a multi-talented artist who stands in no man's shadow.

Her professional independence—which includes being hostess of a CBC-network radio show, recording an album of her own songs, preparing a pilot show for a possible next-season television series and making personal appearances throughout Ontario and in Western Canada—came about more or less as a result of Ian's long-running television show.

"Ian's show was a very good thing for both of us because Ian wanted to do something different and at the time—five years ago—when that show came up it was exactly the right thing for him to do.

"It gave him the vehicle to do a lot of things he really wanted to do—to establish himself as a country artist, to form a really strong country band (The Great Speckled Bird) and to really say something to Canadians about country music.

"The show was perfect for me because I was on every other week, rather than every week, and as a guest, not as a host, and it really gave me kind of a five-year breather to pull myself together and decide where I was going with my own music."

Sylvia has been writing songs since their Ian and Sylvia folk-duo days (her first was You Were On My Mind) and occasionally sang solo on their records.

But images are hard to change in a profession that relies on them.

Sylvia said in an interview here that had she continued to do duo material and appeared regularly with Ian on the television show (initially called Nashville North and for the last four seasons simply The Ian Tyson Show) her launching a separate career now would have been much more difficult.

It has been the radio show, Touch The Earth, which has probably been most beneficial in providing Sylvia with an independent identity.

The show, which has been on the air Tuesday nights since last September, came about as the result of "a combination of things."

"First, I had one of those midnight flashes one night and I started writing a bunch of stuff down for a radio documentary based on music I grew up with, stuff that I had heard from the time I was quite small until I left Chatham, Ont. (as a teenager in the late 1950s).

"At about the same time, the CBC was setting up that whole evening slot—10:30 to midnight weeknights—for music and was looking for someone to do a folk music show.

"I was approached and said I would talk about it but that I wasn't really interested in doing a folk music show per se. What I would do was a show based on roots music—folk, blues and country—to play the really hard traditional stuff but to show a natural progression to popular music, to play those artists whose roots are visible in what they do and also to spotlight the young singers-songwriters.'

The success of the radio show, as she conceived it, has been such as to prompt CBC to develop a television show for her using a similar concept. (She taped the pilot episode in early July and after airing in September a decision will then be made whether or not to turn it into a regular weekly program.)

"With the television show we have even more opportunity to expose Canadian talent, because with the radio show we can only do it with music but on television we can use all kinds of set pieces, from a musical instrument someone has designed to a piece of sculpture or perhaps a tapestry or hanging of some kind."

For a while, it looked as though the Tysons would become the first Canadian husband-and-wife performers to have separate shows simultaneously on two different TV networks. But Ian has recently indicated that he will not do a sixth season of his CTV series and will devote his time to raising beef.

Ian produced her debut solo album, Woman's World, which has just been released. It contains 10 songs she has written within the last eight years.

Show Designer Hates 'Ye Oldes'

Ont. (CP) — Maurice Strike, resident designer for the Shaw Festival, likes to design homes and is interested in town planning as well as theatrical productions.

In 1967, Mr. Strike, 30, came here from England to design sets for the Shaw Festival. He and his wife, Nancy, the former publicity director of the festival, have bought a home here and plan to restore it eventually.

The designer does not like current restorations of buildings in the town.

"What's destroyed Niagara Falls is creeping into this town, like the snack bars, fudge shops and the 'ye olde this and ye olde that," he said.

A restoration purist, who works closely with the noted restoration architect, Peter Stokes, Mr. Strike said he would like to be involved in community planning and restoration of city buildings.

The problem, he said is that artists are never invited to act as consultants in town planning. He said that artists should be involved in community planning because their expertise and knowledge would benefit the community.

Having designed some of the best productions at the festival Mr. Strike has received critical acclaim for his work. His current Shaw productions include Pygmalion and Leaven of Malice, the Robertson Davies play.

A graduate of the Wimbledon School of Art, Mr. Strike's work has won awards, including the National Diploma in Theatre Design, the Royal Society of Arts Bursary and Fellowship, and the British Arts Council Designer's Award.

In addition to the Shaw festival he has designed major productions in British and Canadian theatres. He has just completed the sets and costumes for Eric Bruhn's National Ballet production of Copelia.

Among his Shaw productions, Mr. Strike said he felt his best ones were: The Philanderer, Too True to Be Good, Forty Years On and Heartbreak House.

"There should be a focus in the sets, whether it belongs in the traditional, romantic or contemporary scene," he said. "The artist and director must have a point of view.

"Designing is like a fire, it has to be fed. It's distressing when a director doesn't feed back."

Between theatre design jobs, he works on restorations with Mr. Stokes. One of his current projects is the restoration in Cobourg, Ont., of Victoria Hall, which he describes as one of the finest buildings of its kind in the province.

Dottie West Covers 25,000 Miles a Year

VARNEY, Ont. (CP) — Dottie West, one of North America's top female country singers, said she travels across the country so that she can sing all she wants. Covering close to 25,000 miles a year she can be seen in both large concert halls and smaller communities.

According to Miss West, the bus is the "safest and best way to travel." Her bus has been outfitted with a king-size bed, a washroom, bunks for her group, Cross Country, and a listening room to keep up with the latest songs in the country music scene.

Her husband, Byron Metcalf, regular drummer in Cross Country, usually travels in the bus. They have been married almost two years.

"I don't like the really long tours," said Miss West, who travels for three or four days and then returns to Nashville for a few days.

"The longest one I was on was seven weeks and that was definitely too long for me," she said.

Aside from listening to new music on the long bus trips, she writes new songs and reads. She has composed 300 songs of which 100 have been published. One of her songs, Here Comes My Baby, was recorded by 52 artists.

Dottie West, often called Miss Country Sunshine, said being a singer is fulfilling a life-time ambition.

"My father was a fiddle player and I became interested in music while still a child."

Singing in church choirs soon led to writing and singing on records.

Some of the songs she is best known for include Country Sunshine, Country Roads, Paper Mansions and Delta Dawn. She blends hurtin' songs, up-beat melodies and slow music to produce her popular sound.

Miss West likes the way country music has changed during the last 10 years.

"It has changed for the better," she said. "More persons are buying the records."

The new sounds were started when Chet Atkins and Owen Bradley added strings and other instruments to their music. This was in the late 1950s and early 1960s, she said.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Fri Aug 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An unusual happening at work today wil' spur your optimism. Don't leave practicality out of the picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Taking chances or speculating will prove to be fun today. Keep it under control or large losses could spoil your fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'd be better off to avoid making promises to the family today. You'd be kidding yourself. You won't follow through.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Extra cash in yourpocket today could give you a false sense of security. It takes much hard work to bring in a good harvest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're unusually talkative today, but be sure you don't talk yourself into a financial bind and become a loser.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sudden windfalls could come from unusual sources. Don't spoil your joy by being obnoxious with the family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll behave more boldly in seeking what you want because, for once, you'll put your desires ahead of keeping peace in the group.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Just because you feel like a world-beater today, you'll think you're a financial wizard. Careful—your skill wanes in dealing with dollars.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll meet people today who can introduce you to new places and interesting people. Don't spoi' it by trying to take over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Changes are part of this day. Prepare to act on unusual opportunities or evening will find you brooding because you didn't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Get an early start. That's when the good things happen. Later you'll find yourself edgy with others over trivia.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unusual people will make your day interesting. You may feel, wrongly, toward evening that you haven't kept up with them.

Chest Cartilage Pain Explained

By G. C. THSTESN, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have what they call Tietze Disease, and have been doctoring three years for pain in my chest. A doctor finally told me that was what I had. The pain is terrible, and you would think you were having a heart attack.

The doctor put a shot of medicine into the area (around my right breast) and the pain has eased. Would you please explain this disease, how serious it is, and what can be done for it? I am 47 and in perfect health. I have had pneumonia and pleurisy.—Mrs. P. T. M.

This is a painful swelling of joint cartilage where a rib attaches to the breast bone, usually involving the second or third rib. It is also called costal chondritis, or Tietze's syndrome, after the doctor who described it (Alexander Tietze).

It is a fairly common disorder, yet one that is frequently overlooked since it can mimic other problems. Pain in the front part of the chest is the usual symptom, thus focusing attention on the heart. But it has nohing to do with the heart or the lungs. Certain chest movements, as in coughing or twisting, will aggravate it.

The cause is not known, but it is thought that an injury in the area may be a factor.

The injection you had was mostly likely hydrocortisone into the joint space. Heat and simple pain killers usually help, and hydrocortisone will give prompt relief. You may require other injections later on if the pain persists.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68 years old. Three months ago I had a prostate operation and everything went fine. My questions are: Will I be able to perform sexually? How soon after the operation would it be safe to have sex? Does the sperm go back into the bladder, and if so, are there any complications?—J. W.

Removal of the prostate gland in itself should not affect your sexual potency. A recent study showed that in such surgery seven out of 10 patients resumed normal sexual activity Desire remains as does ability. In cases where these seem diminished, the problem is usually psychological.

There can be confusing aftereffects. For example, in some cases the seminal fluid will not be ejaculated through the penis.

Since you ask about the bladder, I assume your doctor has told you that your particular prostatectomy would have this result. The seminal fluid can be discharged in the other direction—into the bladder. This does no harm and does not interfere with sex enjoyment.

In all of the above, I make references to prostatectomies alone, and not procedures that involve removal of testicles also. This is sometimes done in cancer patients.

As to your question about timing. If there were no complications you should be able to resume normal sex activity at will. Your doctor should be consulted on this, however, because timing can vary from patient to patient.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had the German measles and at the same time I was two months pregnant. All of my doctors told me of the chances of having an unhealthy baby. So my husband and I agreed to the abortion.

The specialist who performed the abortion said that the miscarriage rate for the first three months after an abortion is very high. Is this so or not? I want to become pregnant again as soon as possible. Is there any chance of the measles affecting a new baby?—N. V.

Deferring pregnancy for from four to six months would be wise. After this period of time, your organs and other structures essential to a healby pregnancy would have returned to normal.

The risk of German measles affecting the fetus is greatest when it is contracted during the of pregnancy, and this is why your doctors suggested the possibility of fetal damage in your two-month-old pregnancy.

Having had the German measles will not affect subsequent pregnancies.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Lancelot the peerless was unhappy with both the dummy and the bidding. Dinadan, the worst player and knight, had about as much right to jump to three diamonds as he would have had to challenge Lancelot to single combat.

Of course, if spades broke Lancelot had 13 easy tricks. Seven diamonds would be a cinch against 4-2 breaks in that suit and spades, except that Dinadan would have been playing it.

Anyway, Lancelot was in seven notrump and had to do the best he could. He took dummy's ace of hearts and rattled off four diamonds while chucking his lowest heart.

West let the six of hearts go on the third diamond. He paused a long while before making his next discard and finally let a small club go.

Lancelot saw light at the end of the tunnel. He ran off clubs and sure enough West had been squeezed again on the last club. A heart discard would give the peerless two heart tricks; a spade discard would clear the whole spade suit. Might had triumphed again.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader wants to know if after the bidding has gone, one notrump — pass — three notrump — pass — pass — pass, would you double with: ♠ 7 4 ♥ A 3 2 ♦ A 6 2 ♣ Q J 10 9 8?

The answer is an unqualified yes. They may make the contract, but you can't wait for sure things. Furthermore, it is possible that your partner will produce a trick and your three clubs and two aces will leave them two down. YOU WOULD NOT DOUBLE WITHOUT THE LEAD.

Doctor Offers Wine as Medicine

PARIS (Reuter) — If you are feeling feverish, then reach for a bottle of chilled dry champagne to help your temperature go down.

If you have a touch of bronchitis, a good pick-me-up is a cup of steaming hot bourgundy with sugar, lemon peel and cinnamon added.

As for gout sufferers, you have a wealth of choice—try four glasses a day either of Sancerre Pouilly or an Alsatian wine.

Those are just three of the highly original aids to recovery suggested by Dr. Emmeric Maury, a sprightly homeopathic physician aged 73, whose slim 134-page book Treat Yourself by Wine (Edition du Jour) has become a best-seller in France.

It now is in its third printing and the doctor explained why.

"Frenchmen, as you can imagine, are delighted to find a doctor who prescribes wine. It gives a boost to a patient's morale," he said.

The book chemically analyses cures for 72 ailments and Dr. Maury prescribes various wines for different illnesses.

Dr. Maury, whose crusade for the national tipple has resulted in 30,000 sales for the book, said, "Wine, far from being the harmful drink that people have wanted to call it, is for the human being the best and healthiest of drinks."

But, he added, "One condition should be fulfilled for our cause to carry the day—good-quality wine must be used. A good-quality wine drunk in reasonable quantities never does any harm to the organism."

His book starts with a flowery region by region description of French wines and he points out "this natural product contains about 250 chemical bodies."

Then he takes the reader on a kind of Gulliver's travels through the digestive tract.

The major section of the book takes a wide variety of ailments from hypertension to menopause and suggests the type of wine a patient could take as a useful addition to other prescribed medicines on the road to recovery.

Dr. Maury, with 45 years as a practising physician behind him, proudly quotes the example of "one patient who was constipated and tried my suggestion of four glasses of Vouvray a day. He's better now."

Not everybody has welcomed the book with open arms. Dr Maury sent a manuscript copy to the government - sponsored committee against alcoholism and "they told me I was a public danger. But they've done nothing since I published the book."

Alcoholism is a national scourge in France, killing more than 30,000 people a year and filling hospital beds to capacity. But Dr Maury refuses to cast wine as the main villain.

He explained "the juice of the grape is blamed for an infinity of bad things, starting with alcoholism and ending with crime increases and road accidents."

But, he added, "in France alcoholics come, above all, from the regions that make cider and eau-de-vie."

A Dog,s Life?

CHIETI, Italy (AP) — A municipal judge ruled that residents are free to walk their dogs wherever they want and ordered the town to pay the expenses of a dog owner who was fined for disobeying an ordinance barring dogs from certain historic areas.

LOVE CONQUERES ALL

OTTAWA (CP) — A young, frustrated couple walked into Ottawa city hall after being turned down from purchasing a marriage licence in the city clerk's bureau. When they had offered a cheque, they were told the $15 fee had to be paid in cash. Mayor Lorry Greenberg promptly took the cheque, pulled out his wallet and handed over the money. Then the mayor ordered that in future personal cheques be accepted. Credit cards, however, won't be.

Living Costs Climb

Food, Gas Boost Index

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher prices for food, as well as a special excise tax on gasoline, continued to push consumer prices sharply higher during July, Statistics Canada reported today.

The consumer price index rose 1.4 per cent in July, only fractionally less than the 1.5 per cent increase for June which ended a trend of relatively low monthly increases that started in January.

Food prices, up 2.3 per cent since July, accounted for one-half of the over-all index rise in July. Seasonally higher fresh produce prices, as well as pork prices that were 44 per cent higher than a year ago, were the main reasons for the food price rise.

Also a major factor in the July index rise was the special 10-cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline for private use announced in the June 23 budget. Statistics Canada says this tax measure was responsible for about one-third of the rise in the July cost of living.

The over-all index was at 186.5 in July, up from 184 in June.

In the 12 months to July, the index has risen 11 per cent.

Still to be reflected in the index is the effect of higher domestic crude oil prices that also were announced in the June 23 budget. This will add another five cents a gallon to prices for gasoline and other fuels later this month.

The Food Prices Review Board is predicting further increases in food prices later this year, although some of the food price rise in the July index was due to seasonal influences. The July index is based on a survey done in the first week of July, too early for many types of fresh produce to be on the market.

However, meat prices are expected to continue to rise and government restrictions on egg imports are pushing domestic prices higher.

The increase in the food component of the index during the 12 months to July was 14.8 per cent, well ahead of the over-all index rise of 11 per cent. In July alone, food prices rose 2.3 per cent.

Excluding food, the consumer price index during July was up one per cent and this was mainly because of the special excise tax on gasoline. Higher costs for housing, both owned and rented, also contributed to the increase.

Partly offsetting these higher costs were the effects of the removal of the five per cent sales tax in Ontario for North American-made cars as well as fractionally lower clothing prices.

Until June, when the index rose 1.5 per cent, consumer prices had been advancing at rates below one per cent a month since January. But the June and July increases have been the largest since May, 1974, when the index rose 1.7 per cent.

Statistics Canada said prices rose at the fastest rate during July since late last year.

The only major component of the index which declined during July was clothing; it was down only one-tenth of one per cent. Transportation was up 2.5 per cent and costs for recreation and education rose 1.5 per cent.

The consumer price index in July was at 186.5. Stated another way, this means that a basket of consumer goods that could be bought for $100 in 1961 cost $186.50 last month. The same basket cost $184 in June and $168 a year ago.

The purchasing power of a 1961 dollar had dropped to 54 cents by July.

Forest Fire Threatening Manitouwadge

MANITOUWADGE, Ont. (CP) — A 1,000-acre forest fire was burning out control today and threatening this community of about 4,000, the Ontario fire centre reports.

The centre said about 100 men, three water-bomber aircraft and two helicopters are holding the blaze about a quarter mile from the community. An emergency evacuation plan has been drawn up by provincial officials and police and will be used if the fire spreads.

The fire broke out Wednesday near the Billet Lake area, southwest of this community 250 miles east of Thunder Bay.

Terrorists Free Last of Hostages

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Japanese Red Army terrorists freed their final four hostages and surrendered to Libyan authorities early today, four days after they seized the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur.

Tight security measures were in force at Tripoli airport as the Japan Air Lines DC-8 landed after a 6,900-mile flight from the Malaysian capital, Libya's Arab Revolutionary News Agency reported.

The agency said all aboard the aircraft were safe. The flight took 15 hours, including a two-hour refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka.

The plane, flown by a nine-man Japanese crew, left Kuala Lumpur on Thursday with the five terrorists, another five radicals freed from Japanese prisons and the four hostages—two Japanese and two Malaysian government officials.

A Japanese foreign ministry spokesman in Tokyo, quoting a report from Tripoli, said ambulances and four or five cars pulled alongside the plane after it landed and the four hostages stepped out unharmed.

The spokesman said the terrorists and the freed radicals left the airport in three cars, but he could not say whether they were in custody or where they had been taken.

Libya said earlier it had agreed to allow the plane to land to help save lives.

Hope Cottagers Uncover Fugitive

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The intensive search for suspected murderer Donald Kelly will continue at least through the weekend, Insp. W.C. Craig of the Ontario provincial police said late Thursday.

DONALD KELLY

Insp. Craig told a news conference that police suspect Kelly may have entered a cottage or summer residence in the area and a clue to his whereabouts might turn up when people check their premises this weekend.

The inspector, who is co-ordinating the search efforts of provincial and North Bay police, said it is too early to weigh the importance of a $5,000 reward offered jointly by the province and the city for information leading to Kelly's arrest.

He said he believes Kelly is still in the North Bay area. Kelly spent his childhood in the area and the terrain is familiar to him.

Insp. Craig said there are other indicators that lead police to believe their search will be successful.

He said that to the best of his knowledge, Kelly has no money and at one point had to borrow change to use a telephone. In addition, the area is cordoned off, preventing easy access for anyone trying to help the fugitive.

Local People Grab Jobs

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — The unexpected entry of Elgin county residents into the tobacco-harvest labor market has thrown Canada Manpower's recruiting programs in Quebec and Northern and Eastern Ontario into turmoil, a local official of the agency said Thursday.

Harvest workers have been brought into St. Thomas by Canada Manpower to fill jobs which have unexpectedly been taken by local persons.

Nixon Claims PCs to Extend Regional Rule

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Liberal leader Robert Nixon warned Thurday night that there are more regional government plans if the Progressive Cosnservative government of Bill Davis is returned to office in an election expected this fall.

He predicted that there will be regional government in Ontario 'from one end of this province to the other in less than a year" if the Tories are returned to power.

Mr. Nixon said a Conservative victory would be interpreted by the the Davis government as a mandate to continue regional government."

Mayor Jeffrey to Skipper Bath Tub in Race at CNE

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey has accepted an invitation of the Canadian National Exhibition to be a competitor in the exhibition's annual mayoralty bath tub race.

Mayor Jeffrey said as far as she knows, she is only the second woman mayor to join the competition — an event won last year by Cambridge Mayor Claudette Miller.

The event will take place at the CNE waterfront Aug. 31.

Asked whether the race was a plug for International Women's Year, Mayor Jeffrey replied, "It's just for a good joke."

"It brings Belleville's name into the news," she said. "I love things like this to have fun."

Mayor Jeffrey said this event will rank with the excitement of pitching the first ball at two Montreal Expos baseball games.

CNE officials now are preparing a bathtub for the mayor to use in the event.

FBI Wants O'Brien to Face Lie Detector

DETROIT (AP) — The search for missing ex-Teamsters leader Jimmy Hoffa continued today with a cloud of suspicion settling over his foster son, Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien.

A source close to the investigation said the FBI had asked that O'Brien submit to a lie-detector test to back his contention that he wasn't involved in Hoffa's July 30 disappearance.

Anoher source said O'Brien admitted in an FBI interview that he was in the area when Hoffa, 62, vanished and then again the next morning at about the time Hoffa's car was recovered.

Hoffa's daughter said O'Brien, 41, and her father had not seen one another for seven months, and a source close to the investigation said O'Brien had "made peace" with Hoffa's bitter rival, Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons.

O'Brien, a Teamsters organizer who had been Hoffa's bodyguard for years, declined comment on the investigation, saying authorities had asked him to keep silent.

Special Services Director Named

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Don Lockyer, a former Queen Victoria Public School principal and educational assistant in Trenton, has been appointed acting superintendent of special services with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Lockyer replaces superintendent of special services E.T. (Ted) Morris who leaves this September for a one-year sabbatical in England.

Mr. Lockyer, 39, a Belleville resident, is returning from a year's sabbatical in Toronto where he studied at the Ontario Institute of Studies in Education. Mr. Lockyer is working towards a doctorate degree in education and filled his resident requirement year at OISE.

DON LOCKYER

He has had 12 years' experience as a principal and two years' experience as teacher at a Nigerian Teachers college.

In his doctoral studies, Mr. Lockyer is looking at the decision making process in a school system. He is attempting to discover the effects of the decision-making process on curriculum.

Mr. Lockyer hopes that his work can be applied to the Hastings County Board of Education as well as other school systems. He said the results may influence the kind of professional development that is currently practised.

As well as carrying on the responsibilities of a superintendent, Mr. Lockyer expects to be involved with the planning and co-ordinating of professional development.

Whites Seek Safety

Tens of Thousands of Refugees Reported Pouring Out of Angola

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Tens of thousands of refugees are pouring out of Angola on a "great trek" to safety from the violence-torn Portuguese colony where an estimated 5,000 people have died in the last year in fighting between rival liberation groups.

The exodus of white refugees is the largest from an African country since the bloodshed and chaos of the former Belgian Congo (now Zaire) in the early 1960s.

Abandoning their homes, farms and jobs, they are leaving by air, land and sea in a desperate bid to escape the growing bloodshed in what is potentially one of Africa's most prosperous countries.

Many have flown to Portugal but others are escaping in long convoys of cars and trucks to emergency refugee centres in neighboring South-West Africa.

Three rival African movements are fighting for control of Angola, which is scheduled to be granted independence on Nov. 11.

The three rival movements are the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, the Chinese and Zaire-supported National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the socialist nonaligned Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

Angola was home to about 450,000 whites before the collapse of the 500-year Portuguese empire last year following a military coup in April. An estimated 150,000 already have fled to Portugal on commercial flights from the Angolan capital of Luanda.

Portugal's national airline, TAP, has been unable to cope with the refugees. Airline authorities recently announced plans to use charter flights to help evacuate about 200,000 in the next three months.

However, thousands who are fearful that the airlift may never get off the ground have made their own plans. They are filtering south by car and truck to the more peaceful southern area of Angola.

An estimated 20,000 already are crowded into schools and exhibition halls in Nova Lisboa, the country's second largest town.

Hundreds are arriving there daily from other towns and villages to the north and Red Cross officials say the total may eventually involve more than 100,000 people.

South African authorities estimate about 20,000 persons are trying to reach South-West Africa, and that 2,000 refugees already have passed through the border town of Oshakati, including 1,000 last week.

After medical processing at Oshakati, the refugees are later moved to a camp in a 19th century fort at Grootfontein, about 200 miles south of the Angolan border.

South African officials say, however, the camp is expected to be filled to capacity soon and two more camps will be opened, one at Magaliesoord near Pretoria and the other in Transvaal province.

South African Minister of Interior Connie Mulder said the bulk of the refugees will be repatriated to Portugal in an airlift beginning in mid-August.

Quinte Man Enjoys Career in Nursing

By RON HUISER
Staff Reporter

How are you today? may be everyday question for most but to Bill Woodley, it is a question of his profession. Bill Woodley is a nurse, at Belleville General Hospital.

"A lot of people ask me why I became a nurse, but it was not an alternative to being a doctor," said Mr. Woodley.

"My main priority is to my family And being a doctor, I feel would take one away from family," said the fromer Picton resident.

Mr. Woodley is not a floor nurse, but is the nurse clinician.

The only other male nurse at the hospital Mr. Woodley said, is Ben Williams who works in the psychiatric department.

"The willingness to help people brought me into nursing," said Mr. Woodley.

Mr. Woodley said he finally made-up his mind when in high-school he took a bus trip to Belleville General Hospital.

"I saw the displays, and I decided then, I wanted to be a nurse."

At that time there were only a few hospitals which were training male nurses, until the community colleges took over operations.

"I chose Belleville to train because it was one of these schools and also was the closest," said Mr. Woodley.

After graduating from a three-year course in 1968, Mr. Woodley was taken on staff.

"I had a lot of activity in recovery, in emergency, and later in the coronary unit in 1973," said Mr. Woodley, who has been in his present postion for almost two years.

"The co-operation has been excellent all around. The doctors and the administration have been helpful getting me as far as I've gone," said Mr. Woodley.

Mr. Woodley said during his seven-year career he has had only one occasion when a sacastic remark was made to him, and it was on his first day of training.

The person was a young female nurse who was a patient, since then, Bill said, "I haven't noticed any controversy between male and female nurses."

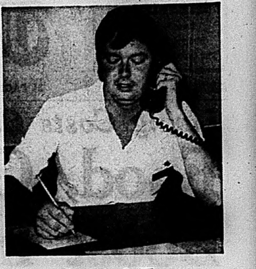
With the higher wages in nursing, Bill said, "I assume that males would be increasing in enrolment, but I don't have the figures to say definitely or not."

"I find the job very interesting. It is not at all routine," said Mr. Woodley.

The male nurse said, he "may go to university, and eventually try for an administration position in some smaller institution."

Mr. Woodley said he has taken two extension courses and is planning to take a hospital Administration Management program.

"I feel if one stays in one place too long, he becomes stagnet."



One of Two

Being one of two male nurses at Belleville General Hospital, Bill Woodley said there have not been any problems in his position because he is a man. A nurse for seven years, Mr. Woodley currently has the position of nurse clinician.

Successful Carnival

Lyne Chevrier, 10, buys some beads from her sister Ginette, 12, Thursday to help raise money for the muscular dystrophy carnival held at their home, 73 Lemoine St., in Belleville. The sisters, sponsors of the carnival, raised over $200 in the two-day event.

Pilot Nursery Program Opening This October

The First Adventure pre-school nursery program, the first in Ontario incorporating sessions for the emotionally disturbed, mentally handicapped and normal children, will open sometime in October, said Miriam Bishop, chairman of the school's board.

The program, funded by the ministries of health and community and social services, is probably the only centre with such dual funding she said.

"The dual funding allows us to provide more services for all the children," said Mrs. Bishop.

The school will operate in a renovated home at 225 Bridge Street and will have an enrolment of about 66 children.

The handicapped children will be integrated with the normal children, whenever the staff feels it could be beneficial," she said.

The normal children will also get special supervision not available in most nursery schools, she said.

"The psychologist and social worker on the staff primarily for the emotionally handicapped will be available for consultation and work with the normal child or multi-handicapped children," she said.

The school will be equipped with a see-through mirror window so the professional staff workers and parents can observe the children, she said.

The professional workers will not be actively involved with the children but will work in consultation with other staff members, observe the children and establish a liaison with the parent, she said.

The hospital speech pathologist will also be available for working with students with speaking problems, said Mrs. Bishop.

The program will probably run 11 months of the year with a month closing for vacation, she said.

"The basic concept of establishing all three nurseries in one location was the suggestion of the professionals involved in the various programs," she said.

The school will be staffed by additional workers from the Central Volunteer Bureau and the fee to the children for the half-day sessions will be $300.

Britain Finding Additional Coal

LONDON (CP) — Tre search for coal under Britain now is revealing recoverable reserves at the rate of 500 million tons a year. And with extraction running at 125 million tons a year, the industry aims to maintain total known recoverable reserves at 50 years' supply.

The National Coal Board chairman, Sir Derek Ezra, in his annual report, said it has long been known that Britain had reserves capable of meeting needs for hundreds of years—but it was not known how much was recoverable.

The new search now being made to identify recoverable seams was having "considerable success."

Sir Derek said he believes production in Britain can be increased to 150 million tons a year.

The United Kingdom has 246 collieries and is working 40 more coal faces than a year ago. Recruitment last year exceeded wastage for the first time in 17 years with the result that the industry's manpower total increased by more than 6,000 to 248,000.

Whereas the industry last year produced 115 million tons of coal from deep mines and a further 10 million tons by open-cast mining, the coal board chairman predicted that up to 120 million tons could be deep-mined this year with an additional 10 to 11 million-ton contribution from open-cast mines. He was also optimistic about maintaining operating profits, which last year showed a major upturn to 133,800,000 ($77.7 million) compared with a loss of £112 million in 1973.

Marmora Tory Base

Once a provincial election is called, the Hastings-Peterborough Progressive Conservative campaign headquarters will be located in Marmora at the Plaza Threatre, Hastings MPP Clark Rollins announced Thursday.

He also announced Kenneth Smith of Tweed will be his campaign manager, Don McNevin will be the party's financial agent and Carl Bateman and Keith Brown will handle public relations.

Trenton Tie Inevitable Says Study Team Official

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Willingly or unwillingly, Trenton will loose its separated statis and be "dragged" into a county structure, Donald King, commissioner of the Northumberland County government restructuring study team said Thursday.

Mr. King predicted such action in light of a strong belief he maintains on the eventual end to the separated status of cities an dtowns in Ontario over the next 10 to 15 years.

At present, however, which county — Northumberland or Hastings — Trenton will be tied into is unknown.

The commissioner told a public meeting audience of about 30 that the town's associations, both historic and financial, are with Hastings. But he said the situation could change, depending on a decision by Trenton council.

If Trenton retains an interest in the current Northumberland County study, he will recommend that Trenton "very seriously consider being part of Northumberland County".

It would be up to Trenton council to respond, he said, predicting that any move towards the county wouldn't come over the next two or three years.

He said a decision would be made after Trenton has seen a simillar government restructuring study in Hastings, one that he expects soon.

Until then, and although he senses interest in the current Northumberland study, Mr. King said he feels the town was sceptical and wanted proof of benefits.

He noted what he called a normal "human attraction" to be a big fish in a little pond rather than the reverse. "There is some feeling in Trenton that Belleville is a big brother "and that " who needs a big brother?"

His assessment of Trenton's options in Northumberland were prompted by questions from Trenton councillor Pete Aziz, who with councillor George Greer, attended Thursday's meeting.

The meeting was termed disappointing by Mr. King, who said he had expect additional comments from area council's on briefs several had submitted to the study team.

Trenton brief, not made public by the commission but through town offices, was not discussed.

It outlined a desire by Trenton to acquire 2,100 acres in Murray Township between the Bay of Quinte, Highway 401 and the Wooler Rd. The acreage represents 72 per cent of the town's present size.

The brief is one of about 40 the commission will study before recommending in December changes in the structure of local government in Northumber land.

King Says Too Much Dependence Placed On Provincial Grants

BRIGHTON — Commissioner of a study of government restructuring in Northumberland ounCty, Donald King says local governments have neglected planning and control over development in the past.

Planning, "looked upon with horror by some" will become the most important local government function in the next two or three decades, Mr. King told close to 30 people at a public meeting here Thursday.

He was commenting on weaknesses he said he sees in government as it now is structured.

Northumberland County he said, can't afford to ruin Rice Lake, or pollute the Trent River, or lose control of Lake Ontario waterfront property.

Some form of planning must be undertaken to stop such potential hazards, he said.

A second problem he said he sees in the functioning of government — village, township and county — is the dependence municpalities have on grants from Queen's Park.

"It makes the job of setting priorities difficult" and leads to "fragmentation" of government in that it is difficutl to assess where responsibilities lie.

"One real bind" local governments have is in spending, Mr. King said. For every dollar a municipality spends, the province contributes a specific, and depending on the nature of the expenditure, and different amount. Conditions on the expenditure makes a councillor's job frustrating and complex.

He said he feels frustration may keep good candidates from standing for office and lead to a low voter turnout.

In Northumberland, 60 percent of the 43-million estimated as total 1975 expenditures for the county's 16 different local governments comes from Queen's Park. Provincial funding ranges across services such as police, planning, road networks, and administration.

Regional Co-operation Key Says Whitley

TRENTON — Trenton business man and candidate for the Conservative nomination for Quinte riding, Doug Whitley said today he sees a continued co-operation between Trenton and Murray Township over the town's land needs and says no involvement by Queen's Park is necessary.

"We've always been able to get the land for housing or industry," he said, and predicted Trenton's ability to continue to do so.

He said he is opposed to regional government and that he believes regional co-operation is the answer to Trenton's land needs.

The Trenton insurance agent spoke today after Thursday's reception for nomination convention delegates and alternates here. He said about 125 people attended the reception at the Trenton Country Club.

"We need regional co-operation, not regional government," he said. Regional government "is costly, cold, and you end up with a bevy of civil servants running the show" with a corresponding decrease in the responsibilities of elected officials.

It destroys the identity of communities," Mr. Whitley said.

He predicted an "uphill fight" and a "horse race right up to the wire" in the present two-way contest between himself and Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey for the Quinte riding nomination. The convention will beheld at Trenton High School Monday.

Citizen Reward Growing

TRENTON — Downtown businessman Doug Whitley said Thursday he expects a fund from which rewards will be handed out for information leading to the conviction of vandals in Trenton to grow to $1,000 by the end of August.

His comments came after the announcement a fourth Trenton merchant has pledged $100 to the kitty, now totalling $400. Bertie Shinton of the Twin Elms Motel Ltd. on Dundas St. East added the $100 Thursday.

Mr. Whitley has actively sought pledges from merchants following what he called repeated "crazy" destruction of property by vandals downtown.

The Trenton insurance agent started the fund in mid-July after a glass door in a building he owns was smashed. In the following week, two other businessmen volunteered $100 donations.

He offered the reward to anyone who helped police arrest and convict a vandal.

Mr. Whitley said that once the $1,000 is collected a committee will be formed to oversee the distribution of reward money.

Recreation All Wet

Students participating in the Youth Activities Centre in Picton this summer Thursday discovered a car wash is an ideal way to raise funds while keeping cool. Supervised by Connie Trumble, co-ordinator of the Activites Centre, a group of teens including Kerry Reynolds, 13, joined in washing cars on the Market Square.

Discussing a Change

Trenton councillor Geroge Greer (left) discusses the town's role in the Northumberland County government restructing study with Robert Whitelaw provincial liaison officer with the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernment affairs in Brighton Thursday. The two men were among 27 people who attended a public meeting of the restructuring commission.

Sewage Plant Addition To Cost Over $1 Million

PICTON — Picton councillors this month studied three tenders submitted by firms bidding to construct an addition to the town's water pollution control plant.

Lowest tender was that of Hadovick Construction Ltd. of Port Credit at $848,223. Completion time for the work was estimated at 65 weeks.

Second lowest bid of $890,609 was submitted by Harold L. Stark Ltd. of Oshawa. It was estimated the work would be completed in 60 weeks.

High bid was $944,828 was a completion time of 60 weeks.

The engineering consultants' firm of Totten Simms and Hubicki Associates Ltd. had advised council to accept the low tender of Hadovick Construction and at a recent council meeting a report of this recommendation submitted by the public works committee was received.

Total cost of the project including the cost of engineering supervision, property acquisition, legal fees and interim financing is estimated at $1,020,000.

The town of Picton contributes one-third of the total cost or about $340,000.

The Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation contributes loans of two-thirds of the total cost or about $680,000. About $170,000 or 25 per cent of this amount is a forgiveable portion.

Before expansion of the pollution control plant can begin plans must be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

After improvements have been made it is expected the plant will be equipped to treat more than one million gallons of effluent daily. Currently a total of about 540,000 gallons can be handled.

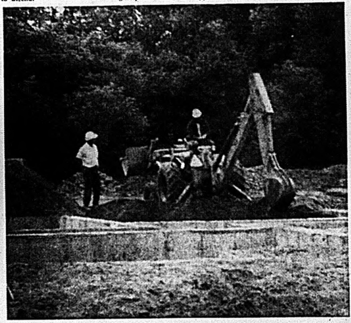
Hockey Time Again

WELLINGTON — Try-outs for the Wellington Midget Hockey club will be held at Sunday, Aug. 10 and 17 from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

All players interested in trying for the team are urged to attend.

Seller 'Stuck' Winning

TORONTO (CP) — Jarrold Organ, a university student with a job at Toronto's Greenway Raceway was working the $10 parimutuel window when a customer asked for an exactor ticket on the last race. Organ punched the ticket but made a mistake on the horses' numbers. The customer asked him for a new ticket and Mr. Organ was stuck with the other. The horses on his ticket came home first, and second. His winnings: $3,501.



Housing Project Starts

Construction of additional senior citizen housing units has started in Picton this summer. Workers this week are breaking ground for the Ontario Housing Corporation accommodations on Mary Street. A total of 69 units will be constructed at a cost of approximately $932,000.

Borrowing Bylaw Passed

PICTON — Twon councillors this week passed a bylaw to authorize the borrowing of money on a debenture to provide funds for improvements to Picton's water works system.

A total of $290,000 will be raised by the debenture and it will be repaid over a 20 year period at an interest rate not to exceed 11 per cent.

Improvements on the water works system already are in progress.

District at a Glance

Track Meet Aug. 15

PICTON — A track and field meet sponsored by the Picton recreation and parks department will be held August 15 at Picton fairgrounds.

Gold and silver medallions will be offered as prizes for participants.

Registration may be made at the recreation and parks office in Benson Hall, DeRoche Sports World, the Activity Centre or the County Centre.

Committee Plans Carnival

PICTON — A penny carnival with a cowboys and Indians theme will be held at Benson Hall Tuesday, Aug. 12, sponsored by the Picton recreation and parks committee.

The carnival will feature games, prizes, Bingo and a dance. Admission is one cent.

This special event will be opened by a parade leaving Picton fairground at 6 p.m.

Township Won't Pay

MARMORA — The municipality cannot be responsible for the financial loss incurred by the killing of greese and goslings by a fox, Marmora and Lake Townships Council has decreed.

Township evaluator Charles Leonard reported recently he had been called to the farm of Maynard Connolly, RR 2, Marmora, to inspect the damage.

Mr. Connolly will be advised by letter than according to Ontario statutes, the municipality is only liable when livestock is killed by wolves or dogs, unless the municipality has a bylaw covering other cases. Marmora and Lake does not have such a bylaw.

Road Work Delayed

MARMORA — A start on the boundary development road between Marmora and Lake Townships and Belmont and Metheun Townships is being held up because the purchase of four small lots in Belmont Township needed for widening the road is still not completed, Marmora and Lake Townships Council learned recently. Officials have been unable to locate the owners of the four lots, the engineering consultants advise.

Early Payment Suggested

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships Council approved suggestion by clerk-treasurer Mabell Gawley recently that half the Hastings County levy be paid now in order to earn some interest.

Property taxes have been coming in well, Mrs. Gawley reported, and she said it may be possible to pay either the remaining 50 percent of the county levy or the school board levy by September 30.

A letter from Carl E. Bateman, Hastings County Administrator, asked that payments to the county be made twice instead of four times a year as in the past. Most municipalities had adopted a semi-annual system for the collection of taxes and it had been decided the county should follow suit, Mr. Bateman explained.

LIP Project Suggested

MARMORA — Several possible projects were suggested and Marmora and Lake Townships Council will be giving some thought to others which could be carried out next winter if an application for a Local Initiatives Program grant is approved.

Information on the LIP and a suggestion that the municipality make application before the deadline of September 12 was received in a recent letter from Jack Ellis, Hastings MP, through Mr. Ellis stressed there is no guarantee Marmora and Lake's application be approved

A proper office and living quarters for the caretaker of Booster Park and snowmobile trails were considered as possible projects.

Cyclist Hurt In Mishap

WELLINGTON — A Wellington man was treated and released from Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Thursday morning after his bicycle collided with an oil truck at the intersection of Main and Beach streets here.

Injured was Charles Broadbridge, 66, who received cuts and bruises in the accident, which occurred at about 8:30 a.m.

river of the oil truck was Milt Dulmage, 20, of Picton. Damage was estimated at $10 to the bicycle.

Earnings Down 27 Per Cent Reflect Slump in the Forest-products Industry

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

When things are good in the forest-products industry, they [illegible]y good.

And when they are bad, they're horrid—which is the word to describe the business in 1975.

In an industry as cyclical as forest products, sharp fluctuations in sales and earnings are a familiar pattern.

When times are prosperous and demand is high, the industry pours millions of dollars into the task of expanding its productive capacity.

Then when there's a slump in demand—as there is at the moment—the industry finds itself saddled with costly excess capacity.

Industry-wide earnings totalled $65.1-million in the first three months of this year, down 27 per cent from $88.7-million in January-March, 1974.

Early returns for the first six months indicate a continuance of disappointing results—in sharp contrast with last year, when sales and earnings were a record.

The drop in the value of the Canadian dollar during the past year (from more than -1.03 U.S. to less than 97 cents should have helped, since major sections of the forest-products industry set their prices in U.S. dollars.

In general, however, the impact of the worldwide recession has offset any improvement in the foreign-exchange market.

For example, George Weston Ltd.—one of the world's largest conglomerates—reported that income from operations of its forest-products division was only $2.3-million in the first six months of 175, down sharply from $14.4-million in last year's first half.

"Recovery of both pulp and fine-paper sales will remain closely tied to the general economic siatuion, says chairman W. Galen Weston, "and the rate of recovery remains uncertain."

The newsprint section of the industry has been able to ride out the economic storm—so far—because some publishers have been stockpiling newsprint in anticipation of future strikes.

But stockpiling normally leads to cut-backs in orders, and depressed markets. That point may have been reached now.

The lumber and building-materials section of the industry, on the other hand, has been in trouble for the past 18 months as a result of the continuing decline in house-building activity both here and in the United States.

Forecasts put this year's housing starts in Canada at about 190,000, down from 222,000 last yea4 and 269,000 in 1973.

In the United States, starts have been running 40 per cent below last year's annual rate of 1.4-million starts, which in turn last year and 269,000 in 1973. 2.1-million.

A mid - year survey of public and private investment intentions, by Statistics Canada, has put full-year 1975 spending on new housing at $6,304-million. That's 6.1 per cent less than had been forecast in a similar survey of spending intentions six months earlier, and 9.6 per cent less than 1974's actual investment.

The forest-products industry has cut back its own capital-spending intentions for this year to $228.6-million—10 per cent less than it had been planning to spend at the turn of the year, and down more than eight per cent from its 1974 outlay of $249.2-million for new construction, machinery and equipment.

One manifestation of the industry's belt-tightening has been a resolve to resist what are considered excessive wage demands at this year's round of contract renewals, and to accept the resulting confrontation with labor.

The Image of Summer

Summer is where it's at, as the saying goes.

And where else but the beach, other than in air-conditioned office comfort, is there escape from the uncommon heat?

One hears of rowdism in camp areas, but in this drowsy weather, on the sand, there is nothing but tranquillity. Adults, in all their myriad shapes and hues, bare-chested young men and pretty, lissome, girls catch the eye. Individuals in the crowd.

As the sun goes down and the press of people thins out, a travel folder scene may emerge as some lass with golden hair and elegant carriage, a young Adonis maybe by her side, all unknowing as they skirt the water's edge, impinge on the consciousness.

At the park entrance, the staff girl in the green uniform had noted the old 1974 season ticket and wondered why it had not been renewed. The driver told her he thought he and his family would be making fewer visits this year. But that was reckoning without the blistering summer of '75, and day fees fast eating up a season's ticket cost.

One thing is sure, it's a summer to remember, when days get shorter, and colder — and that time still some way off.

Busy Days at Market

For all the heat, summer crops look healthy and these are active days at Belleville Market.

The familiar names are there: Kleinsteuber and others from across the bay; Don Carter from Stirling, Gordon Rupert from Frankford.

And, as one passes through those areas, the mail boxes identify the hardworking farmers and the fruits of their labors.

There are the wayside produce stands too and because of the arid weather the sprinkler systems are hard at it.

If there is anxiety about good farmland being lost to industry and urban development, there are some areas that surely will always be devoted to the products of the earth. Both Hastings and Prince Edward counties are rich in farmland and it is difficult to imagine such areas otherwise in the future.

There would not be much of a living in such enterprise though were it not for the canning plants and the supermarkets which take large quantities of what is grown on area farms. The agricultural industry is one which quietly goes about its business and if it should ever be otherwise we can start worrying.

Ghosts of Expo 67

A sunny, beautiful day in Montreal. At the site of Man and His World. A place familiar, yet virtually empty. Empty? Peopled by ghosts . . . the memories of 1967.

Gradually though the place comes to life, the fountains are turned on, people start to arrive, and another day in this Montreal masterpiece and symbol of the driving genius of Mayor Drapeau comes to life.

Here are China and Russia with large and fascinating displays. A blue uniformed Chinese girl helps a Canadian nun in a wheel chair up some stairs. Two worlds, two beliefs, united by common humanity. Iran, which is doing a lot of trade with Canada these days, has a fine pavilion too, leaning mostly to the artistic, and symbolic of its ancient civilization. Here too are hostesses from the homeland, in plain peasant-style dresses. They chat with each other, for the public in this latter-day Expo is not inordinately quizzical, but they have an eye for youngsters and then their dark eyes sparkle. Suddenly, the raison d'etre for continuance of Man and His World, the unity of people, and brotherhood, takes on real meaning.

By early afternoon the place is alive, not in the way of 1967 but nevertheless alive. Folk dancers whirl outside the Czech pavilion. The sun shines, the flowers bloom and one of the great tributes to man's creativeness again puts its best foot forward.

Viewpoints

Peterborough Examiner

There is unsettling evidence that radioactive waste emerging from the Port Hope nuclear power plant is transported carelessly to dumps where it is a hazard to people and animals in the area. The Atomic Energy Control Board has investigated, printed a report on what it found, but has told us only part of the story. That's obviously not good enough.

Smoking: Some Reverse Psychology Can Help When It's Time to Quit

Health for All

How about a new message on cigarette packs? "Warning: Stopping Smoking Can Be Beneficial to Your Health."

Using precise texts to measure lung capacity, Dr. Frederick Bode at McGill University in Montreal studied smokers before and after they stopped smoking. The results were astonishing. As soon as six weeks after stopping, there were measureable improvements in lung function.

The subjects' ages range from 29 to 69 years. They were long-time smokers. The shortest time any had smoked was 13 years. The longest was 46, almost a half-century.

Before they stopped smoking, seven of the 10 subjects had coughed on arising in the morning. Furthermore, the cough lasted for months every year. Six coughed up sputum. Four of the subjects admitted to wheezing, although none had asthma.

After they stopped smoking, the picture changed almost overnight. Only one person had any trace of a persistent morning cough. None coughed up sputum. And wheezing disappeared for everyone.

The sensitive tests used by Dr. Bode also confirmed that there had been a reversal of the lung damage—blockage of the small breathing passages—done by smoking.

The benefits of quitting can come quickly. And they are usually permanent. Other experiments, in fact, indicate that staying off cigarettes for 10 years forces smokers down to the level for non smokers.

'No-frill' Flights Popular With Travellers in U.S.

The Christian Science Monitor

The picture of enthusiastic passengers toting their sack lunches onto "no-frill" flights is an encouraging one.

Airline fares had been increasing all too steadily in recent years, and with the current economic crunch, consumers seemed finally to have had it. The point came when they cared less about "free" meals and drinks than they did about affordable transportation, and ticket sales showed it.

It will be some time before airline official know whether discount air service pays off, but initial indications are that many passengers wouldn't have flown at all at regular prices. Happily, stewardesses report that "brown-baggers" are picking up after themselves.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 8, 1955

A short vicious gale came through Belleville recently hurling down tree limbs and causing extensive damage in residential areas, and momentarily cutting power supplies to sections of the city. The wind, which registered up to 60 miles an hour in Trenton, whipped through city streets shortly after 2 p.m., hitting the business district during the rush hour. Sand currents made it necessary for pedestrians to seek cover. Hydro lines were snapped in several city streets while some thoroughfares were blocked by fallen tree limbs and power wires. Heavy falling branches caused damage to houses, cars, and bicycles. One fire was started as a T.V. antenna was ripped off the roof and hit a 4,000 volt hydro line. Immense damage was done even though the wind lasted for only five minutes.

40 YEARS AGO

August 8, 1935

Extension of hydrant service was completed this week with the installation of four new ones. They are placed near the old canning factory, on William Street near the bowling green, at the end of Bleecker Ave., and near the corner of West Moira and Everett Streets.

50 YEARS AGO

August 8, 1925

Three quarters of a million dollars is represented in boats at the races which start this week on the bay. Sixty-eight sailing and forty-seven power boats are leaving for Massassaga. Judge J. Wills is Commodore of the Yacht Club and one of the race officials.

Personal Identity in an Era of Mass Communications

Royal Bank Monthly Letter

Individuals seek to find meaning and a sense of responsibility in their existence, but they are likely to feel, even in a democratic society, that they are losing their identity in an age of mass communications, mass production, mass culture and mass everything.

Canada, like many other countries, has entered a period in which the majority of its citizens have come to entertain new expectations about the things they should have a chance to do and the place they should rightfully occupy in planning their society.

We are moving into a new kind of world in which, as Edith Hamilton wrote in The Greek Way to Western Civilization (Mentor 1948): "It is not men's greed, nor their ambition, nor yet their machines; it is not even the removal of their ancient landmarks, that is filling our present world with turmoil and dissension, but our new vision of the individual's claim against the majority's claim."

Not so many centuries ago—and in totalitarian societies of the present century — an individual had no rights at all if a common purpose or a political objective conflicted.

Then a new idea arrived: that every human being had rights. Since then every generation has tried in its own way to make the inner world of the individual fit into the ever-changing frame of the outer world, but it is difficult. As Sam Levenson said in his book In One Era and Out the Other (Simon and Schuster of Canada, Ltd. Markham, Ont., 1974): "I spent so many years of my life learning how to make ends meet. Now that I have the means, they have moved the ends farther apart."

Back of every deed and behind every great movement there is an individual.

The priority of the individual is unchallenged in a truly democratic society. The conviction behind the ideals of democracy is that the value of all human arrangements must be measured by what they do to enhance the life of the individual.

However, the population of Canada is about twenty-three million, and twenty-three million individualists can create a lot of chaos. It is, then, necessary to give some guidance to individuals so that the urge of their individuality meshes with the constructive ambitions of the nation.

What we need in a democratic country are individuals who live responsibly with their fellows while following standards they have set for themselves.

Every person has unique powers that must not be melted down in the collectivist pot of a managed society. If organized as a single unit directed by a general staff at Ottawa or as a complex of units with supervisors in the provincial capitals, Canada would develop a herd complex. The monolithic state might not be a genial shelter except for the weak and the incompetent.

U.K.'s Anti-inflation Plan Wins Economist's Support

Kitchener — Waterloo Record

Three weeks is hardly long enough to judge that the Labor government saved the British economy and ensured the survival of the nation with its incomes policy to control wages and prices.

However, within that short time some significant changes have occurred in the mood of the people and the action of the Wilson government has won the complete support of the most famous of present-day economists, Canadian-born John Kenneth Galbraith.

It should not be surprising that Labor's initiative drew this favorable response, since Galbraith has for some years argued that some controls were essential in the world of international industrial gaints.

And he went unusually far with his praise. He said that the formula worked out by Prime Minister Wilson, Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey and union leader Jack Jones to counter inflation would be copied by other nations and would, furthermore, last for ever.

As the general mood, there are indications that the reality of the danger has finally gotten though to the British people. In a way somewhat reminiscent of reaction to the more dramatic crises of the past, the reality of the present danger and the long-awaited government initiative have apparently sparked a new and more co-operative spirit.

Despite these encouraging signs, it would be dangerous to assume that the victory is all but in the bag, that the wide public support and unprecidented joint action by government, unions and employers guarantees that the flat rate wage increase and 10 per cent price boost ceilings will work and that support will continue.

Nevertheless, the absence of the kind of stubborn union reaction which wrecked previous attempts to curb disastrous practices does indicate that, for the next few months anyway, this threat will be dormant.

Rent Increases Hurting

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The gouging of tenants by landlords is reaching disgusting proportions, even for a free enterprise society.

Apart from being shafted in the matter of rent increases, tenants are being harrassed by landlords who know little or care even less for the provisions of the Landlord Tenant Act.

Housing Minister Donald Irvine started to make commiserating noises sometime back which appeared to be recognition that these bandits needed to be controlled. After all, his federal counterparts were very strong on controls.

Now Mr. Irvine stands revealed for the gutless politician he is. His suggestion that Landlord Tenant review boards be set up might have some meaning if there were to be any form of power. As it is these token boards will be powerless to touch the Landlord banditry.

Of course, Mr. Irvine is well aware that some of the biggest and most influential of the landlord class in Ontario are also fairly generous contributors to the Tory slush funds. It's not good policy to bite the hand that one feeds from.

So, as the Progressive government of Ontario has so often done in the past, it has talked about, but will not implement a much needed piece of legislation. In the meantime, many unfortunate people will either be forced from their homes or driven to desperation to keep a roof over their heads. So much for the "Progressive" in the Tory appellation.

Pressures in Education

Editor:
The Intelligencer

Education in the Seventies will be the story of a battle on two fronts. There will be conflict from without Education and from within Education. The forces grinding down on Education from without are largely political in nature. These political forces envision some politicial currency in continued attacks on Education. Education is painted black to represent a social evil while the political speculators play the role of the "good guy". The political weapon will be the continued use of the Ceilings on Educational Spending to disguise wage controls on Teachers' salaries. The politicians look the other way when Teachers attempt to negotiate compensation for the losses due to inflation and call the Teachers' demands "unreasonable".

An article published in the Toronto Star on May 3, 1975 highlighted the doubles-standard which legislators apply to wage increases. Some recent increases secured by Legislators were as follows, calculated since 1970: Federal MPs (92 per cent); Quebec MNAs (65 per cent); British Columbia MLAs (140 per cent); Nova Scotia MLAs (92 per cent); Manitoba MLAs (100 per cent); Saskatchewan MLAs (108 per cent); and Prince Edward Island MLAs (163 per cent).

During the same five year period the salary of a Metro high school Teacher had increased only 19 per cent. The teachers negotiated their raise but the politicians only had to legislate their own pay increases.

Teachers face a more serious problem than the misguided economic witch hunt propagated by some transient politicians. The very serious problem is manifested in the conflicts within Education. Teachers are divided on few basic issues. Some teachers feel that large amounts of money should be expended immediately in an overt effort to gain political power. This is a somewhat revolutionary path for Teachers. Perhaps the war chest will be used immediately, perhaps not. Other teachers feel that the aims and objectives of teachers are best met by a covert campaign to infiltrate the opposition in order to seize political control through evolutionary means. Either tactic, thought, requires that teachers continue to set high standards for admission to the profession and that militancy be encouraged at every level. Also teachers must unite to raise the economic rewards of the profession for, at the moment, teaching does not offer wages high enough to make it competitive with other sectors of society.

Wintario Ticket Is 65484

KAKEBEKA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Winning tickets for the two grand prizes of $100,000 in the Wintario draw Thursday were 65484 in series nine and 17.

There were 34 prizes of $10,000 for holders of tickets numbered 65484 in any series other than nine and 17.

There were 288 $1,000 prizes for holders of tickets whose final four digits are 5484 in any series.

Prizes of $100 went to holders of 2,916 tickets whose last three digits are 484 in any series.

Total prize money in Thursday's draw was $1,119,600.

The next draw will take place in Kenora, Aug. 21.

Guard Doubled

TORONTO (CP) — Another guard has been added at the nuclear generating station at Pickering, Ont., doubling its security per shift, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said Thursday.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-High Park) said Tuesday that he made an unannounced visit last week into the plant while carrying a satchel and visited the spent-fuel bay where used radioactive rods are stored under water.

One guard at the vehicle entrance and the other in a corridor of an adminstration building will prevent anyone from entering without being seen, Mr. Timbrell said.

Locked Out

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Most of the engineers at the power projects division of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) were locked out Thursday for participating in a protest walkout Wednesday.

The protest was the latest move resulting from deadlocked contract talks between AECL and the Society of Professional Engineers and Associates. Negotiations broke down July 22.

Cuba Air Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Cuba and Canada have reached tentative agreement on the first air accord between the two countries, it was announced Thursday. A transport department official said it is expected that Cuban aircraft will be allowed to land at Ottawa and Montreal while the Canadian airline designated by the federal government will be permitted to operate to Havana and Varadero. Airlines operating on these routes will be allowed to fly groups on scheduled flights at rates close to low air charter prices. ..

Offer Canvassers

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Status of Women Council volunteered Thursday to supply some canvassers for this year's United Way campaign if Planned Parenthood of Toronto is reinstated as a member of the fund. Council chairman Laura Sabia said the council offer serves as a replacement for the Catholic Women's League which said it would not canvass if Planned Parenthood remained. The volunteer agency gives birth control information and abortion counselliing.

Hydro Checks Ash

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro lacks the staff and money required to study means of burning coal more efficiently at potential savings of millions of dollars yearly, the Ontario Energy Board was told Thursday.

Officials of Hydro's operations branch said monitoring of fly ash from its coal-fired generating staitons has been stepped up because of sharp increases in coal prices.

They said tighter procedures at Toronto's Lakeview generating station had succeeded in reducing the carbon content of the fly ash from 11 per cent to about seven per cent, but there had been no study of modifications to plant or equipment aimed at further reductions.

Inquiry Asked

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — Labor Minister John MacBeth has been asked to establish an advisory committee to inquire into an 11-month strike by employees of Telso Products Ltd. of Tilbury, a manufacturer of toilet seats.

The United Steelworkers of America, Local 8222, said it requested the advisory committee, which would be the first of its kind under recent amendments to the Labor Relations Act.

Swim in Nude

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Island residents say crowds of male nudists are embarrassing families and scaring away swimmers at Hanlan's Point beach.

And a Metropolitan Toronto police spokesman said the department is concerned.

"It's the only trouble spot on the whole island and it's quite an active place," said Insp. Thomas Cooke. "Many people, and especially parents, are embarrassed by what they see."

He said more summonses for indecent exposure are being handed out this year, but the charge is often hard to prove.

Of the 62 persons given summonses in the last few weeks, only three were women.

Sales Tax Rebate May Cover Imports

TORONTO (CP) — After a rebuke from Prime Minister Trudeau, complaints from the European Economic Community and a pending court case, Premier William Davis said Thursday the Ontario cabinet may consider extending the five-per-cent sales tax rebate to foreign-made cars.

However, the premier and other cabinet ministers defended the tax rebate on purchases of North American cars which went into effect July 7 after the government's supplementary budget. The rebate policy is to last until the end of this year.

The announced intention of the rebate is to spur car sales and stimulate the automobile industry and thus give a boost to employment figures. However, the province has drawn sharp criticism from several quarters over the measure.

Outside a cabinet meeting Thursday, Premier William Davis, Treasurer Darcy McKeough and Revenue Minister Arthur Meen all defended the rebate, while attacks continued from Ottawa and abroad.

Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday chided the province for usurping federal jurisdiction in the matter. He told reporters he has asked Mr. Davis to remove the rebate, which averages about $175.

But the premier said he feels the rebate is stimulating auto sales and helping the province.

Mr. Davis said he hasn't talked with the prime minister, but feels that the rebate is not a federal responsibility, not a tariff, and that the province is justified in maintaining it.

However, he did say the cabinet may consider extending the rebate to foreign-made automobiles.

There have been grumblings recently from Common Market and Japanese spokesman threatening possible retaliation against Canada if the rebate is not dropped.

Japan and the EEC say the measure violates the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT).

But Mr. McKeough said other signatories of GATT have, on occasion, manipulated tariffs for short-term ends.

Revenue Minister Meen said suggestions that the rebate will harm international trade are far-fetched.

Games Reason RCMP Head Stays on Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Next summer's Olympic games and the Marin inquiry report, expected this fall, are among the main reasons RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon's term has been extended for an additional 18 months, to Sept. 1, 1977.

"There are a number of other projects they'd like me to see through," Commissioner Nadon said in an interview Thursday night, referring to Prime Minister Trudeau, who announced the extension earlier in the day, and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand.

Among them are probably a frontal assault on organized and corporate crime, a developing commercial crime squad and fundamental changes in the RCMP security service.

Troops Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen announced Thursday that Canada will keep its troops in the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) in the Middle East for an additional three months. He said in a news release that the government has "responded positively" to a UN request that Canada remain part of the UNEF until Oct. 24.

Toronto Court Hears Secretary's Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Crown lawyer Morris Manning told an Ontario Supreme Court judge Thursday that the province is entitled to lift its five-per-cent retail sales tax from certain consumers.

The province is opposing a request by Beverley Phillips, 21, a Toronto secretary, for a rebate of the $152.15 she paid in sales tax when she a bought a new Japanese-built Toyota car July 17.

She was denied the rebate because the car was made in Japan.

Toyota dealers have joined Miss Phillips in asking Mr. Justice Allan Goodman, of the court's trial division, to declare the regulation providing for a rebate null and void.

The rebate was introduced by the provincial government last production.

Mr. Manning argued that the Ontario cabinet has been given ample authority to pass the regulation because the Retail Sales Tax Act sets a plan to collect revenue.

"The legislation clearly intended the rebate to mean something different from an exemption," Mr. Manning said. "The purchaser pays the tax. She still has to apply for the rebate. It may be granted. It doesn't have to be granted."

Mr. Justice Goodman asked: "Why make fish of one and fowl of another just because a buyer has a car made in North America and another has a car made outside North America? It makes one wonder what the intent is."

Mr. Manning said the sales tax does not prevent cars from coming in to Ontario.

"It discourages them from coming in," Mr. Justice Goodman said.

Mr. Manning said the government has the power to give rebates to stimulate local economy and manufacturing.

"Toyota dealers say they can't compete," said Mr. Justice Goodman.

"They say they can't make as much money as before—an important distinction," Mr. Manning replied.

The hearing continues today.

Planning Policy Not Yet Ready

TORONTO (CP) — It will be at least two months before the provincial government's planning policy for Ontario is ready for release, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

Preparation of a province-wide plan, first promised for release last November, has been under way in the treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs ministry for about a year.

The plan will designate primary and secondary growth centres throughout the province to help take pressure off Metropolitan Toronto.

Thunder Bay, London, Kingston and Sudbury are being considered as primary growth centres.

Unilateral Action Means War

Trudeau Wants Sea Control Extended Through Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that Canada will press for exclusive economic control over coastal zones of at least 200 miles through world agreement rather than "taking the law into its own hands" and risking war.

Arguing against a unilateral declaration of control over continental shelves extending 200 miles or more off East and West Coasts, Mr. Trudeau told a news conference that Canada has more to gain by working through the continuing United Nations sea-law conference.

"Canadians at large should realize that we have very large stakes indeed in the Law of the Sea Conference and we would be fools to give up those stakes by an action that would be purely a temporary, paper success," he said.

"We would have to go to war to impose our unilateral action if we couldn't negotiate it in an acceptable way."

The Fisheries Council of Canada, representing the fishing industry, and others have called on the Trudeau government to declare jurisdiction over coastal zones of at least 200 miles and to the edge of continental shelves for management of fisheries, minerals and pollution control. Canada currently claims jurisdiction over a 12-mile zone.

Iceland, which has served notice that it will extend its fishery-control limit Oct. 15 to 200 miles from 50 miles, has urged Canada to take similar action.

Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson, in Western Canada with Iceland President Kristjan Eldjarn celebrating 100 years of Icelandic settlement, said a week ago in Ottawa he hoped Canada would take unilateral action.

Canada and other countries have pushed for agreement on a 200-mile zone at successive UN sea-law conferences. Those talks are due to resume in New York next spring.

Mr. Trudeau said those who advocate unilateral action are guilty of shortsightedness.

"We still find it better to get mulilateral action and international recognition of that law of the sea rather than to act unilaterally, following which—because we don't intend to go to war with half of Europe by seizing their ships—we would have to sit down with them and negotiate with them the terms on which they would leave our waters. .."

Canada was asking "a devil of a lot of things" in special coastal concessions at the sea-law conference from other countries, some of which have centuries-old fishery traditions off Canada.

The special treatment sought includes recognition of rights even beyond 200 miles when the continental shelf is wider—it runs 400 miles farther off Newfoundland.

Canada also wants international recognition of Canada's claim to a 100-mile pollution-control jurisdiction in the Arctic as well as acceptance of the Northwest Passage through Arctic waters as Canadian territory.

In addition, Canada wants a say in control of salmon stocks that breed in Canadian waters but are fished elsewhere in the Atlantic and Pacific by other countries.

$100 for Gas

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Brad Farrar has a hundred reasons to be happy.

The 12-year-old youth sold a man $8.50 worth of gasoline this week at his father's service station.

The man asked whether Brad had change for a $100 bill and when the youth said no, the man gave him a $100 bill in United States currency and told him to keep the change.

"I asked him if he was crazy, but he said: 'No, just rich,' " said Brad. "He had a whole wad of $100 bills."

His father, William, said the bill did not appear to be counterfeit.

Pipeline Ruling Due Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board (NEB) will decide today whether to adjourn hearings into an application by TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. of Toronto to increase transportation charges on natural gas.

The hearing opened Wednesday and lawyers for Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Shell Canada Ltd. and the Canadian Petroleum Association (CPA) argued Thursday that the hearing should be postponed to October. The request for postponement was opposed by TransCanada and six smaller natural gas distributors.

PM Says His Tax Case Involves Many Dollars

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Thursday he stands to save "many hundreds of dollars a year" if he wins a dispute over property taxes on land he owns in the Laurentians near the new Mirabel Airport.

Mr. Trudeau told a news conference he was displeased personally by the choice of the Mirabel site because it was close to his 632-acre wooded property near Seize-Iles Lake north of Montreal.

He said he did not gain financially and does not stand to gain from the choice of the new Montreal international airport site about 25 miles from his property.

"The Mirabel site was chosen for all kinds of reasons," Mr. Trudeau said. "Some of us indicated a displeasure on a personal basis."

He said he, like landowners everywhere, wants other such facilities to be "as far away as possible from the jumbo jets."

He rebuked reporters for quoting officials in the municipality of St. Adolphe D'Howard as saying that his property tax dispute involved an overpayment of only $8.

In fact, he said, he would have save hundreds of dollars annually if he wins his case against the municipality in which his land and small cottage are loctated.

An official in Mr. Trudeau's office later refused to provide details of how much is being claimed in overpaid taxes. The dispute began last March when Mr. Trudeau wrote to the municipality saying he was being taxed at more than the rate set by Quebec law for farms and woodlots.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters the land holding was a private estate and would only be considered a commercial investment if he sold it or the lumber from it.

"It is the only property I own in Canada and I am pleased to have it," he said.

Placebos Are Useful

OTTAWA (CP) — Placebos, or medicines given patients to humor rather than cure them, are coming back into wide use after almost 20 years of disfavor says one expert.

"They have a place treating an illness that is in whole or in part psychological, but they do pose ethical and moral problems," said Dr. Ian Henderson, chairman of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) committee on pharmacotherapy.

Indian Problems, Not Threat Important Issue Declares PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The social and economic problems of Indians are more important issues than the threat of native militants amassing arms, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

Referring to a recent RCMP paper on terrorism in Canada, the prime minister told a news conference:

"It isn't the arms aspect which is the most important one. It is that these people have a real grievance and they have a right to see it solved."

The RCMP briefing paper for delegates to the coming United Nations international crime conference in Geneva said that "Red Power" native groups seeking better treatment from society are a "principal threat to national stability."

The main aim of these groups is not to overthrow the government but "equitable treatment by society, satisfaction of native land claims and social and economic rights," the report said.

Mr. Trudeau said it is wrong to accuse the government of doing nothing to deal with Indian grievances.

The government had proposed in 1969 that native groups be integrated but not assimilated into Canadian society. This path had been rejected by native organizations.

The government was involved in discussions of land claims with Yukon natives and was trying to get talks going with British Columbia groups.

James Bay Indians received financial support from the federal government in their "fight with the Quebec provincial government," he said. That fight was over land claims for the vast James Bay power project.

Big Drug Seizure Is Made in North

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Six persons who were arrested at Oba Lake north of the city Sunday in a police raid, said to involve the largest haul of drugs in Canada, were granted bail Thursday.

In a lightening raid by airplane, police from five different forces landed on the backwoods lake about 215 miles north of the city. Drugs said to have a street sale value of $10 million were seized at a tourist resort on the lakeshore.

Alan George Templain, 35, his wife Diane, 32, Lynn Barbara Deveaux, 23, and Morris Steven Kenny, 25, all of Wawa, Ont, Joseph William Valois 23, of Hawk Junction, Ont., and David Lloyd Patterson, 23, of Toronto were charged with conspiring to traffic in a narcotic.

At the bail court hearing Thursday, before George Piper, justice of the peace of Sault Ste. Marie, Alan Templain was granted bail for the amount of $50,000; Patterson and Valois were granted $15,000 bail and Kenny and the women were granted bail for $10,000. All were remanded to August 14.

Two more persons, Charles Paul Jones, 25, and Bernard Joseph Guindon, 33, both of Toronto were arrested Wednesday in Toronto and will appear in bail court here today.

Datsun B-210 Hatchback

WE PUT A LITTLE "Z" SPIRIT INTO EVERY CAR WE BUILD.

Take the Datsun B210, for instance. Like all Datsuns it's got spirit you can feel. Spirit that starts with driving pleasure and smart styling and carries right on through to the low sticker price and high gas mileage.

The same engineering expertise that built the Datsun "Z" goes into every B210 we make. It's there in the snug, reclining bucket seats, and functional dash. And you can feel it in the sure-footed stopping of the power-assisted front disc brakes, and the smooth performance of the B210's synchromesh four-on-the floor or optional 3-speed automatic.

But best of all, the B210 has the Datsun spirit of economy, the typically high gas mileage of all Datsuns. In fact, no other car in Canada gets better gas mileage than a B210. It's proved in U.S. EPA tests, and you can prove it for yourself on the open road.

So feel the Datsun Spirit. Test-drive a B210 at your Datsun dealers' today.

THE DATSUN SPIRIT... FEEL IT.

Home Care: 'Insulating Costs Recovered in Fuel Savings Within Five Years'

By SHARON AIRHART
Women's Reporter

If there's a ¼ inch opening along the bottom of your front or back door, you may as well have a nine square inch hole in a wall when it comes to heat retention.

Heat will pour through that gap and any others in new and old houses, drastically reducing the ability of your home to retain heat and keep you warm. Not incidentally, it will cost you money and cost the nation resources.

Where are the most common heating problems located in an old or new house?

Most heat escapes through the ceiling of a home. Older homes likely have a two or three inch mineral wool batt. By today's standards you need a bat about six inches thick with a Resistance value of 20. (Resistance value or R describes the insulating properties of various materials of varying thickness. It is best to buy insulation by R-value, not thickness.)

The ceiling is the easiest place to add insulation in your home and makes the greatest difference. Ceiling insulation alone in an uninsulated home can reduce fuel consumption by 30 per cent or about $300 a year in an average home using an oil furnace.

The walls of a new home should be insulated to R-12. Older homes with little or no insulation in the walls are harder to deal with because the walls are already closed in.

Windows and doors account for a major heat loss in homes. Your home should be fitted with double glazed or storm windows. The storm windows should fit tightly and be sealed and caulked at the start of the heating season.

When you're attempting to determine the resistance value of your home before making changes, remember that the building materials in your home offer some resistance to heat.

The insulating fibreboard, wallboard and airspace of a relatively new home add up to an R-value of about R-2½; and R-.42 for brick or 1.25 for soft wood siding, .91 for hard wood siding.

How do you add insulation to an older home?

In the ceiling you can pour loose fill insulation into the ceiling joists. It comes in pellet, fibrous or granular form and is made from glass, rock, slag, paper or expanded mica. Since it does not have a vapour barrier, a barrier must be added where none exists.

Bat and blanket insulation is made from fibres of glass rock or slag. Pre-packaged bundles of four foot long pieces are sold and come in standard widths designed to fit snugly between joists. It is sold with or without vapour barrier attached.

Insulating the walls and ceiling of a new home or the ceiling of an old home, you need only a pair of gloves and a long sleeved shirt and a soft pair of running shoes.

Ontario Hydro, which has available an excellent booklet called Insulating Your Home, says you should be sure to protect your skin from glass fibre particles.

In an older home lay new batts without vapour barrier right over the old batts. Be sure ventilators are clear for air circulation.

You can also build up the existing insulation by using loose fill poured into place and smoothed with a garden rake or board. Make sure the loose fill covers the top of the ceiling joists.

In an older home you can improve heat retaining qualities by insulating floors over unheated basements or crawl space. They should be insulated to a resistance value of seven and 10 respectively.

Is insulation really worthy of it?

Experts estimate that the cost of insulation will be recovered in fuel savings within one to five years.

The difference in heating cost between a house without insulation and one with R-20 in the ceiling and R-12 in the walls is probably about $600 in one year.

Hydro's Experts Can Advise You

Whether you use ground up paper, styrofoam or glass fibre insulation, you should insulate.

In fact, according to Walt McMillan, of Ontario Hydro, no one would even think of building a new house without proper insulation.

While the rate for electric heat has actually gone down since its inception, prices for fuel oil have doubled in recent years and other fuels are up, too. No matter what kind of heating you have it's going to cost you more this winter.

The amount of insulation you have largely determines how much fuel you use, but according to Mr. McMillan, there's no way to judge the Resistance Value of the insulation of an existing home.

Resistance value measures the ability of a material to turn back heat.

If you're building a new home, Ontario hydro technicians will look at your house plan and for $20 do a heat load calculation. That will give you an idea of the ability your new home has to retain heat — and save you money.

Walt McMillan of Ontario Hydro

Summer Check Benefits Farm Homes

The amount and distribution of insulation in heated buildings, including the farm home, should be checked this summer to give you an opportunity to purchase additional insulating materials or make arrangements for installation while materials and contractors are available In some cases, redistribution of insulating material, particularly in the attic, can be a worthwhile effort at a relatively low cost, according to agricultural engineers with the Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Specific timing is critical for buildings housing livestock and poultry so that installation can be planned to avoid disruption of production schedules.

With the cost of all forms of heat energy increasing, it makes sense to invest in additional insluating materials. In most cases the cost of adding insulation will be recovered in one to five years. And, just as important, less fuel will be consumed.

Fuel costs can also be cut by reducing unnecessary air infiltration and heat loss through windows Seal unnescessary windows with removable insulated panels or double glazing. Double glazing can be accomplished very economically by using clear centers. Crackage around windows and doors can be sealed with caulking compound or weather stripping which are readily available and easily installed. Heat losses through windows are high.

Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food extension personnel, Ontario Hydro customer service staff, building contractors and material suppliers are all available to offer assistance.

Saving energy saves money and leaves more energy available for all of us next year.

With blanching equipment in the background, here are some of the popular vegetables that end up in local freezers: Corn, which must be throughly blanched (up to 10 minutes in boiling water) before being cooled, drained and frozen; tomatoes, which freeze best if slightly stewed first; and green peppers, which need no blanching, but can simply be cored, cut in strips and placed in plastic bags.

How Much Do You Know About Energy Conservation?

Test your knowledge of energy conservation by taking this quiz prepared by Ontario Hydro. You can rate your score on the wise and efficient use of electricity.

Allow yourself 5 points for every correct answer.

Answer by checking A, B, C, or D, or answering TRUE or FALSE.

1) An uninsulated home obviously consumes more energy for heating than an insulated one. But, how much more heating energy will the uninsulated home use during a winter?
A) About the same
B) Twice as much
C. Three times as much
D) Seven times as much

2) A filter on the average furnace — using any fuel — should be checked
A) Every week
B) Once a month
C) Every six weeks
D) Once every heating season.

3) How much insulation should a ceiling have for efficient winter heating conservation?
A) 3"
B) 4"
C) 6"
D) More than 6"

4) 2" of insultion in exterior walls of a home certainly saves on the heating bill. But how much will the 2" save?
A) None
B) 10 percent
C) 21 percent
D) 26 percent

5) Adding storm windows or double glass will cut window heat loss by
A) 5 percent
B) 20 percent
C) 50 percent
D) 59 percent

6) A hot water tap — dripping away at the rate of one drop per second — will waste how much hot water in a month?
A) 15 gallons
B) 32 gallons
C) 125 gallons
D) 175 gallons

7) A shower uses less water than a bath. Do you know how much hot water the average person uses when soaking in a hot bath?
A) 2 gallons
B) 8 gallons
C) 10 gallons
D) 16 gallons

8) True or False: Setting a thermostat at 70 degrees is just about right for the average household?
True
False

9) When cooking vegetables — energy and vitamins can be saved by using only a little water — about how much will be needed?
A ½ cup
B) 1 cup
C) 2 cups
D) 4 cups

10) Toast cooked in the oven (under the broiler costs less per slice than the same toast cooked in a toaster?
True
False

11) You should defrost your refrigerator under the following conditions?
A) Every week during summer
B) when ice begins to form
C) When ice is ¼" thick
D) Once a season

12) An oven should always be preheated before broiling?
True
False

13) A quick peek inside the oven will allow how much heat to escape?
A) 25 degrees
B) 50 degrees
C) 74 degrees
D) 86 degrees

14) There is a surge of power inside a bulb when the light goes on, therefore leaving them on rather than turning them on and off will save energy?
True
False

15) Fluorescent lights produce more lighting for the same energy. But how much?
A) Twice
B) 5x
C) 20x
D) 50x

16) Flat bottom pans and saucepans are the best for conserving energy in rangetop cooking?
True
False

17) Bright shiny pans allow faster cooking?
True
False

ANSWERS

1) B 2) B 3) C 4) D 5) C 6) D 7) D 8) True 9) A 10) False 11) C 12 False 13) A or B 14) False 15) B 16) True 17) True.

SCORE

75 or over: Very Conservation - minded — Excellent

50 or over: A good start towards energy conservation.

30 or over: Fair — check your home for the wise use of electricity.

Conventional Techniques Still Best for Freezing

Up to your ears in corn for freezing? Feel like just chucking it in the freezer, husks and all?

Then you've probably been delighted by the recent encouragement given this no-preparation freezing technique by Joseph N. Gelmon in his Toronto Star column, July 30. His readers have jumped eagerly at his recommendation that corn can be frozen this way.

However, cautious cooks who have thought to phone the Ontario Food Council have been given some opposing advice.

"Don't do it!" says Margaret Szeker, food specialist with this branch of the Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

"The council did tests on corn frozen without having been blanched," she says, "and we found that within two months the corn had an 'off' smell and no real 'corn' taste. In other words, it had started to go bad."

Ms. Szeker explains that blanching — in which the food is heated through with either boiling water or steam — kills enzymes that otherwise continue to exist, causing deterioration even as the food sits in the freezer.

"With corn, it's the cob itself that starts to go bad first, if the blanching process hasn't taken place," she explains. "The cob needs more than a minute or two — because the cob itself doesn't freeze well, and therefore must be cooked completely to kill the enzymes. If it isn't it will begin to spoil from inside, eventually changing the flavor of the kernels."

The no-blanch method is acceptable, for temporary freezing of vegetables that will be used within two or three weeks, Ms. Szeker says.

"There are exceptions to this rule, however., "in the case of green peppers, which should not be cooked before freezing," she says.

Although it has become popular to freeze tomatoes raw, and although their high ascorbic acid content makes it perfectly 'safe' to do so, the council still recommends a few minutes of stewing before freezing tomatoes. They can get tough and stringy if not heated thoroughly before freezing.

"In any case, tomatoes should be scalded and skins removed, since frozen skins are not particularly appetizing," she says.

Mr. Gelmon's recommendation that a cold water bath need not folow the blanching process is treated with some uncertainty by Mrs. Szeker.

"The reason I can't comment is that we haven't done tests using this technique she says. "Since his article appeared we've had several calls, but we're advising that people use the regular method until we have more information."

Joseph Gelmon's advice is to keep vegetables being blanched in boiling water for only a minute or two, and then to remove them to a paper towel, where they cool in the air as they drain. He says this method removes more water from the vegetables so that they are not made "mushy" by excess ice crystals when they are later defrosted. The method is faster and preserves flavor better, according to Mr. Gelmon.)

Because there is no cold water cooling after removal from the blancher, the vegetables continue to "cook" as they drain in the Gelmon method. This should ensure that the enzymes are killed. But there is no way of knowing for sure, says Ms. Szeker, since the process is less structured than the exactly timed hot-cold method that leaves no doubt.

There will be tests conducted by Agruculture departments during the next year to see whether or not this technique can be made more exact, according to Ms. Szeker.

"I wouldn't want to take the chance of doing vegetables this way in case they didn't keep well," she says. "But there's nothing 'unsafe' about it. 'You're not going to die from bad freezing as you might from bad canning, so you can go ahead and experiment.'"

Persons freezing vegetables this year may want to try the nocool method for one or two bags of vegetables, to try their own experiment. This way they'll have lost very little if these vegetables don't keep as well as their conventionally frozen ones.

"Bear in mind, when you're freezing garden produce," advises Ms. Szeker, "that if you can't buy an item the chances are that it is difficult to freeze, that's why you can't buy frozen eggplant or frozen zucchini at the store — they really don't turn out all that well."

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory MacKenzie

MacKenzie—Falls

Mark Street United Church in Peterborough was the setting for the July 26 wedding of Shirley Jean Falls and Gregory Lee MacKenzie.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Falls, RR1, Fraserville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira MacKenzie of Tweed.

Rev. Harold Wilson conducted the ceremony and Adam Hawley provided organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza lace gown appliqued with flowers and trimmed with pearls, featuring a high neckline, long sleeves, and a train. A floral headpiece held her short veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Julie Ireland of Peterborough who wore a pale blue gown embroidered with tiny flowers, with a jacket, ruffled collar and cuffs and long sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow mums and blue carnations.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Gordon of Peterborough and the groom's sisters, Joanne Thompson of Marmora and Heather Walker of Kingston They wore gowns in the same style as the maid of honor's, but in yellow, and carried nosegays of yellow mums and white carnations.

Robert Shears of Perth was the groom's best man. Serving as ushers were Michael Heaney of Toronto, Paul Cournyea of Toronto, and David Falls of Ottawa.

A dinner and dance reception followed the wedding in the Lion's Centre in Peterborough.

After a wedding trip to northern Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie have made their home at 839 Tallwood Drive, Peterborough.

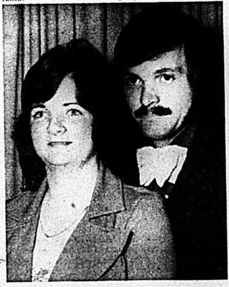
CONFESSIONS OF A SNEAKY ORGANIC COOK

By Jane Kinderlehrer

Jane Kinderlehrer is a writer and Broadoway producer, food columnist and magazine editor. She is also a wife and mother who attributes the health of her family, now and in years past, to her "sneaky" health food habits.

With good humour and a sense of adventure she added fortifying ingredients to her family's food while throwing out white sugar and white bread along with preservative-packed foods she believes are not healthful.

Her book, published by Rodale Press and available in the Corby Library, is a light-hearted yet information-packed tour though the necessary vitamins complete with tips on preventing illness through good nutrition and a recipe section devoted to such topics as giving a healthy party and well-balanced dieting.



Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Ted McGuinness are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Kathleen Ann to Brian Charles Gerald Beaudrie, son of Mrs. Pearl Beaudrie, and the late Gerald Beaudrie. The wedding will take place Saturday, August 30 at 4 p.m. in Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville.

Social Information For Brides-to-Be

Engagement announcements should be brought to the main desk of The Intelligencer from 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Those without photographs cost $4, and those with photographs cost $8.70.

Wedding notices should be brought to the women's desk upstairs at The Intelligencer, between 8.30 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays, or from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Information about weddings should be set down on wedding forms available from either the main desk or the women's desk. here is no charge for the description of the wedding, but a charge of $4.70 is made for reproduction of a photograph.

Black and white glossy photographs are recommended for the best reproduction in the newspaper. If, however, you have only color photos, bring the negative so that it can be used to make a black and white print.

Ann Landers

Poorly Behaved Children Turn Them Off Parenthood

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to comment on the letter from "Upstate, N.Y." complaining about today's children being poorly behaved. Your reply suggested he was out of line, but my experiences and feelings concur with his completely.

I could tell stories you wouldn't believe—including one about a 10-year-old boy who ran stark naked through each and every dinner party his parents had.

The mother of this nutty kid would respond to the gasps and arched eyebrows with, "I hope no one here is offended by the sight of a child's beautiful body."

Then there was a neighbor who had the nerve to come over here and holler at me for telling his children not to scream and rough-house in our yard. He said it was a free country and they could play anywhere they liked, and besides, our yard was nicer to play in than theirs—more grass.

When I married nine years ago I assumed we'd have children but we've been completely turned off by what we've seen.—Old Witch, Age 30

Dear Witch: If you'd let a 10-year-old streaker and a loony father deprive you of the job of having a family, then YOU'RE nutty.

Can't you see it's the parents who are to blame, not the children? Wake up and smell the coffee, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for the person whose weirdo father kept getting married a lot. She was afraid she might end up with six sets of in-laws.

Here is what an Internal Revenue Service publication says: "Once the relationship of father-in-law, mother-in-law, son or daughter-in-law, sister or brother-in-law, has been established by marriage, they will not be terminated by death or divorce."

So, please tell the worried lady that she may well end up with a longer wedding list than she had planned.

Since the original letter concerning this matter was signed, "Who's Who?" please sign mine—Who Cares?

Dear W.C.: A lot of people care but I'm glad you wrote because the I.R.S. is one thing and who you invite to a wedding is something else again.

I see no reason to invite several sets of relatives by a variety of marriages unless there is some emotional attachment. The way this gal's father is behaving, she'd have to include the immediate world.

Dear Ann Landers: School will be starting next month and I hope you will say something to boys—ages 15 and 16. They are the worst.

Their manners are awful. The treat us girls like we were guys—pushing and shoing us around when we try to get on the bus.

There's this girl Mitzi who has her leg in a cast and is on crutches. Do you think one boy on the bus had the decency to give her a seat? Forget it. A GIRL finally let her sit down.

All the kids read your column. In fact it's the main topic during lunch period, so please say something.—Ashamed To Print My Town

Dear Ashamed: These guys need to grow up. And they will, in time, I promise you. Soon the'll discover that girls aren't just soft boys. Suddenly they'll become civilized—and even thoughtful and considerate. Just you wait and see.

Dear Ann Landers: I do not agree with your notion that people who don't drink have an advantage over those who do. No way.

For health reasons I can't touch a drop of alcohol. For many years it didn't bother me. I thought I was better off without it. But suddenly I'm the oddball. It seems like these days people won't take "no" for an answer. They just bug you to death to have a drink. When you refuse, they consider you some kind of freak.

Then there's this problem of being the only one who is sober when everyone else is plastered. The profanity, the pinches in the fanny and the off-color jokes would seem funny if I weren't stone-cold sober.

The worst of it is when we get home after a party and my husband says, "You were sure a stick-in-the-mud—a real wet blanket." It really hurts, Ann. Sign me—Dry Is Dullsville

Dear Dry: When you see your letter in print, I hope you'll recognize the flaws in your thinking.

You don't owe it to anybody to "have a drink." And your friends have no right to pressure you.

Moreover, anyone who thinks they have to put up with profanity, off-color jokes, and fanny pinches is patheticall insecure. The fact that you'd like to get stiff so you could accept behavior that is offensive when you're sober should tell you something about yourself.

That husband of yours sounds like a real winner. People who must get their jollies out of a bottle are a pretty sad lot. Stop feeling sorry for yourself, Toots, and start to feel sorry for THEM. They need it.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice might work for some but it didn't work for me. You praised "Brown Eyes" who took her errant husband back when he discovered "the sample was ample." (She reported he has been a perfect husband ever since.)

Well, "the sample" WASN'T ample for my tomcat and now he has decided he wants to buy the product. The woman is a tramp and was mixed up with two married men before she got hold of mine.

I'm sure he'll come back on his knees eventually, Ann. My question is, when he does should I take him?—Getting Ready

Dear G.R.: So the sample wasn't ample. I'm sorry. But how can I adise you when you give me no information? How long have you been married? Are there any children? How old is Lover Boy: How old are you? How old is "The Sample"?

When he comes back and you can fill me in on the details, please write again and I'll try to help you.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Sleepless Nights," the girl who was terrified by obscene phone calls, was sensible. You told her not to say a word—just hang up. May I make another suggestion that worked very well for me?

Keep an old-fashioned police whistle by the phone and when the creep calls, give him a blast that will crack his eardrum. I did it twice and I haven't heard from him since.—Love The Peace and Quiet

Dear Love: Thanks for the suggestion. It makes sense and I endorse it.

Fear of Cancer Is Deadly

EDMONTON (CP) — Fear of cancer may be almost deadlier than the disease itself.

Fear keeps people from seeking help when they notice unusual symptoms, so the disease gets out of hand. Fear and despair hinder treatment and eventual cure.

Research and new treatments are lowering the death rate from the disease, but according to those who work with the patients, the greatest aid towards a permanent cure is hope.

Dr. R. Neil MacDonald, medical director of Edmonton's W. W. Cross Cancer Institute, said giving patients the right mental attitude clearly affects the success of treatment.

"The patients who do particularly well have a positive outlock; those who remain depressed do not do very well," he said.

The word cancer still was equated with the word death. Current cure rates are not impressive. Half the patients treated died from the disease. Chances of a person contracting cancer at some point in life were one in four.

Christine Dorword, nursing supervisor in the Cross Institute admitting department, said the way a patient is approached when he first comes through the door can set his attitude throughout treatment.

"For instance, we often ask for the name of a close relative so that if I lose contact with the patient, their relative can supply me with a current address even as much as 15 years from now," she said.

"To a person who comes in here convinced he's not going to last the week, this one small detail can help to reassure him."

Dr. James Pearson, director of radiation therapy, said cancer treatment is bound up in people's concept of death and their approach to it.

"Why is it less shocking, less disgusting to die of a heart attack than of cancer?"

He said the negative mystique built around cancer and the people who treat it often means the difference between a successful treatment and prolonged ordeal.

Housewives' Register Prevents Boredom

TORONTO (CP) — Julia Strickley is not the kind of woman who wants to sit at home and watch day-time television. But neither does she think she wants a full-time job, as her children are still in school.

But doing nothing is not for her. As she puts it, "I had to do something or I'd go crazy."

Mrs. Strickley had read about a national housewives' register that existed in England and had heard of someone starting one in Montreal.

"I saw a newspaper mention of a similar group starting in Toronto and called them up."

Now Mrs. Strickley is national president of the Canadian Housewives' Register.

The group is basically designed to help women meet other women, especially those with small children or babies.

There are 16 groups in Toronto now with about 200 members.

In Britain, the association has 22,000 members. Mrs. Strickley went to its conference at Nottingham in March.

"I've found the register has really been a stimulating experience for me. You can get into a void, falling back totally on your family and their experiences. But what happens when the children are gone?"

Mrs. Strickley explained the group is a flexible one because the housewife's life is routine and the register tries to mix up programs and meet on different evenings and afternoons.

"Housewives go through stages," Mrs. Strickley said. "For a long time they spend most of their days looking after their children and husbands. When that's over, frequently the women have lost confidence in their ability to do anything else."

One thing the women do not do at their meetings is discuss domestic problems or swap recipes.

"We bring people in to discuss their travels or political problems," she said. "The group opens doors for women."

Home Visits to Help Homemakers

SASKATOON (CP) — A home visitors program has been set up here to teach homemakers how to do their job better.

Six full-ime staff, with a budge of $15,000, are going into homes with information on family living, homemaking skills and health practice.

The purpose of the program is to motivate the homemaker to make better use of personal and communiy resources.

Co-ordinator Carol Siggelkow said the project is the result of the realization of the lack of social services available to low income and elderly homemakers.

Often, she said these homemakers and families suffer because they are less inclined to take preventive measures and do not seek health care or participate in community health programs.

PROGRAM NEW

While homemaker services in the city provide child care and housekeeping for mothers confined to hospital, Miss Siggelkow said there was no previous program to teach homemakers how to do these things themselves.

"We do not intend to be housekeepers, but offer advice on nutrition, budgeting and diets."

Clients are referred to home visitors by social agencies, community groups, the department of social services and the three Saskatoon hospitals.

A large part of the casework already handled has been providing companionship for the elderly, and helping to budget old-age pensions.

Home visitors are not professional counsellors and in areas of family conflict such as alcoholism or dispute, can only offer suggestions as to the best resource centre for professional advice.

Young People Lead Fashion Designers

TORONTO (CP) — Much of what is interpreted as high fashion originates on the street, say designers who pick up style ideas from the young.

Stasia Evasuk, fashion writer for the Toronto Star, writes that "the young are great at achieving their own kind of look."

She noted that this summer in Toronto, the young have been wearing jazzy bright striped or patterned socks to liven up their outfits.

"And in the top designers' fall collections shown in New York recently, there were those same stockings worn by highfashion models with sportswear," she reported.

Miss Evasuk said that each season has its own brand of essentials that add up to a certain look.

"And it seems the odds-on favorite for cool dressing is the sleeveless little top baring the shoulders, which replaces last summer's let-it-all-hang-out bare midriff," she said.

"Young girls are wearing the sleeveless tops with pants and skirts," she reported, "and completing the look with a print scarf, choker necklace or pendant around the neck."

Miss Evasuk said that in hairstyles this summer, trends favor the "small head."

"Hair is cropped short, chignoned or wrapped in cotton, chiffon or silk scarves," she said. "Occasionally you see a girl on her lunch hour wearing a small-brimmed cloche or wide straw hat."

The fashion writer suggested adding a few roses to one side of the crown of a straw hat to give it a more feminine look.

And for what the young are wearing on their feet, Miss Evasuk said: "A lot of them still are hobbling along and even dancing on high platform-soled shoes which experts claim might not be good for them. But the young don't seem to care. They love them and that's all that matters."

New YMHA Director Breaks Old Barriers

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Michener, 23, represents another step in the break-down of ancient prejudices.

As physical health and education director of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association, she has a job traditionally reserved for men.

Director Irwin Soren said he knew of no other North American institution appointing a woman to this position.

"Leslie was simply the best applicant for the job and that was the only consideration," said Mr. Soren. "She has our full confidence."

When members were polled privately for their opinion on a woman director, some complaints were heard.

"We heard some gripes," said Phil Litowitz, chairman of the selection committee. "A few of the comments were unrepeatable.

"Almost everyone has been won over by Leslie's pleasant, forthright manner. She has tremendous vitality and can generate enthusiasm. She can relate to persons and get them participating."

From 40 applicants, the committee interviewed 11. There was only one woman candidate.

Discrimination at the Y has always been prohibited. Around 80 per cent of the membership is Jewish. The fact that Leslie Michener is a member of the Unitd Church did not matter, said selection chairman Mr. Litowitz.

"Hopefully, people will see me simply as a physical educationist," said Miss Michener. "The adjustment will be for those who have always been used to a male director."

Educated in suburban Agincourt, she has a degree in history and physical education at McMasters University in Hamilton. She said that although she has won recognition in track and cross-country running, field hockey is her favorite sport.

In her new position, Miss Michener takes over a staff of three, including directors in swimming, squash and handball, and badminton and volleyball. She also supervises co-educational fitness classes.

"Everyone should be aware of their fitness level, which can be tested scientifically," she said. "This tells them not only what they can do, but how they are progressing."

She said it does not matter who is directing, a man or woman. What is important, she stressed, is that the person is an athlete who can perform well while still looking esthetically good.

Myer's Cave—Named After Silver Site Nobody Can Find

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

MYER'S CAVE — There is a hamlet not 60 miles from Belleville that may have been living under a phoney name for more than 100 years.

It is Myer's Cave, presumably named after a hole in the ground that no one can find — although some are still looking.

No only that, the cave or settlement was named after the man who supposedly took a rich haul of silver out of it. That man was also the original settler of Belleville. Known to many as John Walden Meyers, but believed by some historians to have been Johan Waltermeyer, a Dutchman who fought with the British in the the American Revolution, later acted as a spy for them and eventually settled at the mouth of the Moira River. As more settlers joined him, the community became known as Meyer's Creek. Mr. Meyers had anglicized his name, but never did spell it 'Myer'', as in Myer's Cave.

Meyers' main activity was fur trading. He is said to have maintained depots at Ainwick on Rice Lake and at Stoco. He also established grist and saw mills at the mouth of the Moira. From his brickyard he built the first all-brick house in Upper Canada.

As a trader, Meyers had a lot to do with Indians in the area. Often he would trade for silver the Indians produced from an unknown source.

One story is told of Meyers greeting a canoe on the bank of the Salmon River. In it were his fever-stricken son, an inscrutable Indian guide and a canoe full of silver ore. The boy died in his father's arms, whispering only that he had left a hatchet in the crotch of an oak tree where he'd found the silver. The Indian would say nothing.

Later two Quinte pioneer families intermarried — the Meyers and the Bleeckers. Squire Bleecker, the fodnuer of Trenton, Married Meyers' daughter. About 1850 Squire Bleecker's son, John became involved with the silver legend.

One time, when out hunting with Indians — or so the story goes — he was asked to follow them. Mindful of the silver cave, Bleecker agreed. He was blindfolded and led many miles through the bush. When the blindfold was removed, he found himself at the entrance to a cave. He entered the cave and is said to have described it as "lined with silver, alive with small shimmering icicles of pure silver."

From that time on, Bleecker made a couple of trips a year into the bush alone. He returned with a sack heavy with silver. Later he would make a trip to Watertown, N.Y., where he apparently disposed of the contents of the sack. He was well known for his wealth, but never passed on the secret of his silver source.

Just after the turn of the century, according to a descendant of the Meyers family, an Indian named Comego promised John Maidens, a general storekeeper in Havelock, to show him where the silver cave was. Maidens had saved Comego's life in a brawl.

Ironically, the Indian drowned in the spring log run and Maidens never got the information.

As far as history, legend and lore indicate, there is no reason a small community just east of Cloyne off Highway 41 should be named Myer's Cave — or is there?

As lifelong resident Russell Brown says: "A lot of people think the cave is around here somewhere, but nobody has been able to find it — yet."

Daily Practice Routine Keeps Dancers on Toes

It's practice and more practice for the 33 students attending the two-week summer school at the Quinte Dance Centre here.

For the students, some of whom are entertaining ideas of becoming professional ballet dancers, the course is an opportunity to sharpen their skills during the intensive day-long curriculum they can't usually do when regular school is in session.

"There is much more progress made during the summer than the rest of the year, because of the continuity of lessons and the time spent daily with the students," said Brian Scott, director of the school and himself a former profesional dancer.

"Not many people realize the opportunity we offer dancers at the centre."

The school offers six separate classes instructed by Mr. Scott and guest teachers, Miss Joyce Shietze from Ottawa and Leonard Stepanick, who teaches in Kingston.

"There are many schools where the teachers have passed certification and are allowed to instruct up to the professional level but at the Quinte centre we can offer students the benefits of having danced professionally," said Mr. Scott.

Not all the students are professionally oriented, he said.

"Some of the students come to prepare for dance exams and are doing it for fun or just to stay in shape," said Mr. Scott.

Youths Found Guilty Of Assaulting Officer

Two Deseronto brothers will appear in provincial court Sept. 8 for sentencing after they were found guilty in Belleville Wednesday on charges of assaulting a police officer in the lawful execution of duty and failing to appear in court.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie identified the two youths Thursday as Gordon J. Barnhart, 18 and Francis Scott Barnhart, 17, both of RR 1, Deseronto.

He said there was a stay of proceedings on additional charges of creating a disturbance and petty trespass.

Chief Crosbie said the two youths were charged in connection with an incident May 9 when three young men entered the city police station and became noisy. They were ordered twice to be quiet and finally ordered to leave.

Sgt. Keith Wright eventually "had to use force to remove them from the building." Chief Crosbie related. One youth had left when ordered and was not charged, he added.

Chief Crosbie said the remaining two youths continued to make noise in the lobby and Sgt. Wright went out to arrest them for creating a distrubance.

A struggle ensued, he said, during which Sgt. Wright was struck three times in the face He said the first blow knocked the sergeant's glasses off and cut his nose.

Chief Crosbie said Sgt. Wright suffered other abrasions to his face and forehead. He was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

The failure to appear charge followed a scheduled court appearance in June.

Arsonist Sought

Police and fire officials are still investigating a weekend blaze set by an unknown person for an undetermined reason at Templer Flower Shop at 395 Front St. in Belleville.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says the fire occurred sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and opening time last Saturday morning.

The intruder set fire to several bags of insulation which were piled up, says Chief Crosbie. Fortunately, the bags fell to the floor and extinguished themselves, he adds.

A later incident at the shop has resulted in a charge of prowl by night being laid against a 23-year-old Belleville man.

He is identified as Daniel Arthur Higgins, of 74 East Moira St., Apt. 7.

Chief Crosbie says Constable Ed Cox was on his way home from work at about 1 a.m. Tuesday when he heard a noise at the rear of the shop.

Upon investigating, Constable Cox observed a man on the second floor fire escape.

Guns Still Missing

City police are still seeking a thief or thieves who broke into the residence of James Fox at 423 West Dundas St., in Belleville, sometime between July 10 and Aug. 1, and stole three guns valued at about $700.

Chief Douglas Crosbie says the three guns are a 36-inch long Ruger brown stock, a three-inch Browning automatic brown stock and a 20-gauge shotgun.

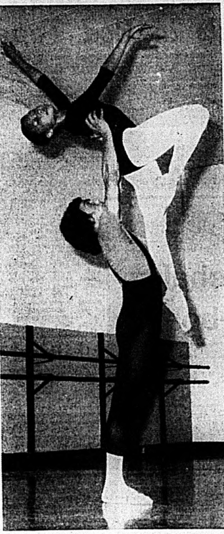
He reports they were stolen from a rack in the basement and notes the guns were the only items taken from the house. Entry was gained by a rear window on the east side of the house.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Thursday, Aug. 7, 2:39 p.m. — fire in wiring of motor on motorcycle owned by Steve Coates, cause was gas leak from motor, occurred while mobile in front of 145 Avondale Rd. following repairs.

Thursday, Aug 7, 1:25 p.m. —malfunction of alarm system at Canadian Durabla Ltd. at 293 University Ave.



Pas de Deux

Grace Mayagawa and Drew Strickland practice a full lift during a Pas de Deux class at the Quinte Dance Centre's summer ballet school. The students are part of a group of 33 dancers partaking in the two-week session under director Brian Scott and guest instructors.

Jeffrey Lists Opposition To Regional Government

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Thursday co-operation among municipalities is the alternative or the answer to regional forms of government.

"I want to see Hastings County remain one unit," said Mayor Jeffrey.

During a press reception the mayor re-affirmed she is seeking the nod of the Quinte Progressive Conservatives for the next provincial election.

"I will make a statement following the nomination convention Monday on what I plan to do about the mayor's office," she said.

Mayor Jeffrey pointed to agreements made between Belleville and the townships of Sidney and Thurlow as "excellent examples" of co-operation among municipalities.

She said "co-operation is the answer . . . the alternative to regional government".

Speaking of Trenton, Mayor Jeffrey said that municipality should be sitting down with Murray Township to sort out an agreement similar to Belleville — Thurlow agreements where the urban centre supplies water and sewer services in return for land.

Because Murray Township has expressed an interest in joining with Northumberland County planning, rather than remaining with the Quinte Planning Board of which Trenton remains a member, negotiating such an agreement between the two might be difficult.

Mayor Jeffrey responded saying "the province has a responsibility to act as an arbitrator . . . to sit down with the municipalities," to sort out the problem.

Funding Expected

The Quinte Association for Riding for the Developmentally Handicapped has learned it should receive at least $500 for its initial program this summer, says its president, Eric Caulfield.

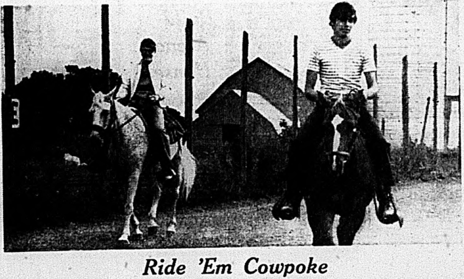
The association is currently teaching the equestrian art to six teenage students from the William R. Kirk School for the Mentally Retarded at Simca Stables at RR 1, Corbyville.

Mr. Caulfield said Thursday the unofficial verbal assurrance came from someone close to the mental retardation services branch of the provincial ministry of community and social services to which the association applied for $600 in June.

The amount includes $450 for Nancy Allin, proprietress of Simca Stables and program instructress. This will cover the cost of teaching and facilities.

The remaining $150 will cover insurance, legal costs, general operating costs and such incidentals as transportation and other unforseen eventualities.

Loyalist College will act as the funding agent. Mr. Caulfield is co-ordinator of the mental retardation counsellor course at Loyalist.



Ride 'Em Cowpoke

Joey (left) and Rick are two of six students from William R. Kirk School for the Mentally Retarded who are currently enjoying equestrian training at Simca Stables at R.R. 1, Corbyville provided by the new Quinte Association for Riding for the Developmentally Handicapped. At 18 years, Rick is the eldest. The youngest is 14 years of age. The boys had not previous experience with horses when they began the summer program in early July.

Mayor Says Housing Shortage Prime Concern in Election Bid

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Increasing provincial financial help in the construction of water and sewer services and making sure Trenton is able to continue its development are Mayor Robin Jeffrey's priorities if she is successful in her bid for the Progressive Conservative nod as the next provincial candidate in Quinte Riding.

At a press reception in her home Thursday Mayor Jeffrey re-affirmed she is seeking the nomination and that provincial politics is the "natural" move from municipal affairs.

"Municipal administration has been a great learning process for me . . . and it will be a decided asset for me if I succeed in the nomination attempt and later in the election," said Mayor Jeffrey.

Citing four successful trips to the polls, she said nominating convention delegates should consider her two aldermanic elections and her acclamation to the mayor's chair in 1974 as a sign of voter popularity. "These were successes . . . that indicate I am a winner with the electorate."

"I am confident the delegates in Belleville will show their support for me. . . . but I want support from across the riding," she said.

While Mayor Jeffrey outlined nine areas of [illegible] if elected, she said the prime area deals with "the critical shortage of housing", which could be solved by servicing more land.

"I shall encourage the province to make available financial assistance to aid in providing the essential services of water and sewers for homes and industry," she said in a written release.

"If Sidney Township was given major financial assistance from the province to service land, our critical shortage of housing in the area could be solved."

For Trenton — a community the mayor says is quickly becoming land locked — she said "I see no alternative but for the province to permit Trenton to anex lands on its western boundary giving it showcase industrial sites along Highway 401."

Asked if the frustrations of a back bencher in the legislature would hinder her accomplishing these aims, she said "I'd be a rookie in the legislature but to get most of my aims done it will mean sitting on Mr. Davis' door and the doors of ministers".

Other aims the mayor lists are:

remaining accesible to people of the riding.

— requesting the province to assist the municipalities of the Quinte area acquire lands to establish or enlarge municipality-owned industrial parks.

Continued emphasis on provision of parklands and playground areas along the Bay of Quinte and along the Trent River.

— environmental protection retention of family farms and recognition of the farming industry as essential field that must be safeguarded.

— a new bridge to connect Belleville and Rossmore which is the most "economical site".

— replacement of Trenton's delapidated swing bridge

— free dental program and re-institution of free milk for young people in the school system.

Council Duties Undecided

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said during an interview Thursday she has made no decision on the mayor's office and will not make a decision until after the Quinte riding Progressive Conservative nominating convention Monday.

If the mayor is successful in winning the nomination Monday she may remain in office only until she is successful as a provincial candidate and sworn in as a member of the Ontario legislature.
